DAUGHERTY DEBATE IN THE SENATE WAS ACRIMONIOUS

All Senate Rules and Decorum were Swept Aside While Partisans Indulged in Bitter Personalities and Incinuations of Misconduct—At One Point Senator Wheeler Charged That President Coolidge Lacked the "Stamina" to Call Upon the Attorney General for His Resignation—Senate Recessed While the Debate Was in Full Swing.

Washington, Feb. 29.—The row over Attorney-General Daugherty plunged the senate into a violent session today—almost unprecedented for the exchanges of bitter personalities and insinuations of misconduct. As a result action was forced over until tomorrow on the proposal for an investigation of Mr. Daugherty's official record.

The storm which broke about the investigation resolution of Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, swept over all boundaries of senate rules and decorum. There were charges and counter charges of attempts to pack the investigating committee. The storm which broke about the investigation resolution of Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, swept over all boundaries of senate rules and decorum. There were charges and counter charges of attempts to pack the investigating committee. There were attacks upon numerous persons present and past, from the White House down, and upon the personal conduct and affiliations of pre-nuptial candidates and senators.

Outbursts From Galleries.

For more than two hours the battle raged amid frequent outbursts from crowded galleries despite repeated warnings and threats from the chair. The senate recessed tonight with the debate still swinging and with adoption of the investigation resolution prospect tomorrow after another hectic period of discussion.

Most of today's battlefield was the attorney-general's official record on various matters, including the oil scandal. Many old charges were repeated and one new acquisition was made by Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, who declared the attorney-general had written a letter seeking to protect from prosecution an unidentified republican national committeeman of the west. Senator Heflin said he had seen a letter to a western district attorney saying that considerations of the committeeman would be appreciated and adding that "he is our man."

Senator Wheeler, charging the attorney-general with seeking to "emasculate" senators, added that President Coolidge lacked "stamina" to call upon Mr. Daugherty for his resignation.

Willis Defended Daugherty.

Mr. Daugherty was defended by Senator Willis, republican, Ohio, who asserted that the attorney-general would be vindicated completely if given an impartial trial. The Ohio senator was the only republican to speak in Mr. Daugherty's behalf, but Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, while expressing the opinion that Mr. Daugherty was not qualified for his position, said it was yet to be proved that he was not an honorable man.

At the outset today an unexpected move by Senator Wheeler injected a new issue into the fight already under way over the investigating committee personnel. He modified his resolution by providing that the committee should be elected by the senate, a procedure provided in the senate rules but seldom followed. Senator Wheeler dropped his original plan to name the committee, including himself and with Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, an insurgent republican, as chairman in the resolution.

The modified resolution provides for election of three republicans and two democrats. This drew immediate objection from the republican organization, Senator Lodge of Massachusetts the republican leader, presenting an amendment providing for selection of the committee by the president pro tempore. This still was pending at adjournment tonight.

If Senator Wheeler's plan for election of the committee is followed, and republican leaders tonight said that it appeared probable through a combination of democrats and insurgent republicans, the party leaders will present names for balloting. Senator Wheeler said tonight that Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, and Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin, the insurgent republican leader, were conferring regarding a slate on which they will unite.

"Pack" Committee Charges.

Senator Robinson declared on the floor today that there had been charges of an effort to "pack" the committee, and in turn Senator Willis criticized Senator Wheeler's original proposal naming himself on the committee. Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, chairman of the oil committee, however said he saw no impropriety in Senator Wheeler being appointed, declaring that an inquiry without a senator in the role of prosecutor would not "get anywhere."

Senator Lenroot also proposed a sweeping general inquiry by another special senate committee, into the conduct of officials, past and present, referring to widespread charges and rumors in circulation, he said "dirty linen" was to be washed in the coming campaign, and there ought to be a "general house cleaning" in all parties.

Senator Hedin declared that one cabinet member after another was being arraigned, and added that "two others probably will be arraigned later on." He did not name them.

Disapproving the selection of Senator Wheeler as a member of the committee, Senator Bruce declared the Montana senator was "too closely identified with certain elements" which had cause to dislike Mr. Daugherty. He later explained that he referred to labor elements. Senator Wheeler countered with a question whether Senator Bruce had not been a representative, before coming to the senate, of railroad corporations. The Maryland senator replied in the negative.

Tilt Over Committee Personnel.

There was another tempestuous period in discussion of conferences Senator Willis had held with Mr. Daugherty and Senator Cummins as president of the senate, regarding the investigating committee personnel. Senator Willis, with a half dozen democrats on their feet at once firing personal questions, told of his talks with Mr. Daugherty and Senator Cummins, and declared that they were entirely proper. The attorney general, he contended, had a proper interest in the committee make-up and the procedure.

After much democratic fire, the Ohio senator said he had suggested to Senator Cummins the names of senators who were efficient and qualified for the inquiry, and flatly denied any improper acts.

Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, at this point brought into discussion the telegram sent by B. S. Rochester, a department of justice employe, to Edward B. McLean in the oil case advising Mr. McLean that the oil committee was to investigate his bank accounts in connection with the $100,000 loan to Albert B. Fall. Senator Caraway asked Senator Willis if he regarded the Rochester telegram improper. Senator Willis replied that if sent by a department of justice officer it was "highly improper and ought to be punished."

PROCEEDINGS BEFORE SENATE OIL COMMITTEE

Washington, Feb. 29 — Before the senate discussion got under way today the oil committee heard flat denials of several of the sensational statements made in telegrams sent to McLean in Florida by his employes in Washington.

A. Mitchell Palmer, attorney general in the Wilson administration, who acted for a time as counsel for McLean, told the committee he had not asked Senator Underwood of Alabama or anyone else, to bring pressure to bear on Senator Walsh; that he was not a "partner" of J. W. Zevely, attorney for Harry F. Sinclair, and that he was not looking after the interests of Fall.

Through employes of the Post and all other persons whose names are mentioned in the telegrams and the committee tomorrow will seek to get at the truth of other assertions in the messages and to clear up a number of the mysteries their examination has left, including the identity of "apricots," "apples," "peaches," and "cherries."

Subpoenas for these persons were issued tonight. They include Francis H. McAdoo, son of William G. McAdoo; Zevely, Francis H. Homer, a Baltimore attorney; Smithers, E. W. Starling of the White House secret service staff, and E. S. Rochester, confidential adviser to Attorney General Daugherty.

A demand that the committee subpoena William Boyce Thompson, of Chicago, was made today in the senate by Senator Heflin who charged that Thompson borrowed $3,500,000 in 1920 in a "dummy" note secured by Sinclair oil stock for use in the presidential campaign that year.

A broader field for inquiry will be furnished the committee if President Coolidge complies with a request in a resolution adopted today by the senate that he furnish the income tax returns of Fall, E. L. Doheny, Sinclair and the Sinclair and Doheny Oil companies. At the White House it was said the executive would ascertain his authority under the law before acting.

While the senate debate was in full swing, announcement was made at the White House that President Coolidge would appoint additional special counsel to bring action looking to the recovery of sections 16 and 36 in the Elk Hills reserve in California now operated by the Standard Oil company of California. It was said that Fall would select attorneys throughly versed in land law.

After it had heard Mr. Palmer today the oil committee cross examined Karl C. Schuyler, counsel for J. Leo Stack, a Denver oil operator, whose claims in Teapot Dome were bought by Sinclair for $1,000,000. Schuyler declared that the indications were that Sinclair had obtained the Teapot Dome lease through a conspiracy with the Pioneer Oil company, but he steadfastly declined to express an opinion that this conspiracy was aimed at the government.

PRESIDENT DEFENDS SUNSHINES HOMES CO.

New York, Feb. 29.—The Sunshine Homes & Concrete Products company is "morally and legally bound" to provide the portable structures for which customers have contracted and intends to carry out contacts, said Robert C. Lafferty, president of the company, in testifying today at his trial for grand larceny.

Lafferty and two other officers of the company are charged with having pocketed the money sent the concern in consideration for "sunshine" houses.

Lafferty declared that the good intention of the officers had been frustrated by a conspiracy to put the firm out of business.

"Did the fact that one of your purchasers threatened to shoot you frighten you?" Lafferty was asked.

"No. Only a threat to steal my good names scares me," replied Lafferty.

22 FIREMEN TEMPORARILY OVERCOME BY SMOKE

New York, Feb. 29.—Twenty-two firemen were temporarily overcome by smoke and illuminating gas in a fire of unknown origin in a five-story loft building in the downtown business district tonight. Damage was confined to loss of stock in the basement and first floor.

Fire Captain Thomas O'Toole was overcome three times before physicians ordered him to abandon the fight. Presence of the illuminating gas, released when couplings were burned through, compelled the firemen to enter the building in relays.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Hopes Based on Reparation Report

Paris, Feb. 29.—(By the A. P.)—The report of the reparations experts is looked forward to now in political circles to clarify the disturbed political atmosphere of Europe. It is thought it may have an important influence on the forthcoming elections in France and perhaps on those of Belgium.

Suffrage Vote in Commons

London, Feb. 29.—(By the A. P.)—The house of commons today accted the principle of giving women the vote at the age of 21 instead of at 30 as under the present law, by passing the second reading of the measure known as the Adamson bill.

DEFENSE IN HARRIS SUIT FOR MARRIAGE ANNULMENT

New York, Feb. 29.—The defense in the trial of Beverly D. Harris' suit for annulment of his marriage to Eleanor Elaine Lee Harris today introduced testimony supporting the claim of the wife's illegitimate birth and tending to prove that she did not misrepresent her aristocratic family connections when he husband was courting.

After reading depositions and hearing several witnesses, including Whitfield Rayner, son of Eli Rayner, Mrs. Harris' girlhood benefactor, the trial adjourned to Monday at the request of George Gordon Battle, attorney for Mrs. Harris and the consent of opposing counsel. Mr. Battle said defense witnesses were coming from the south; that the war of the trial on Mrs. Harris was such that she could not take the stand, and that he himself was exhausted.

Justice Wasservogel informed the counsellors that the term in which the case has been tried so far expired today and that it would be resumed in another part of the supreme court.

The principal deposition admitted was that of the late Eli Rayner, admitted operator of a gaming house in Memphis. It was he who paid for the girl's education and introduced her into the best circles of the south, he said. He denied his relations with her had at any time been improper. He declared Samuella or Susie Lee, the girl Mr. Harris believes is his wife, is a sister of Mrs. Harris, for he had seen them together in Memphis at his home.

Other depositions from prominent Tennesseans concerning the character of Eli Rayner were introduced. In these he was said to be an honest man, "four-square" with all men, honored and respected, a man who enjoyed the confidence and friendship of the best men of Memphis.

When the deposition was taken in Memphis he was asked to relate his meetings with Mrs. Lee, the present Mrs. Harris' mother, and refused at first, asserting he would not answer because "that woman is not on trial." He was induced to answer, however, and recalled that he first met Mrs. Lee while on the road as a traveling salesman and that he met her again in Clarksville, Tenn., before she died, in 1896. He declared the charge that the present Mrs. Harris had been before her marriage an inmate of a house of ill-repute was false.

Whitfield Rayner, Eli's son, lost his temper when asked if, in 1922, while standing in the Chiska hotel in Memphis when Mrs. Harris came in, he said to A. King, house detective:

"There goes the girl my old man used to keep. She's married to a rich New Yorker now."

He rose to his feet, his face flushed, shouting:

"How could I have said such a thing, you——"

Admonished by the court to keep cool and answere yes or no, he shouted again: "No."

The witness said he had met the Lee sisters at his father's home in Memphis in 1909, and knew them as Elaine, Samuella, and Rosha.

He had never observed anything improper between his father and Elaine, he testified, asserting the elder Rayner had cared for her in an entirely honorable way.

Mrs. Corabella C. McCrosson of Ballston Spa, N. Y., Mrs. Harris' former music teach and private secretary, testified that in 1919 Mr. Harris asked her if she could persuade Mrs. Harris to leave and never come back.

"He said he would make it right with me if I could persuade her to divorce him. He told me he was tired of her as his wife and didn't want her around any longer.

"He became persistent in these requests and finally on July 7, 1919, he left the house. On the ninth he telephoned and told me to pack up his belongings that he had left for good."

WILL OPPOSE INCREASE IN PAY OF POSTAL WORKERS

Washington, Feb. 29.—Any general increase at this time in the pay fo postal employes will be opposed by President Coolidge.

Legislation pending in congress which would provide a general increase amounting to $125,000,000 or $150,000,000 annually, is classed by the president among the bills which he said would have a disturbing effect on the country if enacted. The president believes the postal pay increase bill is based on justice and considers it a measure he would like to approve on the ground that workers generally should receive greater compensation, but on the other hand is convinced it would impose a drain on the treasury that cannot at the present well be borne.

Inequalities in the pay of postal employes in the opinion of the president should be wiped out but not through a general increase in the salaries of everybody in the service.

RAIDS IN DANBURY BY FEDERAL "DRY" AGENTS

Derby, Conn., Feb. 29—Three federal prohibition agents assisted by local police conducted raid son three restaurants and a candy store here today. They seized a truck load of alleged liquors at the store of Joseph Klubick, 114 Caroline street. At the restaurants of Tony Malafronte, 96 Olivia street; Mary Esposito, 24 Housatonic avenue, and Dominick Martin, of New Haven avenue, liquor was alleged to have also been taken. The four proprietors were arrested and furnished $200 bonds for appearance in city court tomorrow.

27 BOYS ESCAPED FROM HUDSON COUNTY HOME

Bayonne, N. J., Feb. 29—Twenty-seven of the 240 boys confined in the Hudson county parental home here escaped early yesterday, it became known tonight, when police had rounded up eight of the missing. The flight occurred on the same day that a new superintendent took charge of the home and it is believed that it was prompted by a dislike for the change. The boys escaped by breaking a window in the basement and climbing into the street.

Marines Landed at Ceiba, Honduras

To Protect Consulate, Which Has Been Fired on by Revolutionists.

Washington, Feb. 29—The American consulate at Ceiba, Honduras, has been fired on by revolutionists and a detachment of marines from the cruiser Denver has been landed to act as a consulate guard.

Consul Walter reported today that fighting had been in progress in the streets for four hours, and that some bullets "had penetrated the consulate."

The Denver, commanded by Rear Admiral Dayton, has been held at Ceiba for several weeks. State department officials believe her personnel will be sufficient to protect American life and property and it was not intended to send other ships to aid her.

Major Edward N. Sturdevant, aide to Rear Admiral Dayton, commanding the special service squadron in Central American waters, is aboard the Denver and is believed to have taken charge of the detachment of 35 marines guarding the consulate.

While neither the state nor navy departments has received any detailed reports showing the instructions given the landing force, it is assumed that their operations will be confined strictly to protection of the consulate unless American lives should be threatened elsewhere in the city.

There is a very considerable American colony in Ceiba and the Denver was sent to that port in response to a telegram expressing the fears of American residents that there would be fighting among the revolutionary elements in the city and that American lives and property would be jeopardized.

If the need should arise, Admiral Dayton could support the marine detachment with bluejackets from the flagship but officials here do not expect such a contingency. The Denver carries a crew of about 200 men.

No recent reports have been received from Honduras to show which of the revolutionary elements are engaged at Ceiba or whether the forces of the de facto government are involved.

DEPT STORE SALES REFLECT PROSPERITY

Boson, Feb. 29.—Business activity in New England increased "quite noticeably" during January and "about held its own" in February says the monthly review of the federal reserve bank of Boston, issued tonight.

"Retail trade in this district" the review continues, "is probably relatively larger in volume than manufacturing activity. Department store sales in January were 11 per cent. larger than in the same month last year. The corresponding increase in December was approximately 5% per cent. The volume of trade is usually the smallest of any month in the year in February, inasmuch as that is a short month, and is between the winter and spring seasons. Boston department stores reported that their sales during the first two weeks of the month were about 9 per cent larger than in the corresponding period of February last year.

TEN MORE HOUSE MEMBERS FOR 2.75 PER CENT. DRINKS

Washington, Feb. 29—Ten more members of the house have joined the "committee of 40" formed yesterday to obtain modification of the Volstead act to permit 2.75 per cent. beverages, it was announced today by Representative Hill, republican, Maryland, a leader in the movement.

The additional members, Mr. Hill said, are Representatives Black, Carew, Bloom, Cleary, Cullen, Griffin, Lindsay, O'Connell and Quayle, democrats of the New York delegation, and Eagan, democrat, New Jersey.

"At least 50 members of the house of representatives will file the committee bill next Tuesday," Mr. Hill predicted, "and it is hoped that all members favoring this modification will join the movement.

Forbes Indicted for Graft and Debauchery

Grand Jury Indicates T[illegible] Other Sensational Inci[illegible] Have Been Uncovered.

Chicago, Feb. 29—(By the A. P.)—Charles R. Forbes, former director of the United States Veterans Bureau, and John W. Thompson, contractor of Chicago and St. Louis, were named in four indictments returned today by the federal grand jury which has spent a month investigating charges of debauchery, graft and waste in connection with Forbes' administration.

Forbes and Thompson were named jointly in two indictments charging conspiracy to commit bribery and offenses against the government, and conspiracy to defraud the United States government. Forbes was named alone in a third indictment on a charge of accepting a bribe, and Thompson in a fourth charging that he had indirectly given a bribe.

In a special report which accompanied the indictments, the grand jury indicated that other sensational developments involving alleged graft had been uncovered, but because they were not within the jurisdiction of the court had not been pursued.

"We do not feel," the special report said, "that it would subserve the best interests of the government for this jury at this time to make public the details of these transactions. This jury feels that it will suffice to report that they involve

"1. Speculation by one or more officials of the government, wherein it has been asserted that official information was used for purposes of speculation.

"2. That certain sums of money were paid to two members of congress.

"3. That possession of a file of one of the departments for about six month was had by persons having no official connections with such department.

"4. That money was accepted by certain individuals from attorneys for the purpose of obtaining clemency for prisoners through their intimacy with officials.

"5. That money was collected by certain individuals (not attorneys) for obtaining through such intimacy permits for intoxicating liquor."

The indictments charged that Forbes while director of the Veterans' Bureau, received a bribe of $5,000 and certain additional emoluments on the agreement to award contracts for the government work to the contracting firm of Thompson and Black, of which Thompson and James W. Black, deceased, were the heads.

PARENTS REMANDED FOR DEATH OF THEIR INFANT

Brunswick, Me., Feb. 29.—Charged with manslaughter as a result of the death of their infant daughter, Kenneth Ross MacLean of Tacoma, Washington, a sophomore at Bowdoin college, and his 19 year old wife, Nettie May, were remanded to jail after arraignment in municipal court late today. Mrs. MacLean was arrested after she had traveled 26 miles from Brunswick to Portland with the dead child in her arms and had attempted to arrange with an undertaker for burial.

The result of an autopsy on the body of the year old infant has been withheld pending the report of Professor Frank N. Whittaker, of Bowdoin college, who is conducting an examination of the child's internal organs. A continuance of the case until March 8 was granted, when the examination will have been completed.

Mrs. MacLean told the authorities that she came to Brunswick to visit her husband, who was a guard on the varsity football team last year. Upon awakening yesterday morning she said that the infant was dead. She said that she was married to MacLean in Tacoma.

Although it was not known at the college that MacLean was married, he said that his parents were aware of his marriage. Word was received here today that the parents of the young couple were on their way east.

TURBULENT SESSION OF FRENCH DEPUTIES

Paris, Feb. 29.—(By the A. P.)—Blows and kicks were exchanged in a turbulent session of the chamber of deputies today and the disturbances ended only by a suspension of the sitting and the forcible expulsion of the belligerents by the chamber attendants. The trouble occurred between socialist groups headed by ex-Premier Painleve and royalists and members of the right.

It was precipitated by the royalist deputy Magne repeatedly shouting "cours" during M. Painleve's discussion of the Caillaux case which was brought up in a debate on internal affairs. M. Mandel, who was Clemenceau's chief of cabinet, had held the floor for several hours with an interpellation digging up personal incidents that enraged those involved. After a frequent exchange of compliments M. Painleve's supporters charged across the chamber and the fight followed. Premier Poincare watched the disturbance serenely for several minutes and then the sitting was suspended.

LONGWORTH COMPROMISE TAX BILL PASSED BY HOUSE

Provides for Rates of 2 Per Cent. on Net Incomes of $4,000 or Less, 5 Per Cent. on Incomes Between $4,000 and $8,000; 6 Per Cent. Above $8,000—Minimum Surtax Rate is 1 1-2 Per Cent. With Maximum of 37 1-2 Per Cent—Personal Exemptions Remain the Same as in Existing Law—The House Also Passed an Amendment Calling for Flat 25 Per Cent. Reduction on all Income Taxes Payable This Year—The Bill Will Now go to the Senate.

Washington, Feb. 29—By a vote of 408 to 8 the revenue bill was passed late today by the house.

As sent to the senate the measure carries an income tax schedule offered by Representative Longworth, the republican leader, as a substitute for the democratic rates. This was adopted 216 to 199, after the house had refused by a vot eof 261 to 152 to reinsert in the bill the original Mellon schedule.

The Longworth substitute which was supproted by republican insurgents who previously had thrown their lot with the democrats provides for a normal tax reduction to two per cent. on incomes below $4,000, five per cent. on incomes between $4,000 and $8,000 and to 6 per cent. above $8,000. It also would cut by one-fourth the present surtax rates, making the maximum 37 1-2 per cent on incomes exceeding $200,000. No increase in existing personal tax exemptions would be allowed.

The house also approved a proposal for a flat reduction of 25 per cent on all personal income taxes payable this year. Two unsuccessful efforts were made to eliminate this provision.

Specific rate charges carried in the bill which would become effective upon its passage are made next year on gasoline and profits of 12½ except those made on tax excise prices which would go into effect thirty days after enactment of the law.

In addition to the new income tax schedule, made provisions of the bill as approved today are:

A twenty-five per cent. reduction in taxes on earned income, all incomes under $5,000 being defined as earned for purposes of this reduction.

Repeal of reduction of many of the miscellaneous or excise taxes, involving about $120,000,000 in revenue annually.

Tightening of the limitations of capital loss and gross income deductions which, it is estimated, will yield about $80,000,000 revenue annually.

Increases in the estate tax rates of about 38 per cent.

Institution of a gift tax, with the same rates as carried in the estate tax.

Creation of a board of tax appeals to decide tax disputes between the treasury and taxpayers.

House leaders admit that the bill undoubtedly will be altered in important particulars by the senate. The decisive record vote by which the Mellon rates were rejected today however makes it certain, they say, that regardless of what senate sentiment may be, the treasury schedule will not be restroed to the bill.

While President Coolidge has expressed himself as strongly in favor of the Mellon rates his attitude toward the compromise accepted today by the house has not been defined. White house officials were considerably stirred by the publication of a story that Mr. Coolidge was willing to accept the compromise, and it was stated that the executive had given no such indication.

The president prepared a letter today to Chairman Green of the house ways and means committee setting forth his views but decided not to send it to the capitol after Mr. Longworth had communicated with the white house and the president and Mr. Mellon had discussed the tax reduction after the cabinet meeting.

Reports that a letter declaring that the president was opposed to the Longworth compromise, was on its way to the capitol caused a flurry in the house as organization republicans assured of insurgent support, were preparing to deliver a death blow to the democratic income tax rates. Democrats realizing that they lacked a majority made no determined effort to head off the move.

Before the Longworth substitute was offered, however, Representative Hawley of Oregon a republican member of the ways and means committee, proposed a record vote on the Mellon rates. Sixty two republicans joined with 187 democrats, one farmer-laborite and one independent in opposing this amendment, while one democrat, Browne, of New Jersey, supported it, along with 182 republicans.

On the Longworth compromise the vote, with one exception, was on party lines. Browne of New Jersey again swinging from the democratic ranks. With him voted 181 republicans, while in opposition to the substitute were 197 democrats, one independent and one farmer-laborite.

Roll call after roll call was taken as the house forged its way toward a final vote on the bill. Representative Crisp, democrat, Georgia, made a last minute attempt, but in vain, to have the provision for a 25 per cent. flat reduction in income taxes payable this year eliminated. Only 68 members favored such action, while 348 opposed it. Previously Mr. Crisp had attempted to have the section thrown out.

Representatives Mills, republican, New York, who led the fight for the Mellon rates, proposed just before the final vote, that the bill be sent back to the ways and means committee, but his motion was rejected by a viva voce vote.

Mr. Mills was one of eight who voted against passage of the bill. The others were: Bacharach, New Jersey, Fenn, Merritt and Tilson, Connecticut; Wainwright, New York and McFadden, Pennsylvania, republicans and Howard, democrat, Nebraska.

Miss Witte was given many gifts, including cut glass, cooking utensils and linen. Others present were, Misses Mabel Sweet, Rose Bertrand, Loretta LaRue, Sue Chesebro, Ethel Regan, Ethel Taylor and Ruth Nichols, Mrs. Alice Hartigan, Mrs. Carrie Clark, Mrs. Helen Myers, Mrs. Rose Salvergio, Mrs. Flora Wood, Mrs. Rose Witte and Mrs. Victoria Lutton.

Fans were treated to a remarkable exhibition of bowling at the Y. M. C. A. alleys one evening this week when Mrs. Lester French broke the women's bowling record by rolling over 404 rubber ducks in three strings. 300 was the past record. She then substantiated this record by toppling 154, a new high single mark for women. Her three record breaking strings are: 127, 123 and 154.

Charles Edwards continued smashing records, when he totalled 481 for three strings, the individual strings being 159, 158 and 164. A comparison with the high three record in the American Thread Athletic Association bowling league at the Wood alleys held by Eugene Fancher, 443, will serve to show what a remarkable pin splitting exhibition Edwards gave. Contestants in the thread league have been shooting at Fanchers' totals but have not as yet met with success.

The selectmen of the town of Columbia have issued the warning for the annual town meeting for the laying of the annual tax rate on the recently completed grand list, for next Monday afternoon at Yeoman's hall. The laying of the tax rate is the only clause included in the warning except making a specific appropriation for the support of the public schools and fixing the date when the tax shall become due and payable.

The estimate of the selectmen for the expenses of the current year was $10 000 and there has been some speculation as to whether

Last year the current expenses of the town, including schools, approximated $14,000 and from that sum should be deducted $5,237 received from the state for the support of the schools, leaving the net sum of less than $9,000 for

The grand list as left by the assessors approximated $834,527 on which a 12 mill tax would raise $10,000. To this amount would be added the personal tax of which it is estimated that $600 could be collected. This arrangement would leave about $1,500 which could be applied on the indebtedness and held unexpected expenses.

The taxpayers of Columbia have expressed some dissatisfaction during the past two years with regard to the question of taxation. A minority of the voters has not been in favor of the work done by the assessors and board of relief but this year the controversy seems to have subsided and it is likely that if a 12-mill tax is suggested it will be voted.

Albina, the five months' old daughter of Emile and Albina St. George Breault, died at the home of her parents, 10 Ash street, Thursday afternoon from bronchial pneumonia. The funeral was held from the home Friday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. The body was placed in the receiving vault of St. Joseph's cemetery. Arrangements were in charge of the Hercleau-Bosse Corp.

A number of men and women called at the office of Collector George J. Timmins to pay their personal tax and their names did not appear on the collector's abstract book. An investigation was made and it was found that a large number had not been enumerated when the canvass of the town for the tax was made in November and December. The number of names omitted has been placed at three hundred, the persons living in different districts, Collector Timmins is at a loss to determine just how the omissions were made. It is possible that many others may have been overlooked in the canvass.

Of the 5,400 names on the tax list who are eligible for the payment of the assessment somewhat over 1,000 had not settled up to Thursday night and Friday being the last day when the payments are due, Collector Timmins was kept busy. After a reasonable time the list of people who have not paid will be turned over to the police court authorities and warrants will be made out for their arrest.

It is understood that a number of people have boasted that they had never paid this tax and some even ventured to state that they never should. Several of these cases are being investigated and they may be compelled to pay all back taxes and court assessments as well.

JEWETT CITY

Years ago, when it used to be the custom for the young chaps of the town to get bird's egg collections, the first of March was the signal for a try at securing an owl's egg. They are the first bird to lay in this section, and today their nests would be the hardest to find and the most difficult to get. In the big hemlocks, across from the Aspinook there was always to be found a dozen or more short or barred owls' nests every March. On still nights their hoots could be faintly heard on the village streets, and occasionally one would venture across the Quinebaug, to the town on a foraging tour. They readily respond to an imitation of their cries, and even at midday local boys have drawn them from their resting places, to meet a supposed intruder on their domain. The hunters after their nests used to find them exxtremely acute of hearing. Once when a big hoot owl alighted on a branch a hundred yards away with its back toward two boys, the snap of a hunting case watch caused Mr. Owl to instantly turn his head over his back in the direction of the faint sound.

CORSET DEMONSTRATION SUCCESS AT WILLIMANTIC

In Willimantic a reporter stepped into the Tubridy-Weldon company store on Main street, Friday, and inquired about the results of the corset demonstration by live models, Wednesday evening, attended by over seven hundred women. For an answer he was directed to look at the corset counter which was in charge of Mrs. L. A. Dewey, an expert corsetierre, who is remaining at the store during this week. The counter and saleslades were invisible, being hidden behind a double row of customers. The management pointed out that since the show customers had been pouring in at the rate of seven fittings per hour and that it was expected that this average would be doubled during today (Saturday).

The Broadway Theatre.

The beauty, the thrills and intense dramatic action which fill Joseph Hergesheimer's story, Wild Oranges, have been faithfully portrayed in Goldwyn's screen version of the popular novel which comes to the Broadway theatre Sunday night.

Wild Oranges is considered by many the greatest novel ever written by Joseph Hergesheimer. It is his first successful novel, and established him as one of America's greatest authors. The unusual manner in which the author has handled his characters may be responsible for the book attracting such wide attention. The entire action of the story occurs in the swamp lands that border the Georgia coast.

Frank Mayo, who may be remembered for his excellent work in Elinor Glyn's Six Days, plays the leading role of John Woolfolk.

Nogel de Brullier, who has innumerable successes to his credit such as Salome, The Three Musketeers and The Hunchback of Notre Dame, enacts the part of Litchfield Slope, grandfather of the girl.

Short subjects include a comedy and news weekly.

Helen of Troy, N. Y.

Helen of Troy, N. Y., the distinctively different musical comedy, which Wilmer and Vincent, in association with George Jessel are to present at the Broadway theatre, Wednesday night, March 5, after its long run in New York, is generally conceded to be the most popular and successful musical entertainment the American stage has known in recent years. This musical comedy is the product, as to book, of George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly, authors of Merton of the Movies, Dulcy and To the Ladies. The music and lyrics are by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby, composers of many now popular song hits. The central figure in Helen of Troy, N. Y., is Helen McGuffey, a stenographer, who is employed in the Yarrow Collar Factory. She is the third assistant to Warren Jennings, efficiency expert.

Helen of Troy, N. Y., is sumptuously staged in a manner best situated to bring forth the many gems of comedy, and its rollicking, jingling music. The excellent cast includes Pauline Chambers, Marcella Shields, William Sellery, Marie Berno, W. J. McCarthy, Lew Christy, Allen Allen Allenworth, Charles Williams, Thos. Irwin, in addition to which there is an augmented orchestra and a bevy of graceful girls selected for their singing and dancing ability as for youth and good looks.

Seats are 50c, $1, $1.50, $2, $2.50, plus the tax of 15 per cent.

Mail orders are now accepted and seat sale will start Monday, Feb. 3, at the box office at 10 a. m.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

William Courtenay Coming to the Broadway.

William Courtenay will be seen in his newest play, Dangerous People, at the Broadway theatre, next Friday night, March 7. The play was written by Oliver White and had its premier in Chicago last August. The plot deals with the adventures of a gentleman crook trying to go straight—after robbing a bank he meets a girl and falls in love, decides to return the loot to the bank vault. He finds it more difficult to restore the money than he encountered in stealing it, and he becomes the central figure in a series of tangled situations, in which thrills and laughs alternate with each other. Dangerous People has no message to preach; it was written to entertain, and for no other purpose. Mr. Courtenay's previous hits were in this kind of drama; he starred in Arsene Lupin, Under Cover, Under Fire, Pals First, Cappy Ricks, Civilian Clothes, Honors Are Even, The Law Breaker and Her Temporary Husband. In addition to the star the following celebrities will be found in the cast: George Parsons, a former George M. Cohan star; Charles Millward, who played the leading part in the big city company which presented The Fool; Virginia Hammond, for the past two seasons Mr. Courtenay's leading lady and before that, leads with Henry Miller, in The Famous Mrs. Fair, and that splendid actress, Gertrude Hitz, who for three seasons was leading lady with William Hodge.

Mail orders are now being accepted. Prices are 50c, $1, $1.50, $2, $2.50. Seats will be on sale at box office on Wednesday morning, March 5.

Vaudeville at the Strand.

A program of five standard acts has been especially selected for this occasion and is sure to please all.

AT THE PALACE

Film fans will be given an opportunity to see the most popularly acclaimed male star in the world, Sunday night only as the management has booked this particular star for that date in one of his greatest successes All Night in which Carmel Myers plays the leading female role.

Few stars have achieved Valentino's popularity in filmdom. At the recent Theatre Owners' Chamber of Commerce Ball held in Astor Hotel, New York, he was crowned King of the Movies.

His role in All Night is that of a gilded youth, the type which brought him fame, who falls madly in love with a supposed "Duchess," played by Carmel Myers. When the lady of his heart is unmasked, his love persists, despite many obstacles.

Perley Poore Sheehan, adaptor of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," and author of many successful novels, wrote the story which was directed by Paul Powell for Universal.

"There's a sure-fire entertainment in "The Isle of Doubt," which stars Wyndham Standing as a two-fisted he-man who, when he finds that he is merely a husband of convenience, grabs his bride under one arm and her lover under the other (figuratively speaking) and transports them to a tropical isle. There he makes them work for their board of lodging.

Neither likes it very well, but the wife stands it best, for her lover is shown up as a yellow dog and she sees the manliness of her husband. "The Isle of Doubt" is well supplied with romance and adventure; with clashes of will power and battles of wits and fists. It's a Playgoer Picture and is not to be missed.

Starting on Monday afternoon will be Jimmie Evans and his Imperial Revue, containing a beauty chorus of girls who can really sing, comedians that are really funny and last but not least beautifully staged. It is a clean wholesome show which any member of the family will enjoy and will be a source of entertainment that you have been waiting to see.

Norwich Music Association

The March meeting of the Norwich Music association will be held on Monday evening, March 3rd, at 8 p. m., in Slater Hall.

The program for the evening will be in the form of a song recital by Miss Doris Emerson of Boston. Miss Emerson is a soprano recommended by Fred Patton who made such a favorable impression in his recitals here, one and two years ago.

Certain it is that Miss Emerson has chosen to prepare a program that is a bit out of the ordinary, and it seems a fair proposition to anticipate an evening of real pleasure. Mr. Frederick W. Lester will be at the piano.

The program: The Heavy Hours, arranged by Endicott; He Stole My Tender Heart Away, Endicott, songs of the revolutionary period; Perduta, ho la speranza, Donaudy; Ah! mai non cessate, Donaudy; Gavotte, Massenet, from Manon; L'heure silencieuse, Staub; Comme au-tre-fois, Ilgat, from Pearl Fishers; A Brown Bird Singing, Haydn Wood; Under the Greenwood Tree, Buzzi-Peccia; Mexican Love Song, La Forge; The Answer, Terry; Aria—Ah, fors' e lui, Verdi, from Traviata; The Little Shepherd's Song, Wintter Watts; Canoe Song, Emerson; The Singer, Maxwell.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BREED THEATRE

A highly amusing yet tensely dramatic story has been told by Rupert Hughes, world famous novelist, in Reno, which will be the film featured at the Breed theatre, starting Sunday.

Besides writing the story, Hughes directed it for the Goldwyn studios. The author took his place among the best directors in motion pictures with his Souls for Sale, which is still enjoying tremendous popularity, and his production of Reno will serve to further advance him in the direction field. The story is built around the divorce fiasco which is rampant in the United States.

Today's bill consists of Douglass Fairbanks in The Mark of Zorro the third chapter of The Way of a Man and the Pathe news. Continous show from 1:30 to 10:15.

Whiteman's Steamship Orchestra at State Armory, Norwich

Paul Whiteman's orchestra arrives in Norwich this morning and will be quartered at a local hotel. Everything is all set at the Armory for their appearance there tonight to give their dance to the lovers of refined jazz music of the Whiteman school of whom Norwich boasts so many. It is seldom if ever been the good fortune for Norwich people to have the opportunity right at home to hear a band of the ability and renown of this one which has just left the good ship Leviathan, Uncle Sam's mighty floating palace for a four week's furlough and during that time are going to carry the message of the beauty, novelty and refinement of symphonic jazz to all the larger cities of New England.

Mr. Keith Pitman, whom Mr. Whiteman picked for his organizer and leader for the Leviathan orchestra since the trial trip early in July has brought this band off the boat intact, so Norwich people will have the treat of listening to an orchestra schooled for months in Whiteman methods by a man who can play anything in the way of instruments, Mr. Keith Pitman.

"LES MISERABLES" FINAL IN Y. M. C. A. PICTURES

Men, women, and others 16 and over are invited to see the closing part of the great story of Victor Hugo "Les Miserables" which will be shown in moving pictures at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. on the coming Sunday at 4 o'clock. This picture has always pleased and impressed with its fine lessons of interest in others. Jean Val Jean, the leading character has been changed from a rough, wicked man, into a man of kindly heart and Christian action toward others, the change being brought about by the influence of the devout bishop, who befriended Jean Val Jean when he was being hunted by officers of the law. The closing part is perhaps the most touching, and those who attend the showing will be fully repaid. In addition to the picture story, Hugh Kipder will render vocal solos, and Secretary Hill will give a brief talk appropriate to the occasion.

Put Up 300 Quarts Fruit, 500 Glasses Jelly and Took Care of Four Children

Norwalk, Ia.—"I have been meaning for some time to write and tell you how much good your medicine has done me. When I started to take it I was almost bed fast and would have been in bed all the time if I had had any one to care for my children. There was so much swelling and pain that I could hardly take a step. I took seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, and found that so healing. I am not entirely well yet for I was in bad shape when I started your medicine, but I am so much better that I am not afraid to recommend it, and I think if I keep on taking it, it will cure me. I have done my work all alone this summer, caring for four children, and I canned 300 quarts of fruit and made 500 glasses of jelly, so you see I must be better. I feel pretty good all the time and I am glad to tell others about the medicine."—Mrs. C. J. WENNERMARK, Box 141, Norwalk, Iowa.

Ma Bribes Me with a Kiss

Sometimes when I h'aint done just right
An' maybe had a rippin' fight,
An' thought I soaked him on the nose,
He tore for fair my Sunday clothes;
An' I come home just known' Dad
'L wallop me for being bad,
'N I get so hot I almost siss
Ma comes and bribes us with a kiss.

And sometimes when Marg Jones an' me
Don't on a single thing agree,
An' stop a playin' social games
An' start to singin' spiteful names,
'N I get so mad I gasp an' choke,
While Margy shrike like 'twas a joke,
Ma come an' says: "Good land, what's this?"
Then bribes us both with just a kiss.

Sometimes Pa says, "Tom, now for bed!"
Just when I simply had instead
To finish up an Injun book
That was so fierce I read and shook;
Then Pa gets up, and I do, too,
Surmisin' what he's goin' to do;
When Ma says, "Pa, I'll see to this."
An' bribes me with a good night kiss.

I'm growin' fast, and I suppose
When I get wearing grown-up clothes,
Long trousers an' a derby hat,
I'll be too old an' big for that;
An' yet I'm glad I'm not there—quite,
Especially when it gets toward night,
'Cause you don't know just what you miss
When Ma stop bribin' with a kiss.

CHATTY LETTER FROM OLGA

Dear Social Corner: Hello folks! How are you all this beautiful morning?

First I wish to thank a Social Corner member for my calendar. It was dear of you to send it. I have it hung over the desk in the guest room.

My favorite flowers, roses climbing over a cottage is the subject.

Dew Kist: Saturday I baked a hot milk cake (your recipe). It was delicious.

Delish Dealt Had the same experience years ago with a lemon pie. And to this day can almost feel the sensation that went over me as I heard it go plop on the floor upside down. Was so glad I met you in Norwich before Christmas and had that nice chat with you. And sorry you were so ill afterward.

I wonder if it is to late to extend thanks for my lovely cards at Christmas?

And Jennie I really meant to write you after you so kindly remembered me while in New York, and sent me that nice card. You are always so thoughtful and efficient. Am sure you will forgive me.

Lucy Acorn: Hope to see you at the Buckingham next month. Presume you have little chicks on the way by now.

Blue Gentian: Was so pleased to see you and have that nice chat. How happy Aunt Sarah was too.

Grace: I think you are wonderful to travel about alone. But then you radiate good nature, and of course people respond. I often think we are as quick to give if people might us. Was sorry to learn you had lost anoth er dear friend.

Amy: Hope by now you are much improved in health, and will be able to meet with us next time in Franklin hall.

Belinda: Was so sorry you had such a bad accident. C. E. S. gave me your message. Hope you will soon to able to come out again.

Bonlove and Whirlwind: You surely are good sports to come so far to attend the meetings, and we certainly appreciate your coming.

Trottie: Did enjoy your letter on Florida. Could almost imagine I was there, you made it all seem so real.

Haley: Was pleased to hear brother was on the gain.

Wurdy Bell: Was sorry to hear of your accident. Trust you will soon be all right again.

I certainly have had heaps of good times during the pas year at our Social Corner gatherings. Some people have the gift of expressing themselves and their good times on paper. I cannot. But I appreciate and thank you each and all for the happy hours I have enjoyed, and the lovely friends I have made.

Ronie: My heart goes out to you, and I wish I could do or say something to lighten your burden. Words are so futile. Only time and our Heavenly Father can help. And in His own time peace will come.

Iola: I just dote on your letters about songs, etc., of long ago. When mother was here and my children were small they would say, "Grandma make a Dan Tucker seat," which she did by spreading her knees and letting her dress drop down. Then she would sing in a sweet clear voice, Dan Tucker, Twickenham Ferry, Johnny Sands and many other old songs. How those children did enjoy it! Truly the man who said, "A child who has never known a grandmother has missed one of the best things in life," knew what he was talking about.

When washing a cotton tablecloth add a little starch. You will find it will iron nicely and look much better.

Good day.

OLGA.

CHATTY LETTER FROM MA OF GREENE GABLES

Dear Corner Sisters: It is Saturday morning and I've just got my Bulletin and as usual I sat right down to read the Corner letters, and let me say right now, I for one was glad to see so many letters. It seems like old times. Poor Eveline Burr and her corn and mice. If mice worry her as bad as they do me, I'm sorry for her. A few years ago we were bothered with them dreadfully, but with the aid of the male members of the family by stopping up places where they got in and with a faithful cat we have seen only one or two for a year. A few nights ago I heard a rat gnawing underneath the floor. That is worse than mice. I got up and got a big stick of wood from the box and did some awful pounding right over the place where I heard the noise. He would stop for a few minutes and then start again. Well so did I with my stick and I won out. Haven't heard him since. But I also succeeded in waking up all the family who wanted to know what was the matter. I said, "Rats."

A Good Fighter asked if we had terrible huggers here. I will say no, the one I met came from R. I. and they say the law is very slack there. But, poor man, if he knew how bad I was hurt he would feel awfully sorry. I don't mean he shall know until I am entirely well which will be soon I hope. For I am much better, thank you. I've had a lot of trouble with my eyes but they are better. The good man said I had been seeing too much. I said I thought I had not seen enough for I wanted to see the Corner sisters at the next meeting. If possible Bug and I will be there but we never know. I hope this ice will be gone soon. I do hate to have the ground covered with ice the way it is now. But March will soon be here and we may soon look for warm pleasant days. I'm sewing as fast as I can to get it done before cleaning house and I want to do that early so as to be able to enjoy the spring days. I want to have quite a few flowers this year if possible. I'm going to try and paper two or three rooms. I can do it myself much easier then to tear things up for a man to come and do it. My side will be allright in a few weeks and I'll get all my cleaning done before it comes too worm.

Some one will say well you can't clean before you can open the doors and windows. Will I do open them. We have steam heat and can clean in any part of the house with comfort and our doors and windows are open a lot day and night now. We have ten rooms besides halls and closets and pantry so it takes a long time to get it all done. So I believe in beginning early.

When the friend who hurt my rib comes up again, which will be soon, he is going to cut me a window in my room facing the west which I've always wanted done but I'll be careful that there are no more ribs hurt. I must talk foolish some of the time but will try and be more sensible from now on.

Bug wrote last week and it seemed good to see a letter from her, and how glad I am she has not changed her pen name for that's a good name and she had a good reason for taking it. I shall never change mine and will sign myself same as ever with good wishes to all.

MA OF GREENE GABLES.

THE CARE AND TREATMENT OF ROSES

Dear Sisters: Having had a little experience with roses I thought it might help the sisters. My roses looked like wax and you would think they had just come out of a hot house. This is the way to treat them. Let the holes for the roots be dug, regular holes. Into these holes dump plenty of manure. Cover this with six to eight inches or even a foot of soil, level, and in this set your young plants, after having allowed them to stand in water two or three hours, or even over night if they are "droopy" when received. They want plenty of food and an abundance of water. In a rainy summer roses thrive wonderfully. After the young plants are set out—and in planting do not fail to fix the soil well around the little rootlets with your hand or foot—water well every week as soon as they begin to show. The ground needs stirring: fork around them not enough to disturb the roots, but to stimulate their growth. They ought to make a good start the first year. On my hardy roses I pinched off all the buds the first year. When fall come wait until the cold weather has set in, have the ground firm about the roots, if possible put two or three shovelfuls of manure about each bush, and lay brush over the plants after covering them well with leaves. I had nine rosebushes winter killed because they were not covered with leaves in the winter.

Early in spring keep a sharp lookout for slugs and give them a dose of hellebore from a pepper shaker. If taken in time they are very little trouble. Rosebugs simply have to be caught, I have found no other way of dealing with them. In spring when the weather becomes somewhat settled, I gradually uncover the plants; a cloudy day is best. Dig up around the roots. Tie the stems, after having cut them back about three feet, to a stake frequently stirring the soil about the roots. Tea-roses I treated the same way, only they need less pruning, and you may loge them unless you box up the bed and put a sash on top. Once more what roses must have is an abundance of food. General experience tells of their spindling plants, unless well nourished. The plan given was adopted by a gardener. Climbers by the way must not be pruned too closely as they bloom on the old wood. The others bloom on the new shoots and do not be afraid to prune or cut off the roses as fast as they flower into half open buds. They will bloom the more freely the more you cut them.

WANTS REPORTS OF CLUB MEETINGS

Dear Social Corner Friends: Have been reading about the recent ice storm. All who know where I live can imagine its beauty when the sun came out.

Roxanna Winco: Your advice is good. I think it's better to dwell in the corner of a house top than—well you know the rest.

Amy: Am glad you are at home again and hope you will keep on improving in health. I well remember Prof. Turner. He knew a number of persons that I knew. Once I was thinking of inviting him to our home to talk over old times—but I was informed he was like a corset (good staying qualities) so did not invite him. Once I invited a woman to come to see me for the same purpose. She came in less than a week and was with us three months, so I am a little shy now about such invitations.

Flower Lover: May I ask what kind of a plant that is you call devil's whiskers? I have a pot of handsome moss and it covers the flower pot all over, has seeds, but have never seen a blossom.

Once more I must ask some writer to give us a letter telling about our meetings so those who are not with us can read all about it.

J. E. T.: Oysters are just as good in March as they were in November.

Jerushy Spice: I looked in the car station for you. Guess the ice was too treacherous for you to venture out. Come to our anniversary if you can.

Foxglove and Whirlwind: Card received and thanks to you both. Hope to see you soon.

Crimson Rambler: I see you have another addition to your "yellow corn." I used mine for cotton cloth.

Hope we have good weather for our 14th anniversary.

Best regards to all.

JOAN.

MAKE MORE USE OF CORN MEAL

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Do you ever go tired of home made bread? Also baker's bread, rolls and biscuit? If so, why don't you try corn meal for a change? I make something that we love with corn meal about twice a week. Besides it is much better to use it in winter for it is heating and nourishing. So now try it in some of the following ways: Cook it in mush for breakfast, serve with sugar and cream and make some muffins for supper with it and if the members of the family like griddle cakes make them after this recipe which I am sending in along with this letter. Also make drop cakes and cookies and make corn fritters, chopping one pound of fresh pork and add salt to taste, two teaspoons of baking powder, one egg well beaten, corn meal to make a stiff dough and fry in hot lard. For Sunday dinner try a steamed pudding with berries in and serve with a sauce. In place of cake use a good corn cake recipe. All the family will like it. Last but not least make corn bread or scones or dodgers which are very good cooked in a frying pan after sausage or bacon. I wish to thank Foxglove, Whirlwind and Kitty Lou for the birthday cards. They came as a surprise to me. And, Kitty Lou, the little verse on the card tells the truth. We all like to see the birthdays come but do we like to see ourselves grow old?

Griddle Cakes: 2 cups of yellow corn meal, 1 cup of wheat flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 tablespoon of sugar, 1 egg beaten, 1-4 tea spoon of salt, 1-4 cup of butter, 1 1-2 cup of milk. Mix well bake by spoonful on a hot griddle until full of holes and dry at the rim.

BLUE BABY.

KEEPING UP THE CORNER LETTERS

Dear Social Corner Friends: I thought I would write a few lines this week, but have read the letters with interest always finding some little helps or a good recipe. I have been busy with company and patchwork. Seems so I have had little time to write. I think when I read some of the letters they are so much better than I can write it doesn't seem so that my letter will amount to much. But it helps to keep the Corner full, if no more, when we do what we can.

I want to thank Don't Worry for the samples of patchwork she sent me; also Betsy Bobbitt. I think I will use some of them.

What beautiful days we are having and I read in the paper somewhere nearby blue birds were seen. Only a little while and spring will be here. We can't complain about cold weather this winter, which has been very mild most of the time. Am going to try hard and see if I can't get down to the March meeting. Hope the weather will be favorable.

Grandma Gray: Why don't you write?

Ma of Green Gables: I didn't expect to hear that of you. Hope you are feeling better.

Will close with good luck to the corner and long may it live.

RURAL AUNTY.

PLANTS FROM THE WOODS

Dear Social Corner Friends: Looking over the Corner page of November 20th, I read the letter sent in by Ethelyn with much interest. I am a lover of the woods, and all plants. I have gathered plants for ferneries and globes for years. The gold thread, rattle snake plantin, spotted winter-green, wood lettuce, patridge vine and the tiny pine trees, all add to the globe. I will tell how I fill the globes. First put charcoal in small pieces in the bottom of the globe, then a cup of dirt, you will need moss for the side, and to cover dirt. Then lay the partridge vine around the side of the globe, put in the different plants, fill globe so dirt will not show. Keep the globe covered after filling, put in a little water, and sprinkle not too often Large drops of water will form on cover, and keep plants moist. I saw a globe that was filled in the fall and the partridge vine had two tiny blossoms.

SATURDAY EVE.

A LETTER OF THANKS

Dear Social Sisters: After having so many birthday cards with thoughts from each club, and a good many from Club No. 3, I want to thank one and all! Each was a pleasure to receive. They do help even if one has to grow older to receive them. Neighbor your recipe for those sandwiches is as good as you said they would be. I have been thinking of looking at my book of pen names if The Same One didn't have a grandmother in Worcester, or was there until a year or so ago when she passed on, with the initials M. J. A. If so she was my aunt.

Cindy: Your letter is of help and I thank you.

Granger: Thanks also, I think I will do as you did on using it, dilute it. These letters do help. This has been rather of a thank you message. Sis Hopkins, did it make you sick?

EFFIE M.

SOMETHING FOR ALL TO DO

Dear Social Corner Members: I want to say thank you to A Social Corner Members for the calendar I received. I appreciated it greately even though I have not acknowledged it until now.

As this is the anniversary season the thought occurred to me, Why wouldn't it be an excellent idea for ALL the members to send in short greetings with a recipe or a help of some kind? I realize that with many hundreds of members we would swamp the paper if all responded at once, but we could spread them out over several weeks. It would be good to hear from some of those who have never written since they joined the Corner. What do you thing about it, sisters?

MARTHA.

WANTS ADVICE ABOUT COOKING WITH SACCHARIN

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Many I comn only for a few minutes? It pleases me very much to see Lucy Acorn writing again, and to see that she really hasn't forgotten me. You see Lucy Acorn we have had considerable hard luck for quite a while. And I have not had much time to spare for pictures. Then again some of the sisters really got quite "put out" over their pictures. I call it red headed. But nevertheless I will for your sake try a few if nothing turns up in a few weeks. Now please don't get nervous. Even if I get so myself. Will any of the sisters who know just how to use saccharin tablets in cooking for those who have to use it in place of sugar, send me their recipes of just how many they use in making little cakes, etc. I've been trying for two months and don't seem to have any good luck. If anyone can help me I will be very thankful.

To the sister who was here three weeks ago, and brought those nice things to our boys, I want to tell her, her kindness will ever be remembered.

White Clover: Your card was very pretty and I thank you very much.

Rainbow: Land sakes, your visit was so short I hardly knew whether you had called or not. Come again with your son and stay awhile. I am going to send in a cake recipe which we all like. It will prove to be one you will like if you will only try it. I hope the sister who lives in W. will see this and try it. She will know where it came from and when I got it. It has always been called:

Almira's Cakes: One cup sugar, one egg, one cup sour milk, two tablespoons molasses, one teaspoon of soda dissolved in a teaspoon of water, four tablespoons melted shortening, two cups unsifted flour, one half cup chopped raisins, salt, spice of all kinds.

I trust this will not get in the waste basket.

With best wishes from,

PHOTOGRAPHER.

AN ANNIVERSARY THOUGHT

Dear Social Corner Friends: Another Social Corner year is at hand and the bugle calls for the anniversary of 1924. During the past twelve months there have been many changes in the large Corner family. With some it has been a year of happiness and prosperity; with others it has been a year of sadness, with some dear one taken from the home leaving a vacant place that can never be filled. As time goes on we notice this is a world of changes. Our lives are much like the picture shows, there are many rapid changes. We are here today. Can we promise anything for tomorrow?

The editor is certainly very kind to give the writers so much space in the paper. They used to say there was limit to everything but there seems to be no limit to the number of writers for the Corner page. They are all welcomed by the editor who adds their name to the Social Corner ledger. This is all the editor can do to make the Corner a success; the writers must do the rest.

When the Corner first started the editor requested the writers to write anything the mind would suggest. Everyone can suggest something. While I was in a grange meeting a man was called upon to speak. He said he did not know what to suggest but if they wanted to know how to make sausage he could tell them all about it. He was a butcher by trade. It is the same with the Corner family. One might be able to make cream puffs that were great but could not make fat. Another might make good cake without eggs and could tell others all about it. It is what the mind suggests that makes the Corner page interesting. The writers have been doing nicely the past month. Don't let the pen get rusty for your letters may be much comfort to some one far from home for The Bulletin goes to all points of the globe. Long may the Corner live and the flag head the procession is the wish of

HAS ANYONE THIS SONG?

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Such a length of time has elapsed since I have written for the Corner that you may not remember me. I remember you and read your letters every week. I am a shut in and have been for many months. I am writing now to see if any of the sisters can give me the words of a little song—that was sung years ago. The first verse as I remember it was:

"The ground was all covered with snow one day,
And two little sisters were busy at play,
When a snowbird was sitting close by in a tree
And merrily singing his
Chick-a-dee-dee
Chick-a-dee-dee
And merrily singing his
Chick-a-dee-dee
Chick-a-dee-dee
Best wishes for you all.

ELIZABETH HENRY.

FOUND THE CORNER A HELP

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Social Corner: Have read the Social Corner every week for some time and have enjoyed it so much I would like to join. I have used many recipes sent in by different ones. When I was first married I couldn't make cake very well and I tried a recipe sent in by Keziah Doolittle for sponge cake and have always used it. I also went to the library and got books to learn how to cook as I was far away from home.

Crimson Rambler: I used to live near you I think and went to school with your little girl. Is your last initial M?

Jacks Wife: I am glad you had a nice ride. I used to see your son occasionally in Norwich before I was a shut-in.

Guess I have said enough for the first time.

I will take as my pen name,

FRITZIE.

GOLD AND SILVER CAKE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: The winter is going fast and lots more names are being added to the Corner. Some of them remind me of trees, birds, bugs, flowers and rural routes.

Have learned to play whist and at one of the parties we had for refreshments fruit salad made of crisp lettuce leaves with oranges and bananas cut in small pieces with whipped cream and salad dressing. The next party was something different, shrimp wiggle, a can of shrimps creamed in a quart of milk poured over toasted crackers, with a can of peas over this. There was also hot coffee and cake.

When I wrote before about the new road some were very anxious to read it. It has been very nice this winter to have such a road, and especially in mud time. One cannot appreciate a good road until they have been on some poor country roads.

I expect most of the members have played the new game, mah jong. A friend of mine has a solid ivory set. Her aunt brought it from China last spring when it was first out. I've been told it cost $100. I think one can play more games with a pack of cards than anything else. My brother is a great checker player. He takes The Bulletin so I hope he reads about Crimson Rambler's puzzle. I play checkers but after I play about two games I'm ready to go about something else. I will send recipe for gold and silver cake.

Gold and Silver Cake: One cup sugar, scant cup of butter, stir sugar and shortening together; take the whites of two eggs, beat to a froth, add cup of milk, two cups of flour and two teaspoons of baking powder, and add to the sugar and shortening. Beat the yolks, take some of the white dough and put in the yolks. To the gold put in a little lemon and to the silver add a little vanilla. Put in a pan the same as marble cake.

ROSALIND.

CALIFORNIA CAKES

California Cake: 1 cup of sugar, 1 cup of shortening (pt. butter or lard) or sausage drippings are excellent, 1 cup of molasses, 1 cup of cold coffee, 1 egg, 1-2 teaspoon cloves and cinnamon each, 1 teaspoon soda, little salt, fruit if you wish, raisins or currents. In summer, I use huckleberries.

Stir stiff and drop with a teaspoon on buttered tins. These are delicious and we like them in place of doughnuts with coffee. They should be nice and soft when done. They keep indefinitely (that is when left alone.)

Seems, I started a lot of things. Even someone suggested recipes for the bride, and it sure did bring forth the recipes again, and I'm sure we know someone else has been successful with.

Flower Lover: Want to try cream puffs, like them so much. Shall expect to see you at Willimantic.

Primrose: See all the flowers, and others are getting busy. Your letter ought to bring out a number with you to Willimantic.

Thirty-two: Will you look up Bess' address for me please?

Twice Twenty: Didn't we have a nice surprise visit in D— that afternoon? Say I had a great discussion with one of our members that afternoon. They are anxious for club meetings over there. Wonder how things are going for you to come to Willimantic.

Whirlwind and flowers start in March, so hope you and Foxglove arrive right side up in Willimantic next time.

Last Rose of Summer: How did it come out? A fine day for skating, but fear many didn't venture out even that way, did they?

Golden Glow: Have you faded away till August?

Lots more I want to tell you, for instance about my Social Corner scrap book, but I've said more than my ten cents worth, so will close with love and good wishes to all our shut ins.

Lets not forget to keep cards going to those who are ill, or recovering.

Yours for the Corner,

NEIGHBOR EVERREADY

GREETINGS FROM OLIVE

Dear Social Corner: Greetings to all the Corner members.

Practical Polly: How I wish you had stopped at my place. You went right by my street only two minutes walk. Would have met you over street if I had only known you were here. I hope you found the one on the gain.

Lucy Acorn: Were you looking for a quarter? I did enjoy seeing you and the flower. They must be beautiful now.

Brave: Glad to hear you are home and hope you will gain fast and as the good spring days come get out in the air all you can. Come up and see me and we will go to the pictures.

Mary France: Glad you have not moved and hope I will have a chance to see you and all the new and old sisters at our anniversary gathering.

Grace: Agree with you. I am a stranger up here, and have to ask the conductor where such a street is and I find them very courteous indeed and a little thank you goes a long way.

Ma of Greene Gables: Tried your rolls and they were fine. Do hope you won't be loved so hard again. Hope you are O. K. by this time.

Amy: Glad you are better and hope I can see you with all the rest at the next meeting. I feel as you do about the calendars for I never saw one. Love to read about them nevertheless.

Neighbor Everready: I want to congratulate you. Hope I will be able to see you at the next meeting. Hope your father will continue to gain.

Trottie: I did enjoy your letter very much. Hope to be able to see you this summer.

Hudys: Glad brother is gaining. Come and see me when you can.

OLIVE (June 19.)

GLORIFIED MEAT LOAF

Dear Social Corner Friends: Well I guess we will have some winter yet. It sure has made the icemen happy. We can't complain though we've had a nice winter.

I am going to send a recipe for the benefit of Connecticut Sue and others who haven't one just like it. We read of glorified nightgowns, glorified ginger bread, and now a glorified meat loaf, and it is the best ever. Try it, sisters.

Glorified Meat Loaf: Buy two pounds of lean beef and have the butcher grind it together with a small piece of suet. Chop a small onion and drain the juice from two cups of tomatoes, 1 cup of rolled oats, 2 teaspoons of salt, 1-2 teaspoon of pepper. Mix thoroughly and shape in a loaf. Cover the top with slices of bacon. Bake about an hour. It is delicious either hot or cold and is fine for sandwiches. You can also make a nice gravy by adding the tomato juice to the fat in the pan with flour to thicken and seasoning.

Mary France: Hope you survived the shock of losing your daughter. Why don't you adopt one?

Nema: Wish you could have been there. I think you would have shed more tears than you did last summer. Do you remember? Hope we will see you at the anniversary meeting in March. Also a large crowd from other clubs will be welcomed. With best wishes.

WILLWYCK.

WHO AMONG DOUGHNUT MAKERS CAN HELP?

Dear Social Corner Editor: I would like to join your family, if I may.

I have not been to any of the good times but enjoy reading the letters and trying some of the good recipes.

I know quite a few of the sisters and I would like to ask if anyone in frying doughnuts ever had the grease foam so as to cover them. I use lard compound and now will wait and see if I am the only one that has the same trouble.

I. J. B.: What can you say? as you are a good cook? I would like to help your sister again and you could cut thread.

If I see this in print will write again.

Thanking any who can answer my question, I will take for pen name,

Auralee.

SOMETHING ABOUT FLOWERS

Dear Corner Sisters: "Good Temper is one of our biggest assets." That must have been what John Wesley meant when he said that the habit of whining and fretting is as sinful as it is to swear, and lie and steal, and he was right. How many lives are rendered miserable, and how many homes are blighted and distressed by some chronic fretters and whinners; yes and even those who profess to be Christians. It is a monstrous travesty on the sweet spirited hopeful religion of Jesus Christ.

A Flower Lover, or one of the sisters, wishes we would write something about flowers. My knowledge is somewhat limited.

I know that a flower garden will not evolve itself in a satisfactory shape. The gardens that are made up haphazard, a sort of crazy quilt method, are never satisfactory and do not afford much pleasure to the owner. There must be some sort of a system followed in order to secure pleasing effects. I konw that a small garden can be made quite satisfactory with not a terrible amount of labor.

The chief part of gardening consists in getting the flowers you use in the places where they can do themselves justice.

I have a sister whose knowledge of flowers is really wonderful. She studied the catalogues of the florists and from these she learned how to plant them so as to avoid mistakes of all kinds. She said, "It paid to plan even so small a thing as an ordinary flower garden. But she has wonderful gardens. For back rows use sweet peas, zinnias, aromanthus, and other plants of similar habit—tall plants which would utterly hide those of ordinary size if given a position near the path. Aim to graduate your flowers toward the paths in such a manner that only low growing kinds will occupy nearby positions, while those behind them increase the size until they attain sufficient height to serve as a screen against unsightly objects. This my sister said is easily done if you read over what the catalogue makers say about the size of the plants they offer you. Another thing, I think, to consider is color. A bed of purple asters next to one of scarlet salvia would be actually painful to a sensitive eye. Blue lobelia alongside brick-red candy tuft is depressing in the extreme.

I think one of the best annuals for massing is the petunia. It is of the easiest culture. It comes into bloom early and continues to bloom until frost comes and I have heard say that nothing excels it in profusion. Coreopsis is another excellent flower for filling good sized beds. Its rich gold and brown flowers light up a garden like a burst of sunshine.

Scarlet salvia furnishes the most intense color of any garden plant I think, used as the central feature of a circular bed, with coreopsis n the outside row, it produces a magnificent effect, the two colors supplementing each other perfectly.

For low beds there is the ageratum, soft lavender; portulaca, white and pink, and the pansy, which ough to have a place in every garden. Their little saucy faces I think are wonderful. I bought six dozen one spring but really didn't have a place for them after it came very warm.

You know if I was to have a flower garden again I should want plenty of space and have some definite plan in mind, so all my favorite flowers and shrubs could be provided for. I would plan for a continuity of bloom, have just a few walks as possible, and let them be direct and simple. I would make the walk of cracked shells and cinders. In my last garden I had five long beds and put clam shells around them, but I think a better plan is to make the walks of the cracked shells and cinders or cracked stones and I think it would keep the weeds out of it.

For edging or bordering my beds I would have the Mme. Salleroi geranium. They form a green and white foliage not more than six or eight inches high. You can plant them early in May and by mid-summer they will have formed plants large enough to touch, thus giving you a solid row of foliage.

Then I would have my ageratum and other plants like a little green feathery. The phlox drummondi is an almost profusely flowering annual of great beauty especially the white, pale yellow and soft pink varieties.

I have already mentioned the sweet pea. Right here let me make a suggestion. Don't try to buy and grow the flowers from mixed seed. Buy a package of white, the lavendar and the pink varieties, and grow these only, and I venture the prediction that you will get tenfold more pleasure from your sweet peas than you have done when all kinds were jumbled together. The three colors named will combine in a most harmonious manner, and you will never care to go back to the mixed seed again.

Cosmos I love. It is always in its prime when frosty weather comes, and puts an end to it. I love the pink, white purple and pale yellow. I think the cosmos is a thing of beauty. I would like to have it last forever. There is a little for-get-me-not also.

There is the narcissus that is such an attractive flower and so sweet. I could keep naming them but I think I have written enough for this time. Sometimes my pansies will not do during the winter season but I prefer a fresh supply for my pansy bed and love to buy them in bloom in making a bed or a border as desire indicates. The pansy is a good natured flower, and if you will keep the blossoms well picked, you will find it a cheerful resident, ever blooming and always charming. Do not forget the necessity of picking the blossom in order to get the best there is from the plant. The pansy seems almost human in its sensitiveness to wise treatment and its desire to give the best that it has to bestow.

KITTY LOU.

ICE STORM MAKES TROUBLE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: How many of the sisters have taken a fall? I dare not step out of door, without help. How is it down at Guess' and Kittie's place? I hope you can come up to the meeting Wednesday. I have been hoping to hear from you through the Social Corner. I will meet you at 10:45 o'clock.

"Just start today and learn the lesson:
That your ticking watch would teach,
Grab the minutes in their passing,
Try to make the most of each."

I am glad that some of the sisters are getting better. Keep up good courage. The good old summer time is not far away.

WINDHAM BLUE BELL.

CALLA LILY STRAIGHTENS OUT FORMER LETTER

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I would like to correct a misprint in my last week's letter, in regard to asking those who haven't promised to give for the dinner to bring cake and salads (no mention of crullers by me). The rolls were what I mentioned we could buy if we were short. I hope this is more plain than the Feb. 23 letter but mistakes will happen. Some time it makes a letter read rather queer.

Dew Kist: I've had your hot milk recipe for quite a few years. It is a nice cake.

Bumble Bee: Hope everything will be O. K. and look nice. Some job when it takes so many to do it.

Bonis: I never knew the dear daughter's pen name but she was always a welcome guest with us. I can't make it seem real. She always gave me a smile and pleasant greeting over R's shoulder as we met on the hotel floor at a dance of the M. Hope the little one left behind is doing well I feel so sorry for you all.

Chocolate: You are all right. It needs a new voice once in a while. They get to know the same one and know what is going to be said.

Zevish: I only knew of one person having your name. Hubby's Mother's was the same.

Don Pedro: Was sorry to get card from Mrs. S. telling you were not so well. Hope you will be better soon again.

Best wishes to all.

CALLA LILY.

THANKFUL FOR CARD SHOWER

Dear Corner Friends: I will write a word to tell you that I am home after my sixth visit to the hospital. And oh, how I thank you all for my lovely shower of cards! I never had one from the Corner before and you cannot think how much I enjoyed them all. I had 84 cards, eight letters and two books from friends both in and out of the Corner.

I like to go to different places and such wonderful journeys as I took with the Social Corner friends. I saw the beautiful hotel where Huldy brought me in Savannah, Ga. Another day I viewed Cargill Falls with Primrose and Twice Twenty. I visited the Royal Palace in Madrid Spain, with Aunty No. 1 and then Scottie took me to Elizabeth park in Hartford among the lovely drives and flowers. Another time I was in Central park, N. Y., with Whirlwind beside a lovely fountain and Goody said she would show me a better one in Bushnell park, Hartford. Then I went to another park in New York with Crimson Rambler where they rode on ponies instead of a merry-go-round. On my way back Necia and Papa's Boy took me around the streets of Norwich till I came to an Indian Leap that said K. D. I viewed some lovely falls in Maine with Selinda and Persia took me through a cool looking, pretty park in Manchester. I had a glimpse into fairyland with R. D. as I looked at the rose covered cottage in California. We picked up Olive in Iowa from a big building on our way back to the Mohawk trail which we were permitted to enjoy with Rural Delivery. Anna Mel came to see me and came to stay for which I am thankful but she hasn't spoken to me yet.

I again thank you all for your kindness and messages of cheer and good wishes as expressed by the cards that help to shorten the days and by those that called to see me, and to Eliza Jane for the beautiful flowers that I still have to look at. I had a wonderful box of fruit from Effie M., also some delicious oranges from Kitty and Whos, January. And I thank you all for the valentine shower I had. It is just awful to be sick and suffer but compensation is found in the friends one finds they have and their thoughtful kindness and sympathy.

I am still roaming over he Mohawk trail with Rural Delivery and when we fetch up will come to the Social Corner meeting if Rural Delivery will come with me.

They tell me I have been and am still,

BRAVE

WHAT SALT WILL DO

Dear Corner Sister: I am wondering if you all know what salt will do.

A little rubbed on cups will take off tea stains. Put into white wash, it will make it stick better. As a tooth powder it will keep the teeth white, and the gums hard and rosy. It is one of the best gargles for sore throat and a preventive of diphtheria, if taken and used in time. Use salt and water to clean willow furniture, apply with a brush, and rub dry. Salt and water held in the mouth after having a tooth pulled will stop the bleeding. Prints rinsed in water with salt in it will hold their color and look brighter. Two teaspoons in half a pint of tepid water is an emetic always on hand, and is an antidote for poisoning from nitrate of silver. Neuralgia of the feet and limbs can be cured by bathing night and morning with salt and water as hot as can be borne. When taken out, rub the feet briskly with a coarse towel.

Salt and water is one of the best of remedies for sore eyes, and if applied in time will scatter any inflamation. Silk handkerchiefs and ribbons should be washed in salt and water, and ironed while damp to obtain the best results. As a fertilizer salt is very valuable. Food would be insipid and tasteless without it. Hemorrhages of the lungs or stomach are promptly checked by small doses of salt. Handkerchiefs used by folks having colds should be washed separately from other clothes by first being boiled out in salted water. That many times prevents the spread of the disease.

Joan: Your letter at hand. Very glad to hear from you, also glad to know all up there are well.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

THE TOUCHING OF WOOD

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: It is some time since I have taken pen in hand to greet you. I have been shut in from the snow and ice. I wish now to thank the donor for the gift I received of a dainty calendar. It was a surprise I suspect who sent it. Many thanks to the right one.

I am sending you a story from an ancien paper: "The touching of wood supposed to drive away bad luck and its origin many centuries ago and is not mere superstition. The touching of wood is really a revival of a very old practice. Various sources are given as its origin, one being the medieval practice or carrying about an alleged piece of the true cross and touching it upon appropriate occasions. The superstition had a practical side to it as fugitives from hostile armies or the forces of the law took refuge in woods where they were comparatively safe from pursuit.

"So well was this recognized in this country that we find in the forest laws that all travelers leaving the wood for the road or the open country should blow three notes upon a horn before emerging so that all should know they were good men and true. Churches in early times were in many cases sanctuaries from both the law and the oppressor. Those who sought refuge in them used when attempts were made to dislodge them to cling to the altar railing commonly of wood and so long as they maintained their hold they were safe."

SALOMIS.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Editor of the Social Corner: I have read the Social Corner page and tested many recipes. They have proven fine. I have many friends who are members. I would like to join and be one of them.

If you accept me as a member I will sign myself as

JUNE DAYS.

MAKE THE BEST OF THE INEVITABLE

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: To those who are busy everyday with the duties, as they come, time slips by very rapidly, and we fail to carry out some of the things we had intended. Often we may criticise; also the reverse, a reproach on ourselves. The true fact is, we all know our own hindrances, better than anyone else can describe with justice. I find consolation comes to me in the silent way as Sister Kitty Lou recently expressed it. We can think of the editor's sentiment, on "the Corner post, when we are perhaps alone and quiet, but with our hands busy with the needle and thread. I think the various calendars share a great deal in helpfulness to us, those which supply a few words each day, or for the space of a week.

I have such a calendar which I enjoy and try to profit by. The sentiment, which has recently held my attention, still lingers in my thoughts, so I quote it, as a subject of my letter.

"Our yesterdays are blocks
With which we build foundations
For the structure of today
And our tomorrows
Are but fleeting clouds,
The breath of circumstances may blow away.

It appeals to me that our severe disappointments are the outcome of too great an anticipation; we did not pause enough to consider that the circumstances of tomorrow might overrule. What cannot be cured, must be endured. Therefore is it not wise to make the best of the inevitable? Our human nature prompts us to look forward, and plan for pleasure and happiness which is right and just, but my experiences have taught me to be moderate in the reckoning, for if circumstances, (which I cannot control) intervene then shall I bear the consequences. Ofttimes weather conditions interrupt a much desired journey, or illness prevents many anticipated pleasures. These are the times we need patience and to be reconciled. Some adverse conditions seem almost unbearable, the sting of disappointment so bitter, that the heart fails to submission. We can only live one day at a time, with either its joy or its sorrow and calmly await the fleeting cloud of tomorrow. Today our memory reflects the history of yesterday but we pause and ponder, what shall the morrow be?

JENNIE.

THANKS FROM CANTERBURY BELL

Dear Editor and Corner: It is such a long time since I wrote a letter it will surely be a task, but nevertheless I'll try.

First, I wish to thank I. J. B. for the pretty remembrance, a Social Corner member for a sweet blue bird calendar, and Marigold, U. C. E., True

TOWN AND CITY MEETINGS.

Taxation is a question about which many are thinking and much is being said these days. It is a matter that comes close to the hearts of most everyone. It is something that not many are able to dodge and it should therefore mean that there would be much interest over the fixing of tax rates and appropriations.

It is not often the case that an adjourned annual town meeting for the fixing of a tax rate and a special city meeting for the provision of more funds for the city government come on the same night but such is the fact this year.

Monday night in the town hall the townspeople will assemble for the purpose of determining the town tax rate, based upon the recently revised grand list of the town. It is more or less of a formal matter inasmuch as the town appropriations have been made and it simply remains to be determined just what tax is called for under the newly perfected grand list. It is not a matter that should be neglected, or forgotten.

Many of those who are certain to be interested in the laying of the town tax will likewise be concerned in the propositions that made the calling of the special meeting necessary. The contingent and the public works appropriations have been found to be inadequate. In spite of a mild winter the public works committee has failed to keep within the sum fixed by the city, meeting in view of the expenditures which are certain for the remainder of the fiscal year. Additional outlays for the purchase of park property and traffic signals are advocated and the disposition of the right to furnish electricity to a part of the town will be up for decision. Whether unexpended balances from completed projects will be authorized for other purposes will also be determined.

Norwich taxpayers are of course concerned in both meetings. Opportunity to kill two birds with one stone should be appreciated by those interested and result in an attendance that such meetings warrant.

The decisions should be made by representative gatherings of citizens, rather than by a few.

UNIFORM AUTO LAWS.

More autos were produced last year than ever before. Predictions are that the output for 1924 will be even greater. It is evident that the motorcar is a fixture and that regulations must keep pace with production. In fact it is even preferable that regulations should not be delayed until the frightful effects of such negligence forces action that should have been anticipated and prevented.

The longer needed safeguards are delayed the more difficult and revolutionary become their introduction and enforcement.

A group of the eastern states have long since recognized the wisdom of uniformity in certain demands upon motorists and such agreement is bound not only to be of benefit in meeting certain problems of regulation and enforcement but it will mean the elimination of much confusion to the motorists themselves. There are certain requirements in fact upon which it would be well if all states were in agreement.

Following a national survey the safety committee of a national engineering society has recommended the adoption of three rules for overcoming incompetent drivers, and urges that all states adopt laws which would call for jail sentences for all persons convicted of driving an auto while intoxicated and at the same time making it impossible for them to drive a car for such a period as the conditions warranted. It also advocates that where carelessness on the part of a driver leads to a fatal accident the driver be tried for murder, and that no license to drive cars be issued until the applicant has passed a satisfactory mental and physical examination.

Surprising as it may seem, there are states where no licensing system prevails. It is certain to come but the longer it is delayed the more difficulty will be encountered and the more trouble involved.

Some states are now trying to get a law calling for a jail sentence for all intoxicated drivers, but it meets with much opposition in spite of the serious menace which such drivers are. Likewise there are few drivers who figure in fatal accidents who are charged with murder.

With the increasing number of machines it is plain that safety provisions cannot be neglected. There is no danger that there will be too much safety. On the other hand there is serious likelihood of being too little.

TIME FOR PROHIBITORY MEASURES.

The effect on fisheries does not constitute the only reason why there should be an end to the pollution of the waters with oil, but it furnishes an excellent argument for providing some relief.

A study of the conditions over a period of ten years shows serious handicaps for the fishing industry. In the decade preceding 1919 there was a decrease of 12,500,000 pounds in the catch by Connecticut fisheries which resulted in a $40,000 increase in the price of fish. In Maine during the same period the catch decreased nearly 35,000,000 pounds and the price advanced nearly a third of a million. And in South Carolina, the catch decreased 17,000,000 pounds, which boosted the price $30,000. New Hampshire with a curtailed catch of 149,000 pounds felt a price increase of over $49,000.

The oyster fisheries have suffered severely, it being estimated that oil pollution had reduced the San Francisco yield by 71 per cent., Virginia has experienced a loss of 30 per cent and Maryland a little less than half that loss.

Such conditions show an lethal injury to established industry. That it will grow worse instead of better seems likely with the constantly increase in the use of oil. All that has been done thus far is the result of state legislation but that is not sufficient to meet the requirements.

What congress is being asked to do in the way of abating the menace to industry and the nuisance to beaches is no more than has been done by other countries. Inasmuch as Great Britain and Canada have found it necessary to act it is time that we took early action in ending the growing annoyance.

While the purpose in the beginning was to deal with the fuel oil which is thrown overboard by vessels in cleaning their tanks, there has been added thereto a demand for preventing the oil refineries from releasing their waste into adjacent waters.

Oil pollution is not the only form of pollution that needs to be lessened in the streams and coastal waters but this has reached the point where there should be no further delay in applying prohibitory measures.

THE AKRON EXPERIMENT.

Not a few communities have been watching the experiment in Akron, O., in its endeavor to throw out the trolleys and substitute automobiles. The result has been the same as in other cities where similar action was taken. They have found that it was not as easy to get along without the service of the trolley as they had imagined. Demoralized transportation conditions existed. Conveyances that failed to meet the requirements of the law were furnished the public and general confusion and dissatisfaction developed.

It is not surprising, therefore, that after a month, or before a month had expired, Akron has decided that it cannot get along as a trolleyless city and has authorized the reestablishment of the service.

Akron had gotten to the point where the trolley company's franchise had ended. There was a demand for a five cent fare. The company could not meet such a demand and give free transfers, while the city government would not permit it to continue unless it did.

Akron has now gotten to the point where it recognizes its mistake. It has called the trolleys back to run on the basis of a five cent fare with one cent additional for transfers and in the course of time it will probably come to the conclusion that it must grant a new franchise.

Even though there has been remarkable development in automobile transportation service it is once more disclosed that the time has not arrived when the trolleys can be dispensed with. The public will not accept anything less in the way of service.

READY FOR TROUBLE.

Rumors of trouble in Bulgaria which threaten to develop into a revolution seldom cause surprise. Conditions of such a character develop there so often that they are taken as a matter of course. Perhaps more surprise would be occasioned should that country get along without indications of internal or external trouble for any extended period.

While the agrarian party was in control of affairs in Bulgaria there was an effort made to live at peace with their neighbors. There were those who could not subscribe to such a policy and they have not only maintained claims for Macedonian territory but have maintained organized bands to cause terror in that region in order to accomplish their purpose. The agrarian signed an agreement to endeavor to end such activities, but before it was able to accomplish such a thing it was overthrown and the revolutionary element took hold of the reins of government.

It was advisable for the new government to assert that it would respect the peace agreement of the agrarian government, but the impression is gained that none too much reliance can be placed upon such promises in view of the fact that armed bands are located all along the Greek and Serbian frontiers. Inasmuch as certain Bulgarians have been the aggressors in the past this doesn't look like a peace move on the part of Bulgaria. Bulgaria can doubtless get all the trouble it wants to invite.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

President Coolidge is opposed to any raid on the treasury no matter what the reason assigned.

Washington and the country are being heated to a greater extent than ever this year by oil and oil stories.

A London magistrate says there's no such thing as a bad boy. That ought to get him honorary membership in the gang.

The man on the corner says: Let's hope that every February will follow the admirable precedent set by the one just gone.

Probably one of the biggest helps Attorney General Daugherty has received has been the opposition he has gotten from LaFollette.

Premier Poincare seems to be able to get a vote of confidence whenever he dares it. If he can collect taxes as easily all will be well.

District Attorney Banton of New York says the country could be made dry in 90 days. But think what a disappointment that would be!

The investigating committee had no reason for calling Mr. Slemp. They spent much time and got nothing for their effort. It was a fishing trip that failed.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Henry S. Firestone, the man who has justly found fame and fortune in the manufacture of automobile tires, has for several years offered a prize to the high school pupils of the country for the best essay on public highways. This prize consists of a full course of study in any American college or university which the winner may select. Isn't Mr. Firestone doing something that ought to be looked into? Are we sure it is not a subtle way of spreading some dangerous propaganda that is calculated to influence national legislation? If Mr. Bok's swan-song prize was serious enough to invite congressional inquiry, why not Mr. Firestone's? The writer thinks he can see the cunning hand of the propagandist. It will make our high schools hotbeds of political conspiracies. High school girls especially furnish the cultural atmosphere favorable for revolts and revolutions. By teaching the innocent people to make better roads is encouraging the Canadians from the north and the Mexicans from the south to swoop down upon us. Let Mr. Firestone be summoned at once to Washington!

When we read ancient Roman history we are not surprised at the cruelties recorded, because it was the age of paganism as far as the humanities were concerned. Little value was put upon human life, especially the life of slaves or those captured in war. The frightful scenes of the arena testify to this fact. But ancient Rome with its slaves and arena cruelties was a long time ago. Christianity was then new and had not yet touched the cruel hearts of the Romans. But for inhuman action we need not point to the old Romans because every issue of the daily press brings to light cases of pagan savagery as horrible as old Roman deeds. In this respect they have nothing on us. One can hardly imagine what sort of a heart a man has within him who, on a moonlight night, will run over a dog and leave the poor mangled thing writhing in its pain without stopping. The cries of the suffering animal aroused the people on a city street Monday night, and if his car had been identified something would have been doing.

Discontent in any form is always a great human setback. It is an enemy both to the individual and to society. It is merciless in the things it suggests to the unhappy mind. Every strike—which is always born in discontentment—is a tragedy for somebody. It may be the corporation, it may be the strikers themselves, or it may be (and this is far more likely) the families of the strikers. It sometimes happens that it is the whole community that is affected, because the community is an organism, and when you touch an organism in any part you touch the whole of it. The writer has in mind the dock strikers in England. Financially England is not in a condition to stand a long-continued general strike. The writer is not acquainted with the merits of the case and therefore does not attempt to place the blame. Still on general principles he can not fail to see what effect it is going to have on all concerned.

Possibly we should get some satisfaction if we could only look into the background of pain and suffering. Probably all of us have struggled with this problem: why should there be so much innocent suffering? How can we reconcile it with the justice and goodness of God? Take, for instance, the child who goes through life a cripple from infantile paralysis. He is not to blame for it; nor anybody else so far as we know. Now the Being who makes law can overrule it. If that child is suffering from the natural working of law why isn't it changed so as to square with the goodness of God? If we knew that our children were suffering from causes which we could easily prevent, how long would we be in removing those causes? "If ye then being evil know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more will your Father which is in heaven give good gifts to them that ask him?"

It is as natural for the human mind to forecast events as it is for radio to broadcast them, but with this important difference, however: broadcasting is giving us things as they are, while forecasting it jumps at what they may be. There is probably more real guesswork in the field of politics than in any other equal area in all the world. What we really know will turn up next in Washington is positively frightful. And in regard to some things the rank and file of us seem to know just as much as the skilled politician. When the splendid man who had to relax his hold on earthly things six months ago formed his cabinet which was ratified by both branches of congress how little did he think what a situation their dishonesty would create. Who knows who the next president is going to be and what party is going to elect him?

More interest has been aroused in the science (?) of Egyptology by the discovery that the coffin or casket of old King Tut-ankh-amen is made of fine gold. It will make many of our undergraduates feel that it is their duty to increase knowledge on the past life of the Egyptians, and especially of those who happened to be buried in gold caskets. They will probably begin their excavations there first. The Egyptians took all possible precaution against future body-snatching. According to their religion the molestation of a corpse was an unpardonable sin, hence the pyramids they built for their protection. Whether they were right or wrong, the question arises whether they had any rights that modern cupidity or curiosity are morally bound to respect. Suppose in the future a bunch of ghouls comes encoping around the tombs of Washington and Lincoln, how will it appeal to the American spirit? Whether a man has been dead 500 years or 4,000 years doesn't change the enormity of the offense.

Lovers of nature will find it repaying these cold days to take long strolls to elevated points, because the chill of winter gives a clarity to the atmosphere that it not found even in October. Landscapes are unusually beautiful when mottled with large patches of snow, and even under leaden skies horizons are remarkable for their distance and clearness. In taking a long walk of several miles in winter one need not subject himself to any personal discomfort. It he does it is entirely voluntary. All one needs to do is to dress warmly, with hands and feet well protected, but not the face and ears unless it is extremely cold. To get the blood fairly romping through your veins you must walk at least two, or better three, miles. Don't think that just going up to the grocer's to get a yeast cake for your wife or mother will do the trick. You must go far enough to stir up that virility which is apt to get sluggish in winter.

"One of the reasons why so many men have been obliged to die for their country is because so few have been willing to live for it. It is by living for our country day by day that we can save our boys later from dying for it." So speaks Dr. Charles E. Jefferson in one of his stimulating books. Dr. Jefferson, of course, would recognize the vast difference between living for one's country and living for what one can get out of one's country. The latter man is the selfish man, and when the hour of emergency comes, when the nation calls loudly for protection from its manhood, it is not apt to be the selfish man who is quickest to respond. He is the first to go into hiding, and will respond only under compulsion. And when the time comes that all men of America live for their country it will be so strong that no other people will dare to attack it.

WORK OF U. S. COAST GEODETIC SURVEY.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 29—(Special)—"Hitch your wagon to a star" sounds well from the pen of an essayist, but it is poor advice for the engineer who goes out with transit and level to make a map, according to the United States coast and geodetic survey.

So many city, town and even state boundaries in this country have been literally "hitched to the stars" in fixing their location on the face of the globe that a regular Chinese puzzle results when an attempt is made to fit these maps together.

The state of Kansas, for instance, was hitched to the stars and its northern boundary is 880 feet north and its southern boundary is 500 feet south of where they ought to be, while there's the case of a whole section of perfectly good Florida real estate that was left high and dry and off the map entirely when engineers tried to fit together two maps of the southern and northern ends of the state.

Imagine your own rage and righteous indignation should the city engineer in mapping a new subdivision leave off your lot—bought and paid for on the installment plan—when he connected his new map with the old one of the city. But such is a real possibility.

Map making is an old art. The engineer sets up his transit and waits until the plumb bob comes to rest in a vertical line. Then he gets his location by the stars, and given one point with its relation to longitude and latitude he proceeds by triangulation—the measurement of base line and angles — to get any other point. The trouble is that should he come back to his original position a year later and try to get its location by the stars again, he'll find he's maybe ten or fifteen feet away. Or perhaps the plumb bob won't hang in a true vertical line, they often don't. So where's your map? And if this error is repeated a thousand times on a thousand separate and distinct maps, the resulting mix-up can be easily pictured.

Meade's Ranch

Out in the state of Kansas is a spot which will go down to posterity as "Meade's Ranch," for it came near filling the bill as being the center of things generally. Buried a few feet beneath the soil of this ranch is a solid block of concrete which bears a metal tablet. The center of this tablet is the starting point for correct and precise map making for the United States, Canada and Mexico. And when the work of the coast and geodetic survey is completed in years to come, this little block of concrete and the tablet it bears will have a direct effect in locating on the map your back yard, wherever you live, from the busy streets of New York City to the sunny ranches of California or the snow-swept mountains of Alaska.

The tablet on the Kansas ranch was placed there because engineers of the coast and geodetic survey knew they had to have a starting point somewhere. So they took this point and fixed its latitude and longitude as accurately as the most delicate instruments in the world and the most mathematical calculations could make it. Its exact location is 39 degrees, 18 minutes and 26.686 seconds latitude and 98 degrees, 32 minutes, 30.505 seconds longitude. And if that conveys nothing to you, dear reader, it is about ten miles north of the well known town of Lucas.

The engineers of the survey said, "This is final." And they made it so. It is correct to the last word, infallible and unchangeable. Errors can't change that point because it has been labeled "RIGHT" and sun nor moon nor wind nor rain can make it wrong.

Having obtained one correct point, Canada and Mexico realized its importance and decided, not to hitch their maps to the stars, but to the little marker on the Meade Ranch, so that when their maps were completed there wouldn't be any international squabbling trying to make them fit fair and square with that of the United States.

A Starting Point.

Starting from this marker, engineers of the coast and geodetic survey have been working ever since, extending from its network of triangles—known as area of precise triangulation—and marking their angles and base lines with concrete and metal so that engineers all over the country can base their maps, indirectly, on the Meade's Ranch marker. These "arcs of triangulation" now extend back and forth, up and down all over the United States. There is as much as 500 miles between some of them and future work of the survey will be to draw the arcs closer together so that no point in the country will be more than 50 miles from a little stone marker, or triangulation station. There are other agencies of the government somewhat allied in their work, which actually make the maps, but they all use them onto the markers of the coast and geodetic survey. The survey makers do inland maps, but merely fixes their starting points—a work somewhat analagous to building the steel frame of a sky-scraper, which later will bear the concrete, brick and lumber to make it complete.

But there's another important part of map making. Latitude and longitude are all important, but without altitude or elevation the map maker is at a loss when it comes to tracing in the tiny contour lines which know the rise and fall of the ground, an important item in laying sewer pipes or planning drainage or irrigation work. So it has fallen to the lot of the coast and geodetic survey to fix the elevation of points all over the country.

Bench Marks

Starting at the sea coast with a level which is the last word in accuracy, engineers travel inland, usually along some railway, back-sighting and fort-sighting and fixing points with their relation to sea level. These points are designated as "bench marks"—metal disks imbedded in concrete. So accurate are the instruments used that should the engineers start at one point and travel in a circle, 100 miles in circumference, the "error" when they got back to the starting point would be about three-fourths of an inch. When the coast and geodetic survey completed their elevation lines across the continent for 9,000 miles they found an error of only 22 centimeters when they checked up with measurements from the Pacific coast.

Looking back, now, for a moment to the poetical if erroneous idea of pitching your town to a star, it is well known that latitude and longitude can be obtained by astronomical observation. But it is not so well known that the configuration of the ground near the star-gazer's position has a decided effect on the accuracy of the observation. A mountain will attract a plumb. Just as old mother earth herself attracts it, with the result that the bob will be thrown out of its true geodetic position as much as a mile, in some cases.

The case of Porto Rico is interesting. It is approximately 35 miles across in a north and south direction. An astronomical latitude was observed at Ponce, on the south coast of the island, and San Juan, on the north coast. The distances between these points from observations, shown on an old Spanish chart was found to be about a mile too great. What happened was that the island attracted the plumb bobs at Ponce and at San Juan, drawing them together. The points—or zeniths—directly above the latitude stations were pulled apart, making the angle between the two directions of the plumb bob instead too great an arc in the heavens, with a resulting erroneous difference in latitude between the two points.

Some Funny Errors

Comparisons of the geodetic latitudes and longitudes of some state boundary monuments with their location by the precise triangulation method—now adopted by this country—shows some funny errors. The case of Kansas was one. There's a boundary monument between Colorado and Wyoming almost 600 feet too far south; a monument between South Dakota and Nebraska almost 600 feet too far north, while the mountains in the northeast corner of Wyoming is over 800 feet too far south. A boundary monument between Colorado and Utah is over 2,000 feet too far west. Another monument on the eastern boundary of Montana is almost 1,000 feet east of its proper location, while another about 100 miles south on the same boundary and supposedly on the same meridian, is 2,500 feet east of where it should be. Legal disputes have been caused by mix-ups in maps, but the incidents mentioned above are not liable to come into court because the boundaries in most cases are fixed by mutual agreement—they will remain where they are.

New York City is an example of the necessity for correct map-making. Some years ago the city decided the maps must be corrected to one in twenty-five thousand, which, translated, means that the error could only be one inch in a half mile. Now New York is considering reducing the permissible error to one inch in a mile and a half, because, with rising property values, a foot of New York City real estate means a chunk of considerable size out of somebody's pocketbook.

Road building and development of cities generally has resulted in increased demand upon the coast and geodetic survey to extend its triangulation arcs to make them everywhere available. City engineers realize the necessity of making their maps coincide with the bench marks and triangulations stations of the survey, in order to avoid the necessity of re-surveying every time new water mains or new subdivisions are to be built. Reclamation project engineers in the west look for the bench marks of the survey to avoid the loss of many thousands of dollars should errors found in all independent calculations be allowed to creep into their maps and try to make water flow up hill when it should come down.

The United States and Canada are now cooperating on an immense work which will directly affect the future development of Alaska. Working from Puget Sound, northern boundary of the United States, Canadian engineers are now carrying the arc of precise triangulation which began in Kansas northward to Dizon's entrance, in Alaska, where engineers of the coast and geodetic survey take it up and work through to Lynn Canal, giving way again to Canadians to carry on through their territory to the upper waters of the Yukon and westward again to the 141st meridian, where American engineers of the survey once again will take it at the border and carry it down into Alaska.

Alaskan maps are waiting to be made, meanwhile. Experiments already made in Alaska show the impossibility of independent surveys unless based on the arc of precise triangulation and the little metal tablet down on the Kansas ranch.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

GOD'S PLACE IN PRAYER

O Lord of hosts, hear my prayer; give ear O God of Jacob. Psalms 8 4-8. Have you observed the place which He occupies in the prayer of Old Testament character?

As an example take one of Solomon's at the dedication of the temple. He begins thus: "Lord God of Israel, there is no God like thee, in Heaven above or the earth beneath," and in this lofty strain he continues his exaltation of the God of Israel, who is faithful, who is merciful, the variety of His word, the loftiness of His character, the indispensableness of His presence, are the great concern with which Solomon is engaged.

Examine the Psalms, what a large place God occupies in them. His glory, His wisdom, His power, His righteousness, His long suffering, His pity, His condescension and His skill are the subjects not only of song, but also of prayer.

Look at the prayer of Asa, 2 Chronicles 14:11: "Lord, it is nothing with Thee to help with many or with them that have no power: help us, O Lord, our God, for we rest on Thee and in Thy name we go against this multitude, O Lord God, thou art our God; let not man prevail against Thee." Asa's cause and desires were as nothing compared with the character and interests of God.

In the New Testament there is but one example to which we need refer, it is that one which the master gave us and in which emphasis is laid upon the great subject for prayer by virtue of the position and premium assigned to it in the order of petitions, "After this manner, therefore, pray ye, Our Father which are in Heaven, hallowed be Thy name." Sacred is Thy name! Worthy of our deepest reverence and devotion! Noblest object of our contemplation! To Thee our thoughts should turn! Before Thee our wills should bow! To Thee our heartdeep love should be given!

Unless we are stirred with thoughts of God our prayer never rises above our heads. There is no such thing as prayer with God left out. There is no such thing as Godless praying. That would be simply hollow-sounding harangue. There is no engagement so heavy as prayers without the realizing sense of His reality; no hours so burdensome to human heart as those we call worship hours, when there is no sense of the divine presence. On the other hand, there are no moments so refreshing, none so filled with inspiration, so glad for the heart so sweetly solemn as those we spend in the secret place feeling that He is near.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Hugh S. Gibson, who, according to reports from Washington, may be selected by the President to succeed Joseph C. Grew as United States Minister to Switzerland, is at present filling the post of minister of the United States to Poland. Mr. Gibson has been actively connected with official affairs ever since the war began in Belgium ten years ago. He did invaluable work as secretary of the American legation in Brussels during the German occupation and subsequently was rewarded by appointment as secretary of the embassy at Paris. He was born in Los Angeles in 1883 and entered the diplomatic service in 1908. Prior to going to Brussells he has served as secretary of embassy in London, as confidential clerk to the Assistant Secretary of State in Washington, and as charge d'affaires at the American legation in Havana.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

SCAPA FLOW

"Reports that the 74 German warships scuttled by their commanders on June 21, 1919, at Scapa Flow are to be salvaged by the British recall the fact that this body of water between the Orkney Islands and the mainland of Scotland, which was the main base of the British Grand Fleet throughout the World war, is one of the world's largest and safest harbors," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Even the guides provided for navigators say that no matter in what direction the wind may be, a vessel can always find shelter in Scapa Flow by shifting berth. Practically the whole of this inland sea, measuring 50 square miles in area, is honeycombed around the edges with good harbors and roadsteads, many of them being along the chilly banks of Pomona, or Mainland, the central and largest of the Orkney Islands. Burray, South Ronaldshay, Flotta, Fara, Hoy and Graemsay are the islands which form a ring to keep out heavy seas.

"Though the name recalls to the British mind the basis of the Home Fleet during their naval training season, to the American traveler during the World war it often suggests unhappy moments when much against his will he visited Scapa Flow because a Dutch, Scandinavian, Danish, or other neutral vessel on which he was traveling had been brought by a British cruiser into the harbor, and its passengers landed at one of the Orkney Island ports, for Scapa lay along the western terminal of the line of blockade. This blockade of mine and steel netting extended from the north of Scotland to Scandinavia to prevent travel to and from Germany.

"To many the Orkney Islands thus had an unpleasant introduction through no fault of their own, but if the anger of the passengers over the delay was not too great they probably enjoyed the quaint charm of the inhabitants of this northern archipelago who boast that they are descendants of the old Scandinavians, who represent being referred to as Scotch, and who speak a dialect of English interspersed with peculiar old Norse words.

"This characteristic of the island people is easily explainable even though it may hark back more than a thousand years, for at a very early date the sea-rovers from Scandinavia and Denmark made their way across the North Sea to Scotland and probably found in the firths and landlocked inlets reminders of the sheltering fiords which they had left at home.

"But those individuals who were fortunate enough to make their way to Kirkwall lying less than two miles across the island of Pomona from Scapa Flow, and the base from which the American mine-sweeper operated in taking up the great North sea Barrage laid during the World war, probably delighted in the old Cathedral of St. Magnus, founded in 1137 and now one of the three venerable Scottish cathedrals in nearly a complete state of preservation.

"The visitor to the Orkneys crossing over from Scotland usually has a vivid recollection of a swimming head and a weakness in the pit of his stomach, for the Pentland Firth which lies to the south of the islands encircling Scapa Flow has the reputation of being rougher than the Atlantic, with sometimes a current running so fiercely that it can be seen as an oily, rolling river on the rougher surface of the sea.

"When the Vikings first began coming to the Orkneys they found a race of people about which almost nothing is known today. The Picts, however, left their brochs, or round towers, and queer burial mounds which form one of the chief sources of interest in the Islands. The Standing Stones of the Stennes rise in dreary solitude and defy the years to solve the riddle of the men who put them there. The individual stones, twelve to fourteen feet high, are arranged in a semicircle about a cromlechor altar, which is said to have been dedicated to the moon.

"So peaceful are the Islands today it seems impossible that they were the storm center of bloody conflicts. The Vikings subdued his Scandinavian kingdom, but they were finally returned to Scotland as the dowry of Margaret of Denmark, who married James III.

"Only 32 of the 66 islands in the group are inhabited and some of these by less than thirty people.

"It has been surmised that it was probably in this portion of present-day Scotland that the story of the thistle, now the national flower, arose. It is told that one of the Danish invaders, while moving at night to surprise the Scotch, stepped with his bare foot upon a thistle and yelled with pain so loudly that he wakened the sleeping Scots, who hurriedly gathered up their arms and drove the enemy away."

KISH

"The finding of tablets and other relics on the site of Kish, near the banks of the Euphrates, has in it the possibilities of pushing back the history of man's governments so that we may peer farther into the past than ever before," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Babylon, the mighty and wonderful, with all its glamour as the first great world-city about which we know, fills our eyes when we look back toward the beginning of history," continues the bulletin. "Though it began its rise to power more than 4,000 years ago, Babylon, it is believed, was young beside Kish.

"Babylon first became important about 2,200 B. C. For more than 1,000 years before that date, however, Kish existed near the site of the future metropolis, according to records dug up from the remains of other Mesopotamian cities. From time to time during that period Kish was the most important city of the land, holding its fellows under its suzerainty. Even when power passed to Babylon, Kish, eight miles away, was preserved and honored under the wing of the new state, and one of the early members of the Babylon dynasty resided there and made it his capital.

"The first people whom history uncovered in Mesopotamia were the Sumerians who built near the mouth of the Tigris-Euphrates. Only a short time after these earliest known Mesopotamia city-dwellers emerge, their records bring Kish into the picture; and that city is brought in in a way which establishes two important facts: that the people of Kish held the ascendency over the Sumerians; and that already a considerable period of civilization had passed. For the record relates that the King of Kish was called in as the world's first umpire—an arbitrator to settle a boundary dispute between two Sumerian cities. After giving his decision he caused stones to be inscribed and placed and so drew the first international boundary line ever recorded.

"Thus Kish stands almost at the threshold of written history. Practically all that is now known of the Kishites is known from objects found elsewhere. The investigation of the remains of the city itself should greatly enrich our knowledge of its life and times.

"One of the possibilities in excavating Kish is the finding of information that will throw light on the fascinating question of the historic origin of Hebrew religious beliefs. Already the parallelism is so close between many Babylonian-Sumerian and Jewish traditions that it is almost certain that they had a common source. The religious chronicles of the ancient Mesopotamia tell that the earth was created from a watery chaos, and that man was made from earth mixed with God's blood. It ascribes the 'fall of man' to the eating of a fruit; and it has a complete deluge story according to which one family survived by building an ark smeared with bitumen. The Sumerian 'Noah' landed on a mountain and sent out a dove in an effort to find whether the waters had subsided. The Babylonian-Sumerian religion, however, had many gods."

Stories That Recall Others

Now She Knows.

Mary had gone to the big city to stay a while with her aunt. She was vastly interested in everything she saw. Nearly every day her aunt took her for a ride. "Tonight," announced her aunt one morning, "I am going to take you to see some of the wonderful electric signs. That is if you are a good girl."

Needless to say Mary was as good as gold all that day and in the evening they set out to see the lights.

The little girl was delighted. "Look!" she exclaimed pointing to the sign. "I knew there were ever so many Smiths, but I never knew before where they came from."

A British army regiment which recently returned from Constantinople had been away from England for 18 years. In the last four years the regiment had done duty in eight different countries.

WAUREGAN HOUSE IS JUNGLE WHERE LIONS RECEIVE CHARTER

GEORGE A. FINN
President of Lions

Lionism became an established institution in Norwich, Friday evening when District Governor James L. Readio, Jr., of Edgewood, R. I., presented the Norwich Lions their permanent charter from Lions International, declaring the Rose of New England a real live jungle which has enjoyed a lively growth and has been extremely active for several months under a dispensation granted by the International Club. Thirty-seven members were listed on the club roll Friday evening when the charter was presented at a brilliant banquet and social held in the Wauregan Hotel banquet hall, with covers laid for 160, including the Lions, their lady guests and visitors.

The Rotary club of the city was strongly represented and took an active part in the festivities and fraternized with the Lions in a manner bespeaking a spirit of mutual friendship and delightful fellowship among the leading citizens of the community.

Shortly after eight o'clock, the crash of a large oriental cymbal notified all present, that the time was at hand when the Lions of Norwich would be governed by their own charter. The invocation was delivered by Lion Rev. Robert B. Day and a very delightful menu was served under the supervision of Lion Frank Watson, manager of the hotel, consisting of the following:

Celery Olives
Salted Almonds
Fresh Crab Meat Ravigotte
Fish Chowder a la Wauregan
Boiled Kenebec Salmon
Sauce Hollandaise
Pommes Dilomate
Cheese Crackers Souffle
French Bread
Semon Neapolitan Ice Cream
Petit Fours
Cafe Noir
Cigars Cigarettes

The banquet hall was more elaborately decorated with banners, flags and flowers than for a long time in the history of the hotel. Great praise is due Lion "Lou" Hawkins, the florist, for the manner in which he so tastefully and artistically decorated the hall, the greatest feature of it all being a cage of Lions, for the ball room centerpiece.

Through the courtesy of Mrs. Edward Andrews, dancing teacher, Miss Myrtle Fuller gave an exhibition dances going among the tables with a large book bearing the words "Welcome."

Delegations from the following clubs were present to help make the evening a success, and were seated in groups at the tables: Greenwich, New London, Providence, New Haven.

The Lions' beautiful banner which was hung in a conspicuous place, was unfurled in the darkened room at an appropriate time, while a a spotlight played on it and the Lions greeted it with their roar. The cloth for the banner was donated to the club by Charles A. Saxton, president of the Norwich Rotary club. The Lions emblem, painted in gold leaf and the words "Lions Club, Norwich Connecticut" were done by Stanley Henschel, son of Lion Rudy and the Norwich club is proud to know that work of such merit was done wholly in this city. The Lions colors are purple and gold.

Lion Bill Harding showed his usual generous spirit by furnishing vaudeville acts, Miss Hall, dancer, and White and France, singers, which were of the usual high quality and appreciated by all.

Greetings to the Lion club were cordially expressed by Mayor Milo R. Waters on behalf of the city, President Charles A. Saxton for the Rotary club and President H. M. Lerou for the Chamber of Commerce.

Rev. Alexander H. Abbott delivered a greatly appreciated address upon good citizenship, in which he said that communities are to be congratulated upon having groups of individuals functioning for the community's common good and with that thought we can congratulate ourselves upon the formation of a Lions' club in Norwich.

A very unique feature of the program was the speech of Lion Jack Barry, his humor carrying with it knocks and boosts for each member of the club and at the finish he was heartily applauded by all present. Jack is to be congratulated on his ability to put over a speech of this kind as it takes wit and humor, and the club is proud to have Jack as a member. Jack is listed on the charter as a lawyer, but is also a judge, being judge of the police court in Jewett City.

Herb Smith's orchestra of six pieces furnished the music for the evening and a large part of the success of the affair depended on his men. They entered into the spirit of the evening with great zest and did more than their share to entertain the members and their guests. During the dinner, selections were played and after that, they furnished music for the dancing. Along with the music, four song leaders kept things lively, these being Ty Stanton, Bogie Bogue, George Madden and Bert Caron.

At the opening of the evening President Finn read a telegram of congratulations from International Association signed by Melvin Jones, international secretary.

CRYSTAL LAKE HOTEL PROPRIETOR IS FINED

George Bokus of Rockville, proprietor of the Crystal Lake hotel was before Justice of Peace Percy Ainsworth in the Ellington town court Wednesday evening on the charge of keeping liquor with intent to sell. The hotel was raided in the afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Thomas Hayes of Stafford Springs assisted by three state policemen from the Stafford Barracks. The officers made a very thorough search of the hotel property and found but a small amount of liquor which Mr. Bokus states was for his own use. The town meeting is the regular adjournment from the annual meeting for the purpose of laying the town tax after the report of the board of relief has been made. This will have the right of way in the town hall Monday evening and will be held first, probably occupying only a few minutes, and will be followed by the special city meeting.

Avery in superior court, at New London, for the past three days, reported an agreement awarding Bohun the sum of $350.

STORRS HENS COME BACK IN SEVENTEENTH WEEK

There has been a favorable reaction to last week's drop in egg production. In the seventeenth week of the Storrs laying contest there was a gain of 251 eggs over the previous week's performance. The total production for all pens was 7933 eggs of a yield of nearly 42 per cent. Approach of the natural breeding season with more daylight hours usually means an almost uninterrupted increase in weekly egg yields from now until the middle of May when the peak of production is reached. C. T. Darby's pen of Leghorns from North Branch, N. J., was an easy first in the seventeenth week with a score of 62 eggs. Two pens of Rhode Island Reds owned by Fernside Farm, at Attleboro, Mass., and Deer Brook Poultry Farm at Short Falls, N. H., tied for second place with 53 eggs each. W. E. Moran's pen of White Wyandottes from Bethany, Conn., was third best pen with a score of 48 eggs. Rhode Island Reds owned by Red Mount Farms at Franklin, Mass., made fourth place with a yield of 47 eggs.

The mating season is now at hand. Most poultrymen believe in better breeding. A bulletin from the Missouri Experiment Station says it is a mistake to set the first hen to go broody in the spring. The best hen is the one that lays during the winter months and usually she is the first to go broody in the spring. Thus about the time the winter layer goes broody the winter loafer begins to lay. Setting the first broody hen in the spring means then that the good winter layer is set on the non-winter layer eggs and as a result the good winter layer spends three weeks incubating the eggs and perhaps six weeks brooding the chicks; in other words, the good hen has spent about nine weeks raising and brooding chicks from the poor hens eggs while some of her own have been used for incubation.

Plymouth Rocks.

Ameling Farm (White) Rolla, Mo. 629
Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind. 597
Ontario Agricultural College (Barred) Guelph, Ont. 577
Edgar Stoughton (Barred) Hartford, Conn. 533

White Wyandottes.

D. O. Witmer, Joplin Mo. 698
Frank P. Matteson, Davisville, R. I. 626
Albert W. Buckbee, Wisner, N. Y. 606
Harvey J. Byerly, Sharpsville, Pa. 532

Rhode Island Reds.

Fernside Farm, Attleboro, Mass. 837
E. Newton Searles, Pomfret Center, Conn. 671
Sunset Poultry Farm, Amherst, Mass. 605
Forest H. Clickner, New Brunswick, N. J. 601

White Leghorns

Hilltop Farm, Suffield, Conn. 843
C. T. Darby, North Branch, N. J. 784
Francis F. Lincoln, Mt. Carmel, Conn. 747
F. M. Johnson, Waldoboro, Maine. 737

Companions of Forest Met

Companions of the Forest, No. 1235 held their regular meeting this week with a social hour after the business.

Sandwiches and cake were served. Final preparations were made for a whist which will be held the first of a number of whist parties to be held for the benefit of the lodge. Deputy Barrett of New London was guest of the evening.

GOV. AL SMITH WITHDRAWS NAME FROM PRIMARIES

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 29—Governor Smith has requested that his name be withdrawn as a candidate for the democratic presidential preferential primaries in Illinois on April 8, it became known here late today when his office made public copies of a communication he had sent to Secretary of State Emerson, of Illinois.

The governor's action came 24 hours after he learned that his name had been filed in the Illinois primaries by Raymond T. O'Keefe, a edmocratic leader of Chicago, who had obtained 5,000 names for the petition which he entered.

Announcement of the governor's letter came as a surprise at the capitol, for although it was known he did not approve of his name being entered in the Illinois primaries, he was not believed to be considering immediate action seeking its withdrawal.

CLAIMS SOME LAWYERS AND DOCTORS ARE "GOUGING"

New Haven, Feb. 29—Evidence that some lawyers and dcotors are "gouging" clients and patients in the compensation court was claimed by Commissioner Charles Kleiner of the Third District, today in making public a statement he had submitted at a meeting of the commissioners of the state on Thursday, at which time he went into at length alleged unethical practices of some members of the two professions mentioned.

The commissioners backed up Mr. Kleiner in his claims and advised him to make public a warning. He says that in one instance a fee retained by an attorney in a compensation case which required advice from a lawyer was 42 per cent. of the ward to the patient.

Tomb Used as Billiard Parlor.

It is unusual for a tomb to be used for any purpose other than that for which it was erected. An exception may be found in Allahabad, India, where a magnificent mausoleum, built to contain the remains of an Indian prince who was murdered by his father, has become in recent years a billiard parlor.

Wouldn't That Be Nice?

Nearly every "good conversationalist" thinks conversation ought to be a monologue, with an occasional "yes" by somebody else.

"My very first bottle of Tanlac brought a wonderful change over me. I am on my fifth bottle now and am feeling just right in every way. I eat and digest everything, sleep like a top and get up mornings feeling fine. Tanlac is great and I am glad to speak out in its praise."

BOSTON WHIRLWINDS CLASH WITH ARMY-NAVY AT TAFTVILLE SUNDAY

A real treat is in store for the basketball fans of Eastern Connecticut when the fast Army and Navy five, undisputed champions of Eastern Connecticut, clash with the Boston Whirlwinds, recognized champions of New England, in the Parish hall, Sunday afternoon.

The appearance of this premier quintet from the Hub city gives the lovers of the sport in this section an opportunity to witness the leading basketball players in the country in top-notch form, and Sunday's encounter is without a doubt the greatest basketball attraction ever staged on a chalked court in this part of the state.

The Boston Whirlwinds, with 44 victories to their credit this season, most of them from the leading quintets in New England, will use their strongest line-up which threw a big scare into the world's champions in Madison Square Garden last month. They will have Nate Hunwitz and "Nig" Curtin, forwards; Leo Martin, center, and Earl Heal and "Fiddle" Morley, guards.

Nate Hurwitz is a former member of the Hartford Y. M. H. A., which team captured the city title last season. Curtin, former star player in "Kacey" league in Boston. Martin, former Rhode Island State college star who held Dutch Dehnert of the Celtics, scoreless. Earl Heal from Bangor, Me., is considered to be the best man the Pine state has turned out in many years, and Capt. Morley was the mainstay of Boston college five last season, and his work alone has helped the Hub quintet to many victories.

The Army and Navy will be strengthened for the battle. They will have Joe Belair and Ballsieper of South Manchester, forwards; Harry Mills, center; "Dutch" Leonard of the Hartford Kacevs, and Benson of the Reds, guards. Coleman and Cardie in the utility role. Besides this stellar attraction there will be another game with which is connected considerable interest. The Army and Navy 2nds, who haven't been defeated on the local floor this season and who claim the amateur title in this part of the state will battle with the supreme ball tossers from Baltic, namely the Wanderers. In a statement last night, Manager Collins of the Baltic five said that the followers of the sport in that village would wager plenty of money that the Wanderers would come out on the long end of the score and a large delegation is expected to witness the game and back the team to the limit.

AMERICAN STUDENTS SHOW WELL AT OXFORD MEET

Oxford, England, Feb. 29.—American students at Oxford university did well today in the first day of the university sports, notwithstanding the cold and wet weather.

The best all round performance was that of S. H. Thomson, Princeton, who, in the pole vault, clearing the bar at 9 feet 6 inches and qualified for the final heats on Monday of the 120 yard high hurdles and the 220 yard low hurdles, both of which events he won.

B. M. Baker, University of Virginia, won the preliminary heat in the 100 yard dash. J. S. Anderson, Dartmouth, also qualified for the 100 yards and B. H. Jack, Pennsylvania and Harvard, for the high and low hurdles.

KACEYS TAKE LISTLESS GAME FROM N. L. INDEPENDENTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Feb. 29.—The scheduled basketball game in the military league Friday night between the Knights of Columbus and the New London Independents was forfeited to the latter quintet due to the non-appearance of the K. of C. five. An exhibition game was played with the New London Independents easily defeating the makeshift K. of C. boys in a listless game. The final score was 30 to 14.

Both teams resorted to trying the long range shots. At this kind of a game the Independents were more successful in finding the basket. The first half found the teams battling hard for honors and but a small margin separated the two teams at half time. The second half, however, was another story and the Independents easily won.

Hutchinson, for the Independents, and Griffin for the K. of C. were the best performers. The line-up and summary:

The Chapman Tech quintet travels to Danielson Saturday evening, where it meets the fast Killingly High on the chalked court. This is the second meeting between these two teams. In the previous contest the Killingly boys managed to defeat the Tech outfit by a single point.

In tonight's contest the Tech team is not over confident in returning victorious for the Killingly court is unfamiliar to them. Despite this handicap the Tech boys expect to give a good account of themselves.

A game is scheduled to be played with Madison High at New London on Monday, making it two games for the Tech quintet in three days.

Saturday evening on the Armory court there are two fast games scheduled—the first game, which gets underway at 7.30, will see the Blue Ribbons and the Cosmopolitans opposing each other. The second game will bring together the 55th Brigade Headquarters quintet and the Coast Guard.

While the first game is expected to turn out to be unusually fast, the second is really the big contest of the two. The boys from the Coast Guard have already played Door Mats from the Y. M. C. A. House league, and made that team play its best in order to return victorious. However, the soldiers of the 55th Brigade will try to show the sailors a trick or two.

TAFTVILLE CELTICS WIN FROM BATTERY B FIVE

The Taftville Celtics made it three out of four games played in a five games series with Battery B Friday evening when the Celtics took a close and hard fought game, 22 to 17. ## BARBER MAKES REPLY TO DUGAS AND MORIN

Danielson, Feb. 29.—If Chip Dugas, or anyone else down Taftville way, has money they desire to risk on a Barber-Morin bowling match, they had better make arrangements to put it up, or admit they are merely engaged in a typewriting contest for the sporting page. That was Frank Barger's ultimatum to them on Friday. No more apple sauce will do.

Barber points out primarily that he is a duck-pin bowler. In naming conditions under which he is to roll the proposed match he appears to be as fully within his rights as Morin, who has specified candle-pins for part of the match. Barber says ducks and ten pins—or all duck-pins, the popular game in this state.

Chip Dugas earns nothing but the contempt of the bowling fans in this territory who know Frank Barber for dipping his oar into the Barber-Morin discussion. No man that knows Barber has to apologize for him or make excuses for him. He stands on his own feet. Barber came here as a stranger a few years ago and, asking no man for favors, proceeded to establish himself in business. He has been a success. He is respected by the thousands who have come to know him. He pays his bills. He is an honest man.

Dugas' cheap insinuation that Barber will not risk his own money and has to have backers is an absolute untruth. And no one in Eastern Connecticut knows that better than Chip Dugas. He paid some of his good money when he thought he was rolling them well to find it out.

SAINTS TAKE BASKETBALL SERIES FROM BROADWAY

At the state armory on Friday afternoon the Saints basketball team won the basketball series with Broadway, taking the third game of the series, 10 to 8. The game was exciting from whistle to whistle and some good basketball was displayed by both teams. Wilbur was the high scorer for Broadway and Dennison, also of the Broadway team featured. For the victors Mingo was the leading point man while the floor work of Shea and Blum added greatly to the Saints victory. The line-ups were: Broadway—Vitigliano lg, Pitt rg, Dennison c, Wilbur lf, D'Atri rf. Saints—Mingo lf, Blum rf, Shea c, Marks lg, Drew ag, Burns rg.

PLAINFIELD HIGH WINS CLOSE GAME AT WOODSTOCK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Woodstock, Feb. 29.—The Plainfield High school basketball five nosed out Woodstock academy in the last few minutes of play here tonight in one of the best games ever seen on the local floor, winning by a score of 25 to 23. The game was a tussle from whistle to whistle, first one team taking the lead and then the other. The Plainfield boys led at half time by two points. At the beginning of the second half the locals made a spurt and went ahead into the lead by five points which they held until the last few minutes of play when the Plainfield team made a desperate rally which was successful, they nosing out the local five by three points. For Plainfield Williams was high point man, while Wetherill took the honors for the home team The summary:

REICH THINKS HE HAS CHANCE WITH FIRPO

Rio Janeiro, Feb. 29.—Al Reich, the American heavyweight, is not going to Buenos Aires with any idea of being an easy victim of Luis Firpo's powerful right.

"This chance at Firpo means everything to me," said Reich, on board the steamer American Legion today en route to Buenos Aires, where he has contracted to fight fifteen rounds with the Argentine star at a charity boxing festival March 15.

"I saw Firpo fight twice, including his fight with Dempsey," added Reich. "I recognize his power and aggressiveness, but I do not believe Dempsey is the only one able to defeat him."

Reich expects to weigh in at 210 pounds. He has been training vigorously on board ship and will keep it up the rest of the way, so he counts on being in splendid condition when he steps ashore.

KEEN COMPETITION EXPECTED IN INTERCOLLEGIATE MEET TONIGHT

New York, Feb. 29.—An unusually keen contest for intercollegiate championship laurels is expected tomorrow night when track and field stars of twenty-four eastern colleges and universities meet in the third annual indoor games at the Twenty-Second Regiment armory.

Yale's formidable array of athletes are favorites among many close followers of the sport to capture the crown now held by Pennsylvania, which conquered Cornell, the 1922 winner, in a close contest last year. The Quakers and Ithacans also will send strong squads and promise to be the Blue's strongest rivals. Princeton, which presented the east's strongest front against California's champion Golden Bears at the outdoor intercollegiates last spring, is another likely candidate for team honors.

Cornell's chances will be somewhat handicapped by the absence of Ed Kirby, distance running star, and Stone, a hurdler, but Coach Jack Moakley has one of the best rounded squads at Ithaca in several years, according to reports.

The quest for individual honors promises to witness some spectacular competition, particularly with such stars as Louis Clarke, Johns Hopkins; and Chester Bowman, Syracuse, in the 70-yard dash; Schuyler Enck, Penn State, Mal Douglas, Yale, and Tom Cavanaugh, Boston college, in the mile run; Elmer McLane, Pennsylvania, Verne Booth, Johns Hopkins, George Larmond, Boston college, and Harry Helme, Georgetown, in the two-mile run; and such sterling field event performers as Comins, Yale; Hill, Princeton; Plansky, Georgetown; Scholpp, Yale; Owen and Sherill, Pennsylvania; Bowen, Cornell, and Fishive, Boston college.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET CLOSED DULL

New York, Feb. 29.—After an early show of strength and activity in practically all sections of the list, prices turned reactionary in today's stock market and there was a perfectible lessening in the volume of trading in the afternoon.

Overnight buying orders gave the market an upward slant at the outset and influenced numerous professional bears to cover; but the activity subsided toward noon and considerable short selling appeared, particularly in the Northwestern railroad issues.

Renewal of reports of a favorable nature regarding Norfolk & Western pushed that stock up sharply but it reacted on profit taking and closed well below the previous day's final price. Southern railway advanced to a new high record price at 50 7-8 and moderate strength was display by Chesapeake & Ohio, New York Central and other dividend paying roads.

The relatively poor showing of four quarter earnings of Studebaker depressed that stock nearly two points, and Westinghouse Electric fell about three points on unconfirmed reports that some new financing was contemplated. The directors of the latter company meet next Wednesday.

Some of the specialties, such as merchandising shares, met with favor and ended the day with fair gains. A few of the independent steels also moved forward on the day.

Foreign exchange rates were irregular within a relatively narrow range. Demand sterling recorded a slight gain at $4.30 3-8, but French francs reacted after yesterday's smart advance, losing two points at 4.19 1-2 cents. Belgian francs climbed to 3.65 1-2 cents and most of the other continental exchange were steady. The Spanish Peseta moving counter to the general trend, fell 8 points to 12.57 cents for a new low for the year. Japanese exchange also moved lower, closing at 44.75 cents.

Call money opened at 4 1-2 per cent. and was advanced around noon to 5 per cent. reflecting the usual month end requirements. Time money continued quiet with quotations unchanged at 4 3-4 and 5 per cent.

BOND MARKET

New York, Feb. 29.—The improved outlook for a compromise on tax legislation, providing for a substantial reduction in the surtax rate, with prospects that the cut in personal income taxes would apply this year, materially strengthened the bond market today. Prices generally moved higher, with activity centered largely in the speculative railroad issues. Constructive news from abroad also imparted a firmer trend to the foreign list.

Profit taking, however, developed in some sections of the list, wiping out a part of the cent gains scored by Norfolk & Western convertible 6s, which declined about 3 points, and Chicago & Alton 3 1-2s, which yielded a point. Bonds of the Northwestern roads also were heavy as stocks were depressed on unfavorable earnings reports. St. Paul, Northern Pacific and Great Northern issues all lost ground.

Speculative uneasiness over Virginia-Carolina Company was reflected in a further weakening of the bonds, although they rallied several points in the early trading. "Switching" operations were in evidence among the copper bonds, accounting for the continued heaviness of the high-cost producing group, and strength of low-cost products like Magma, whose 5 per cent bonds gained more than a point.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Feb. 29. — Estimates that three big corn-shipping states — Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska — have forty million bushels more corn than was the case a year ago did a good deal to depress grain values today. Corn closed weak, 1-2c to 7-8c easy, not lower, May 80 7-8 @ 81c to 81c. Wheat finished easy, 3-8c to 5-8c down, May 1.10 to 1.10 @ 1.10 1-8, and July 1.10 1-4, with Oats 1-4c to 3-8c off and provisions showing 2 to 10c decline.

From the outset, corn showed a decided downward tendency, and closed at the day's bottom figures. The May delivery in particular was under considerable selling pressure and it was current gossip that a large holder here was unloading through various brokers. Meanwhile, the market lacked aggressive support, notwithstanding that wheat at first had an upward slant as a result of enlarged buying in anticipation of an increase of the import duty. Most of the buying of wheat, however, was on the part of shorts, and was no longer in evidence during the last half of the day.

Corn receipts here were of unexpected liberal volume today, 403 cars chiefly from Illinois and Southern Iowa, and there was talk that the quality of corn in many districts of this territory made marketing imperative before warm weather set in. Under such circumstances, profit-taking sales in future deliveries here broadened out, and for at least the time being, the market displayed but little if any power to rally.

What, like corn, closed at about the day's lowest level. A number of the early buyers of wheat returned to the selling side, apparently on account of corn weakness. Oats, too, sagged, with corn.

Demand for provisions was at a minimum.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Feb. 29. — Conflicting movement in the leading Standard Oil issues gave an irregular aspect to today's curb market, although the general price trend was higher.

Borne & Scrymser, on a small turnover, advanced 14 points, closing at 304. Profit taking accounted for a 4 point loss in Chesbrough manufacturing which yesterday jumped 5 points to 400. Standard Oil of Kentucky and Solar Refining lost 2 points, but there was quiet accumulation of vacuum oil which sent the stock up 2 points before reacting at the close.

A strong undertone ruled in the industrial list despite heaviness of a number of the motor shares. Dubilier radio again sold at the high level for the year attained yesterday, but weakened toward the close.

Fluctuations in the mining shares were narrow, with further slight recessions in some of the copper issues.

Stock of the Durant Motors Company of Indiana was stricken from the trading list upon application of its directors.

Having completed its session at West Kingston, the February term of the superior court for Washington county adjourned on Friday to begin its adjourned Westerly session at the court house on Union street Monday morning at 10.30. Justice Antonio A. Capotosto, who has been on the bench at Kingston, is scheduled for Newport and will not come to Westerly. It is thought that Associate Justice Arthur P. Sumner, of Providence, will be on the bench for the March 3rd session of the trial calendar of the February session, at Westerly, which follows:

In the third district court Friday morning, although there was a somewhat lengthy docket, no cases were tried, as some of the lawyers in both criminal and civil cases were absent due to their being present at the last day's session of the February term of the superior court, for cases to be tried at the West Kingston county court house. Judge Michael J. Turano was not present in the third district court room when Clerk M. Walter Flynn read the following docket:

New writ—Westerly Light & Power Co. vs. The Mystic Manufacturing Co., a book account to collect balances alleged due. A motion for a bill of particulars had been filed and was ordered in two weeks.

Civil docket — Whitin Machine Co. vs. William McKenzie; continued one week. Travelers Insurance Co. vs. John Adamo; placed on nisi docket. Atlantic Carbonic Co. vs. Grover C. King; on nisi docket. Pasquale Furculo vs. Generoso Gallucci; nisi docket. Westerly Furniture Co. vs. Frank Cheridio; continued one week. Ledyard S. Anthony vs. Norman Talbot; continued one week. Cornelius Conway vs. Thomas H. Esall; continued one week. Antonio Panciera, et al., vs. William F. Louden; continued two weeks. Philip Goldberg vs. Antonio Pantech; continued two weeks.

"As there are no cases ready there will be no session of court today," said Clerk Flynn.

"This session of third district court now stands adjourned to meet according to law," said court officer, Deputy Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell, and the two lawyers and two spectators left the court room.

In a special session of the third district court Thursday, before Acting Judge M. Walter Flynn, Thomas Mahoney, alias, and Michael Wrong, alias, both of Portland, Ore., were arraigned on complaint of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, charging "without right loitering about the station house and grounds of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., after having been requested to leave the place by an agent of the company." Examination developed that the men had not been warned by any agent of the railroad and the men were discharged. The action taken was in line with an effort being made to rid the waiting room of the Westerly railroad station of loiterers, whose number has so increased as to make them a nuisance and more or less in the way of those whose business rightfully takes them there. Railroad policemen have been called from New London but they have appeared at times when the loiterers were not congregating in or about the railroad station grounds.

Supt. Fred S. Binns of the White Rock mill of the B. B. & R. Knight, Inc., of Westerly, was in Providence Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Lowes, formerly of Pawtucket, R. I., were visitors in Westerly Thursday, before going to their new residence on Flanders road, near Stonington borough.

Miss Mary Thorp returned to Westerly Thursday night after a few days' visit with friends in Boston and Brookline, Mass.

The present registration of the classes is seventy-seven, with Mrs. Ernest E. Morrill, Mrs. W. C. Murdock, Vernon Rice and Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, teachers. Next Thursday Mr. Rice will hold an extra hour class session to follow the second class period at 9:10, having missed a class while attending a convention in Chicago, two weeks ago.

Mrs. E. W. Babcock of Troy, N. Y., was the guest Friday of Mrs. William M. Groton in Westerly.

Alvin S. Kenyon of the West Side was in Providence Friday.

Lieutenant Elliot R. Thorpe of the recruiting service of the U. S. A. was the guest of relatives and friends in Westerly Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson D. Main were Providence visitors Friday afternoon.

Miss May Lamb has begun a short vacation from her duties at a local restaurant. During her absence Miss Florence McCann will substitute.

Mr. W. F. Wilcox of Stonington borough was a visitor in Westerly Friday.

Basil B. Wood, librarian of the Wilcox Memorial and Public library, was a visitor in Bradford Thursday night.

When, a week ago, Westerly newspaper readers saw the short paragraph narrating a thrilling drama in the sky—a daring rescue of Rosalie Gordin, girl parachute jumper, who became entangled in the ropes beneath a speeding aeroplane 2,000 feet above Ellington field, near Houston, Texas, on Sunday of that week, no one realized the part a Westerly boy played in her rescue.

"Send Freddy up with rope—will pick him up—he can help pull her up," was the message written by "Tommy" Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander G. Thompson, 84 Chester avenue, Westerly, and driver of one of the [illegible] as he boomed [illegible] and the little white card [illegible] to earth from his [illegible] began the 45-min- [illegible] "Freddy" was Wing [illegible] of the Gates Flying cir- [illegible] to [illegible] Thompson, "America's [illegible]" and a Westerly boy, [illegible] Pangborn, pilot of the [illegible] Miss Gordon became [illegible] putting on a program of aerial stunts for the benefit of the Thirty-Sixth Division, air service, with a gallery of five thousand breathless spectators.

The added stunts were caused by a ring at the edge of the canvas canopy to which one of the supporting ropes of Rosalie's parachute caught on a rod, which protruded from the landing gear of the aeroplane.

It was from this fixture Miss Gordon swung as the ship circled high over the crowd. Below, the aviators composing the circus personnel realized instantly the peril of the parachute jumper. She would be dragged to death if the ship landed while she swung beneath it. There was the added danger of becoming detached and the canopy falling to spread.

"Thommy" Thompson had started the motor of his fast little plane and then Lund, "Diavolo" of the circus, leaped with him into the cockpit as the Thompson plane again took the air, after swooping down to get Freddy. The crowd caught the significance of the swift decent followed by the hasty ascent as the chase of the parachute plane began. Men and women knelt on the ground in grim silence, unable to stand while the pursuit for a girl's life was in progress.

Thompson flew high over the parachute plane and nosed down upon it time and again in a futile effort to land his companion on the Pangburn plane. For 20 minutes this manouvering was kept up, the pilots of the two planes blocked from making contact, at times by an excess of caution and again by contrary air currents. Pangburn, driving the ship from which Miss Gordon swung, had observed the plane coming up from below at the same instant he discovered the parachute attached to his ship. While he had performed the "wing lap" before, he had not practiced it with Thompson, but each pilot divined the other's movements and soon they were working in unison.

The dangerous "wing lap" finally was accomplished. Lund standing on the lower wing of his plane, did not wait for the actual contact but sprang over to the wing of Pangburn's plane when two or three feet intervened. He caught a stake and steadied himself. Then he ran to the side of the cock-pit, himbly climbed down to the landing gear and began to pull in the parachute with the limp body of the girl dangling from it. He was not strong enough, after the excitement of the chase, to complete the rescue. With half of the length of the parachute in, he became exhausted. He attached the ropes securely to the axle and then climbed back to the cockpit. Pangburn needed no explanation and exchanged places with him. Descending to the landing gear he hauled Miss Gordon up to the axle on which he sat.

Again the aviators exchanged places while Miss Gordon clung to the landing gear in a half-fainting condition. Lund was not familiar with the plane and preferred not to attempt the landing but chose the more dangerous job of holding the girl on the landing gear as the pilot brought the ship down. The circus management, fearing an accident as the landing was made, ran an automobile out on the field hoping the two on the gear might effect a safer landing in it as the machine ran along under the plane. Pangburn preferred the risk of a regular landing, however, and in a long swoop scaled over the grass and brought his plane to a stop.

He dived underneath the ship and assisted Lund in extracating the girl from the parachute harness. Then all three fell into an embrace and shook hands all around, until the crowd closed in on them and Miss Gordon was carried off to headquarters. A Texas newspaper has undertaken the collection of a fund, started by C. C. Connan, which will be presented to Miss Gordon, Messrs. Lund, Girton, Pangburn and Thompson, as a small reward for their daring and heroism. After the landing had been successfully completed it was found that Pangburn's ship had but three minutes' supply of gas left in it, which showed that every minute counted in the rescue.

First Lieutenant A. Raymond Thompson of the Officers Reserve Corps, Air Service, was graduated from the Westerly High school, class of 1917, also played on the football team. From the Rhode Island State college Thompson entered the government service and became an expert air pilot. While in the University of Mexico young Thompson also played on the football team. At the conclusion of his war service Thompson joined the Gates Flying circus which has exhibited in California and is now in Texas. He has not been to his home in Westerly since 1917. In his recent letter from Houston, Tex., dated February 23, to his father in Westerly, he barely mentions his most recent daredevil stunt, being content with the mere statement that he was sending home some Texas papers with the Ellington field story.

Paul Jennings, of 33 Highland avenue, formerly superintendent of the Westerly Textile plant on Main street, is to be superintendent of two mills of the Langley Mills Co., of Langley, Ga. The Langley mills are situated about ten miles from Augusta, Ga., and Mr. Jennings will take up his work there in several days. Later Mr. Jennings with his wife and daughter Florence, plan to move to Georgia to reside.

Nearly two hundred members of the Westerly Masonic club and their friends met in the club rooms on High street Thursday evening for the February entertainment. The program was made up of a minstrel show presented by Grace Methodist church choir with the interlocutor John Hoag, a past president of the Masonic club and an active worker in the Methodist club. There were six end men and chorus of male voices. The program included vocal solos, instrumental duets and piano, mandolin and guitar members. Following the minstrel a court scene was well enacted by the church club members, John J. Stewart took the part of judge when an "old man" and three "Italians" were presented before him. Following the entertainment sandwiches, wafers, ice cream and coffee were served.

At Mystic Thursday evening, at the rooms of the Mystic Hook and Ladder Co., the Westerly Masonic club was defeated by Hooks in the second bridge game between these teams in the series of the four club bridge tournament by the score of 14,630 to 11,471, losing by 3,158 points. Last week at the Masonic rooms in Westerly the Mystic Hooks trimmed their Westerly opponents by a score of 13,795 to 13,608, it being the first time the Masonic club has been beaten by any team in the present series. The teams played as follows:

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week a party of Norwich citizens gathered at the home of the Hon. James Drew and formed a Harrison and Wait club. Mr. Drew was the selection as chairman of the meeting. The same week the depot of the New London Northern railroad was undergoing needed repairs and improvements. The Universalist society held their annual fair and festival that week. The three local banks declared dividends ranging from four to six per cent a year. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Bulletin of February, 1874, are as follows;

Monday, Feb. 23, 1874—The members of the O. L. P. club held a reunion at the house of Benjamin Peckham, Friday night and presented a fine gold pen and pencil to Joseph C. Worth, the gallant commissary of the encampment at Niantic, last summer.

A. Tucker of Lebanon sold lambs from six sheep for $88.30 and wool from the same for $13.20, total $101,-50, being the return for one year.

Although the panic has been very severe this winter, still quite a number of new houses have been and are now in process of contruction here.

The tax of eight mills on the grand list of the town of Norwich amounts to $123,720.78, exclusive of the tax on polls, military, commutation and the dog tax.

Underwood, the evangelist, who has been laboring in Greeneville, returns to New York Tuesday. During the recent revival in Greeneville over 50 persons have been converted and all the meetings have been crowded.

Tuesday, Feb. 24, 1874—The Jewett City Farmers club held an interesting session Saturday. The topics under discussion were: whether or no. it pays to grind oats and corn to feed cattle; fattening beef; and milk selling.

At the annual meeting of King Solomon Grand Lodge of Perfection on Friday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Charles W. Carter, T. P. G. M.; W. W. Avery, D. G. M.; Henry L. Parker, V. S. G. W.; Jacob B. Mershon, V. J. G. W.; John L. Devotion, K. of S.; Hiram Cook, secretary; John W. Stedman, treasurer; Isaac N. Pressey, G. M. of C.; James Kirker, G. C. of G.; Costello Lippitt, G. O.; Charles M. Carleton, G. Hosp. Bro.; Henry Clay Lord, G. Tyler.

One section of the Greeneville bridge has already been taken down to make room for the new structure.

The trailing arbutus blooms in some of the shop windows.

The country roads are bottomless with mud.

The man who drank carmine ink the other day for gin has broken out with scarlet fever.

Wednesday, Feb. 25, 1874—A meeting is called of the legal voters of the Second Congregational church for March 2d at 7.30 o'clock in the evening to consider the proposition of accepting and occupying the new church now building at the corner of Broadway and Williams street; also regarding the disposition of their present place of worship.

The store of B. H. Palmer, Greeneville, was broken into Monday night and robbed of over $200 worth of goods. The burglars entered by the front door, prying off the shutter and removing a pane of glass. About $150 worth of dress goods were taken and the rest in jewelry consisting of shirt buttons, etc.

J. P. Barstow has been making some decided changes and improvements in the seed department of his store. The seeds are stored in large bins on the second floor and are conveyed by tin spouts to the different receptacles below. By this and other arrangements a good deal of waste room has been utilized and at the same time a better lighted and much more convenient store is secured.

The call unanimously extended to the Rev. Frank L. Norton to become the rector of Christ church is warmly seconded by many not present, members of the parish and otherwise, who are interested in the welfare of that society and of the community. The unusually large number present at the meeting is proof of the warm interest they had in trying to secure him for the rectorship of the church.

Thursday, Feb. 26, 1874—A large party of our adopted citizens gathered at the residence of the Hon. James Drew last evening to form a Harrison and Wait club. The Hon. James Drew was chosen chairman. Owing to the storm the attendance was not as large as was anticipated. Refreshments were furnished in abundance and the party broke up at a late hour with three cheers for the ticket.

The depot of the New London Northern railroad at the West Side is being renovated and very greatly improved. Col. Merrill, the efficient superintendent of the road, and Mr. Allen the obliging agen, are doing all in their power to make the depot more comfortable for the passengers who may wait the train there.

The annual fair and festival of the M. E. church at Baltic, will be held in Sprague hall on Friday and Saturday evenings, March 6th and 7th and a fine entertainment is guaranteed.

The festival of the Universalist society was repeated last night and notwithstanding the storm and the unfavorable surroundings weather-wise, the attendance was quite large. All the exercises passed off most agreeably and there was nothing to interfere in the last respect with the perfect success of the entertainment.

Friday, Feb. 27, 1874—George G. Lamb, late clerk in Lanman and Sevin's store, left yesterday for Providence, to enter a drug store there. While his absence will be regretted, he may be sure of the best wishes of his numerous friends for his welfare and success.

Mill Pond Lane received some needed improvements lately. The street has been widened and graded and a new bridge also added. Now the people of Mill Pond Lane ask for better sidewalks and they will feel proud.

A fine oil painting by Emmons is on exhibition in Ripley's window. It is a likeness of Mrs. Richards, mother of C. L. Richards, and is a work that does much credit to the artist, for its design and execution.

The fifth annual report of the Massachusetts railroad commissioners has the following concerning Connecticut railroads of interest:

New London Northern—This road extends from New London to Greens Corners and leases the Battleboro branch of the Vermont and Massachusetts, making a line of 120 miles to Brattleboro. The road has been much improved but requires more improvements.

Norwich & Worcester — Seventeen miles of this road lies in Massachusetts. The track, switches and bridges are reported good. The station buildings are not commendable, that at Oxford being particularly poor.

Saturday, Feb. 28, 1784—A flock of 28 hens owned by Nathan Smith of Uncasville, laid during a single year 2,803 eggs for the market, besides furnishing all that the family required for home consumption and rearing a numerous family of respectable children. They netted Mr. Smith something more than $50 for the year. The owner is not egotistical but he would like to know who can beat it.

The Temperance meeting held at Bean Hill last Tuesday evening was largely attended. Speeches were made by Sterry Bennett and D. C. Sterry of this city. A large number signed the pledge.

An elegant writing desk has been added to the reading room of the Wauregan House. It is of black walnut and possesses every requirement for convenience. A new card rack of the same wood has been hung to the wall.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. —(Adv.)

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

At the state armory Friday evening the third annual military ball of the Service battery, 103d Field Artillery, was held with an attendance representing many sections of eastern Connecticut and including various visiting officers and enlisted men.

A special magnet attracting many of those present was the Steamship Leviathan orchestra, a Paul Whiteman aggregation that has been on furlough for a number of weeks while the giant vessel is undergoing repairs. This orchestra rates among the very best ever brought to Danielson for a ball and was a delight to all who heard it, Friday evening.

The big drill shed was decorated with American flags, the arrangement being decidedly attractive and furthering the military note that was everywhere manifest. Holly and other devices were used in furthering the decorative scheme.

The concert program was heard by a large number who came not so much to dance as to listen to the music and to see the gowns of the women and the military uniforms.

Norman A. Reeves was chairman of the general committee in charge of the arrangements for the ball which was a marked success in every way.

The ball was the last of the big social events planned for Danielson prior to the Lenten season.

In the room where he was born 85 years ago, in the house that has been his home throughout life, James Walker Burlingame died Friday morning, at Mashentuckt in the eastern district of this town. Mr. Burlingame has been seriously ill for some time and only recently was at the hospital, in Putnam, receiving treatment. After his return he developed pneumonia, which was the cause of death.

Mr. Burlingame was a son of Fenner and Susan Walker Burlingame and was 85 years of age on August 2, 1923. He was of a family long associated with the affairs of the town of Killingly and resident for a century or more in the Mashentuck section, where the Burlingame farm nestles in a valley under the shadow of Mashentuck mountain.

During all of his life Mr. Burlingame had been engaged in farming, as had his father and grandfather before him on the same pleasant acres. Mr. Burlingame had served the town as a selectman and had held minor offices, being elected on the republican ticket.

In connection with Mr. Burlingame's death it was recalled Friday that his mother lived to pass her 100th birthday and that his father, who died four years ago last month, was 93 at the time he passed away.

Mr. Burlingame is survived by his wife, who was Miss Ella Young, and by two sons, Fenner of Springfield and Raymond of New Bedford, and two daughters, Misses Adah and Ruth, who are teaching in New Jersey. He also leaves two sisters, Mrs. Almy Tanner and Miss Ruth Burlingame, both of Westerly.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Connecticut Mills, held in Boston, Thursday, Charles Wolcott was elected chairman of the board. Other elections were of Obadiah Butler of Danielson to be president and Victor T. Anderson of Danielson to be treasurer of the corporation.

These changes are incident to the recent changing of control of the company through the acquisition, as previously set forth in this column, of the majority of the Class A common stock, in which the voting power is now vested.

We offer you the protection of the National Bank system for funds which you deposit with us. It will be of great interest if you will look into what this protection stands for. Call upon us. The Windham County National Bank.—adv.

Now comes the man who would spoil the ardor that anyone may have developed through the arrival of March 1, and the prospect of coming spring. This pessimist says that March is going to be a rough month, that it will bring snow storms and gales and cold weather. This prediction is based on the fact that December and January were unusually mild winter months and that March may be looked to for the striking of a balance.

No representation is made here that this forecast is likely to prove true. It is given as the view of one who has seen the coming and going of many New England winters and who has been trained in the hard school of experience not to place too much faith in a month that may come in like a lamb and go raging on and out as a lion.

There is bound to be a revival this spring of the discussion over parking arrangements in the business section. This proposal is not an easy one to handle to the satisfaction of even a majority, but it persists in bobbing up and in being talked about.

Outdoor storage is the description that those in favor of rigid parking regulations insist is the right manner of speaking, relative to machines that stand in the busy places for many hours at a time.

The issue involved is one that has been before the borough officials for some time and will get further consideration from them in the spring. The matter has been revived at just this time because the street where most of the business is done is deep with ruts and parked cars on either side make motor vehicle operation something of an experiment—there being no certainty at all as to just what may happen with such restricted operating space and the depth of the ruts.

Members of Killingly's board of relief have completed their work for the year. Few changes have been made by this board from the figures set down by the members of the board of assessors. The principal change is a reduction in the assessment on the stock of goods of N. A. Jordan. This increase, it was contended, was made in the face of the fact that Mr. Jordan has been reducing his stock. Other changes that were made were of a minor nature. The grand list will soon be ready for use as a basis in fixing the taxation rate in Killingly for the current fiscal year, and this is a matter that the town will consider at its financial meeting during the present month.

A sum of money mentioned as having been found was restored Friday to its owner. The money was found by Carrier Harold Greene of the local postal force while covering his route Thursday. Mr. Greene only two weeks ago found another sum of money, which also was restored to its owner. Thus two parties have benefited through Mr. Greene's keenness and honesty.

The alumni dance Monday evening and the presentation of the drama Clarence Tuesday evening are events for next week that are claiming the interest of those who keep in close touch with the doings of Killingly High school. Incidentally, the basketball team of the school plays Chapman Technical school of New London here this evening.

Henry V. Fisher of Worcester was a visitor with friends in Danielson Friday.

Mrs. Mary McBride is executrix of the estate of her husband, Patrick McBride, who died about two weeks ago.

Mrs. Amadee Lussier of Carter street, a patient for the past week at St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester, returned to her home here on Friday.

There is to be a good time for the public at the armory Tuesday evening—to be observed as Mardi Gras. There will be no admission charge and dancing is to be for all who care to come.

The February luncheon of the officers and teachers of the Baptist Sunday school was held Friday evening. Rev. Avery A. Gates of Hampton addressed the gathering.

Frank Jones, 68, died at his home in Dayville, during Thursday night. Born in England, Mr. Jones came to this country with his parents when he was 9 months old and has been a resident of Dayville since he was twelve years of age. He leaves his wife and three sons, Walter, Frederick and Clifford.

PUTNAM

While the feat may not have been generally appreciated until he was seen in action at Danielson Thursday night, Putnam now realizes that in the person of Jerry Bernard of this city it has a light-weight exponent of the boxing game who is very good.

Jerry was cheered vociferously when he was leaving the ring after a clearcut victory over Johnny Murray of Rockville. It was remarked by those who saw Bernard in action that he has a lot of style to his boxing form. He goes about it smooth, clean cut manner that is good to look upon and he has many of th equalities though not all fully developed, that go to make boxers of the topnotch class. With some more experience Jerry should make a name for himself in the squared circle if he cares to follow sleuthing in the game.

Having seen him too brief a time, the fans were eating Friday that they would like to see him matched against some boy capable of making him extend himself.

The Sanborn Dye Works, out on Seotexet road, is to be removed to New York and consolidated with dyeing interests there in which Frederick Sanborn has been closed since last fall.

H. Sanborn is [illegible]

Mrs. Sanborn worke[illegible] ished here in 1910. Origi[illegible] firm did business on Schec[illegible] but late rit was removed to [illegible] the city.

It is understood that Mr. Sanborn will not actively continue in the chemical and dyeing business, but will return to the practice of law.

Mrs. Sanborn is spending the winter in Nice, accompanied by one of her children. Other children of the family are attending preparatory schools in this country.

Mr. Sanborn has been here this week making arrangements for the transfer of the dyeing business.

Though the winter is growing old and spring is in the offing, Mayor Victor Chapdelaine has issued a warning against the dangers assumed by children who persist in coasting on hills where there is motor traffic or leading into thoroughfares where there is a constant movement of automobiles.

The mayor says:

"It is against the lawful regulations prescribed by our city for children to slide on traveled, public highways. The police try to regulate this as best they can, but they cannot be everywhere at once, and, naturally the sliding goes on which officers are not around.

"However, children do not appreciate such regulations. They think only of the pleasure they are having and never once dream of the dangers of running into a wagon or motor vehicle, with the possibility that they may be seriously and possibly fatally injured. Parents must look after the children, warn them and see that they do not slide weher there is always present grave menace to life and limb.

"We had a serious coasting accident recently. It was only by good fortune that two little boys involved in the affair were not seriously injured. This accident, with its happy outcome, should serve to arouse all parents to make sure, insofar as is humanly possible, that their children are sliding where all danger is removed."

Though it is March 1, some streets in the city remain covered with snow and ice and coasting for this season is not at an end by any means. The danger that Mayor Chapdelaine points out is real. It is not too late to take heed of the warning he gives, that more coasting accidents be avoided this winter.

Next Monday evening The Putnam Medical Society will have an opportunity to hear an address by Dr. Willard Knowlto nof Hartford, director of the bureau of preventable diseases. Dr. Knowlton's subject will be Diphtheria Immunization. At this meeting the Schick test will also be demonstrated. Similar demonstrations with the test have been given recently in various towns and cities of Connectiou tand also at centers in other New England states.

E. G. Gates, a deputy collector of internal revenue, was in Putnam Friday and will remain here today assisting Leon T. Wilson, also a deputy collector, in giving aid to those who are seeking the assistance of the officials in making out their income tax returns.

Those who have their figures ready and need only to fill out the blanks will find ready and free assistance of the officials Messrs. Wilson and Gates, who are holding forth at the municipal building, in the office of the city clerk. They are on duty from 10 a. m. to 1.00 p. m., and from 2.00 to 5.00 p. m.

Progress having been made during the winter with the effort to raise a fund of $2,000 for use in improving the Old South Burial Ground at Pomfret, it is announced that the first of the work to be done will start about April 1, or so soon as the frost is out of the ground.

Stones marking graves are to be re-set where required, the cemetery resurfaced, the drive graveled and iron gates erected. In this old burial ground rest the remains of the founders of various well known families of Pomfret. Through long years of neglect the cemetery has come to be in need of extensive attention.

To reach members of families whose forebears are at rest there, much time has been spent in seeking addresses and sending out communications setting forth what those in charge of the improvement work purpose to do. Many who have been written to have responded. While the fund of $2,000 is not complete, it is hoped to make so by a continued canvass of interested parties.

It is hoped to have the improvements completed some time next summer.

James W. Burlingame, who was a patient at the hospital here for some time recently, developed pneumonia after his return to his home in the Washentuck district of Killingly and died Friday morning.

Women teachers at Putnam High school have formed a basketball team and have begun practice.

Mrs. C. L. Torrey and Mrs. George Harrington will be hostesses when the missionary meeting is held in the chapel of the Congregational church next Tuesday afternoon.

Rev. George L. Drowne of Fitchburg is to conduct the services at St. Phillip's church Sunday.

A considerable number from this city went to Danielson Friday evening to attend the military ball at the state armory. Music was by Paul Whiteman's Steamship Leviathan orchestra.

The current issue of the Telephone Bulletin contains a picture of Carl T. Kent, now manager for the company at Meriden, and his infant son. Mr. Kent formerly was manager of the Putnam, Danielson and Moosup divisions.

Automobile drivers will do well to have their 1924 operators' licenses ready for police inspection this morning if the police should ask for them. The old licenses expired at midnight Friday.

Owing to an outbreak of scarlet fever at North Ashford it has been deemed prudent not to hold any church services there for the next few weeks.

Judge M. H. Geissler will speak before the Men's class at the Baptist church on Sunday, continuing a series of talks he has been giving.

A short calendar session of the Windham county superior court will be held here next Friday to arrange business for the March term.

GURLEYVILLE

A meeting of the trustees of the Gurleyville M. E. church is to be held Saturday afternoon.

Miss Alfreda Walker who was called home from Northfield, Mass., by the death of Mrs. R. D. W. Knowlton, returned to Northfield the first of the week.

There will be Sunday school and preaching services in the church next Sunday as usual, Rev. E. M. Pickop, the pastor, speaking.

SOCIAL CORNER

in the New York papers. But I am living in hopes that the weather man may be good enough to allow me to attend the anniversary meeting in March. Surely the ground hog has made good his reputation this year, so let us give him all the credit that is due him. It has been too and then more ice and what a fine time to slide down hill!

On January 19 I was given a surprise birthday party which I enjoyed very much; also a number of cards from the Social Corner sisters for which I return thanks. It is said all things come to those that wait so I had waited 80 years before I had a birthday party I think it must be true.

When I look backward I am thankful that I have lived through such a wonderful age and seen the change in public opinion in regard to so many matters that is for the betterment of humanity; also such inventions and many other things that in my childhood were deemed impossible. To me it now seems almost incredible.

I am glad to see the Corner page filled with such interesting letters and I hope the good work goes on. I extend sympathy to all who are sick or in trouble and congratulations to those who have recently had additions to their families.

Sincerely yours from

USES FOR DISCARDED TUBES

Dear Social Corner Sisters: If not too late would like to thank Social Corner members for my dainty calendar, received the first part of the year. I wonder how many of the sisters think of using the inner tubes of tires that have served their purpose. They can be used in various ways.

Cut into strips of even widts and woven together in basket weave they make good floor mats in front of the door on veranda. The end strips should be made of double width turned over and connected in place with a good rubber cement.

A similar mat, smaller in size is excellent for use in the sink, or to cover and use on the table under hot dishes. Cut across in widths they make good rubber bands. They can be used in the bottom of the legs of bloomers and are good shirt sleeve supporters. Cut as half soles and cemented to the bottom of the shoes they will wear quite awhile. Of course, the rubber and shoes must be clean and sand papered before being cemented.

They also make good patches to be cemented on rubber articles. Pieces cut in stripe make good durable stairtreds. A piece cemented to a screen door will lessen the sound when the door is slammed. By using the good part and tying securely the tube when inflated slightly makes a serviceable air cushion. It also can be used when learning to swim. A piece cemented or tied to the broom handle or other handled tools makes them easier on the hands.

Little pieces cemented to the bottom of chair legs will save the floor covering. In fact the tubes can be used most anywhere where rubber is used. Good washers for faucets can be made from them.

It has been a long time since I have had a letter in the Corner but I see the page has been full and running over for a few weeks which must be pleasing to both editor and members.

Fairy: I hope you and the little Fairy are doing well. You will have to present him to the Corner some day.

All best wishes to the sick ones for a speedy recovery.

SOME OF THE OLD FAMILIES IN HAMPTON

Dear Social Corner Friends: Just a line to help out. Have been intending to write but don't seem to get at it. It has been some winterish round the corner where I live. My yard, clear raund the house, is a good place to skate if any one wans to. But I can't skate and I don't know how to guide a sled or I might slide down like some to pass off time. Still I don't have much time as I have been piecing quilts. Got one more to piece with blocks all cut out and strung. Got one ready to tie and shall tie it as soon as the cotton comes which I have ordered.

Now Cretia, and others that were interested in Hampton, do you remember the folks that lived this side of Bigelow four corners? First was Mr. Litchfield's, David Avery's and son-in-law, Samuel Bradford. G. M. Holts, Asa Witter and Ransom Mosley by the south Bigelow schoolhouse. Later Herman Allen lived there. Then there was the Wolcott Cary farm, later John Congdon's, Nathan Jackson's or George Davis, John Greenslits and Isaac and sam Bennetts. Then came Charles Spalding's place close to the Valley school. There were several families which lived beyond over towards the Valley church, and there was he Raymond District with quite a school and Deacon Joseph Congdon and his father. Upon the upper road going toward the hill were Mr. Harvey, Elder Burnham and three or four other families. Then came the Smiths and Rileys, Clarks, Burrs and Abbotts, two more Greenslit families and William Bennett. They are all gone and many other I could mention.

Well I don't think the old ground hog told any story when he told us there was to be six weeks more of winter. I think we have had three weeks good and strong. Hope the rest of you did not loose your plants like I did. Some of mine I never had freeze like these did since I lived in this place which will be 24 years next month.

Well Barbar did you attend the show in your parish house? I should like to have seen the demonstration.

C. E. G. wish you would send in that steamed brown bread recipe and one for those nice gingersnaps. My they were nice!

I had to laugh to read Jack's Wife's letter where she spilled her pie. I had a dear friend that made a nice custard pie and it looked lovely. As she was taking it from the oven it slipped and turned bottom up on the floor. It is too bad to have such a thing happen but they will. I made doughnuts once and started to fry them. They did not come up and when they did they looked so funny. Come to find out I used no saleratus in them and I tried a batch of gingercakes very grand and they had no rise in them. So the pigs got them but the doughnuts I put in a dish and dissolved the soda in a litgle water and worked it in and they came out all right. I knew a case where a small boy was given a slice of bread with lard put on it for butter. He never took bread from any one if the butter was white.

I was interested in Trottie's letter. I too was raised to, as mother said, "respect old age for grey hair's sake." but not many see that way nowadays. In those days it was "Children should be seen not heard." Now they come first and gray heads step one side.

Yes, Amy, I know of Mr. Turner. My oldest son went to one of his schools in Hampton.

Iola: I too made cheese one summer. My better half's ma taught me. I had very good luck but did not try but once. I prefer making butter. That is job enough. Now must stop this and get a churn ready for business as I am making butter and have since I was 14. Ought to know how shouldn't I? Don't suppose I'm up to the new fashion in my rules.

Wishing good luck to the Corner,am still,

AUNT JERUSHA.

NEW LONDON MAYOR FELICITATES ADMIRAL C. M. CHESTER AT 80

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Feb. 29.—Mayor Malcolm M. Scott, acting for the city, send telegraphic congratulations to Rear Admiral Colby M. Chester at Washington today on his 80th birthday. Admiral Chester was born in New London in the building now occupied by the James drug store. His father was Melville Chester, a lumber dealer, with business place opposite his home. There Admiral Chester passed his early years. His brother, Walstein was keen for the lumber trade while Colby's inclinations were in a different channel—that of the sea, perhaps naturally. When Colby finished his studies in the schools of this city he went to Annapolis and was graduated from there at 19. Then he was with Admiral Farragut in the fight at Mobile bay. From that day to this the admiral has been a navy man. Walstein Chester died three years ago, one of the leaders of the lumber trade in the United States. His home was at Brookline, Mass.

Mrs. Mary Maine of Green street, Frederick Johnson of Montville, Miss Elsie Kirk of Niantic and Michael and Victoria Sabagh, of Linden street, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

Meyer H. Hollandersky, who has been confined to his home on Broad street several days by a throat affection, is able to attend to business.

Traffic on the Central Vermont railroad was tied up for several hours last night by the derailment of 18 cars of a freight train, bound from Brattleboro, Vt., to New London. When the train was passing State Line one of the cars left the rails, causing fourteen others to follow before the train could be brought to a stop. The greater number of the derailed cars were precipitated over an embankment and the road-bed was torn away for a considerable distance. The new wrecker recently installed in the railroad yard here was sent to the wreck and has been engaged getting the derailed cars back on the iron and clearing away the wreckage.

Mrs. Maria Gala, 60, widow of Antonio Gala, died last night at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Orasio Sinnato of 122 Jefferson avenue. Mrs. Gala had been ill about two months with heart trouble.

Mrs. Elizabeth Kelly, 57, formerly of Groton, died last night at the State hospital, where she had been under treatment a long time. Mrs. Kelly is survived by three sons, Charles, James and Maurice Kelly, all of New London.

James E. Fitzpatrick, of the secret service, and located at New Haven was in New London this afternoon investigating the finding by two youths yesterday of $47 of mutilated bills of various denominations on the city dumping grounds, off Hamilton street.

The New York police department has informed the New London authorities that the effects of Harry Johnson, mate of the freight steamer New York of the Central Vermont line, drowned in East River, New York several days ago when he suffered a heart attack and fell from a ladder by which he was attempting to reach the New York wharf, consist of a bank book on the Savings Bank of New London, which shows deposits aggregating $500, wearing apparel, a watch and chain, two pairs of eye-glasses and keys.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, Stoeckel, today caused the licenses of four automobile operators in New London to be suspended. Charles Wegant, of 32 Ashcraft road, F. R. Stevens, driver of Lawrence hospital ambulance, John J. Anderson, 188 Lincoln avenue, and George E. Enos, of 75 Jefferson avenue, driver of a public service bus between New London and Keeney's corner, Waterford. Weynant and Enos were recently convicted in the police court of operating their machines while under the influence of liquor. Weynant's car collided with the motionless automobile of Constable Fred Dimmock of Waterford on Broad street and the bus operated by Enos crashed against an automobile parked alongside the curb on Bank street.

The county commissioners were in session here today, but had little business to claim their attention.

The petition which has been in circulation about the city the past ten days, asking that the people of New London may, by their votes decide whether a junior high school building shall be erected at a cost of a half a million dollars, is in the hands of the town clerk and he is checking up the names to determine whether the signers are entitled to vote and whether the enrollment of the names is according to the requirements of law. This petition will be laid before the city council at its meeting Monday evening.

Edwin C. Brewer, 40, a carpenter, and Henry McCann, 36, of South Manchester, were arrested last night by Sergeant Clifford Gorgas of the state police barracks at Groton, and Officers Fred Caron and E. W. Kenerson, charged with breach of the peace and assault. They were before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton in the Waterford town court this morning and each were penalized. Brewer was fined $25 and costs and was sentenced to 30 days in jail on each of two counts, the execution of the jail sentence being suspended. McCann was fined $25 and costs and was given a suspended jail sentence of 30 days on each count. Justice Morton ordered McCann to leave Waterford and gave him until 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon to complete arrangements for his departure, or the jail sentence would be put into operation.

Brewer and McCann came to New London to do some shopping Thursday afternoon, and imbibed a few glasses of liquor. When they reached Brewer's home, where McCann has been a lodger for some time, the two quarreled and it is believed this resulted from McCann's intimacy with Mrs. Brewer. Brewer and his wife have been estranged for some time, the estrangement resulting in the wife procuring a divorce and alimony, and in order to secure the money ordered paid her, Brewer was allowed to continue as a lodger at the place. During the fight, Brewer received a fractured nose and McCann sustained lacerations about the face and scalp. Brewer got his revolver and the weapon exploded, the bullet entering a door casing. Brewer declared that he obtained the weapon as a means of intimidating McCann and that it was discharged by accident. Complaint was made to the authorities, however, and the arrest of the pair followed.

Mrs. Sarah Amee Bump, 78, widow of Capt. William L. Bump, died this morning at her home in East Lyme, from infirmities attending age. Mrs. Bump was a member of the Flanders Baptist church. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Thomas P. Stebbins of Portland, Me., and Mrs. Edward F. Koch of East Lyme and by a son, Capt. Benjamin F. Bump of East Lyme.

Mrs. Jennie M. Patt, 80, widow of Edward A. Patt, died this morning at her home, 28 Thames street, Groton. A daughter, Mrs. Grace L. Harris, survives. Mrs. Patt was a member of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, fifteen years.

Mrs. John Celeda and infant son were patients discharged this afternoon at Home Memorial hospital.

Miss Mazie McGarry, an operator for the Southern New England Telephone company, is spending a fortnight with friends in Boston, Worcester and Fitchburg.

Mrs. Angelo Beaney has returned, after spending a few days in Washington.

Mrs. Orvin G. Andrews of Linden street has returned home, having visited her sister, Mrs. O. H. Cooper, of New York.

William Miller, a sailor stationed at the submarine base, was intoxicated about the streets this evening and finally went to the Goldberg second hand clothing store at 173 Bank street, where he created a disturbance. Patrolmen Thomas Cavanaugh and Patrick Sheehand were notified and placed Miller under arrest. He was locked up, but will be delivered to the naval authorities in the morning.

An automobile owned and driven by Lieut. C. G. Richardson, U. S. N., stationed at the submarine base, and a car driven by Franklin S. Wilcox, superintendent of Norwich State hospital, were in collision this evening at the submarine base. The damage was trivial. Richardson was attempting to operate his machine from the reservation to the highway and as the car reached the road, the automobile driven by Dr. Wilcox appeared. Before either operator could bring his car to a stop, they collided.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Headed for Candy Town

Now, the castle to which the noble prince was taking the lovely princess was the most wonderful one in all the Land of Dawn, for here the little stars and the moon slept all day till evening came, when they stole forth to

"Here I must leave you." he said.

"Call the priest from the cloister," commanded the prince, as the great coach drew up before the castle gate. "The princess and I shall be married before the moon and the stars leave the castle for their journey through the skies."

Presently the priest led them to the little chapel and married them just as the Evening Star rose in the dark blue heavens. Then, as the lovely moon smiled down, the soft night breezes sang:

"Stars of the night and silver moon
From the heavenly meadows blue,
Shine down and bless this princess
Who is wed to our prince so true.

The next morning when the little rabbit awoke, he could scarcely remember where he was. Indeed, it was a very strange country, for, as he rubbed his eyes, in through the open castle windows came the beautiful stars and the big silver moon. Then, far beyond, on a hilltop stood the sun all rosy red.

Slowly he rose into the heavens, opening with his sparkling fingers the sleepy eyes of the flowers. At once, the birds began to chirp and the wise old world awoke again.

As the bunny boy hopped out to the garden, all of a sudden, a little dwarf sprang from behind a rose tree. "Little Jack Rabbit, do you like chocolate mice?"

"Gracious me! Are they as nice as lollypops?" asked the bunny boy with a grin.

Lifting his high peaked hat, the little dwarf scratched his ear. "There are no chocolate mice in the Land of Dawn," he replied. "But I've heard tell of Candy Town where chocolate mice are sweet and brown."

"Show me the way," answered the bunny boy.

"Follow me," said the dwarf and he led the little rabbit to a narrow path that wound down the steep mountainside. In the valley below, under the rays of the morning sun gleamed red peppermint chimneys and rock candy church steeples. Through a wintergreen meadow ran a lollypop syrup river like a silver ribbon.

As they reached the foot of the mountain, the dwarf stopped at Molasses Candy Bridge. "Here I must leave you," he said. "Yonder lies the Candy Town. I hear that the candy man's barn is overrun with mice. You may have a fine feast tonight in that little red barn yonder. Good luck and goodbye!" And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Wisdom for Wives.

A wise old minister, before parting with a young couple he had joined in matrimony used to slip a card into his bride's hand on which was printed this advice: "When you marry him love him. After you marry him study him. If he is honest humor him. If he is generous appreciate him. When he is sad cheer him. When he is quarrelsome ignore him. If he is slothful spur him. If he is noble praise him. If he is confidential encourage him. If he is secretive trust him. If he is jealous cure him. If he favors society accompany him. When he deserves it kiss him. Let him think how well you understand him, but never let him know that you manage him."—Boston Transcript.

TAFTVILLE

Dr. George M. Thompson of North Second avenue was in Providence Thursday.

Troop 3 Boy Scouts met Friday evening in the recreation rooms of the Taftville Congregational church.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Coughlin have returned to their home in Cambridge, Mass. after passing a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Heselton and family of North B street.

Court Wequonnoc, No. 88, F. of A. held their regular semi-monthly meeting Thursday evening in their rooms on Dion street. Chief Ranger William Smith presiding. Eight applications for membership were read and accepted. It was voted to hold a class initiation in May, and the members are working hard to surpass all previous efforts of the court to put on a degree that will long be remembered in the history of the Foresters in the eastern part of this state. A communication from the Grand Secretary was read, granting the Court permission to have an open charter for sixty days. The following were appointed a committee to take charge of the membership drive; Frank Durr, John Dressler, Wilfred Peltier, Henry L'heveux, David Lambert, Joseph E. Benac, Henry Weisman and William Brown. After the business session, a social hour was enjoyed. Songs were rendered by various brothers, the most pleasing being the Undertaker's Ballad by John Derosier, "You may linger but will Nail you in the End."

NORWICH TOWN

Mrs. Florence Beebe and children have moved from Town street to Ohere street.

Miss Rose K. Durr of Town street is in New Haven this week to attend the State Convention of Supervisor Nurses.

Saturday the 23rd of February word came by cable of the death in England of Thomas C. Huntington. Mr. Huntington was the nephew of Mrs. Mary Huntington Childs, whose home was on Huntington Lane, Norwich Town, although the later years of her life were spent in Florence, Italy. Mr. Thomas Childs Huntington has for several years been the owner of this homestead, which is the oldest of the Huntington houses.

The Bradford House and homelot were sold to Simon Huntington in 1691. Joshua his son gave the place to Jabez Huntington, upon his death it came to his son Gen. Zakariah, who died in 1850; his oldest son Thomas Mumford Huntington, inherited the house. He died in 1859 and his daughter Mrs. Mary Huntington Childs, lived in this homestead until she went to Italy.

Thomas Childs Huntington's son was killed in action in the Civil War and after this Mr. Huntington's plan for restoring the homestead and coming here to live, was given up. The house in the Lane as it is now named, has been since the first Huntington reunion, open to visitors who have shown great interest in noting evidences of its being built two centuries ago. It has this last year been wholly restored to its original form, all its fireplaces opened, its paneling showing the beauty and attractiveness of the homes of early settlers. In a recent letter, Thomas Childs Huntington expressed his gratitude and great pleasure that the home where he spent a part of his boyhood and to which he was strongly attached, had now been put in such perfect condition. This historic house is now owned by a member of the Huntington family.

The pastor and choir of Grace Memorial Baptist church are to have charge of the Sunday afternoon service at the Sheltering Arms.

Entertained Pinochle Club.

Mrs. Carl Geib entertained the Thursday afternoon pinochle club at the home of Mrs. William S. Murray of Prospect street. Sandwiches and coffee were served.

BRINGING GRAND OPERA TO NORWICH AUDIENCE

For the first time in its history Norwich will entertain a first class grand opera performance exactly as given in other New England cities. There have been "opera concerts" and "stars from opera" and even "scenes from grand opera given by Boston Company some years ago, but the first complete organization will be seen and heard on Monday night, March 10, when the San Carlo Grand Opera Company of nearly a hundred artists, chorus and musicians, now appearing in New Haven, will come to the Palace Theatre with its entire scenic productions, costuming, electrical effects and all that goes to make this combination of fine arts so popular elsewhere.

"Madame Butterfly" from the book of John Luther Long, dramatised by David Belasco, scored by Giaccomo Puccini, has been selected for the gala event that places Norwich on the so-called Grand Opera Map—an imaginary map but nevertheless recognized abroad as embracing the hundred or more cultural centers of the United States.

A cast of international distinction including several American singers will be an interesting feature of the performance. Tamaki Miura, the Japanese prima donna, will portray the pathetic role of the little Nipponese maid. Colin O'More, whose hundreds of different phonograph records have endeared him to millions of homes will appear as the U. S. Naval Lieutenant. Elvira Leverone whose interpretation of the faithful companion is a feature of the Metropolitan Opera Company will sing the same role here.

DENIES PLAINTIFF'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE VERDICT

A motion to set aside the verdict rendered by a jury in superior court on Feb. 18 in favor of Concetta Poretta of Belden street in an action brought by Giuseppe Viola of 675 Bank street in which the plaintiff asked damages of $10,000, alleging Mrs. Poretta had maliciously caused his arrest on a charge of which he was innocent, was denied by Judge Christopher L. Avery in the superior court at New London Friday morning.

New Pilot of Shenandoah

Commander Zachary Lansdowne, U. S. N., who will command the Shenandoah when the giant airship makes its polar flight this summer. He succeeds Commander McCrary. Commander Lansdowne made an intensive study of rigid dirigibles in England and acted as observer on the R-34 during its trans-Atlantic flight.

CHRISTOPHER THURBER TELLS OF NEAR EAST RELIEF

Christopher Thurber, a Norwich Free Academy graduate in the class of 1898, has just returned from three years of work under the Near East Relief, related in Boston a thrilling story of his experiences and is to speak in many cities in this country before Near East relief day, March 30.

From May, 1921 to March, 1923, Mr. Thurber was director of relief work at Sivas, a town in the center of what was formerly Armenia. It is flanked by hills, and consists of pitch-roof houses with walls of mud-bricks plastered over, also a number of shacks and tents erected by the Near East Relief. In June, 1921, the Turks started to deport the Greeks from the coast towns of the Black Sea. Some went by sea to Greece, and others fled overland to Syria or the Caucasus, and 250,000 of these went through Sivas.

Perished in the Snow

The Near East Relief was forbidden to help the refugees because they were Greeks. Through July and August thew came in the blazing sun, blistered and falling by the wayside. They were charged high prices for the very water they drank from the streams. Of 65,000 who went through Sivas on their way to Harpoot, fewer than 30,000 arrived there. In October the snow caused many of them to perish.

In October, however, Ali Haidar Bey, the Turkish governor, who later again showed his kindness to Mr. Thurber, permitted the relief to care for orphans. In three weeks nine hospitals and shelters were built and orphans were taken in at the rate of 800 a month, until 7,000 were accommodated. All supplies from America had been cut off at Constantinople. The situation was so hopeless in August that Mr. Thurber had then asked permission to leave. What he did in this outpost with his small staff, after he had been reduced by typhus to skin and bones, is an epic tale of heroism. It also sheds light on his right to practical methods of the Near East in setting its people to work and making use of every available means. Its industrial activities are as varied as those of an entire community. It is a "government" in itself. Often it goes beyond achievements of the country it works in, making comparatively little use of other than local resources.

At the close of the Turco-Greek war, in Nov. and Dec. 1922 and Jan. 1923, the refugees came back through Sivas on their way to the coast, for Mesopotamia, which lay beyond Harpoot, offered them no safety. Mr. Thurber, unable to do anything or even "tell the world," tried in vain to leave with them. He and his staff were kept prisoners three months because they hadn't paid their Turkish income taxes of several hundreds of Turkish pounds (a unit now worth about $0.80). Receiving a salary of $50 a month, or less than his nurses, he was unable to convince the authorities of the fact. But at length last March, he arrived at Constantinople, where there were 30,000 Greeks who could not go to Greece for lack of room. The ships were nests of cholera, typhus and smallpox.

Experiences in Prison Camp

Selemie Barracks, an enormous square of buildings, with a tower at each corner, where Florence Nightingale nursed British and Turkish soldiers during the Crimean war, was used for 9,000 of the refugees. From forty to eighty persons died and from eight to ten babies were born there each day. It was a prison camp guarded successively by gendarmes, police and soldiers as one organization after another proved incompetent and corruptible. A difference of opinion with a gendarme caused Mr. Thurber's arrest, but Governor Ali Hairar Bey, who has been transferred to Constantinople from Sivas in April straightened the matter out and put Mr. Thurber, as director, in absolute control.

Between March and September last year 6,000 persons died at the barracks, including thirteen Greek doctors, two English volunteer doctor and four Armenian nurses. Five Americans caught typhus and one died.

Mr. Thurber's absolute control extended to divorces and marriages. The priests could take no action without consulting him. The "B. V. D." fire department had to be reorganized. It consisted om cen in clothes resembling B. V. D.'s, who carried tanks of water on their shoulders and buckets in their hands. They fought fires on a strictly cash basis, bargaining with householders next door to the scene of danger, and safeguarding the premises of the highest bidder while the flames raged.

Not only were marriages celebrated under Mr. Thurber's regime, but on several occasions the Greek priests blessed the soup," dipping their crosses in the soupcans and chanting. Each time a prayer was made in Turkish of thanks to the Near East Relief.

Mostly Old People and Children

The refugees, as shown in large group pictures taken in Sivas and Constantinople, were almost entirely old people and children. But the most remarkable thing is what the children do, given the opportunity. Freed from fear, their whole attitude changes. Mr. Thurber saw in Athens on Jan. 16, thousands of such orphans.

Nevertheless 30,000 died in Greece this winter and more will die. The Greek government allot them four drachmas a week. A drachma buys two rolls, equal to rather less than a loaf of bread. People ar still eating grass, trying to subsist on 700 calories of black bread a day, and dying of scurvy. The children and the American volunteer nurses, who contract favus and have to have their hair pulled out without anaesthetics are equally good sports.

Dustpans Made Out of Oil Cans

In Aleppo and other places in Syria, the Armenian and Syrian orphans cannot obtain farmland but are becoming so adept at various trades and industries that the Turks import cloth made by them. The relief is caring for a thousand Turkish orphans at Koura and Caesarea.

Dustpans made out of oil cans, shoes of various kinds, hand-woven rugs, wooden toys, breadboards and alms basins, even finely made silver napkin rings are examples of the very practical crafts the orphans are learning. The shoes are Levantine in style and intended for use over there, but the embroidered bureau covers and the towels and rugs have no air of quaintness or amateurishness.

New System of Fat Reduction

Here's a new way for all fat people to laugh together at that old bugaboo—Obesity. The saying that "there is nothing new under the sun" does not now apply to fat people any more. Here is something new for them—new sensation, a new pleasure, a new and graceful figure, easily found by anyone who is passing beyond the limits of slimness. Everyone has heard of the Marmola Prescription; that harmless combination of fat-defying elements perfected by one of the foremost physicians. Now, from the same high authority, there comes another idea—the idea of condensing these same, pure, harmless ingredients into a pleasant little tablet. Taken after eating and at bedtime, they help the stomach to dispose of all the fatty foods, converting them into compact, solid flesh, muscle and energy, without dieting or exercise. Marmola Prescription Tablets regulate the entire system—do for you what bodily exertion and self-denial cannot do, and the fat once routed is gone for good. You can prove all this at a trifling cost. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists or sent postpaid by the Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. A box—sufficient to bring results—is but one dollar.

POETRY

Give Them a Job

We've given them flowers, we've given them cheers,
Smiles meet laurels, and tenderest tears!
We've welcomed them back with glitter and glow,
Voices thrilling and hearts aglow!
We've called them 'heroes'—they grinned at that,
Blush a bit 'neath the old tin hat,
As day after day we unveiled the strain
Of pride from valor and pity for pain.
But now that's past. Are you proud of them still?
Then give them a place that a man can fill.
This hero stuff isn't going to last,
The war is over, the past is past.
And now they stand in our crowded ways
Asking for neither pity nor praise,
Heroes and dead-to-da neither, now,
With medaled breast and with laurel embrow.
But men. Just men. And they seek a place
Just this. No more. Neither career nor job:
So give them a job! For a job they've had
Was a man-sized job. And the youngest did
That knew the horror, the struggle, the stench,
The wounds and death of field and trench
Is a boy no more. He must henceforth plan
And look on life with the eyes of a man.
Tested and tried, and found to be true,
And he's not begging from me nor from you.
No, they're not asking for easy snaps
These stalwart-spirited soldier chaps.
But they, over there, have given the best
That their lives were worth, that their souls possessed.
And now that the cheers and the song dia out,
Don't leave them looking and loafing about.
You liked the way that they worked in France,
When they stopped the wave of the foe advance.
Well, take the fellows who turned the trick,
Who ended the war and ended it quick,
And give them: Leatherneck, doughboy and golf
Your last, best gift in the shape of a job!
—By Denis A. McCarthy in Current Affairs.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

A rookie who had been assigned to the cavalry much against his will approached the sergeant and remonstrated.

"Say," he objected, "I never rode a horse in my life."

"Oh, that's all right" countered the sergeant easily. "We've got a horse that's never been ridden in his life. We'll start you two off together."—American Legion Weekly.

"Did you enjoy the reception?"

"Not much," replied Miss Cayenne. "You are not supposed to enjoy a reception. The real enjoyment comes next day, when the papers note the fact that you had an invitation, thereby making many friends quite envious."—Washington Star.

"I don't know, grandma," replied the little fellow.

"But didn't the conductor call out something just now?"

A matter-of-fact father of an embryo poet handed some of the lad's efforts to a distinguished author of verse and asked for his opinion.

"Well, what's the answer?" queried the successful stockman.

"Alas!" sighed the real poet, "these things are so good I'm afraid you'll have to support Henry the rest of his life."

The teacher had been trying to inculcate the principles of the Golden Rule and turn-the-other-cheek.

"Now, Tommy," she asked, "what would you do supposing a boy struck you?"

"How big a boy are you supposing?" demanded Tommy.—American Legion Weekly.

The grading of teas for market is accomplished by tasting. It can not be done in any other way. To do it well is extremely difficult. Very few men have the delicacy of taste requisite for the purpose, and those are able to command large salaries. An expert tea-taster will often taste as many as 1,000 samples of tea in a day. He does not swallow the tea. To drink much tea would render his taste less acute and his judgment proportionately less accurate. Nevertheless, the professional tea-taster is liable to suffer from headache, giddiness and other disagreeable symptoms.

DAUGHERTY'S RESIGNATION HAS BEEN ASKED FOR, FRANK A. VANDERLIP SAYS

Financier Declared in an Address in New York That President Coolidge Has Requested the Resignation of the Attorney General, But Has Not Received It—Mr. Vanderlip Says Daugherty Should Not Be Allowed to Resign With a "Whitewashing" Letter.

New York, March 2—President Coolidge has asked for the resignation of Attorney General Daugherty, but has not received it, Frank A. Vanderlip, retired banker, declared today in an address at the Heights Free Synagogue.

Asked to elaborate on his assertion, or to tell from whom he had obtained the information, Mr. Vanderlip was uncommunicative.

"I will stand on that statement, that's all," he told newspaper men.

Mr. Vanderlip added in his speech, however, that he had sent word to the president, but did not know whether his communication had been received—that Daugherty should not be allowed to resign if the resignation was to be accompanied by a "whitewashing" letter.

Mr. Vanderlip said a new political party would be formed if the president did not "go through" with the present investigation in whatever it leads, and purify the federal government."

"There will be one plank in its platform," he said, "and there will be two words in the plank 'Be Honest.'"

Declaring that "the men in the newspaper service have gone soft in their capacity for hard investigating, this being especially true of the correspondents at Washington," Mr. Vanderlip suggested the formation of a "Citizens' Federal Research Bureau," to conduct investigations. The data, accumulated would be sent to the newspapers of the country, he said, and "most of them will print it because they will fear that somebody will."

SENATE EXPANDS SCOPE OF ITS INVESTIGATIONS

Washington, March 3.—The scope of congressional investigations will be broadened this week, with the adoption of resolutions authorizing inquiries into the shipping board and the aircraft industry.

Both resolutions will come before the house Tuesday before the McKenzie proposal to accept Henry Ford's proposal to accept Henry Ford's offer for Muscle Shoals is taken up.

Meantime, the special senate committee will meet to lay its plans for the investigation of the administration of Attorney General Daugherty and the oil inquiry will go forward Tuesday with the committee seeking additional light on the private wire which Edward B. McLean, publisher of The Washington Post, had installed between Washington and his Palm Beach cottage.

While the house is considering the Muscle Shoals question, the senate will have before it the Norbeck-Burtness bill for the relief of northwestern wheat farmers and southern cotton growers.

With the tax bill in the possession of the senate, the house ways and means committee found the way clear to give its attention to the soldiers' bonus. Public hearings will be opened tomorrow with a view to reporting by Saturday a bill which may differ materially from the measure President Harding vetoed.

The senate finance committee plans to take up the revenue bill by the middle of the week. Public hearings will be held but Chairman Smoot plans to limit the number of spokesmen to one for each trade and industry so that the committee can get to its task of re-writing the measure within two weeks.

After the Muscle Shoals measure is disposed of, the house will take up the first deficiency bill of this session, and the other annual supply measures will be pressed after that time. Only two, the interior and the treasury-post office, have been sent to the senate which has acted on only the interior department measure.

SPECIAL SENATE COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE DAUGHERTY

Washington, March 3.—Attorney General Daugherty's part in the investigation of his administration of the department of justice, ordered yesterday by the senate, is one of the first questions to be determined by the special senate committee.

A preliminary survey of the work was taken in informal conferences today between Senator Brookhart republican, Iowa, chairman, and other members of the committee, and a meeting planned late tomorrow is expected to determine the scope. Mr. Daugherty's counsel and the attorney-general himself will be given in presenting his side. It is expected that the hearings may be opened within two or three days.

As Mr. Daugherty is in Florida, it is not expected that he will be able to appear personally early in the inquiry and the committee has not been advised whether he will desire to present a preliminary statement. The committee, in determining procedure tomorrow expects to consider the requests made by Mr. Daugherty's two counsel, Paul Howland of Cleveland and Former Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, for the right to cross examine witnesses, present independent evidence and to have process issued for witnesses and documents.

Senator Brookhart today reiterated that Mr. Daugherty would be given a "fair" hearing, but indicated that the course of the inquiry would be controlled by the committee.

The conception of the investigation held by Mr. Brookhart and others is that the case is not to be a "trial," but rather an investigation to secure facts for the senate.

Senator Brookhart is agreeable to the request of Mr. Daugherty's counsel that they be given ample notice of the charges which the attorney general must meet, but these are to be developed piecemeal, apparently, and without an immediate and detailed array. The committee chairman, and Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, author of the resolution of investigation, already have considerable information upon which to start the hearings.

MEXICAN REBELS SEND TELEGRAM TO WHITE HOUSE

Washington, March 3—Pleading with President Coolidge for "justice in behalf of Mexico's birthright of national sovereignty," Juan Manuel Alvarez del Castillo, agent of Adolfo de La Huerta, today sent a telegram to the white house declaring the revolution "struggles against the tyrannical despotism of an exaggerated bolshevism."

Senor del Castillo, in appealing to the "humanitarian feelings" of the chief executive, declared that once he knows the truth, "your administration will cease definitely helping, favoring and assisting the government of Obregon."

Quoting President Coolidge's expression on the Mexican situation in his New York address, the revolutionary agent said the revolution had shown "a decided feeling of respect toward foreign properties," that it is a popular one and that it has "spread throughout the country."

DISSOLUTION OF REICHSTAG IS MORE THAN PROBABLE

Berlin, March 2.—The newspapers are now practically unanimous in the opinion that dissolution of the reichstag is inevitable shortly after it reconvined next Wednesday. Vorwaerts—the socialist organ—says if the middle parties do not meet the demands of the socialists are determined to dissolve the reichstag immediately and the opinion seems to be gaining ground among all parties that it probably would be better to have elections in April rather than wait for regular elections in June.

The treaty made by the Ruhr industrialists with the French, by which the industrialists pay taxes with the French, will expire April 15 and as the industrialists insist that it will not be possible to renew this agreement which they claim they made primarily to relieve unemployment, it is generally believed by the political leaders that it would be better to have a newly elected reichstag to meet this issue.

MAN BURNED TO DEATH IN TENEMENT IN HARLEM

New York, March 2—One man was burned to death and a fireman was seriously injured in a fire which destroyed a five story tenement in Harlem early today.

Stephen Kelly, who lived on the top floor of the building, was aroused by his wife who was awakened by smoke. "Go ahead and save yourself," he told her. "I'll follow." Mrs. Kelly managed to reach a fire escape and to climb safely to the street but her husband was overcome by smoke before he could reach a window. His body was found later.

The fireman is Patrick Walsh. He fell four stories, a fracture of the skull and concussion of the brain and other injuries.

MAY DELAY WORK OF THE REPARATION COMMITTEE

Paris, March 2.—The Belgian ministerial crisis and the consequent absence from Paris of Baron Houtard and Emil Franqui, Belgian members of the first committee of experts which is investigating Germany's economic and financial situation, may delay the work of the Dawes' committee, as it is not expected that they will have returned from Brussels in time to attend the plenary session of the committee, which is to be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

There now is some doubt that the report of the committee will be ready to be presented to the reparation commission at the end of the week, as M. Franqui has been taking a prominent part in the deliberations. Andrew MacFadyan, secretary of the committee, sent a dispatch to Brussels this evening requesting M. Franqui to do his best to be present tomorrow. M. Franqui twice has been offered the premiership of Belgium since the armistice and twice has refused it.

ROBBERS IN BROOKLYN IN FEMININE APPAREL

New York, March 2.—Although the Brooklyn police have not received the note which always comes from the bob-haired girl bandit after she had been reported caught, they were virtually certain tonight that neither of the two men arrested last night in feminine apparel was the elusive Miss who has been robbing chain stores with regularity.

Charles Wilson and Frederick Martino, the men taken, were held without bail for further examination by Magistrate Liota today. Nine pawn tickets for small articles of jewelry was found in their rooms.

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS STANDARD TIME LAW

New Haven, March 2.—State supreme court, in a decision handed down yesterday afternoon, upholds the state law prohibiting the display of any but standard time in this state, in the case of the state vs. Barrett, a Hartford jeweler, arrested for violation of the law, and whose case was carried to the supreme court for a decision.

CHIEF OF BUFFALO FIRE DEPARTMENT TO RESIGN

Buffalo N. Y. Mar. 2.—Edward P. Murphy, chief of the Buffalo fire department, will resign on April 1. It was not expected that Murphy would resign before the national convention of the Fire chiefs here this summer, when it was predicted he would be elected president.

Murphy has many gallant records to his credit.

Industrial and Trade Activity Increasing

Federal Reserve Board Declares Future May Be Viewed With Confidence.

Washington, March 2—The increased industrial and trade activity with which the current year started continues to be well maintained as characteristic of the country's business condition, the federal reserve board said today in its February survey of business. Financial and commercial interests, the Review said, generally view the future with confidence and are shaping their policies accordingly.

With the increased business activity there was a larger volume of bank credit, the statement said. The volume of commercial loans which decreased continuously after October, began early in January to increase, and the trend was marked in the first half of February when these loans were about $372,000,000, or approximately five per cent. above the level of 1923. The growth in loans, however, was largely offset by a decrease in investment holdings, with the consequence that total loans and investments of banks in the larger centers was only about $125,000,000 larger than a year ago.

During the last half of 1923, production inclined and even after the sharp recovery of January and early February, the rate still was about five per cent. below the high point of last May, but board officials said there was no reason to believe it would continue lower.

The distribution of commodities at wholesale and the shipments of merchandise increased in January as did the output of manufacturers. This increase was sufficient to place the general level for the two months of 1924 above the average of 1923 and taken with the changes in production from late 1923, and the movements of prices reflected, the extent and character of the recent business readjustments.

The board's private index of conditions shows that general commodity production in January was almost on a level with that of twelve months before. The output of basic materials increased about eight per cent. over December, when production was lowest after a steady decline of seven months duration.

Steel industries showed particularly large increases in output which at the end of January was as large as at any time in 1923. Unfilled orders in December after nine months of downward tendencies, turned upward. The demand for steel to meet requirements continued large and there was distinct addition to the call for steel from the automobile and building industries.

An unusually large production for this season of other building materials was taken to indicate an undiminished volume of building, and in view of the belief that there exists a shortage in housing accommodations, officials thought construction operations were due to increase still further.

The board measured the increase in wholesale trade at about 11 per cent over December which places it at a level somewhat larger than a year ago. Retail trade was shown by department stores and mail order houses to have been larger also than at the beginning of 1923.

Stocks of certain commodities were found by the board to have been larger in January than in December, or in January a year ago. The increases were particularly large in coal, production of which was interrupted by the strike prior to January 1923, and in petroleum and gasoline. The general list of other stocks on hand was about the same as a year ago.

FATALITY IN TRAIN WRECK JUST OUTSIDE BALTIMORE

Baltimore, Md., March 2.—One man was killed and four persons were injured when a Pennsylvania railroad train bound here from Buffalo, was derailed at Brightside, just outside this city tonight.

The dead man's name is unknown. The injured were brought to a local hospital. A relief train was dispatched to the scene to bring the passengers to the city.

18 Were Killed by Explosion of TNT

Eight Persons Are Missing and Six Unaccounted For in Town of Nixon, N. J.

New Brunswick, N. J., March 2—The number of known dead as a result of yesterday's disastrous TNT explosion and celluloid fire at the little town of Nixon today was placed at eighteen. Only one addition body that the torso of a woman, was found today. Rescuers who worked in the smoking ruins throughout the day say eight persons are missing, six are unaccounted for and sixty are being treated for injuries sustained in the disaster.

The body found today was that of Mrs. Arthur Dumas, who, with her three little children and a visiting woman friend, was killed in her home just outside the Nixon plant boundaries. That which remains of her body, was dug from the ruins of her cellar. A few splintered fragments remaining of her home, lay 20 feet away where the bodies of the Dumas children and Miss Janice Rockefeller, her friend, were found last night.

Urged on by employes who declared the bodies of six of their fellows still lay buried in the smouldering ruins, firemen with tractors today resumed tearing at the masses of twisted steel and shattered tile that remain of the Nixon Nitration Works. Forty five buildings where they manufactured celluloid novelties. But company officials urged them to discontinue the work saying all the dead had been found.

The firemen then turned to digging among the wrecked tanks, railroad cars and heaps of TNT and ammonia in boxes and barrels which fringe the gigantic crater marking the site of the explosion. Fires continued to burst forth in scattered heaps of the debris, but authorities asserted all were under control. The rows of magazines filled with tons of highly inflammable celluloid in sheets—most of them, with doors blown off or roofs crushed in—were believed out of danger.

What caused the explosion remained a mystery and prompted investigations which will begin tomorrow. Officers of the Raritan arsenal, adjoining the destroyed properties, and where a half dozen of the scores of magazines stuffed with high explosive shells were blown in, will conduct an inquiry for the government. The TNT which exploded had been salvaged at the arsenal and removed to the Nixon plan itto be prepared for nitrates to be used as farm fertilizer.

Another investigation will be begun tomorrow by Assistant County Prosecutor Tooker, Chief of County Detectives Dowd, and Coroner Hubbard.

The most generally accepted theory was that the explosive properties had not been eliminated from the TNT before it was transferred from the arsenal to the 300 foot building of the Ammonite Company, where the blast occurred.

Thousands of persons tried today to get within the high wire fence surrounding the Nixon properties. They came by train and automobiled from miles distant.

Nixon's blasted acres were a shambles of ruined walls and twisted iron as firemen searched for additional bodies. The force of the explosion, which obliterated completely the concrete and brick plant of the Ammonite company, had been sufficient to raze a half dozen of the two score structures of the Nixon Nitration Works, manufacturers of celluloid products, on whose property the Ammonite plant stood. The other buildings, used by the Nixon company as store houses, drying rooms and process plants, had been blown apart, the roofs were ripped off, but the side walls still stood.

The damage by fire was not extensive, as the flames were checked before they reached 'celluloid racks.

Where the Ammonite building was, a great hole yawned. Boilers and tanks, as well as railroad tank cars, on a nearby siding, lay in fantastic shapes and positions, ripped and torn as though they had been made of cardboard. Pieces of concrete and fragments of tile gave the only other evidence that a study building had once occupied the spot.

SENATOR REED ARRAIGNED BY M'ADOO

St. Louis, Mo., March 2.—William G. McAdoo of Los Angeles, in his campaign for the democratic presidential nomination tonight, replied to attacks by Senator James A. Reed, denouncing his Missouri opponent in the presidential race as a man who resorts to the most glaring disregard for the truth in his personal attack on me because I would not stay out of Missouri."

The statement by Mr. McAdoo in the form of a letter to C. C. Oliver, St. Louis, chairman of the McAdoo campaign in Missouri says in part:

"Senator Reed of Missouri stated recently as the reason for the vicious attacks which he is making upon me personally that McAdoo publicly announced he did not intend to enter the lists against any home candidate, but for reasons which doubtless are satisfactory to himself, he has singled me out as an exception to his general rule. He has come into the state of Missouri and is receiving some support. These conditions force me to make personal references which would have entirely omitted had I been extended by McAdoo the same courtesy he has extended to others."

"Here is a real patriot who resorts to the most glaring disregard for the truth in his personal attacks upon me because I would not stay out of Missouri.

"On January 24 last, Mr. Sam Fordyce, representing Senator Reed, called on one of my Washington friends and said if I entered Missouri the senator would contend against me, especially in Georgia and California.

"My refusal to submit to such political blackmail was promptly followed by Reed's move on the floor of the senate to compel the committee on public lands, investigating the oil scandal, to introduce into the record wholly immaterial and irrelevant testimony having nothing to do whatever with the scandal for the sole purpose of dragging my name without justification into the oil inquiry.

"Who is this man who without regard to truth and justice attacks me for the furtherance of his ambition?

"He is the man who, because of his disloyalty to the democratic party was in 1920 thrown out of the democratic convention of his own state of Missouri.

"He is the man who was repudiated and denied a seat in the 1920 democratic national convention at San Francisco.

"He is the man who was denounced by the legislature of South Carolina as a traitor to the democratic party.

"He is the man who for weeks hampered and obstructed a democratic president and the democratic party in the senate in their efforts to achieve for the country a great federal reserve act which was the only thing that saved the nation from bankrupcy during the World war.

"He is the man who had to be forced by a democratic caucus to act with his fellow democrats in framing that act.

"He is the man who fought woman suffrage to the last ditch.

"He is the man of whom Woodrow Wilson wrote in 1923 To those who have closely observed Mr. Reed's career in Washington he has shown himself incapable of sustained allegiance to any person or any cause. He has repeatedly forfeited to any claim to my confidence that he may ever have been supposed to have and I shall never willingly consent to any further association with him.'

"He is the man who criticises falsely and mercilessly the law practice of a private citizen and yet as a senator of the United States wielding great political influence through his power over appointments and his opportunities to shape legislation is actively engaged in the practice of law. How far, it may well be asked, are his professional employments induced by reason of his political influence? On February 8, 1924, the public press carried the significant information that throughout a great part of his senatorial career, Senator Reed has been employed as special counsel of the Universal Oil Products company, the chief proprietor

BRITISH PREMIER CANDID IN LETTER TO FRENCH GOV'T

Both Premiers Appear to Be Actuated by a Desire to Hasten Settlement of the European Problem—Poincare Assures MacDonald That France Has No Design to Annex a Particle of German Territory.

London, March 2.—(By the A. P.)—The new labor prime minister in his desire to create a more favorable atmosphere for the initiation of negotiations which he hopes may result from labor's two expert committees now sitting in Paris, and also probably with the coming French elections in mind, has had a further exchange of letters with the French premier, M. Poincare, the text of which was issued from the foreign offices at Paris and London tonight.

This correspondence is noteworthy on Premier MacDonald's side for his extreme frankness in stating the British viewpoint and his opinions on the policy France had pursued since the war. Never before, not even in the famous Curzon dispatch, which expressed the British view that the occupation of the Ruhr was illegal, has British suspicion of French action and motives been so candidly stated. And the fact that M. Poincare in his rejoinder takes no umbrage at this frankness—so new in European diplomacy—is in itself considered a most favorable sign, although M. Poincare's letter is little more than a repetition, of his many speeches on the same subject.

Neither of the premiers will make any attempt to formulate concrete proposals until the expert committees have reported. Mr. MacDonald again shows that his main hope is to attain such a state of affairs in Europe as should induce the United States to cooperate in the reconstruction of Europe.

M. Poincare repudiates any design to annex a particle of German territory, and, concerning British suspicions of French motives in giving military assistance to the "Little Entente" countries, declares that the French aims are absolutely peaceful, and he only desires that England should cooperate with the same group of countries for the purpose of maintaining peace in Europe. Mr. Poincare seems to think that it will be a long time before the committees are able to present their reports. In the meantime, he re-echoes most of the British prime minister's aspirations for cooperation by the two countries in the interests of a just settlement.

Premier MacDonald's letter to M. Poincare, which is dated February 21, says that, encouraged by the friendly nature of M. Poincare's reply to his formal letter, he desires to prepare the way for a more complete mutual understanding by an unreserved recital of the difficulties with which I am faced and the manner in which I myself envisage the situation."

Declaring that he wishes not only to interpret the views of his countrymen but sympathetically to realize French opinions and needs, Mr. MacDonald proceeds:

"It is widely felt in England that, contrary to the provisions of the Versailles treaty, France is endeavoring to create a situation which gains for it what it failed to get during the allied peace negotiations. The view of this section of my countrymen is that that policy can only perpetuate uncertainty and dangers of a condition not of peace but of war, and that in the end it will destroy whatever temporary security France may gain.

"There were many people in France who imagined that with the complete defeat of Germany they would be automatically freed forever from a menace which I fully realize was real; some thought that in order to attain absolute security the French frontiers should be extended to the Rhine. They were disappointed in this expectation. They were offered, instead, a joint guarantee by Great Britain and the United States. With the abstention of America this offer lapsed, and the French people have since, with some justification, been seeking other tangiblbe safeguards to replace it.

"With regard to reparations also the French public have suffered disappointment. Neither the virtually unlimited expectations aroused at the moment of victory nor the more specific assessment made in 1921, has been of any relation to the economic situation as it stands today.

"The position of this country is entirely different. Our security by land and sea remains unmenaced. But our economic existence has been gravely endangered owing not to the inability reparations, but to the acute and per of Germany to pay a certain sum in sistent dislocation of the markets of Europe, occasioned mainly by the uncertainty of the relations between France and Germany, the continued economic chaos in Germany, shown so clearly by violent fluctuations in the value of its currency, and the ultimate uncertainty in the relations between France and ourselves.

"Thus it has come about that the people in this country regard with anxiety what appears to them to be the determination of France to ruin Germany and dominate the continent; * * * that they feel apprehension of the large military and aerial establishments maintained not only in eastern but also in western France; that they are disturbed by the interest shown by your government in the military organizations of the new states in central Europe, and, finally, that they question why all these activities should be financed by the French government in disregard of the fact that the British taxpayer has to find upwards of 30,000,000 pounds sterling yearly as interest upon loans raised in America and that our taxpayers also have to find large sums to pay the interest on the debt of France to us, to meet which France herself has as yet neither made nor commenced, so far as they can see, any sacrifice equivalent to their own.

"Such popular sentiment, erroneous though they may be, are factors which both you and I are bound to take into consideration, in my judgment. It is these state of opinion which have vitiated our relations in the past and have also induced our two governments to indulge in altercations regarding the symptoms of the malady without endeavoring with clarity and good sense to investigate the causes. * * * I am heartily anxious that you and I together should try to give both these sections of French and British opinion, some sense of confidence that the basis of their fears and resentments is being removed."

CLAIMS THAT POSTAL WORKERS ARE UNDERPAID

Washington, March 2.—The wide disparity between the salaries paid in the postal service and wages paid in private industries is one of the principal causes of delay and irregularity in the handling of the mails, said a report issued today by the postal service committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

A sliding salary scale for postal employes in localities where living costs are exceptionally high; a proper building program for the relief of crowded post offices, separation of the parcel post system from other mail service classes, and creation of a permanent planning division in the post office department, were among the recommendations, the special committee made.

The twenty-two democratic members of the New York delegation in congress today went on record as favoring legislation for increases in salaries of postal employes, now pending. Their announcement followed on the heels of a statement from the White House that President Coolidge while sympathizing with the desire for bigger postal pay envelopes, opposed such an increase at the present time on the ground of economy.

ASSOCIATED PRESS MOVES TO NEW HEADQUARTERS

New York, March 2.—The hum of news activity in the general offices of The Associated Press, 51 Chambers street, was hushed at 4 o'clock this morning. There was a switching of wires at a well-worn switchboard and in the twinkling of an eye, there was a crackling of resounding telegraph instruments in the association's new home, '8' Madison avenue.

The transfer involved the intricate mechanical readjustment of the association's news heart and the arteries of 90,000 miles of telegraph wires enough to encircle the earth nearly four times. So carefully had plans been laid that when wires and cables were switched, there was not the slightest interruption in the vast system whereby hundreds of thousands of words of news are daily distributed on 120 circuits among more than 1,200 newspaper members of the world's largest news gathering agency.

PROHIBITION AGENTS MADE 64,528 ARRESTS DURING 1923

Washington, March 2.—Prohibition enforcement officers made 64,528 arrests in 1923 compared with 60,013, in 1922, according to figures issued tonight by the prohibition unit. Property seized and destroyed also took a jump, the total in 1923 being valued at $3,243,795 as against $2,969,[illegible] the year before.

Property worth $5,207,468 was seized but not destroyed.

PROTEST MADE BY THE FAIR TARIFF LEAGUE

Washington, March 2.—The fair tariff league announced today that it had filed a protest with the tariff commission against participation by Commissioner H. H. Glassie in disposition of the sugar tariff case now under consideration. The complaint, filed through H. E. Miles, chairman of the league, reviewed points made by Vice-Chairman Culbertson and Commissioners Costigan and Lewis who objected to Mr. Glassie's participation in the grounds of a "family" interest in the commodity.

Mr. Miles also criticized Chairman Marvin and Commissioner Burgess who, he said, came to the commission after having been in the service of interests concerned in tariff rates. Mr. Marvin, he asserted, was an employe of the woolen industry and Mr. Burgess was connected with the pottery interests. Neither should act, he said, when those commodities are under consideration.

POWER YACHT ABANDONED WHILE BEING PURSUED

New York, March 2.—After a long chase early today during which the craft was the target of machine gun fire from police boats, the power yacht Monon was abandoned by her crew at an East River pier and was captured by marine police, who said they found a large cargo of liquor aboard. The yacht valued at approximately $100,000 was said to carry license papers issued to Edward L. Smallwood, of Great Neck, N. Y.

FIVE PERSONS INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

New Haven, March 2.—Five persons were injured, two of them seriously today, when an automobile in which they were ridding, skidded and ran into a telegraph pole. Those injured are John Kane, of 84 Second street and Tony Florio, of 80 Fair street, who are at Grace hospital. Kane has a fractured skull and numerous cuts on the body. Florio, who was the driver, has a possible fracture of the skull and cuts on the body. The others had minor injuries. The automobile was almost torn apart.

Earthquake in Lisbon.

Lisbon, Portugal, March 2.—An earthquake was felt here this morning. No damage has been reported.

Predicts Fall of British Ministry.

Glasgow, Scotland, March 2.—Neal McNeil, labor member of parliament, speaking at a labor demonstration today counselled the people to expect a general election late in the summer. Mr. McNeil expressed doubt that the present government would last through the autumn.

WILLIMANTIC

As the closing chapter of a business career extending over half a century, M. E. Lincoln has disposed of the holdings of the Lincoln & Boss Lumber and Coal company on North and Meadow streets. The purchase was consummated Saturday and is one of the largest and most important real estate and business sales made in this city in a long time. The Lincoln & Boss company is the oldest established lumber business in the city and the real estate occupied by the business covers 90 by 227 feet. The land and buildings have been transferred through the sale from the ownership of M. E. Lincoln to Patrick Gribbon and Patrick J. Twomey.

Both Mr. Twomey and Mr. Gribbon are well known not only in Willimantic but throughout the state. Mr. Twomey will have completed thirty-eight years in business in April. On April 5, 1886, he entered the employ of the late George K. Nason. Upon the death of Mr. Nason in June 1906 the company was reorganized, the members being Lewellyn J. Storrs of Mansfield, Patrick J. Twomey and Fred J. Tilden. A short time later Mr. Tilden ended his relations with the company and a few years ago Mr. Storrs withdrew from the concern.

Mr. Gribbon became a partner in the company with Mr. Twomey in 1919. That same year the company took over the yard of The Lincoln & Boss company bordering the tracks of the Central Vermont railway. This yard has a frontage on the railroad of 450 feet and a large depth, over 90,000 square feet of space.

M. E. Lincoln who has owned 98 per cent of the stock of The Lincoln & Boss company, has the distinction of having been longest in business of any person in Willimantic and would have completed fifty-five years in the harness on April 1. He will now enjoy a rest and plans to do but little except a little housework, to raise some "garden sass," be good to his neighbors, attending to his duties as secretary-treasurer of the Willimantic Industrial company and the Willimantic Development company, continue president of the welfare bureau, managing or three estates, look after his own estate, close the business of The Lincoln & Boss company, build a house or two—and perhaps more, and take an interest in civic movements. Outside of these little duties he will be a man of leisure.

Mr. Lincoln celebrated his 75th birthday in February. In 1869 he entered the mercantile business in this city and has remained in business of some sort ever since, spending fifty years in selling or manufacturing lumber.

Mr. Lincoln was born in the village of North Windham, February 23, 1849, the son of Loren and Elizabeth Parker Lincoln. He attended the district school. When he was twelve the family moved to Chaplin, where the elder Lincoln operated a grist and saw mill and his son got his first experience in the lumber business. The family later came to this city, where Mr. Lincoln set himself up in business. Mr. Lincoln left his business in a managerial capacity to become postmaster of the Willimantic office to serve a four-year term, during the second administration of President Grover Cleveland.

George F. Spencer, 49, of 74 Windham street, a carpenter, was found dead in the garage located in the rear of a dwelling owned by Frank L. Ford, at 17 Walnut street, early Saturday afternoon. Charles Weeks, a tenant of the Ford dwelling made the discovery shortly before 1 o'clock. Medical Examiner Dr. Louis I. Mason pronounced death due to angina pectoris.

Mr. Spencer had not been in good health for some time. He had suffered from neuralgia of the heart for over a year. He had been in the employ of Oliver L. Willard, contractor, until seven weeks ago when he was laid off and it is understood that he intended to go to Manchester to resume his trade.

Mr. Weeks was walking past the open door of the garage, carrying a pan of ashes, when he noticed the body on the floor. He hastened to the home of Mrs. Spencer and she was at her husband's side in a few minutes.

When Mr. Spencer left his house he said that he was going to do some work on his automobile and it is thought that he was stricken while engaged at this task. According to Mrs. Spencer, he appeared worried Saturday morning, but made no complaint.

Mr. Spencer was born in Moodus, July 28, 1875, a son of James F. and Lisa Mary Potter Spencer. He was a member of the carpenters' local here. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Rose Spencer; two sons, Raymond, aged 11, and Frank, aged 6; his father, James F. Spencer of Sarasota, Florida; and a sister, Mrs. Ernest Bright, also of Sarasota. He came to this city a year ago from Leonard Bridge.

There are grounds for belief that the special town meeting scheduled for this (Monday) night will be as lively as a three-ring circus.

An eleven mill tax rate on the recently completed grand list of property for 1923 seems to be the general estimate. It is thought that eleven mills, plus the town's other items of income, would raise enough money to meet the budget for the year which is $274,600. The discussions on this question promise to wax warm, as a good number believe that the time is ripe for the town to do something toward paying off its debt and they will advocate continuing the thirteen mill tax.

The two other clauses in the warning which call for the raising of the salaries of certain town officials and the slashing of others are likely to bring out plenty of verbal fireworks.

There is a general approval of the project of raising the salary of the first selectman who now received $75 a month, or $900 a year. Some, however, point out that he gets an additional $300 from the town for services as secretary of the Willimantic cemetery committee. All in all, the compensation of the chief executive of a town the size of Windham, is small.

Others who would welcome a raise are the assessors, the second and third selectmen, who receive $150 a year and the selectmen's clerk. One argument which friends of the assessors will present is that the combined salaries of the three members of the board figure less for three months of work than that of the town tax collector for sixty days of work.

There are dark rumors that the salary of the town tax collector and possibly that of the personal tax enumerators will get the ax. Supporters of the collector and enumerators argue that they can see no reason why one set of town officials seek increases and want to take it out of a cut in the salaries or compensation of others.

The collecting of town real estate and personal taxes has been a costly proposition, the grand total for 1923 being $3,945.63.

The voters will also be asked to take some action on the matter of constructing a concrete sidewalk in front of the almshouse property on West Main street. The sidewalk would go under the heading of permanent improvements and would be about a thousand feet long and six feet wide, making a total of 6,000 square feet of walk. As the city stands for one-third of the cost for sidewalk construction the expense to the town would be in the neighborhood of $1,000. If the contract called for curbing the cost would be increased $1,500, making a total of $2,500.

Members of Willimantic Chamber of Commerce are looking forward to Tuesday evening when Rev. George J. Donahue of St. Augustine's church, Bridgeport, formerly of Stafford Springs, will be the speaker. Rev. Father Donahue is one of the finest orators in the state and his services are very much in demand. His subject, The Friendly Town, has an appealing ring to it and promises to be an interesting message. Supper will be served by the Women's Relief Corps at 6.30 o'clock and music will be furnished by a four-piece orchestra.

Funeral services for Mrs. Ellen C. French were held at her home in Andover Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Williams of Trinity college, Hartford, officiated. Burial was in the Center cemetery, North Coventry. Avery & VanZandt were in charge of the arrangements.

Three important cases scheduled for trial at the session of the police court Saturday morning were continued again by Judge Frank H. Fuss. The case of Philip Pagano, charged with violation of the liquor law, which dates back to Saturday, Feb. 9, was continued to next Tuesday morning, when it will be definitely disposed of, as will also the case of County Detective William E. Jackson, charged with assault on Pagano. Both cases date back to a raid conducted on Pagano's store, Feb. 9, when Pagano is alleged to have accused Federal Agent Avery of "planting the evidence" and when Pagano alleges that he was assaulted by Jackson.

Since that date both cases have been continued four times and there appears to be considerable dodging around between the local court and the federal authorities as to which is to try Pagano first on the liquor violation charge.

Prosecuting Attorney Harvey said that the Pagano case could not be tried Saturday as his attorney was not present. After his request for a continuance had been granted, he informed the court that all was in readiness for the hearing of the Jackson assault case, but Attorney Gaucher thought that his client should be granted a continuance, and it was granted.

The case of Julius N. Guay, Jr., charged with concealing goods under a conditional bill of sale was taken up but was put over for three weeks by Judge Foss, who added that it must be disposed of at that time, as it had already been continued a number of times.

The spectators' gallery was crowded Saturday morning, the outcome of the Pagano and Jackson cases being of wide interest. Among those present especially interested in the disposal of the liquor case were Rev. Arthur W. Clifford, pastor of the Windham Center Congregational church and president of the Willimantic Ministers' Union and Rev. David R. Overton, pastor of the local A. M. E. Zion church.

Mansfield's tax rate for 1924 was fixed at 27 1-2 mills, at the adjourned town meeting held in the town hall at Spring Hill, Saturday afternoon. It was claimed that there was some opposition to the rate which was fixed but if such existed it was not made known.

Saturday morning the fire whistle signal on Cottrell's shop was blown from box 46, West Broad street, near the bridge, for a fire on the premises of Louis and Minnie Rosenberg, who keep a dry good store, 24 Mechanic street. The fire started in a Ford automobile delivery truck 23,906 Conn. in the same building at the rear of the store and apparently among a quantity of dress goods, which filled the body of the automobile. Mr. Rosenberg first smelled smoke in the store and on opening the door leading from the store to the garage room at the rear discovered the fire. Carpenters from the Isaac Sherman yard forced open the rear doors and the blazing truck was pushed out into the yard at the rear before the building could catch fire. The truck of the P. S. Barber Hose company responded using at first a small hose from their tank. The fire was confined to the rear of the automobile and the gasoline tank did not become ignited. Day Patrolman Francis McMahon pulled from the machine the burning dress good and directed the laying of a line of hose from the hydrant on the street from which the water was turned into the automobile and the flames were drowned out. Holes were burned through the top and bottom of the automobile, the front partition back of the driver's seat and steering wheel also being burned but the engine did not receive much damage. ## ANNOUNCEMENTS

Starting at 2 o'clock today, The Imperial Revue will begin a week's engagement at the popular Palace theatre, changing their entire programme on Thursday. This company of twenty clever entertainers come to Norwich highly recommended as capable performers. The show is a musical revue and contains all the latest song hits of the day, clever comedy of the high grade type is also introduced, the kind we all enjoy to hear and see. The production is beautifully staged and some handsome electrical effects are worked. There is no doubt that the Imperial Revue will score a decided hit.

The feature picture is a story sizzling with drama, alive with romance, sparkling with comedy, The Marriage Market is the photoplay. Headed by Jack Mulhall, that sterling actor, and Pauline Garon, a comparative newcomer to the screen who won her laurels in a recent deMille production, the all-star cast embraces such able actors and actresses as Alice Lake, Shanno Day, Jean Debriac, Mayme Kelso, Vera Lewis, Willard Louis, Kate Lester and Marc Robbins.

The Marriage Market, written by Evelyn Campbell, is a superb treatise on modern marriages. The author contends that marriage is a market in which the prettiest face and form and the most charming personality gets the highest price. The story centers around an attractive young girl who is sent to a fashionable "finishing school" to be prepared for marriage—but because of her impulsive nature is hurled into a series of entanglements and barely escapes in time to prevent burning her fingers.

Pauline Garon as the irresponsible young daughter, is adorable. Miss Garon possesses a wardrobe which will delight the feminine portion of the audience, and is bound to bring gasps of admiration from the men. Alice Lake runs a close second when it comes to clothes and Shannon Day is not left far behind, either. It is the contention of these three charming actresses that clothes make the screen actress almost as much as real emoting, and they have clothed themselves for The Marriage Market in their most expensive and exclusive raiment possible.

"The biggest artistic event of the season." This is undoubtedly the correct definition of the performance of Puccini's magnificent opera, Madame Butterfly, to be presented at the Palace Monday evening, March 10, by the famous traveling grand opera company, the San Carlo. Tamaki Miura, world-famous Japanese prima donna soprano, will sing the leading role in the production, and in her support she will have a brilliant cast, a specially augmented orchestra, and a large chorus. There will be colorful and authentic scenery and properties, and special costumes imported from Japan, where they were carefully selected by Mme. Miura herself.

Credit goes to the Palace management for having brought a real winner to Norwich. It cost a strenuous effort ,so the extraordinary venture deserves to be backed to the limit, for grand operation is one of the foremost of the fine arts, and when presented in the San Carlo way, confers a distinct cultural degree on a community.

Mme. Miura is without the slightest doubt the world's premier delineator of the subtle role of Madame Butterfly. In a way she cannot help being so wonderful in the part. After all, it is a Japanese maiden that is being portrayed, and no one but a Japanese can give, the real interpretation of Nipponese passions and emotions, and the great Miura certainly leaves nothing undone in her amazing stage impersonation. She grips one at times with the feeling that here, before you in the flesh, is the very soul of Japan, that strange land where honor has a significance never approached on this side of the globe. She emphasizes more than ever Kipling's famous adage: "East is East, and West is West, and n'er the twain shall meet."

The part of the all-sympathizing companion and servant of Butterfly, Suzuki, will be sung here by Elvira Leveroni, formerly of the Boston opera. Collin O'More, whose golden romantic tenor voice is heard around the world on phonograph records, will be Lieutenant Pinkerton, while Graham Marr, distinguished baritone, formerly of the Boston and Chicago operas, will be Consul Sharpless. Others in the cast include Fausto Bozza, Max Kaplick and cunning little Baby Frances Hess. Aldo Franchetti will conduct.

BREED THEATRE

Rupert Hughes has written and directed an unusual film play in Reno which was produced at the Goldwyn studios and which opened last night at the Breed theatre for a run of four days.

One success after another has been the story of Rupert Hughes' film experience. Souls for Sale, his latest previous great picture, stamped him as being one of the greatest of creative directors.

The theme of the story is skillfully built about the confusing divorce situation existing in the United States. Guy Tappan, a New Yorker, is whirled through three marriages, and on the third, when trying to gain possession of his children from his second wife, he runs into a series of serious obstacles in the shape of laws, assorted and otherwise. He finds that in some states he is not married at all, in others he is chained by three wives, and in others he faces the penitentiary as a bigamist. A thrilling love story runs throughout, which builds the structure up to one of the greatest climaxes ever seen on the screen. Part of the picture was taken in beautiful Yellowstone park and the great geysers from a natural background which words fail to describe.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

FINE SCENERY AND COSTUMES FOR K. OF C. MINSTRELS

The elaborate scenery and magnificent costumes for the first part of the K. of C. mammoth minstrels were used Sunday afternoon at the dress rehearsal which was very fine. Everything points to a first class performance. The opening and closing chorus were especially written for the show and all the song numbers are snappy and right up to the minute. The mixed chorus consisting of seventy voices is well trained. The soloists, Sadie Driscoll, Eleanor Donovan, Henry LaFontaine and Warren Kane are all artists, each possessing a beautiful voice. The comedians Eddie Connelly, Nonia Nagle, George Madden, Rosanna Peloquin, Danny O'Brien and Nappie Keroack, have plenty of good laughs stored away and will surely make a hit with the audience. The second part of the performance promised to be every bit as high class as the first.

Eddie Connelly and Billy Ward will appear in a negro sketch that will be a scream from start to finish and the finish is a knockout. Closing the show with a novelty plantation act, using the entire company and featuring a wonderful string orchestra, and six of the best dancers in this vicinity. This is a beautiful plantation novelty and will bring to a close one of the best amateur minstrel productions ever seen in our city.

He is a scholar of great attainments, having been professor of history in Indiana State University and Leland Stanford University of California, besides having lived for seven years in European countries, where he lectured in Oxford, Manchester and many other leading universities of Great Britain. Slater Hall Musical Course

Every season brings its new sensation in the musical world and this year it has been the concerts given by Erna Rubinstein, aptly called the "greatest violin genius of a generation."

When this young artist appeared unheralded as soloist of the New York Philharmonic orchestra she came before the capacity Friday afternoon subscription audience an unknown quantity.

The moment she grasped her bow and put her violin in position those present knew that an extraordinary personage was before them. Although she has passed her sixteenth birthday Miss Rubinstein gives the impression of being still younger, but the opening bars of the first movement of the Mendelssohn concerto were sufficient to convince her hearers that they were not listening merely to a musical prodigy remarkable for her years but to an artist who was already mature artistically. The musical critics agreed that her playing was like that of the acknowledged masters of the day Kreisler, Elman and Heifetz.

HELEN OF TROY, N. Y.

Helen of Troy, N. Y. is one of the outstanding hits of the current season. This highly popular musical comedy will be the attraction at the Broadway theatre, Putnam on Tuesday evening, March 4th, after its long run in New York. In the way of entertainment it is nothing short of an unadulterated delight. To begin with it is "different." The book by George Kaufman and Marc Connelly is a classic in itself, embodying a well founded story which pokes good, clean fun at one of our widely advertised American institutions, the collar motel. Helen of Troy, N. Y. abounds with comedy which is lightened by much infectious music and lyrics written by Bert Kalmer and Harry Ruby. Wagner and Vincent, in association with George Jessel, under whose manarement Helen of Troy, N. Y. is being presented, have assembled a lively chorus and cast of players who can do unusual things in a highly entertaining way. Among the principals are Pauline Chambers, Marcella Shields, William Sellery, Marie Berno, W. J. McCarthy, Law Christy, Allen Allenworth, Charles Williams and Thomas Irwin. It has been many a day since local playgoers will have an opportunity to enjoy a more finished or more thoroughly entertaining performance. Helen of Troy, N. Y. is pronounced a great show by all those who have seen it.

DANIELSON

It is the privilege of The Bulletin to announce exclusively this morning that Danielson is so fortunate as to be practically assured of having the entire business of the Paco Manufacturing company centered here. This, as has been previously mentioned in this column, opens up with a great degree of certainty the development of an industry employing nearly 500 people. It will mean the hum of activity on the part of a going concern will again be heard in a big plant that has stood idle for a number of years and that a payroll approximating $15,000 weekly will be added to all the money that now contributes to making Danielson such a prosperous and growing center.

Excepting for the affixing of signatures to the terms that have been agreed upon, the deal under which the Paco company will take over the Main street plant of the Connecticut Mills company—formerly the Danielson Cotton company plant—is closed.

Acting upon the understanding reached the Paco company already has placed orders for 100 fancy looms. Delivery of these will begin about April 1. In the meantime an order will be placed for another hundred of plain looms. There are 172 looms in the plant at present occupied by the Paco company on Furnace street. When the Paco company is established in its new home there will be, including additional loom purchases that under consideration, a total of 400 looms.

It was given out Sunday afternoon that the Paco company is to take over the Main street plant of the Connecticut Mills company on a lease, to run for a period of years, the instrument including a purchase option under which the Paco company can take the property over at any time, the rent paid in the meantime to apply toward the purchase price.

The lease and purchase option will cover not only the big mill and water power, but also all the tenement houses and other property along Water street, Main street and White row—the complete unit that for so many years was considered as the old Sherman mill property.

This property is a splendid one. Taken over by the Connecticut Mills during the period of the World war, old machinery, with few exceptions, was thrown out and junked. Scores of thousands of dollars were spent by the Connecticut mills in practically wholly rebuilding the interior of the plant, which today is in high state condition and ideal for such uses as it will be put to by the Paco Manufacturing company. Except for the exterior walls, it is practically a brand new plant. The main part of the mill, which is of brick, is four stories in height, with basement and power house adjoining and there is a modern two-story brick addition, with thousands of feet of floor space, known as the new weave shed. The main mill has new beams, new floors, is glistening with new paint and already for the reception of such machinery as the new leases will set up therein.

In leasing this property the Connecticut Mills company, which never came to use it after the general business slump of 1920, is relieved of all carrying charges, such as interest on money invested, insurance, etc., etc., and is assured of a return of about 5 per cent. This, it will be appreciated, makes the deal doubly attractive for Danielson as a whole.

Representatives of the Paco company and of the Danielson Development association were well pleased Sunday with the deal that has been arranged. The coming of April will be marked by activity incident to getting the Paco company established in its new home. The finishing and curtain making department will be removed here from Boston and the present producing capacity of the company greatly increased. The transfer of the Boston organization of the concern to Danielson means a prospective growth of several hundred people for the borough, for upwards of 300 people are employed in the finishing and curtain making departments.

As has been previously pointed out, the Paco company is no experiment. It has an established business and a demand for its products materially exceeding the supply. Danielson is mighty fortunate to figure in its expansion plans, and the fact is appreciated.

It may be mentioned that the present plant of the Paco company is not likely to stand idle after being vacated. There is an excellent prospect of an establishing another industry therein—an industry a bit different than any now established here and giving employment to numbers of women workers, as well as some men.

Over in the town of Brooklyn, certain circumstances have practically forced Health Officer E. C. Babson into insisting that certain laws relative to butchering that were enacted by the last legislature be enforced. Unhappily, Mr. Babson is laboring under a great handicap unless he gets the co-operation of health officers in all of the towns hereabouts. And he appears to be on the verge of assurance of this, through the activities of representatives of the state department of health who have been in this territory recently. Unless Killingly and Plainfield and Pomfret and Hampton and other towns see that there is enforcement of the statutes referred to, Mr. Babson's efforts will go for naught.

The last legislature said, through enactment, that butchering done at home must be done under certain restrictions as to sale of the butchered products. For instance, a farmer might kill a hog. He may butcher under any conditions that are satisfactory to him if the hog products are to be used in his own home or disposed of to his neighbors. But if he kills a hog and offers even parts of it for sale to a market or peddler pork products from the kill through a community, he must comply with the sanitary requirements as to butchering set forth by the legislature, and in addition must be duly licensed for slaughtering privileges.

Where pork, beef, veal or other meat products are produced from what may be termed home slaughtering and are to be offered for sale other than to neighbors of the person during the slaughtering, the man transacting the business must be licensed to engage in such work and must have an approved sanitary slaughtering establishment, which means that there must be a cement floor, walls up to the height of seven feet with either tile, stone or plaster and a service of hot and cold water.

The laws specifying these regulations were passed by the last legislature because of the fact that certain cattle buyers now are going about the state buying "reactor" cows and other cattle—cattle afflicted with tuberculosis—killing them and putting them on the market under conditions that permit of no accurate check up as to whether they are fit for human consumption.

Mr. Babson has no special ambition to antagonize people by insisting that these laws be enforced. He is merely doing his duty as an officer. But unless the same thing is done in Killingly, and all other towns adjoining Brooklyn, much of his work necessarily will be ineffective. It is the easiest thing possible to evade the laws mentioned if one town is enforcing them and other nearby towns are lax in this duty. All one has to do is to put a hog in a wagon or drive a cow over from Brooklyn to Killingly—if Killingly doesn't enforce the law while Brooklyn does and all restraint is removed. And it is patent, too, that enforcement of the law in Brooklyn should be backed by similar enforcement in other nearby towns, and throughout the state, if Brooklyn men who have cattle and hogs to sell are not to be placed under a business handicap not applied to their neighbors having cattle and hogs to sell in adjoining towns and disposing of them in the same market.

He was unmarried and is not known to have any near relatives. The body was taken in charge by L. E. Kennedy.

As the trolley car which left Dayville carhouse at 4:15, Saturday afternoon had reached a point south of North Grosvenordale, two automobiles, one northbound, the other going south, were noted by passengers in a mix-up, below the entrance to Tourtellotte school. The motor cars were of Connecticut registry, a roadster, No. 778 and a coupe 27,320. The crash sent a box on one of the cars high in the air and the driver of the smaller machine got a badly cut hand from flying glass. The southbound machine fared better than did the other, the latter having its rear wheels smashed. Up to Sunday night no report of the accident had been filed with the state police. Other motorists who went to proffer aid if needed claimed that the northbound passengers gave unmistakable signs of having been drinking.

PUTNAM

Miss Lila Holder, a nurse at the Day Kimball hospital, went to her home in Lynn, Mass., the middle of last week for a visit. She was due back at the hospital, Friday. Saturday morning word was received that she was taken suddenly ill while at home and was taken to a Lynn hospital where an operation for appendicitis was performed. Miss Holder is the third nurse at the Day Kimball to be operated on within six weeks. The first was Miss Katharine Burns, who did not recover, the second was Miss Gibson, head nurse now on duty again.

State's Attorney and Mrs. Charles E. Searls have returned from the Court Inn, Camden, N. J., where they have been the past month.

Herbert J. Smith is ill with pneumonia at his home on Sunnyside. Mr. Smith went to Boston the first of last week on business and was taken ill soon after his return home.

The weather, together with its being Dollar Day, Saturday, attracted an unusually large number of people to Putnam. The stores were well filled, afternoon and evening.

The Putnam Manufacturing Company goes on a five days a week schedule this week on account of the general condition of the cotton business.

It is not often that spectators in a court room hear a judge ask a defendant who has pleaded guilty to change his plea so that the judge can find him not guilty. This was what happened in the city court, Saturday morning, after Judge Geissler had heard the state's case against Daniel Labonte of Putnam, charged with operating an automobile without having a license, without proper registration and without permission.

According to the facts brought out LaBonte was working as a demonstrator and salesman for Auger & Reynolds, of Thompson, and took out a car Friday and was told to be back with it in the afternoon. When he did not show up the police were notified and at 1:05 o'clock Saturday morning they saw LaBoate and arrested him.

All old drivers' licenses expired at midnight, Friday. This left LaBonte without a license and he had driven without it for an hour and five minutes when arrested. This the court looked at as being too technical.

The registration on the car was a dealer's registration, so he was found not guilty on that charge. Regarding the most serious charge, driving without permission, the only evidence of this was that he had not returned when the owner of the car ordered him to, but in court the owner admitted that LaBonte might have misunderstood him when he told him to be back in the afternoon.

The second case was a peculiar one also, Edgar Dumas, 17, was a truck driver. He was employed by the state of Connecticut in the highway department. He did not have a license so, technically the state of Connecticut, his employer, was prosecuting him for not having a license which the state itself should issue. The court felt that it was the duty of the state to see that its employes were equipped with proper licenses and did not look favorably upon the situation of the state prosecuting its employe for a situation, caused by the state's own laxity. However, the plea of guilty entered by the boy was allowed to stand but the case was placed on file, without the imposition of any penalty.

Saturday's session of the court was the first to be held in two weeks.

Wednesday afternoon at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce, the first clinic in the Well Baby campaign is to be held. Interested women of a committee headed by Mrs. E. C. Morse have made a house to house canvass to interest mothers of children between one and six years of age to bring them to the conference. All the doctors in the city are cooperating in the movement which is sponsored by the State Department of Health, Bureau of Child Hygiene. The response of the mothers to the solicitations at the committee is evidence that there will be a large gathering of the first of the clinics, which it is intended to hold monthly.

The Well Baby conference is just what its name implies, a conference for well babies. A child may be seemingly well, however and yet need surgical or medical attention. A sick child gets this attention but the apparently well child is not seen by a doctor. The apparently well child may need attention. It may have adenoids, enlarged or diseased tonsils, impaired vision, or any number of defects not apparent to the untrained eye. Every child will be examined physically and especial attention will be paid to the weight of the children. The clinic is free, as the doctors all give their services. The conference will open at two o'clock and will continue until all the children are examined. Similar conferences will be held the first Wednesday, in each month.

PLAINFIELD

At the Communion service at the Congregational Church Sunday morning, four women united with the church, one on confession of faith and three by letter. The musical service planned for the second Sunday evening of the month will be postponed until the third Sunday.

Leon Frink who has been away over two weeks in St. Vincent's hospital, Worcester, for a surgical operation, returned home Sunday afternoon.

Miss Mary Daugherty who is in St. Vincent Hospital was operated on Thursday and is doing as well as can be expected.

Miss Marion Chapman, Charles Hopkins and Marden Prentiss of Brown University were home over the week end, attending the dedicatory exercises of the new high school.

Those who go to St. Vincent Hospital in Worcester are interested in meeting Miss Larochelle from Plainfield, who is a student nurse and who is making a fine record.

The social and dance Friday evening at Grange Hall was a pleasant and successful affair. Music was furnished by Rev. H. Barstow, pianist and William Gelinas of Central Village, violinist. The prompter was John H. Cone of Canterbury. Cake and coffee were served. The program was in charge of the entertainment committee, George H. Dawley, chairman, Edith M. Kennedy, Susan Dodge Joanna Dorrence, Irving E. Dawley.

Daniel Reardon is one of the first, if not the first, in this locality to hear the familiar peeping of little chicks this year. With a last year pullet he had hatched out a brood of Buff Rocks on the 18th of February which are doing well.

The High school team made a good record in basketball last week winning easily the game on the home floor Tuesday over the Putnam team and the girls playing a fine game although the Putnam girls won. Friday evening, Plainfield went to Woodstock and won a good game, 25 to 22.

One of the best games of the season was played in the Community House Friday evening, between Plainfield and the Submarine Base, Plainfield losing by four points in the last five minutes of the game. It was a game worth watching full of excellent plays. Ray W. Greene was the umpire.

Rev. R. P. Morrissey arrived Friday night from the south where he had been spending two weeks. He reports the weather cool and the season late.

A great basketball game is expected this (Monday) evening when the Plainfield team will meet on the home floor the Whirlwinds from Groton.

Mrs. William Purdon received the second, two pairs of pillow cases, and Miss Dugas received a knife, fork and spoon set, as the consolation award. Felix Guillet won the men's first prize, a pearl-handled pocket knife, Roland Guillet was given a flash light as second prize, and John H. The A. C. C. club gave a dance Feb. 29 in Rioux hall. The decorations were greatly admired, as arranged by Whiting. In the center of the stage was a large basket of daffodils. Smaller baskets of sweet peas and roses with palms, dracenas, and Boston ferns were effectively arranged. Morey's orchestra played, and Mr. Frink from Ekonk prompted. Cake, ice cream and punch were served.

Deacon J. E. Phillips, Mrs. G. H. Prior and Miss Ellen Prior went to Hope Valley, Sunday afternoon to call on Mr. Phillips' aunt, Mrs. Hannah Matteson, who celebrated her one hundred and first birthday. She gave her three nephews, of whom Mr. Phillips is one, an identification bill-fold, as a memento of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Brown spent the week-end in Boston.

MYSTIC

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dibble, of South Windsor, Conn., who are spending the winter with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Brooks, informally observed their 55th wedding anniversary Saturday. They were married at Wapping, Connecticut, March 1, 1869, by Rev. Mr. Smith, pastor of the Methodist church, and have always resided in South Windsor. They have three children, Mrs. Robert Cortham of Hartford, Miss Annie Dibble, who is with the Aetna Insurance Co., Hartford, and Mrs. John T. Brooks of this place. There are three grandchildren and one great-grandchild. Mrs. Dibble is the daughter of George F. Belding, descendant of Ulysses S. Grant. Mr. Dibble is the son of Linus Dibble and Theresa Miner, and was born at Saybrook Ferry, and is a direct descendant of Lieut. Thomas Miner, one of the four founders of the town of Stonington. Mr. Dibble was 76 in December and Mrs. Dibble was 75 in May, and while their health is not for the best they are keenly interested in the affairs of the day. Mr. Dibble is a man of wide interests and has a most interesting collection of curiors which he is always pleased to show his friends. The weather Saturday was somewhat different from their wedding day for then a severe snowstorm was in progress and they were unable to start on their wedding journey until the next day, when the journey was begun and they proceeded for many miles in a sleigh. They have received many gifts and greeting cards from friends here and at a distance, all wishing them many more years of the same happy married life they have so long enjoyed together.

The New York, New Haven and Hartford R. R. Co. is contemplating changing the baggage room from where it is now located in the Mystic railroad station to the east an dnearer the ticket office, which will take about one-third of the space now used for a baggage room to be occupied as an office by the American Railway Express Co. It is not certain just how soon this work will be done but bids are being asked for. It is said that similar changes are also to be made at the station in Stonington.

Miss Katharine W. Rathbun and Herbert W. Rathbun, Jr., of Westerly, were callers here Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Hewitt quietly observed their 52nd wedding anniversary Thursday at the home on Pequotsepos road. Their daughter, Mrs. Atmore Tucker, of Providence, R. I., came up for this anniversary and returned home Friday.

CUTTING THE TAXES.

The tax bill that has been passed in the lower house of congress is not the Mellon bill. Neither is it the Garner bill. It is a compromise on which the two factions of the republican party were able to get together, and because they had reached a compromise it commanded the vote of almost the entire house. That being the case would it have been equally one-sided had the republicans stood firmly for the Mellon plan?

Certain of the features of the Mellon plan have been retained. In some respects there has been a lowering of the rates proposed by the secretary of the treasury, while the surtax rate is brought down only half way to the point where Mr. Mellon has insisted it should be in order to turn those with large incomes from the tax exempts into industrial activities. It was clearly evident that the democrats didn't want to be found voting against a tax reduction plan, though they have persisted in fighting the plan which has been based upon scientific tax reduction.

The action of the house doesn't meet the situation as it should be met. There have been intimations that the senate would stand by whatever was done by the house, but that remains to be seen. The indications are that the senate radicals can be expected to yield probably as much as those in the house, but with the democrats free from their caucus stand on the Garner bill and the knowledge that there are those among them who are favorably disposed to the Mellon bill, and some even committed to it, it rests with that body to show whether the measure that will go to the president will be one that will get his approval or his disapproval.

Tax cutting legislation should be on quite as sane lines as any other. The idea of paring here and raising there, with little regard for the effects, doesn't constitute what the country is going to look upon as sound judgment on a matter that should be non partisan.

SELLING THE FLEET.

From time to time it has been repeated that it was the policy of the shipping board to dispose of the merchant vessels under its control. From time to time certain of the vessels have been offered for sale, and there have been those which have been disposed of, but there still remain over 1300 to be sold in order to get the government out of the shipping business.

With the emergency fleet corporation offering the entire fleet for sale without making any exception even of the Leviathan, it is indicated that a serious effort is to be made to get these vessels into the hands of private capital that government competition therewith may be ended.

A new basis of valuation for the vessels is set forth by the corporation in this undertaking, consideration being given to existing conditions, a fair appraisal of values and the routes on which the vessels are to be operated. Apparently there are to be few restrictions offered by the government except that the vessels must be operated "on specified routes deemed to be desirable and necessary."

There was a time when there was a desire to acquire the Leviathan. Since then it has been reconditioned and put into profitable service, though it is now drydocked from an expensive accident in New York harbor. Whether ownership of it is considered desirable today may be disclosed by the chance that is offered to acquire it.

The new offer that is now being made to dispose of the ships should prove interesting to those who are in the market for such vessels. It should result in the reduction of the fleet but there is no expectation that the government is in any danger of finding itself without a merchant marine to direct for some time to come. Nevertheless it is not disposed to really throw the ships away and it is giving the best of evidence that it not only desires but is anxious to dispose of the ships on terms that are fair.

THE FORBES INDICTMENT.

Former Director Forbes of the veterans' bureau has let it be known that he welcomes the opportunity that will be permitted him to present his case before a court. This opportunity comes through the indictment which has been brought in by the Chicago federal grand jury acting as the result of the inquiry into the bureau under his direction as made by the senate committee.

While Colonel Forbes seems to look with favor upon the stage as set, it is likewise a move that will be quite as gratifying to the country. It is always well to get down to the facts and to have a full disclosure of conditions.

The country has made large appropriations for the disabled veterans without other thought than a desire to make them more comfortable and fit them for better service during such time as themselves and the country. It has realized that too much could not be done for them, but if that money has not been devoted to the purposes for which it was intended, if those who were expected to benefit have not got it and it has been wasted or squandered there can be no sympathy extended to those who are responsible.

Likewise something more than rank gossip must be received in the way of evidence. While it must be accepted that the inquiry report did not deal gently with the former director, there was a difference in the view taken by the committee's counsel and that which was put forth in the report. It cannot be expected that Colonel Forbes, or any other, can be convicted on Vanderlipian tales. Such of course is not justice. What is needed is to produce all the facts, give the accused the chance which he is entitled to to be heard, and then let the decision be rendered after all the cards have been turned face up. Probably Colonel Forbes will welcome the chance to be heard me more than the public will desire the full light to be shed on the administration of that bureau to which such large appropriations have been made in the expectation that the disabled would get the full benefit.

NEW JERSEY'S EXPLOSION.

New Jersey has had a number of mysterious explosions, and while it may be difficult to trace it real grounds exist for determining the cause of the latest near New Brunswick where about a score of lives were lost and a much larger number injured.

From all indications it had not been considered necessary to observe the precautions that might otherwise have been taken. The material that was being used for conversion into fertiliser was not considered dangerous. Whether that was the cause of the deplorable affair or whether other material than that intended had been sent into the plant remains to be determined if possible.

If human life is to be subjected to the peril of such an explosion it should be known in advance, the plant so constructed that an explosion would do the minimum of damage and protection given to other departments by removal to an adequate distance.

From the destruction that was caused and from the number that were killed the difficulties of determining what caused the blast are greatly increased. An investigation is to be expected, but protection of human life and the safeguarding of property call for the putting forth of every possible endeavor to locate the cause and to see that there are no repetitions. If there was anything malicious about the explosion there is no penalty too great to apply to the guilty party if they can be located and convicted. Possibly the clearing up of this affair will be as quick as the justice for which New Jersey has at times kindled an enviable reputation. The need of preventing any repetitions is certainly well emphasized, whether it was the result of carelessness or criminal intent.

BLOCKING RUM RUNNERS

It has been known for a long time that liquor was being smuggled into the country from many sources. Some of it comes in so openly that it hardly seems proper to term it smuggling except that it is in violation of the law.

Those who have recognized that it was illegal have been urging a better enforcement of the law, and those who have been entrusted with the responsibility of enforcement have been pointing out that they lacked the means of doing so with their present equipment, and this particularly so in connection with the rum runners operating on the water.

The agreement which has been reached with Great Britain permitting a search of vessels for liquor, within a line that is an hour's steaming distance from shore, is regarded as an advantage, and now the house appropriations committee recommends the appropriation of over $13,000,000 for the reconditioning of 20 destroyers and the purchase of more than 300 fast motor boats for the augmenting of the coast guard equipment whereby it will be possible to see that the law is better enforced.

Whether that will make it possible to shut off all this illegal traffic is a question. It is nevertheless a step that is necessary if enforcement of the law in connection with this particular violation is going to amount to what is demanded. Certainly it is impossible to obtain enforcement unless such a provision is made for it, and such an equipment cannot be obtained without an adequate appropriation. The appropriations recommended constitutes only about half of what had been sought for this particular service.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

The white of an egg dropped into a pot of soup will gather to it all the impurities. When it curdles remove it.

A few drops of lemon juice added to scrambled eggs while cooking will improve them.

Powdered rock ammonia applied with a soft brush will clean tarnished gold lace and embroidery.

To clean a leather bag wash well with tepid water and a little soap. Dry, then brush over with the white of an egg.

To extinguish burning oil throw on flour, sand, or meal. Water spreads the flames and increases the danger.

To keep food from boiling over while it is cooking, grease the inner rim of the saucepan to a depth of one inch from the top.

You can utilize the short ends of your candles by whittling them into small shavings over a floor that is to be waxed for dancing.

To remove indelible pencil marks soak the fabric containing them in denatured alcohol, then wash in clear water.

A teaspoonful of salt and dessert spoonful of lemon juice answer the same purpose as salts of lemon for removing iron rust from linen. It is not a poison and will not prove injurious to the linen.

If you want your rubber gloves to last a long time, care for them this way: After each wearing wash and rinse them and pat them dry with a soft towel. Dust with talcum powder to absorb all moisture.

To remove a gas mantle without breaking it pass a hatpin through the loop at the top and gently drop it into a glass tumbler with the pin resting on the sides of the glass.

Rugs should be turned around every six months where there is much wear. Constant turning in this way causes them to wear evenly.

If a strong solution of salt and water is thrown over the coals less soot will collect in the flues and chimneys. The fire, too, will burn clear and bright.

A splendid shoe polish can be made by mixing a little milk with ordinary blacking. After rubbing a small quantity on the leather very little "elbow grease" will be required.

SOME OVEN TESTS

Before placing a cake in the oven test the heat by putting a pinch of flour at the bottom. If in one minute this turns black the oven is too hot, if a dirty yellow it is too cool. If a bright golden brown the oven is the right heat.

CARE OF THE OMELET PAN

The omelet pan should never be washed or scratched in any way and should be used only for omelets. When done with rub well inside and out with pieces of soft paper till clean. Then rub with a dry cloth.

IT IS A SAVING

When frying fish, instead of using an egg to brush over it make a paste of flour and water, brush the fish over with this and then dust with bread crumbs and fry at once. It will look as nice as if done with an egg and when eggs are dear it is a great saving.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

If a little sympatetic care and attention are given to the hands and nails at the end of a few months their condition will show a great improvement.

There is nothing like a cold shower in the morning to brighten the complexion. A warm bath at night, every night, is also necessary for anyone who wishes a clear skin.

Pure, unscented soap should be used on the face. A complexion brush will help to keep the pores free from clogging. After washing the face, rinse it well, then dash on some cold water to close the pores.

Lemon juice will give the nails the much desired transparency, besides being a good preventitive for growing cuticle. Lemon juice also is a splendid whitener for the hands and keeps the skin smooth. It is as cleansing as soap and water. When household or other duties make the hands rough and dry lemon juice should be used instead of soap and water.

SMART LAMP MAT

The indispensable lamp table beside a small girl's bed calls for a smart mat with a brilliant motif. A square of nine-inch satin ribbon bordered with dull gold metallic ribbon makes an attractive one. The border is applied with a light spread of fine liquid glue, put on a few inches at a time and allowed to "set" before the surface are joined. A gay parakeet in bright blue and coral, cut out of chintz, is placed in the middle and held there with a thin line of glue around the edges of the motif.

SAVES SASH CORD

The usefulness of a window-sash cord can be lengthened by a periodical application of tallow or lard. Throw up the window and grease the cord with a slightly heated tallow candle. Then shut the window and apply the same process to the rest of the cord. If tallow candles are not to be had, pure lard should be applied sparingly. On no account use fat with salt. Salt rots the cords quicker than the dampness.

A TIME SAVER

Buttonholes on a baby's dress may be cut off in a strip when the dress is worn out and sewed under a tuck in little girls' blouses. The buttonholes in the little boys' trousers are made in bands of durable material and can be ripped out and sewed into other garments when the trousers are discarded. Also the buttonholes in men's shirts may be ripped off and sewed under a tuck in children's aprons.—The Delineator.

A FLOOR STAIN

A good floor stain that goes right into the wood and is durable is made of linseed oil colored with ground burnt umber. Rub thoroughly into the boards with a flannel pad and next day polish with beeswax and turpentine.

GIVES FINE LUSTER

A teaspoon of powdered alum mixed with ordinary polish will give a stove a fine luster and with half the work.

PATCHING WALL PAPER

When patching wall paper, never cut a regular patch, but tear off a sufficiently large piece and paste it over the place carefully matching the pattern. This patch will show far less than if the edges are cut square.

DICTATES OF FASHION

The more daring of the younger set are wearing anklets to match their armlets.

Flesh satin make up an attractive pair of the newest evening slippers, to be worn with nude hose.

Kid is being extensively used today on the brisk new tailleurs. It is seen as a piping of the seams, always in a contrasting color. It also rims the decorative buttons.

There is a tendency today toward a shorter skirt. Some modistes predict a skirt so short as to be startling, but others are inclined to forecast something more than knee length.

It is somewhat difficult to tell the hat veil from the costume caps at the moment. The latest models in hats are likely to have a flowing veil which covers most of the wearer except her face.

There is little to choose between the top coat and the tailored frock in some instances at present. One severe and smart frock is put on like a coat, and fastens with one hook on the left hip.

In an effort to outdo their most brilliant of seasons, the designers now are making gowns which graduate from orange to primrose yellow or from cerise to mother of pearl.

In imitation of Luxor treasure chests, women today are carrying wrist bags of lightweight wood or of materials that imitate wood. The bags, shaped like chests, are hand painted with bright designs.

Gray suede shoes are "in." They are not, however, intended for wear with the platinum gown, but as first aid toward brightening the navy costume. The platinum gown demands shoes of black.

A huge tassel, frequently a yard and a half long, is the chief adornment for evening wraps now. A scarf of velvet, brightly lined and ending in one of these bif tassels, often takes the place of a fur collar on the evening cloak.

HAND-MADE FROCKS

There is a naive quality about the little hand-made frocks for the south that has much to do with their appeal. Simple to an amazing degree, they are never commonplace and their simplicity is that of sophistication and knowledge.

The new cotton materials are suitable for these frocks and the wide range and variety of cotton fabrics is really astonishing when one considers their limitations of a few seasons ago.

LINEN LUNCHEON SETS

Luncheon sets and towels of linen are hand-decorated with the most amusing little Chinese figures in bright colors. Some of the towels are hand blocked with designs suggestive of stained glass windows.

COLORFUL WEE FROCKS

Each season children's fashions emphasize the youthful charm of colorful little frocks whose inspiration is plainly derived from the smock of European peasants.

There is nothing so becoming to the very small person as straight simple lines which, however, are given individuality and character by the choice of materials and by distinctive touches of exquisite handwork.

GAY SCOTCH TARTAN

LAUNDRY HINTS

Down quilts may be cleaned with gasoline or they may be washed in soap and water and dried carefully and thoroughly before they are put back on the bed.

After cleaning garments in gasoline strain the gasoline through filter paper and it will be clean for your next job.

Use the egg beater to beat soap flakes into foam. You will be surprised how few flakes will be required to make a lot of suds.

Old or new stains may be removed from delicate fabrics and delicate colors by sponging with chloroform.

When clothes are very badly soiled the dirtiest parts should be dipped in water and soaped, and tightly rolled up before they are put to soak.

If the wringer works hard, pour a little kerosene on the cogs and work them for a few seconds. Then wipe them and put a few drops of sewing machine oil on them and work for a minute.

FOR A COLONIAL HALL

In colonial houses the big hall, with its wide sweep from the front door to the back, and its traditional air of spacious breadth and freedom, is versatile in its capacity for comfort and entertainment. In summer it is thrown open to make a cool, airy passageway that becomes a family living room, with magazine tables, potted plants and couches and chairs arranged in "conversation centers." The post of honor in this palatial hall is held by the big fireplace with its four-foot logs, and it naturally become the chosen rendezvous for the family. Such a fireplace calls for special furnishings in its immediate territory—fire screens, floor pillows, a table or two, and a stubby grass hearth-broom with a swagger ribbon sash around its neck. Beautiful fire screens are made by covering plain frames with good sateen, appliqued with motifs cut from metallic ribbon and all the work is done with the finest quality of liquid glue. The sateen is put on with a thin line of glue around the edges, a few inches at a time. A border of narrow gold ribbon is glued in place. The brilliant cut-out flowers or birds are put on at sophisticated angles with a very light line of glue around the edges.

JUST ABOUT GLOVES

Gloves for informal wear are elaborately embroidered in highly contrasting colors, but for semi-formal occasions plain handwear, with embroidery either to match the leather or slightly darker, has the preference.

There is an increasing demand for mousquetaire gloves in 12-button and 16-button length, in beige or white mocha. While short and long dress sleeves remain equally popular many women are wearing short gloves with either type of sleeve.

New guantlets, beige colored, have white kid or mocha cuffs in which designs have been cut to show a contrasting leather underneath, accenting the motif.

CONCERNING WOMEN

The first colored policeswoman in the United States is credited to Los Angeles, Calif.

Fifty-two American trained nurses are employed to teach Brazilian women in the hospitals of that country.

Treasury Department statistics show that since the war the number of women who earn incomes large enough to be taxed has tripled.

UNIQUE WRISTBAGS

Alligator skin wrist bags in pouch form are lighter in shade now than heretofore. They are more of a sand tint, and have gorgeous-carved amethyst or jade ornaments with which to fasten them.

CLEAR GLASSES

Moisten the tips of the fingers and then rub them over a cake of soap, rub the lens of your eyeglasses and then polish as usual. This will prevent the moisture which gathers upon glasses when one goes from a cold into a warm atmosphere.

RECIPES

Baked Shad, Vegetable Stuffing: One good sized shad is prepared for baking, with the head left on. One pint of vegetable macedoine is boiled three minutes and then mashed through a sieve; to it are added 1 beaten egg, 1-2 teaspoon of salt, 1 saltspoon of pepper, the juice of one onion, 2 tablespoons of melted butter, 3 of cream, and a teaspoon of chutney syrup. Enough fine bread crumbs are added to hold the mixture together, and the fish including the head, is lightly stuffed with it. The fish is broiled on a well buttered rack and basted with melted butter, salt, pepper and lemon juice. It is served on a bed of fresh cress on a hot platter and garnished with hard boiled egg rings and capers. The strained gravy from the dripping pan is stirred into a good cream sauce, but not allowed to boil.

Delicious Fruit Salad: On individual plates of lettuce arrange in star pattern five sections of grapefruit, free from membrane; on these place five sections of navel orange free from membrane. Cut long, slender strips of figs, and place on edge of orange sections. Fill space between orange star points with finely cut dates. Serve with French dressing.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Alice Salomon, who is lecturing in America on the German situation, is known as the "Jane Addams of Germany." She was born among the well-to-do classes and began at 20 years of age a lifelong career of activity in social work. Aiming for social reform, she aroused young German girls to take up social work and founded the first school of social work in Germany. She helped to organize most of the social agencies of Berlin and to develop most of the important associations for social work. For 20 years she was secretary and vice-president of the largest and most influential organization of women in Germany. Dr. Salomon was the first woman to receive the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from Berlin University. She also has the distinction of being the first woman, as well as the first German, to lecture before the British Institute of International affairs.

An Answer to Lillian A. Bulman.

Mr. Editor: We find in Friday's issue of The Bulletin a letter to Mr. Lucas by Lillian A. Bulman, who says, "We have no reason to love Mr. Lincoln, but we love our Robert E. Lee."

Does she realize that Robert E. Lee was educated at West Point, at the expense of this government, and then turned traitor and raised the blade to try to destroy the best government on earth? She fails to tell why she did not love Mr. Lincoln and also fails to tell why she loves Bobby Lee.

Allow me to say all of the older people of Norwich love Abraham Lincoln. Anyone would naturally think she was in sympathy with Bobby and his whole confederady who were severely licked some years ago.

If we remember correctly Mr. Lincoln said in his inaugural addres. (I think these are nearly his words) "To you, my southern brethren, if war is to be the issue, you yourselves will be the aggressors. The north will not assail you." So you see, dear madam, your own people started the conflict and fired the first gun on Fort Sumpter. The writer has seen Robert E. Lee and knows he was a fine built man, but he surrendered to General Grant. When General Lee surrendered his sword to General Grant Grant said to him, "Keep it, general, steel could not be placed in braver hands—worthy are they who face steel."

We feel sorry in this late day to read such sentiment expressed in any paper in this land. You see divided we would have no strength.

Gales Ferry, Feb. 29, 1924.

The Connecticut Mills Strike.

Mr. Editor: In the Norwich Bulletin issue of Feb. 29 concerning the strike in the Connecticut Mills, this article is hitting the Putnam strikers pretty hard. When it comes to a showdown there was only one of the Putnam strikers involved in Danielson and this same man, although a striker here, refused to do picket duty when the plant was in operation here during strike.

After investigation it has been found that most of the Connecticut Mills strikers were some of the Manhasset Manufacturing company "favorite stickers" and adopted sons who when turned out of that plant when closed up went to Danielson and started sowing their disease and dissatisfaction there.

We are willing to stand for anything when we are to blame for it, but as we are entirely blameless in this matter I hope you will straighten it out by giving this letter publicity.

Thanking you in advance, I remain

EMERY PROVOST,
President Local No. 37.
Putnam, Feb. 29, 1924.

Stories That Recall Others

Not Complete.

It is well enough to be careful about your special dinners. There was a family home coming to celebrate a wedding anniversary. The "girls" rolled up their sleeves and the dinner was just about the last work in the holiday feast line—turkey, dressing, gravy, cranberry sauce, sweet potatoes, jams, jellies, preserves, salad, pickles, celery, nuts, fruit, several kinds of pie, plum pudding, three layer cake with thick icing, float, hot biscuit, tea, coffee, chocolate, milk.

When all were seated and pa's plate was piled high and surrounded with the side dishes, he surveyed the repast, kind o' sighed and said:

"Now, if we only had some corn bread——"

"Les Miserables" at Y. M. C. A.

The last part of the Victor Hugo story, Les Miserables, was shown in moving pictures at the local Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon. The audience was impressed with the picture story, and—especially with the hero, Jean Val Jean, as he demonstrated again and again the splendid spirit of mercy and kindness even to his enemies at times. Between the reels, Secretary Hill gave a brief talk, taking for his Scripture text, Isaiah, the first chapter and the eighteenth verse. "Come now and let us reason together, saith the Lord, though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; and though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool." The topic was The Image Defaced and Restored. The speaker said in part:

"Before Adam and Eve yielded to sin there must have been sweet harmony between God and the creatures he had made, but ever since that eventful day when sin entered into human life, multitudes in every clime and of every race have been guilty of various forms of sin. It is true that sin in any form defaces the life, the image into which we were made. In every human life two powers are striving for the mastery, the good which draws us upward and the evil that drags us downward. The greatest battlefield is not that on which men have fought each other with shot and shell but it is in the human heart, where these two powers grapple with each other. I believe the only way to win the victory is to link one's self with the great Son of God. Men have tried many other ways but they have failed. The book twice born men, depicts very vividly what Christ can do for a man; and how He restores again the image of God in one who has been defaced by sin. Jean Val Jean in the story is an illustration of how when the spirit of God touches a man he becomes transformed, and his influence is entirely different. Every one of us needs this same power. The only way to live a clean cut manly life is to have constant companionship with the Master.

The stork family is on the decrease in Germany. The big bird with its black wings, white breast and red beak—the national colors of the old German empire—began to dwindle in numbers, according to ornithologists, about the time of the 1918 revolution which turned Germany into a republic.

MONTVILLE MAN DIES AFTER CRASH WHEN AUTO HIT TROLLEY POLE

Crashing into a trolley pole near De Wolf's switch on the Montville road with force enough to take off a 16 foot splinter and carry it 100 feet, a Buick touring car, owned and driven by Fred Gagnon, 31 of Rye, N. Y., who was accompanied by his brother Philip, 40 of Montville, was practically demolished about 11 o'clock Saturday night and Phillip Gagnon received injuries from which he died Sunday night at 7.40 at the Backus hospital. Fred Gagnon was but slightly injured and did not require hospital tratment.

Fred Gagnon was arrested Sunday on the charge of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated, following an investigation that was made by State Policemen Schwelker and Myott. He is out on bonds.

The injured man was taken to the Backus hospital by Benjamin Clark, a New Haven man who came along in his car and found the wreck. It is understood that Philip Gagnon was found unconscious hanging over the back of the car. Due to the shock and exposure and probable concussion of the brain he developed pneumonia which caused his death Sunday evening.

The Gagnon machine, which has New York registration, was apparently headed towards Montville, when it left the road at a point some distance north of De Wolf's switch, crossed the trolley track, crashed into the pole and carried on for about 100 feet more, coming to a stop across the trolley track. Both front wheels with the running gear were stripped from the car, the whole front stove in, one rear wheel torn off and the top demolished. The car is such a wreck that automobile drivers who looked at it said they they thought it would be hardly worth repairing.

The trolley car from New London, due here at 11.45, found the track blocked by the wrecked automobile from which Motorman John Ryan took a quart bottle that is alleged to contain moonshine whiskey. This is now in the hands of the state police.

Night Starter Fred Shea at the Greeneville car barn notified police headquarters of the wreck and Sergeant Thomas Murphy sent Officers John Donovan and Patrick Murphy to the scene and notified the state police barracks at Groton.

The Gagnon brothers had been taken to the hospital by the time the officers reached De Wolf's switch, but the policemen aided the trolley crew and others to drag the Gagnon automobile clear of the trolley tracks. The rim and tire which still remained on one wheel and the spare rim and tire were taken off and all five tires and rim, with the cushions were brought to police headquarters for safe keeping.

Coroner J. J. Desmond will conduct an investigation to determine responsibility for the fatal accident.

A farce, No Men Wanted, was very cleverly given by Mrs. A. C. Freeman as Isabelle Grainger, Mrs. Philip O. Roberts as Elizabeth Rawley, bachelor maids, and Miss Nellie Crowe as Prynsilla Abercrombie, their colored maid. Much talent was displayed in this act.

A business session followed this, presided over by Miss Ruth Breckenridge, president. Routine business was transacted and several matters of new business were disposed of.

RECOVERS STOLEN CAR WITH REAR-END RUINED

A 1923 Velie sport model touring car, radio green in color, and owned by Tony Messino, the well known music teacher, was stolen Saturday night from in front of the armory while the Battery B dance was in progress. In reporting the theft of the machine to the police about midnight, Mr. Messino said that he parked the machine on McKinley avenue, near the armory, about 10 o'clock. He then went in to the dance and when he returned for his car about 11.45 o'clock it was gone.

The police immediately got in touch with the state police and members of the state police force started a search for the missing machine. The New London and Willimantic authorities were notified.

Sunday the stolen machine was found abandoned on Coleman street, New London. Mr. Messino went to New London to claim it. He started to drive it home but had to leave it in New London as the rear end had been ruined. He reported to the police here that the car is badly scratched and it looked as if a party of men had been in it and had given it rough usage.

MUTILATED HORSES IN JOHN PECKHAM'S STABLE

A dastardly piece of work was discovered at the stable of John O. Peckham, the coal dealer, at 58 Thames street Sunday morning when it was found that two of his valuable horses had been slashed and mutilated with a knife during the night. No clue was left and Mr. Peckham has no idea of any one who might have a grudge against him that they would want to work out this way.

It is believed an attempt was made to injure the third horse in the stable but this animal kept the intruder away with his hoofs. Neighbors reported to the police that they noticed from the sounds coming from the stable that the horses were restive about 1.30 Sunday morning and it is believed this was probably the time when they were slashed.

The police were called to investigate the case and a veterinary surgeon to care for the two injured horses.

Grass Fire on Brown Street

FORESTRY MEETING TO BE AT DEVIL'S HOP YARD

The executive council of the Connecticut Forestry Association, of which Ozias Dodge of this city is a member, lunched and held its regular meeting at the Graduate club, New Haven, Saturday. At this midwinter meeting the plans for the annual out of door spring meeting were discussed. It was finally decided to hold it at the Devil's Hop Yard, the nearby state park, of 860 acres recently acquired.

This is the first time the forestry association has come into this part of the state to hold its field meeting. These meetings are a great occasion for getting together over a basket lunch under the trees with an excellent speaker on some forestry subject, and they are open to everybody interested as well as to the members. It is a matter of local pride that this beauty spot near Norwich was selected after many others were discussed and the meeting which will come the last week in May should be a great success.

of which is J. Ogden Armour, the principal figure in the packing interests' and the fee Senator Reed was to receive in the event of victory was estimated by his envious confreres at anywhere from $250,000 to $1,000,000 some authorities said it might be twice or three times either of these figures quoted.

"He is the man who falsely said in a recent speech that no living man can point to a single great lawsuit which McAdoo has ever tried in court."

"The records in the United States district court in Kansas City, Reed's own home, refute him because I tried one of the most important lawsuits in the history of American jurisprudence before Judge Van Valkenburgh, in 1919. I refer to the case of Smith vs. the Kansas City Title & Trust company, in which the farm mortgage bankers who had bled the farmers by usurious interest rates and hard conditions in farm mortgages, attacked the constitutionality of the federal farm loan act. * * *

"Senator Reed says he is a man of courage. Has he the courage to come out and say for whom he is now the stalking horse?

"Will he tell the voters to whom he intends to trade the democratic delegates of Missouri? * * *

"If Senator Reed wants to know why I am an exception in the case of Missouri to my announced policy of not contesting a state against a bona fide home candidate, he will find my explanation in his own record."

BOSTON WHIRLWINDS DISPLAY FINE BASKETBALL AGAINST ARMY-NAVY

The Boston Whirlwinds easily won from the Army-Navy five, 43 to 26, at Parish hall on Sunday afternoon before a crowd of nearly 300. The brilliant passwork of the Whirlwinds which they had developed to a fine degree of perfection was responsible for the defeat of the local team. Although made up of some of the best basketball stars of the state, the Army-Navy team lacked teamwork and it was this that prevented them from making a better showing. However, the Army-Navy team played a hard, fast game and their showing was very creditable.

after getting the ball on a long pass from Mills. A second or two later Heal, getting the ball under the Army-Navy basket, made a spectacular run down the sidelines and shooting from the corner of the court made the first score for the Whirlwinds. The Whirlwinds put up a strong defense and the Army-Navy team was forced to shoot from long range. In the next few minutes Harry Mills dropped in two counters from mid-floor, both being spectacular shots. Ballsieper next shot one from the corner of the court, bringing the score to 8 to 2 in favor of the Army-Navy. With this lead to overcome the Whirlwinds started their spectacular passwork and without the least difficulty ran the score to 14 to 8. Mills broke loose and dropped in a run-under shot for the final Army-Navy score during the first half. The Whirlwinds settled down to business and with Heal displaying some fast floorwork ran their score to 33 points.

The second half was a little more favorable to the Army-Navy men who started off with a flash of speed that spoke well for them. Harry Mills, who was the man of the Army-Navy team most effective against the Whirlwinds, shot five baskets in the second half. Dutch Leonard, however, furnished the sensation of the half when he shot practically the whole length of the floor for as pretty a basket as was made during the game. In the second half each of the Whirlwind players scored two baskets and Heal scored one foul basket, the only foul try made during the game.

The brand of basketball played by the Whirlwinds is such as has never been seen before on the local court. The passwork was perfect, enabling the Whirlwinds to shoot at short range where the Army-Navy team was forced to take long chances. The Whirlwinds played a great defensive game and it was hard for the local players to break through. Heal was the sensation of the game with his exceptionally fast floorwork and it was practically impossible to stop him on the way down the floor. Note Hurwitz, former Hartford boy, also played a good game as did "Fiddle" Morley, who caged a number of pretty angle shots. The noticeable thing about the Whirlwinds was that each man with the exception of Heal scored four baskets. The summary:

PRES. COOLIDGE TO MAKE DAVIS CUP DRAWINGS

Washington, Mar. 2.—Drawings for the international lawn tennis matches for the Davis cup this year will be held in the executive office of the White House, March 17, and President Coolidge will draw the first number. Arrangements for the drawings were announced today by Dwight F. Davis, assistant secretary of war and donor of the Davis challenge cup, the trophy for the tennis classic of the world.

Fifteen nations besided the United States will participate in the drawings by which will be determined the order of play between the national teams in the two zones, the European zone and the American zone. Ambassadors and ministers from the challenging countries will draw for their countries while the president will draw for the United States. The Davis cup matches will be played this year in Philadelphia, early in September.

"In accordance with the cup regulations," said Mr. Davis, "the challenging nations play off the preliminary matches in two zones, the European zone and the American zone. The winners of the competition in the two zones then play each other to determine which shall have the right of challenging the winning nations, and then the challenge match is played in the country of the champion nation."

The challenging nations are Switzerland, South Africa, Ireland, Czechoslovakia, Australia, India, Holland, Roumania, New Zealand, China, Japan, France, Spain and the British Isles. After the drawing on March 17, the diplomats participating will be entertained at luncheon by Mr. Davis.

CORNELL WINS COLLEGE BASKETBALL TITLE

New York, Mar. 2. (By The A. P.)—For the first time in a decade the International Basketball league crown rests on the brow of Cornell. The Ithacans won the 1924 titular honors by defeating Yale, 23 to 19, while Princeton was suffering a defeat at the hands of Dartmouth, 36 to 30. Although they have two games to play, the Ithacans are beyond the reach of their rivals.

In eight starts, Cornell has emerged victorious in seven games, defeating every team in the league at Ithaca, Penn and Dartmouth at Philadelphia and Hanover respectively, but losing to Yale at New Haven. Cornell meets Columbia at New York on Saturday and Princeton at Princeton the following Saturday.

Yale, 1923 champion, failed to rally and has been relegated to the cellar position with but little hope for further advance. Columbia, starting strong, failed to live up to its preseason strength and despite a wholesale shift of material Coach Joe Deering was unable to bring his charges along at a rate to cope with Cornell's advance.

Sam Pite, Yale forward, by scoring six field goals against Cornell, increased his lead over the field in the chase for individual scoring honors. Pite has scored 69 points in his seven games while Kneass of Penn, is second with 55 and Stroem, of Columbia, third, with 51.

The standing of the teams and the team scoring records follow:

| | W. | L. | P. | Opp. P. | P.C. |
| Cornell | 7 | 1 | 192 | 152 | .875 |

MOORE WINS JERSEY SPEED SKATING TITLE

Long Branch, N. J., Mar. 2.—Joe Moore, of New York, member of the United States Olympic team, today won the New Jersey state outdoor skating championship, defeating his nearest competitor, Harry Kasky, Chicago, in two special races after both had tied for first honors with 90 points each in the regular events. The ice was soft and it was only with difficulty that the skaters were able to race.

Leslie Boyd of New York, and Edward Meyers, also of New York, were tied for third place, while Paul Forsman of New York, was fifth.

In the women's events, Miss Eisie Muller of New York, captured first place, taking firsts in three events scheduled. Miss Dorothy Jackson of New York, second place and Miss Caroline Breiter of New York, third.

The races were held under the auspices of the Long Branch Ice Boat and Yacht club.

Moore and Kasky divided honors in the men's events so closely that they were tied in points at the conclusion of the program. Special 220 yard and 440 yard races were arranged and Moore took both events. A run off for third place was not held.

When the Chapman Tech five meets Madison High Monday night, it will be the second game for the New London boys in three days. # KILLINGLY HIGH TEAM WINS EXTRA PERIOD GAME FROM CHAPMAN TECH.

Danielson, Mar. 2.—It took an extra five minute period to decide the Chapman Tech-Killingly game at the town hall in Danielson Saturday evening. By scoring eight points during the extra period and allowing the Chapman Tech quintet but two, the Killingly outfit won by a final score of 53 to 46.

Killingly High had to come from behind in order to tie up the contest at 44-all when the referee's last whistle blew. Field baskets by Vadis, Gallop and two by Williams, to Andrews' single basket for the Tech boys decided a contest that was hotly contested from the very first whistle. It is doubtful whether much more enthusiasm could be shown at a single contest, than was shown Saturday evening on the town hall court.

Although defeated, the Chapman Tech five even surprised its most ardent supporters in making the upstate team work its hardest for a victory, in fact, during the second quarter the team from New London so completely outplayed Killingly that a margin of eight points separated the two teams at half time.

But the third quarter ushered in a catastrophe for the Tech outfit as it was later proved. Killingly not only threw out a powerful offensive drive that completely disintegrated the Tech defense, but guarding of high order kept the Tech forwards away from the basket.

During the second quarter the eight point lead that the Tech team had been able to accumulate, diminished rapidly with the beginning of the third quarter, and when that period ended the lead changed hands. At the termination of this period Killingly was leading by a scant margin of one point. The last lap of the journey saw some fast play on both sides. While the two teams battled hard for a victory and play was about even, yet Chapman Tech was able to score one more point than Killingly and a tie resulted. The result of the extra period is already known.

Vadis for the Killingly boys was a streak of lightning on the floor. His scoring of field baskets in the third and last quarter was a decided factor in tying up the contest for his team. Williams at center, was the next high scorer for the winners. Only one fault can be found with his playing and that was his poor watching of his man, Hewett, at center. Had Hewitt been watched a little closer the extra period would not have been necessary. Hewitt scored 24 points for Chapman Tech, more than half of his team's total of 46. Andrews of the same team played hard.

BATTERY E TAKES MEASURE OF ATLAS A. C. FIVE

Westerly, Mar. 2.—A slow basketball game was the one played Saturday night at the state armory on Dixon street between the Atlas A. C. basketball five of Bridgeport, and the Battery E, 243rd Field Artillery team. The Silent Five of Hartford was originally scheduled but due to illness of several of the members were unable to put on their best team, with the result that the Bridgeport players were taken on. Result: Battery E 64, Atlas 33.

Stenhouse of the Battery players starred for the Westerly team, which had excellent passwork. For the visitors, Burns, a K. of C. player, was the only strong man to hold up his team, caging a pretty basket and making one fine shoot in the second period. The usual dancing followed. The summary follows:

| Torrey | Left Forward | Blade |
| Plympton, Spencer | Right Forward | Burns |
| Stenhouse | Center | Welch |
| Shortman, Dionne | Left Guard | Grimn |
| McCloy | Right Guard | Jacobs |

Westerly basketball fans will be given an opportunity to see their favorite game during the present week. On Wednesday evening at the state armory on Dixon street, will be played a double header, when the Westerly Sanitary Corps shoots baskets with the Peace Dale Strollers; followed by the "service championship" match between the Battery E 243rd F. A., and the Troop A, R. I. C. teams. Saturday evening the Silent Five of Meriden will play their game, which was scheduled with the Battery E team for last Saturday.

FAST GAMES PLAYED AT NEW LONDON ARMORY

New London, Mar. 2.—In the games played at the state armory Saturday evening the Blue Ribbons won over the Cosmopolitans by a 18 to 16 score in a roughly played game and in the second game the Cadets from the U. S. S. Alexander Hamilton won from the 35th Brigade Headquarters by a 29 to 20 score.

The first game of the evening between the Cosmopolitans and the Blue Ribbons resembled more of a football game than a basketball contest. Members of both teams roughed it up from the very start and very few fouls were called by the referee. Players from either side upon receiving the ball were immediately pounced upon by a member of the rival quintet as though he were some bird of prey. Because of this kind of playing the score was kept down.

Although the Cosmopolitans had a four point lead at the end of the first half, this lead was overcome by the Blue Ribbons in the last half. McGowan, a former submarine base luminary, was responsible for the Blue Ribbons' victory. He accounted for the entire six points scored by his team in the last 20 minutes of play.

Except for the fact that the game was close, it was uninteresting, although it kept a good sized crowd of rooters from the Ship & Engine company on its toes cheering the Blue Ribbon players when a member of that team would make a basket or show a flash of speed.

McGowan for the Blue Ribbons was easily the best individual performer during the game, accounting for eight of his team's 18 points. Kelley for the Cosmopolitans was the best performer for that team.

The teams lined up as follows:

Blue Ribbons.

Cadets Win Easily.

The Cadets from the U. S. S. Alexander Hamilton, by playing a fast brand of basketball throughout the entire game, were able to finish out in front of the 35th Brigade Headquarters five. From the very first whistle the Cadets went out after the game, and the first quarter found this team ten points in the van. It took the guardsmen the first quarter to realize that the game was getting away from them. From that time on both teams battled on even terms, but the damage had been done in the first quarter and the lead that the Cadets piled up in that period proved to be the margin by which they won.

The passing of the Coast Guard cadets was decidedly better than that of the guardsmen. But towards the end of the contest the Cadets began to weaken and Rogers, for the Brigade Headquarters found the basket for three baskets in rapid succession. He was not helped along by his teammates and before he could get into action again the whistle blew, ending the game.

Cowarts' play at right forward for the Alexander Hamilton was good. He dropped in some baskets from difficult angles, accounting for eight baskets from the field. Collins, his running mate, also proved to be fast.

Rogers, the guard forward, proved to be the best bet of his team. He deposited [illegible] the basket seven times from the field.

SATURDAY'S MARKET

New York, March 1.—Despite a period of brisk bidding for several specialities and the motors in the second hour today's brief stock market session differed but little from its predecessors of the past week and at the close presented a rather irregular appearance.

Speculative interest was centered in U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, which rose more than 6 points on an unusually large turnover. At today's top price of 74 3-4 the stock still is about 10 points below its high point of the year. Traders attributed today's interest to reports that the company's earnings may reach an unusually high total this year.

Motor shares also were in favor with traders, several such stocks rising a point or more, while Studebaker improved fractionally. Gains of a point were recorded by Chandler, Maxwell B and White Motors and Mack Truck climbed two points.

Reports that railroads are maintaining a large volume of tonnage attacted fair buying to that group, Southern touchings new high at 5½ and Norfolk & Nashville each advancing a point. Pressure against the northwestern roads was lifted, fractional improvement being registered by Northern Pacific, Great Northern preferred and Union Pacific.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES

A Thought for Today

Then a voice within his breast
Whispered audible and clear:
"Do your duty; that is best;
Leave unto the Lord the rest."
—Longfellow.

The Mouse, the Frog, and the Little Red Hen

Once a Mouse, a Frog and a little Red Hen,
Together kept a house;
The frog was the laziest of frogs
And lazier still was the Mouse.

The work all fell on the Little Red Hen,
Who had to get the wood,
And build the fires and scrub and cook,
And sometimes hunt the food.

One day, as she went scratching around,
She found a bag of rye:
Said she, "Now who will make some bread?"
Said the lazy Mouse, "Not I."

"Nor I," croaked the Frog as he drowsed in the shade.
Red Hen made no reply,
But flew around with bowl and spoon
And mixed and stirred the rye.

"Who'll make the fire to bake the bread?"
Said the Mouse again, "Not I;"
And, scarcely op'ning his sleepy eyes,
Frog made the same reply.

The Little Red Hen said never a word,
But a roaring fire she made:
And while the bread was baking brown,
"Who'll eat the bake?" she said.

"Not I," said the sleepy Frog with a yawn;
"Ner I," said the Mouse again.
So the table she set and the bread put on;
"Who'll eat this bread?" said the Hen.

"I will," cried the Frog, "And I," squeaked the Mouse;
As they neen the table drew;
"Not much you won't!" said the Little Red Hen,
And away with the loaf she flew.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

I want everybody who knows how to do a good turn, even when the opportunity presents itself. A great many times we do a good turn when we know it will make us happy to do so. Sometimes when we do a good turn it gives us more pleasure and satisfaction than the one whom we helped or thought we helped. We are pleased when we feel that we have done something for somebody who really appreciates our effort. As a matter of fact the person we did the good turn for was really our own self and the chances are that we got more real benefit from that good turn than the person we intended to help.

Angelo Patri, principal of a public school in New York, writing of his idea of a good turn says:

I have an idea that the right sort of good turn is doing something that you didn't want to do at all and doing it very well and doing and doing it so that the person for whom you did it never guessed what it costyou. That is a large order but it isn't too large for a real boy who really wants to do something worth while.

The good turn that you did when you hated doing it and when there were none to cheer for you, strengthened your backbone and toned up your mind as nothing else could have done or ever will do.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

BE KIND TO ANIMALS

Dear Uncle Jed: I love all animals. Animals can not talk but they can feel as well as we can so we should be kind to them as well as people. Some boys throw stones at them but if anyone throws stones at them they do not like it very well. We should all learn to be kind to all animals both wild and tame. Cats and dogs do us a great deal of good. So we should also try to be good to them and not hit them unless we have to. Last summer one of our little chickens was sick. I brought him in the house and put him in a box in back of the stove to keep him warm. Today he is a nice big rooster. Maybe if I hadn't taken care of him he might have died.

I hope all the Wide Awakes will be kind to all animals and if you find a bird or any animal that is hurt take care of it until it is well again. Won't all the Wide Awakes try and be kind to all animals?

ELSIE NYGREN, Age 8.

DOG WATCHES COWS

Dear Uncle Jed: We have a good dog. He is brown, his name is Teddy. In summer when the cows are in the pasture by the river they often cross the river. So we call the dog to go after them. Sometimes he watches himself. He barks at them so they run back to the pasture.

JULIA WIERZKINSKI, Age 11.
Norwich Town.

COCOANUTS AND DATES

Dear Uncle Jed: The cocoanuts come from distant countries to us, to be transformed into shredded cocoanut. They are grown mostly near the Carribean sea. The cocoanuts grow on a very tall tree similar to the date tree. When the cocoanuts are taken from the palms they are loaded on wagons and are drawn by oxen.

The tree is so high that the natives use a rope to harvest them. The cocoanut has many uses besides food. The natives use the leaves for the roofs of their huts. The thick trees are used for making cradles, torches, ropes and masks. The oil is used for making soap.

The date tree is a tree which grows very high and bears its fruit at the top in bunches. The date has many uses as a food. The Arabs eat the date with milk to give them the nutrition that they would get from sugar. It is of more value as a food to the body than meat.

MARTHA CHOWANIEC, Age 12.

THE FLAG ON OUR SCHOOL

Dear Uncle Jed: I am sending you a story and the name of it is, The Flag On Our School. One day last month our flag strained away out from its staff. I thought it wished to show the stars and stripes, and I cried, "I don't wonder you are proud of your beautiful colors."

And then it seemed to answer: Proud? Why not? Under this banner rode Washington and his armies; before it Burgoyne laid down his arms. It waved on the highlands at West Point; it floated over old Fort Montgoumery. When Arnold would have surrendered these valuable fortresses and precious legacies, his night was turned to day, and his treachery was driven away by the beams of light from this starry banner.

Still my folds sometimes droop. I furled them on February 3rd., when our great and good war president, Woodrow Wilson died. Today however, I ought to flutter gaily, for you know it is Washington's birthday. I now go to my history lesson thinking that our flag, waving up there against the blue, holds all the history in my textbook.

GERTRUDE BLAIN, Age 13.
Baltic.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

Dear Uncle Jed: Washington was born in the center of Westmoreland County. It is a beautiful ride to Westmoreland County where Washington was born. There is much fruit raised there. Perhaps his grandfather brought some with him when he settled in Westmoreland. The climate is very warm. The house which Washington lived in was 60 feet long. It had four rooms. Every year the United States congress gives one hundred dollars for keeping it in good condition. Washington was born February 22, 1732. A greatie shaft marks his home.

FLORENCE SQUIRES, Age 12.

THE RUBBER INDUSTRY

Uncle Jed: Rubber is a product which is used all over the world. It is one of our most essential products. The most important places it comes from is the East Indies and South America. The rubber product is transported by rail and by steamships. Millions of cargoes are shipped to the United States for various uses. When it is exported it is in a raw state called crude rubber.

The rubber tree is cut or tapped in a certain way and drips in a pail. Several pails of rubber sap are derived from each tree in a season. Rubber was first seen by Columbus and his men. He was searching for gold and he landed on an island called Hayti, on his second trip. The Indians were on the shore, throwing a ball back and forth made out of this crude rubber. Columbus took some of these balls back with him. This was the beginning of rubber transportation which is done on a large scale at present.

Charles Goodyear, a Connecticut hardware merchant, was trying to get rubber to stay at one temperature. He tried to make boots and coats out of this rubber but did not succeed at first. When he made these in the summer they would melt and be sticky, while in the winter they became stiff and hard. One day when Charles Goodyear was experimenting, some sulpher happened to get mixed with the rubber. By this sulpher Charles Goodyear invented a process of making rubber elastics, fountain pens, tires, shoes, pipe stems, and many other important things.

SAVED CHIPMUNK'S LIFE

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write my first letter to the Wide Awake Circle. Spring will soon be here. The first chipmunk in March is as sure a token of the spring as the first blue bird or robbin, and quite as welcome. Before the first crocus is out of the ground, you may look for the first chipmunk.

One day in early spring a chipmunk that lived near the shed met with a steps with Topsy, the cat, upon my knee, when the chipmunk came out of his home, a few feet away, and ran to a pile of chestnut posts about 20 yards away from where I sat. Topsy saw it and was off my knee in an instant. I spoke sharply to her, when she sat down and folded her paws under her, still watching the squirrel. Mother called me into the house just then, and when I came out, Topsy was coming towards me with the chipmunk in her mouth. I quickly took the chipmunk from her. I saw she had simply chocked it. Quickly the flim passed off its eyes and slowly it began to move its legs.

I carried him to his little home and laid him down and he crawled in slowly. The next day I laid some corn near where he lived, and after a while he came out for it and he seemed to be all right.

MY TRIP TO YONKERS

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about our trip to Connecticut seven years ago. When we lived in the city of Yonkers, we came to Norwich to spend our vacation, we had to go through a muddy place before we reached the dock. We waited half an hour before the boat came. It was a warm day so we sat on the deck of the boat. My little sister almost fell into the water and since then I would not sit on the deck. I heard the people say that when any one died on the boat they bind them up in cloth and throw them into the water, and let the fish eat them up. I always wished I never would die on the boat. I saw a woman on the deck crying bitterly because she had forgotten her money. She wanted to jump into the water, but her son would not let her. At last she saw her husband coming to her, so she stopped crying. We ate the lunch we brought with us. We ate breakfast in the dining room. I always liked to sleep on the top bed, but when the window was opened I was afraid I would fall out. When we got off the boat my great uncle was waiting for us with his car. We had a good time and when we were leaving I was sorry.

MY TRIP T OBEACH POND

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I am telling you about my trip to Beach Pond. Last summer we went to Beach Pond to my father's cottage. The cottage was across the pond from Camp Tippecan.

A short time after we got to the cottage we went in bathing and sometimes we went fishing.

Every day I went down to the spring with my father. We heard the bugle at the Boy Scout camp every day.

THE WORST OF IT

Dear Uncle Jed: I am sending you a story and the name of it is The Worst of It. Do you want to buy any berries today? said a poor boy to me one afternoon. I looked at the little fellow, and saw that he was very shabbily clothed; gray pantaloons, very much patched, an old cotton shirt, and a miserable felt hat that made up the whole of his dress.

His feet were bare. In both hands he held up a tin pail full of ripe raspberries, which were pretty, peeping out from amid the green leaves that lay over them. I told him I would have three quarts, so taking the pail from him, I stepped into the house. He did not follow, but remained behind whistling to my canaries as they hung in their cage in the porch. He was so interested with my pretty pets, that the berries seemed forgotten. Why did you not come in and see if I measured your berries right? said I.

How do you know that I would not cheat you, and take more than the three quarts I had agreed to take? The boy looked up at me and smiled. I am not afraid, said he, for you would get the worst of it, ma'am. Get the worst of it? I said. What do you mean? Why ma'am, I should only lose my berries, and you would be stealing, don't you think you would get the worst of it?

WILFRED COTE, Age 13.
Baltic.

A CAT AND A MOUSE

Dear Uncle Jed: One time I had a cat named Rusty, who was very intelligent. One night she came to the window and asked to come in. I opened the window to let her come in. She had a mouse in her mouth. She pawed it about for it was still alive. A boy was sitting on a chair near me when the mouse went up the boy's trousers. He jumped with surprise.

Everybody laughed at him but he did not think it was funny. He took the mouse by its tail and sent him flying out of the window. The poor cat wanted the mouse, so she jumped out of the window and brought it in again. She finally tormented it until it was dead.

MARGARET BUSHNELL, Age 10.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

Dear Uncle Jed: George Washington was born February 12, 1732. When he was eleven years old his father died leaving him with his brothers and sisters and his mother. George went to a little country school where he learned to read, write and cipher. By the time he was twelve he could write a good clear hand. George could run faster, jump further and throw a stone higher than any one else in the school. When they played soldier they always took George for captain. Washington's brother married a Fairfax who lived on the Potomac. He went to see the Fairfaxes. He became a great friend of Lord Fairfax. He and another man measured his land.

George Washington was in the French war. He became major and then colonel. Washington fought all through the Revolutionary war. After the war he went back to Mount Vernon to spend the rest of his life. They chose him first president of the United States at New York. Washington was elected president twice. When he died England and France joined America in mourning for him. After many years Lafayette came to visit us. He went to Mount Vernon to the vault. George Washington is one of the leading men of history.

GLADYS SQUIRES, Age 12.
Jewett City.

BIRDS

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the most interesting article I have read about birds. I thought perhaps the Wide-a-Wakes would enjoy reading it.

Birds are only another expression of God's love. It is said that not even a sparrow will be destroyed without the notice of the Father.

They are like a poem come to live on this earth, then set to sing. If you were wandering in a forest at sundown you could hear the notes grow fainter and fainter. After the sun had completely gone down you would hear the night birds begin their plaintive songs. That would be the time you would realize what a world this would be without birds.

Some birds like the city, especially the little sparrows. Many little sparrows will come begging at your window for some crumbs.

Only people that do not understand birds or those who do not stop to think what a beautiful world it is with birds, would harm them.

Lots of people think flowers are lovely. But if they should stop to think, I am sure they would love birds as well as the flowers.

ELIZABETH LUCY, Age 11.
Hanover.

A PET DOG

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write and tell you about my dog, Barney Google. Last September, the seventeenth, was my eight birthday. I had a birthday party and I invited some of my little friends to come. One of them brought me a little, white, fluffy, puppy. He was the cutest little thing you ever saw. He had a big white bow on him when they brought him to me. My mother suggested naming him Barney Google, so of course we all agreed. He has grown everyday and now he is a big dog. All we have to do is sing the song Barney Google, and he is right on deck no matter where he is. He watches for us every day when we come home from school and he wags his tail and barks until we get in the door. I sure was pleased with him and I am going to love him as long as he lives.

LEONARD WILLIAMS, Age 8.
Norwich.

FEEDS THE BIRDS

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write to you about the little birds that that come to my house. I feed the little birds every day. They are very cute. I throw out bread and suet on the snow and the little birds come and have a feast. They are mostly sparrows. There are also two bluejays that come. The bluejays come and take a piece of bread and fly away. The sparrows pick at the bread. There is a bush near the house where the birds come and light. They pick at the suet which hangs on the tree. The birds are becoming more tame. Before they would fly away if anyone made any loud noise or if they saw anyone in the window. Now they don't. I do not see any birds when I throw out food, but in a minute or two the bush is covered with birds and on the ground they are hopping about. I think it is a pleasure to feed the birds and to watch them. I hope that all the Wide-Awakes will enjoy this story and try to feed the little birds.

MIRIAM TAYLOR, Age 11.
South Coventry.

WHAT NED LOST

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write to you about the story of What Ned Lost. One day Ned and his smaller brother were quarreling about marbles. Ned got so angry that he hit his smaller brother. Their mother was in the window and saw them quarrel and she was very much grieved about Ned. When the boys came in for dinner she asked Ned if he knew that he had lost something.

Ned could not think what he had lost. He asked his mother if it was his cap, knife or ball but she said no that it was something much more valuable. She said, "Do you remember this morning when you lost your temper? Is that not more valuable than your cap, knife and ball?"

ANNA LAFLEUR, Age 12.
Baltic.

DON'T GET DISCOURAGED

Dear Uncle Jed: Yesterday our teacher asked us to write a composition on What I think About Life. I wrote the following:

When we are young and first start out into the world to fight our way up, we are full of vigor. We do not know that the world offers a good many advantages.

A large wave of trouble overflows us and we sink down under it discouraged. Don't be discouraged and think you are ruined. Rise up again and start anew.

There is no need of our presence in this life if we continue to stay on the same level. In fact we cannot. We must either succeed or fail. Always keep fresh hope in your heart and you will find that you will succeed again.

NETTIE FULLER.
Eagleville.

THE WHEAT MARKETS

Dear Uncle Jed: Wheat is raised in United States, Canada, Egypt, Austria, Hungary, India, France, China, Germany, Argentina and Mexico. The states of the United States which produce extensively are Minnesota, Missouri, Illinois, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Washington and Ohio. The markets are Chicago, Minneapolis, Duluth, Superior, New York, St. Paul, St. Louis, Pennsylvania, New Orleans and Toledo. Wheat is used mostly in the places it is raised. It is used in most every part of the world.

First the land must be plowed by a plow called sang plow. The ground must be fertile and wet. Then it is harrowed by a harrow.

United States raises the best wheat. Harvesting time is in the late summer or fall. It is shipped by rail. It is manufactured into flour by machinery. The uses of wheat are for flour, bread, cakes, cereals, pastes and feed for chickens and horses. The stalks are used for bedding. Wheat is the most important grain. United States sends much to Europe.

BOBBIE HAWKINS, Age 9.
South Coventry.

THE VALUE OF MILK

Dear Uncle Jed: This week we are taking up a project in milk, and we find it very interesting. Milk is the best food and it is the cheapest food. Children should drink one pint of milk a day, or one quart is better. Milk contains proteins, fats, minerals and vitamins, which help us to build up our muscles. Milk must be clear, fresh and wholesome. It is safest to pasteurize it. This kills bacteria.

Milk produces energy, growth and health and is an economical food. It makes us, "healthy, wealthy and wise." Some of the slogans in our project are, The goblins will get you if you don't drink milk. For health, one quart of milk a day. Up with milk, down with tea and coffee. Milk for sound teeth. Children should not drink tea or coffee at all. Milk for the whole family. One pint of milk equals two eggs or two slices of bread, so we consider there is more nourishment in milk than in any other food of the same quantity.

KEITH ROSE, Age 8.
South Coventry.

OUR SCHOOL

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have ever written to you. I am going to tell you about our school and what we do at recess.

Our school is very small. It sandits on the top of Cooley hill. There are seventeen children in our school. We have two book cases, which two of the boys made. We have one large cupboard in which we keep papers and books. There are nine slate boards which go around the schoolroom. I am in the second grade and I am seven years old.

At recess time we play in the lot and there is an apple tree which we get apples from in the summer. There is also a big hill in the lot where we slide down hill. Many times I fall and hurt myself.

JENNIE IDZKOWSKI, Age 7.
North Franklin.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I am writing about St. Valentine's Day. On St Valentine's Day we had a party. I was on the refreshment committee. We played games and I won a prize in the peanut race. It was a heart shaped box with heart shaped candy. The refreshments were candy, a cake with a heart on the top, apples and sandwiched.

RUTH YELEN, Age 10.
Norwich.

WHEN I WAS IN MAINE

Dear Uncle Jed: I have just come from Maine and I am going to stay here so I thought I would write you a letter to be published in the Wide Awake circle. When I left Maine there were three feet of snow on the ground, and the ponds and brooks were frozen over. It was not good skating because of the snow on the ice, but it was good sliding.

I lived about three miles from the village. I lived on a farm and went to school. Also I drove the school team and had five scholars with myself.

On Saturdays a small boy and I went sliding. I had chores to do but I did not work, for when I got them done I could play. At night I sat by the stove and read.

ARNOLD KENDALL, Age 13.
Norwich.

PARTNERS

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to you. Once there were two little boys in a hospital. One of them was named Macky and the other Danny. Macky could walk on crutches and Danny couldn't move at all. They spent the hours in talking about what they were to do when they were older. They said they were going to run a candy stand and Danny was to sit in his chair and sell the candy. In the evening they heard the fire alarm. They heard the people in the hospital shout, "fire."

The sick people were all driven out except Macky and Danny who were left in their room. They couldn't get to them because the hospital was full of flames and smoke. The people heard a strange noise coming near. It was Macky with Danny on his back. Strong arms caught them. Macky fainted. When he opened his eyes he said, "Where is Danny? You know we were partners."

A BAD SCARE

Dear Uncle Jed and the Wide-a-Wakes: This time I am going to tell you about my adventure. One night my little brother and a girl friend of mine went sliding on Delaney's hill. We had a good time. We had a scare, too. We saw someone coming. He went from one side of the road to the other as though he was drunk. We didn't think anybody would hurt us but when that man saw us he ran after us. We ran and he ran even faster. We jumped over a fence and ran down the back road. Then we ran across the lots and you may believe we were glad to get there safely.

Next morning one of the boys told us our drunken man was one of the big boys from the village trying to scare us.

DORIS CROWDER, Age 10.

MY HUNTING TRIP

Dear Uncle Jed: One afternoon I went hunting with some of my friends. We hunted for about two hours but we could not see any game in sight. Finally one of my friends happened to see a gray squirrel running through a field. We chased it for half an hour but could not catch it. At last we succeeded in getting hold of it's tail and then we quickly shot it. We received a few bites but it did not do us any serious harm. We were well pleased with it because we found it to be quite a large squirrel. After we had skinned it we hung it on a board. Later I resolved to make a glove of it.

ALBERT AIREY, Age 11.
Taftville.

TAPIOCA

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write to you about tapioca. The tapioca plant is from four to ten feet in height. In planting the cuttings are inserted in the ground to the depth of two or three inches and require little attention until the crop is ready to harvest, twelve to eighteen months after planting.

The part of the plant that is utilized for the production of tapioca is the part below the ground, consisting of one or more tubers closely resembling a sweet potato. Some of the tubers weigh as much as 25 to 30 pounds.

The tubers are pulled out by hand or dug by a heavy hoe. After it is dug out it is taken to the factory where the tapioca is extracted. It is removed from the tanks and placed in the centrifugal where all superfluous moisture is thrown off.

After it is dried at the tapioca factory the bags are carried into a clean cement storehouse and piled by a machine to a height of sixteen or eighteen feet.

When the time comes that flour is needed the bags are emptied into a hopper from which the flour is carried by a conveyor to the floor above where it passes through a bolter containing a silk sieve through which only the finest flour can pass.

From the bolter the flour passes by a conveyor to the factory building and is received at the storage bin, from which it is taken to the overhead scales in which the flour is weighed.

From the scales it drops into the mixer in which the dough is carried by the conveyors to the granulator which preparse it for cooking process. Coming from the granulator this material drops into metal trays from which it is taken to the large steam-cookers.

Here the moist grannies of dough are thoroughly cooked. After cooking it is delivered to the dryers. Then by means of a bucket elevator it is carried to the storage bins where it is taken to the crusher.

After crushing the tapioca goes again to a storage bin. Then it goes to the automatic weigher and filler.

THE FIRST AMERICAN FLAG

Dear Uncle Jed: The first American flag was planned on the 14th day of June 1777, by the Continental Congress. We are told that previous to this in 1776, a committee was appointed to look after the matter, and together with General Washington they called at the house of Betsy Ross, 239 Arch street, Philadelphia. Betsy Ross was a young widow of 24, heroically supporting herself by continuing the upholstery business of her late husband, young John Ross, a patriot who had died for his country. Betsy was noted for her exquisite needlework. They asked her if she could make a flag. She replied with diffidence, as she didn't know whether she could or not. They said she could make a six pointed star, but she made a five pointed star as she didn't want our star like the British star. Her flag was accepted. Betsy Ross made the first American flag.

A TRIP TO SUNNY FRANCE

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing about a trip to sunny France.

One day in summer, I thought I would take a trip to sunny France. I started and I was on a big steamship. I landed at Havre, after a long ride on the ocean. I thought it would be better to rest at Havre. I went to pictures there and found it interesting. I then went in a big hotel and stayed here over night.

Th following morning I went down to the river and got a boat. It took me to Paris which is the capital of France. When I was there I first went to see the Royal Palace. I visited many other places which were interesting. The best of all I liked the cathedrals.

From there I went to Reims to see my friend. She took me to see many beautiful buildings. One of them was a cathedral which was much damaged in the world war. I then started for Bordeau where I saw many vineyards. Then I started for home. I awoke and and found that it was a dream.

A SHEEP IN COURT

Dear Uncle Jed: I am sending you a story about A Sheep in Court.

A man in India was brought before the judge for stealing a sheep. The supposed owner of the sheep was also present. Both men claimed the sheep, and had witnesses to prove their claims, so it was difficult for the judge to decide. Knowing, however, the custom of the shepherds he resorted to the following expedient. He had the sheep brought into court and sent one of the men into an adjoining room, while he told the other to call the sheep, but the animal, not knowing the "voice of a stranger," would not go to him.

In the meantime the other claimant, in another room, growing impatient and suspecting the kind of experiment that was going on gave a kind of "cluck." The sheep bounded away toward him without a moment's delay.

This "cluck" was the way in which he was accustomed to call his sheep and it was at once decided that he was the real owner.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

Dear Uncle Jed: As it is the birthday of the father of our country I'm going to write to you and the Wide Awakes about him. He was our first president, and was loved by everyone.

While he was a boy and going to school, he was at the head of every game, and also of his studies. He became surveyor for Lord Fairfax. He was chosen by the governor to take a message to the French captain to leave the Ohio. He joined with Braddock's campaign against the French, and in the battle he tried very hard to save the army. The Revolutionary war lasted seven years. These were terrible years of sorrow, suffering and death, but now the end had come and America was free.

When Washington knew that there was to be no more fighting he went back to Mount Vernon. He had hoped to stay here the rest of his life but his country needed him and a few years later he was elected president. He was inaugurated in New York City. A French gentleman tells us how Washington was standing amongst a thousand people, when he placed his hand on the Bible and solemnly swore that with the help of God he would protect and defend the United States of America. He was elected president twice. When he died, many people in France and England joined America in mourning for him, for all men honored his memory.

Lafayette, who helped us in the Revolutionary war came to visit us many years afterward, and the first place he went to was Washington's tomb. There he went down in the vault and kneeling beside the coffin, covered his face with his hands, and shed tears of graditude, to think that he had known such a man as Washington, and that he had been his friend. His name stands today among those of the greatest men in the history of the world.

A STORY ABOUT COTTON

Dear Uncle Jed: I have never written to you before and I am going to tell the boys and girls something about cotton. Cotton comes from a plant which grows in the sunny south. The cotton plant looks much like the hollyhock that grows in our gardens at the north and it belongs to the same family. A full grown cotton plant is about four feet high. It has dark green leaves shaped like a maple leaf. A field of cotton in full bloom is a beautiful sight. The first day the blossoms are a light yellow. On the second day they turn pink or red. The third day they fall off.

Cotton grows best where the summers are long, where the climate is warm or hot and where there is plenty of rain. Cotton grows well in the southern states and also in India, Egypt and Brazil.

Many years ago a boy was born who was to have a great influence on cotton growing and the industry. His name was Eli Whitney, and he invented the cotton gin. Before Eli Whitney invented the cotton gin it did not pay very well to raise cotton because a man could clean but one pound of cotton in a day. With Eli Whitney's gin a man could clean one thousand pounds in a day. Factories began at once to plant more cotton. Cotton mills began to be built in New England. Soon the south was selling cotton both to the north and to the manufacturers of England.

As the cotton pickers pick the cotton out of the brown shells of bolls they put it into bags. When the bags are full they are taken to the wagons which carry the cotton to the gin. A few years ago a big machine was invented for picking cotton. Many southern planters are now using this machine.

The south is still sending cotton to the mills of the north and the mills of England. During the last few years many cotton mills have been built in the south and the southern people are now manufacturing some of their own cotton.

MY CHICKENS

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written to the Wide Awakes for quite awhile. I am going to tell you about my chickens. I have always had Buff Orpington's but now I have a new kind. They are White Wyandottes and I like them very much. I have three two year old hens and a rooster. My father traded with one of his neighbors and got a white Wyandotte pullet. The size of my coop is eight feet long and four feet wide. I have two nests in it but just the little pullet is laying now but I think the others will lay soon. The pullet is always scratching in the hay and hungry. I have 46 Buff Orpington hens and three roosters. The largest rooster took a prize in New York.

The other day I got ten eggs from them. I am feeding them egg mash, oats and corn. My mother feeds them at noon when I am at school. The size of the Buff Orpingtons' coop is ten feet long, five feet wide and they have two scratch sheds bigger than the coop. I have them shut up now because there is snow and I get more eggs. I have four bantams, one rooster and three hens. I keep them in a coop by themselves. I shall be glad when it comes time to batch chickens for I like them.

Bumstead's Worm Syrup

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

The Peppermint Red Barn

A yellow bird sat in an apple tree,
Close to the beautiful river Dee.
And all day long, said the blossoms sweet,
She sang to the daisies, white and neat.

You remember, I'm sure, what happened in the last story. But in case you have forgotten, I will remind you that the dwarf had led Little Jack Rabbit to Molasses Candy Bridge that spanned the river Dee between the Land of Dawn and Old Mother Country.

In a few minutes, the bunny boy hopped over and then, in a few minutes, slippperty slip, lipperty lip, away he went across the meadow.

As he hopped under an apple tree in blossom, a pretty voice began to sing:

"The chocolate mice are very wise.
They look this way with their bright black eyes,
And they look that way before they squeeze
Through the hole in the wall to hunt for cheese."

"Who are you?" asked the bunny boy, when all of a sudden, that little yellow bird I have so often told you about fluttered out of the blossoming apple tree.

"Oh, here you are!" laughed the happy little rabbit. "I'm so glad to see the little bird who has so often sung to me in rhyme."

"I have known you for a long time" answered the little bird, "but you have never seen me. Now, let me tell you how you may catch the chocolate mice."

At once the bunny boy seated himself on a fallen tree while the little bird perched herself on a twig.

"In yonder red peppermint barn," she commenced, "are many chocolate mice. Tonight when the moon is bright, hop softly through the door. Maybe you can catch one!"

Then away flew the little bird and the bunny boy hopped across the lollypop syrup brook that wound in and out among the long wintergreen grasses.

"To the peppermint barn," answered the little rabbit.

"Let me give you some advice," replied the long-legged insect. "If you show yourself there in the daytime, the chocolate mice will be mighty careful tonight."

"I guess you're right," said the bunny boy. "But where shall I go?"

"Come to my haystack house," answered the good natured grasshopper hopping across the meadow. "You may have to stoop for my doorway is not overhigh," he explained as he came to a large haystack in the corner of the fence. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

NEW LONDON YOUTHS ROUNDED UP FOR RINGING IN FALSE FIRE ALARMS

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, March 2.—The police this morning rounded up a gang of youths, some of their number being suspected of being the parties who have been ringing in false alarms for several months. Three of the gang are locked up at the police station and will be given a hearing tomorrow morning. The prisoners are Rexford Bogue of 528 Main street, Robert Powers, 152 Crystal avenue and John Hibbard, 168 Crystal avenue.

Powers has a police court record, having been implicated in the robbery of the store of Lyon & Ewald several months ago and at the present time is a probationer of the superior court, having received a suspended sentence for the part he played in the robbery.

For about four months the fire department has been called out a number of times for false alarms rung in from Box 12, corner of Tenth and Harrison streets. The police have been satisfied that the ringing was the work of members of a gang of boys in East New London. Last night shortly after 11 o'clock a false alarm was sounded from Box 14, corner of Crystal avenue and Main street. This morning, Sergeant Frank Howard, Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolman Edward Daniels were assigned to the task of apprehending the offender. Information was received from women residing in the vicinity of Crystal avenue that the alarm last night was pulled by one of several young men, who make a practice of loitering about that section where the boxes pulled are located. The officers rounded up the entire gang, but after a grilling of three hours the youths refused to reveal any information whereby the crime could be fastened on any one of their gang. The suspicion against Powers, Hibbard and Bogue, however, was so strong that they were held for trial.

This afternoon a young man was located and his version of the sounding of Saturday night's alarm will be used against Bogue and Powers, when they are presented in court. The witness declares that he was on his way to his home on Winthrop street about 11 o'clock after having played basketball. He carried his playing togs beneath his arm and when he reached the corner of Crystal avenue and Main street, Bogue and Powers were standing alongside the fire alarm box. One of the accused knocked the shoes from beneath the witness' arm and as the latter went to recover his property, the alarm sounded and Bogue and Powers fled.

This evening Bogue, Hibbard and Powers were liberated upon securing a surety on their respective bonds of $200, Herman Katz qualifying as surety for Powers and Hibbard and Antonion Gigliotti becoming surety for Bogue.

M., and will be continued commencing each day at 10 o'clock A. M., on the premises on Wednesday, March 19, 1924, Thursday, March 20, 1924, and Friday, March 21, 1924.

With respect to the sale directed by said Massachusetts decree, the same will commence at the front door of the office building of the plant of Manhasset Manufacturing Company in Taunton, Massachusetts, on Monday, March 24, 1924, at 10 o'clock A. M., and will be continued, commencing at 10 o'clock A. M. on the premises on Tuesday, March 25, 1924.

The Receivers may adjourn or continue either sale from time to time by announcement by the Receivers or the auctioneers for adjournment or continuance made at the time and place appointed for the original sale or any adjourned sale or during the progress of any such sale and without further notice or publication may proceed with the same on any day to which the same may have been adjourned or continued.

II.

In the case both of the property directed by said Connecticut order and by said Massachusetts decree to be sold, the real estate will be sold subject to all rights, public or private, in, over, under or to said real estate and all streets and ways included in or adjacent to any part or parcel thereof, to all payments for flowage rights and liability for maintaining or contributing to the maintenance of dams or reservoirs, and to all easements, exceptions, restrictions, reservations, burdens, covenants, obligations and conditions of record; except, in the case of the real estate directed to be sold by said Connecticut order, a certain mortgage covering part of said real estate by and between The Putnam Land Company and the trustees under the will of Thomas Harris, dated August 3, 1919, and recorded in Putnam Land Records in Volume 33, at pages 13-20, which mortgage is to be discharged out of the proceeds of sale of said Putnam real estate.

III.

If either the property directed to be sold by said Connecticut order or the property directed to be sold by said Massachusetts decree is sold as an entirety, it will be sold subject to all taxes and assessments in the nature of taxes upon or with respect to the real estate, equipment and machinery payable at any time during the current calendar year, whether due before or after the sale or confirmation of sale or the delivery of instruments of transfer, and the purchaser will be required to assume such taxes and assessments.

If the property directed to be sold by said Connecticut order, either real or personal, is sold in lots or parcels, it will be sold free and clear of taxes.

If the property directed to be sold by said Massachusetts decree is sold in lots or parcels, the machinery and equipment will be sold free and clear of taxes. If the real estate included in said property is sold in lots or parcels, it will be sold subject to all taxes and assessments in the nature of taxes upon or with respect to such real estate payable at any time during the current calendar year, whether due before or after the sale or confirmation of sale or the delivery of instruments of transfer; and purchasers will be required to assume the same. The apportionment of such taxes, as between said parcels of real estate, will be determined by the taxing authority or authorities in the City of Taunton, Massachusetts. In the event of the failure or refusal by said taxing authority or authorities to make such apportionment, it will be determined equitably by the Receivers.

Water rates will be adjusted as of the date of delivery of instruments of transfer.

IV.

In making the sales directed by said Connecticut order and said Massachusetts decree, the Receivers will accept no bid as final from any bidder, who shall not, at the conclusion of the bidding under each method of sale adopted as aforesaid or within such reasonable time thereafter as may be fixed by the Receivers, deposit with said auctioneer as a pledge that he will make good his bid, in the event of its acceptance, an amount equivalent to not less than (1) 5% of the amount of his said bid, if made for either property directed to be sold as aforesaid, as an entirety, and (2) 25% of the amount of his said bid if for a lot or parcel of said property, either in cash or by certified check upon some national bank or trust company; or, at the option of the bidder, (3) 30% of his said bid in principal amount either of claims against, or notes of Manhasset Manufacturing Company properly assigned or accompanied by proper assignments thereof. Such deposits may be made partly in cash or certified check and partly in said claims and notes but in the same relative proportion.

Any lot or parcel struck off for $500 or less must be paid for in full at the time; provided, that if several lots or parcels are struck off to the same bidder for an aggregate amount in excess of $500, he will be required to make only a deposit of $500 plus 25% of the amount by which his total purchase exceeds $500.

Such deposits and all payments shall be made to the auctioneers, G. L. & H. J. Gross, 170 Westminster Street, Providence, Rhode Island, agents for the Receivers.

All lots or parcels with respect to which deposits and payments are not made as herein required will be resold before the auctioneer leaves the premises, and the first purchasers will be held responsible for any loss.

The deposit made by any bidder for a separate lot or parcel may, so far as applicable, be applied on account of the deposit required on any bid by him for the same property when offered for sale with other property as an entirety. Any deposit received on a bid not finally accepted will be returned when the property shall have been struck off. The deposit received from a successful bidder or bidders shall be applied on account of the purchase price of the property.

In case any bidder, upon the acceptance of his bid by the Receivers, shall fail, within the period of 20 days after the acceptance thereof, to comply (1) with any order of said Superior Court of Connecticut requiring or relating to the payment of the balance of the purchase price for any property sold under said Connecticut order; or (2) with any order or decree of said Superior Court of Massachusetts requiring or relating to the payment of the balance of the purchase price for any property sold under said Massachusetts decree, then and in each such case moneys, claims or notes deposited by such accepted bidder or bidders shall be forfeited as a penalty for such failures and shall be applied to the payment of the expenses of a resale and toward making good any deficiency or loss in case the property in respect to which such accepted bidder shall make default shall be sold at a less price on such resale and to such other purposes as may be directed by court order or decree.

In case an application to confirm any sale is denied, a deposit made by an accepted bidder at such sale will thereupon be returned to such bidder.

No minimum price is fixed either by Connecticut order or by said Massachusetts decree for the respective properties to be sold thereunder, but each Court reserves full power and discretion to reject any and all bids for the property directed by it to be sold as aforesaid. Every sale under said Connecticut order or said Massachusetts decree will be subject to court confirmation.

Bids, (either for the property by said Connecticut order or the property by said Massachusetts decree directed to be sold) if made for such property as an entirety, must, (and no combination of bids for either property as lots or parcels will be accepted which does not aggregate a sufficient amount to) provide, (a), in the case of said property directed to be sold by said Connecticut order, for the payment in cash to the Receivers of such sum as the Receivers may deem sufficient, to meet the two classes in clauses (a) and (b) of Article IX in said Connecticut order enumerated of charges upon the proceeds of sale; and (b) in the case of said Massachusetts decree, for the payment in cash to the Receivers of such sum as the Receivers may deem sufficient to meet the class in clause (a) of Article VIII of said Massachusetts decree enumerated of charges upon the proceeds of sale.

Any creditor, officer, director or stockholder of Manhasset Manufacturing Company may bid at the sale and, if a successful bidder, may purchase in his, its or their own right.

Purchasers of real estate must allow purchasers of machinery and equipment access to the property to remove purchases until the expiration of 60 days from the delivery of instruments of transfer.

V.

Upon the confirmation of any sale, the purchaser shall make to the auctioneers such payment or payments in cash on account of the purchase price of the property sold as the Court confirming such sale may direct and shall pay the balance of such purchase price to said auctioneers not later than 60 days after the entry of the order or decree of confirmation, unless otherwise ordered therein.

So much of the purchase price for the property sold as may not be required by the Court confirming the same to be paid in cash may be paid in cash, or the purchaser may satisfy and make good the balance of his bid in whole or in part by delivering to the Receivers to be cancelled or to have payment credited thereon claims filed with the Receivers against, or notes of, Manhasset Manufacturing Company entitled to be paid out of the proceeds of sale on distribution thereof (as provided in said Connecticut order and said Massachusetts decree) to the extent that such proceeds are available for such purposes. Said claims and notes shall be properly assigned or accompanied by proper assignments and shall be received subject to court allowance thereof or to allowance by a master or committee duly appointed.

A purchaser shall be credited on account of the purchase price of property sold to such purchaser, as and when claims and notes so delivered by such purchaser with such sums as would be payable in respect to such claims or notes, out of the proceeds of sale if the whole amount of the said purchase price were paid in cash. No claim which shall not have been filed in accordance with the respective orders or decrees of the Courts aforesaid will, unless otherwise ordered, be enforceable or entitled to share in the distribution of any proceeds of sale.

Each of the Courts aforesaid respectively retains jurisdiction as to the property directed by it to be sold as aforesaid for the purpose, among others, of enforcing the foregoing provisions, and the exclusive power and jurisdiction to deliver to the purchaser or purchasers or his or their assigns titles to, and possession of, said property and to determine any and all controversies as to the character, extent and validity of title or possession of such purchaser or his assigns acquired through the execution of its order or decree of sale; and to retake and resell said property in case the purchaser thereof shall fail to comply with any judgment, decree or order in respect to the payment of any indebtedness, obligation or liability required to be paid by such purchaser under the provisions of said order or decree of sale within 30 days after service of a certified copy of a judgment, decree or order specifically requiring such payment, or within such further time as may be ordered; subject, however, to any rights of appeal or stay of proceedings, provided by law.

VII.

Each of said Courts also reserves for its future adjudication all questions not disposed of by its said order or decree of sale.

For further particulars, reference is hereby made (1) to said Connecticut order of sale, (2) to said Massachusetts decree of sale, and (3) to the respective records in the aforesaid cases.

For information setting forth further details as to the terms of sale and also showing in detail a listing and description of the properties herein referred to, to be sold as aforesaid, as the same will be offered in lots or parcels, reference is hereby made to said circular, which may be obtained upon application to the Receivers or to the auctioneers, G. L. & H. J. Gross, 170 Westminster Street, Providence, Rhode Island.

The terms of sale as herein and in said circular stated may be amended or added to at the time of each sale referred to herein, and the official terms of sale will be those read at such time—all such terms, however, being subject to the terms and provisions of said Connecticut order and said Massachusetts decree.

WESTMINSTER

Mr. H. Michaelsen, owner of the former Tonnesson place, who has lived alone during the winter his family waiting to come from New York in the spring, is seen to have neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Griffin, new owners of the Power place on the corner above, former Bridgeport residents, have brought part of their goods and are making their headquarters at the home of the Johnsons while waiting for the balance of their things and having the house repaired and made comfortable.

Ben Davies is taking a vacation in his home on Westminster Hill.

After about a week of their honeymoon spent at Restawhile, Lewis Greenman and his bride have gone to live with Mr. and Mrs. William H. Greenman, parents of the groom.

By mistake Allen Moodys name was omitted from the list of those recently visiting Mrs. Moody's brother and family at Nooseneck Hill, R. I.

Elwood O. Hubbard has sent home to his parents Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hubbard the certificate of his honorable discharge from the United States navy. This was made necessary by a serious illness soon after entering the service, which disqualified him for its often strenuous duties and experiences. The young man is now working in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Walter Marcotte and little daughter who have been spending some months in the family of Mr. Marcotte's sister in Willimantic, last week moved back to Bridgeport, where they formerly lived. At present they are with the family of William Johnson who are in Bridgeport for the winter. Mr. Johnson was here recently.

Miss Julia Green, employed in Putnam, was a week end visitor in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Green.

William H. Haywood of Moosup was a Westminster visitor last week.

A. Hale Bennett has resigned from the local school board after about forty years of continuous service. The board filled his place by appointing Mrs. Bernice Kearnes for the remainder of Mr. Bennett's term.

A number of dog-owners in town have recently been fined for allowing their dogs to go un-tagged.

Herman Stearns is now boarding at Fred Brown's.

March 5 is the first day of the Lenten season. The topic for the whole period is to be "The Wonderful Way of Living." Scripture for the home hour of prayer that day is Matt. 4:24-34. A part of Christ's sermon on the Mount.

The pastor has received a list of places and dates for the one-day prohibition information institutes in this region, with Putnam and Norwich leading the list for March 3 and 4.

As already noted in the Bulletin the place of the Norwich institute Tuesday is the Trinity M. E. church, the hours 2 p. m. and 7.15 p. m. Among the fine list of speakers is Rev. Sam Small, known internationally for his temperance and revival work.

TAFTVILLE

The second night of the Ponemah Wheel Club minstrel show held in Ponemah Hall, Friday evening, was fully as successful as the opening night. The hall was again filled to capacity, many of the audience coming from out of town. Scores of cars were parked on the village streets in the vicinity of the hall. The musical numbers were generously applauded and Harry Schwartz as an end man in his song, "Onions Bring Memories of You," brought down the house. He executed a graceful dance at the conclusion of his number, and had to respond so many times that his wind finally failed him, and he had to lean against the wall to recover. Albert Jarvis in his skillful acrobatic dance, which included handsprings and back and front somesaults delighted the audience who repeatedly called him back. The jokes, especially those at the expense of local people caused much merriment. One of the numbers which was added to the program for the second night was "The Stammering Sweetheart" by Fred Holdsworth. The orchestra accompaniment for this number was very unique, in fact, at times it was hard to tell whether it was the orchestra or the soloist who was stammering. The song was a great success, and Mr. Holdsworth was recalled to sing, They Go Wild, Simply Wild Over Me, the orchestra again contributing to the wonderful success of the number. Although the expenses for the production will be high, for the local boys spared nothing to give the public one of the best entertainments ever seen here, it is believed that a comfortable sum will be added to the club treasury as a result of the hard work of the members of the troupe.

Miss Dorothy Wood of the State Normal School, Willimantic has returned after spending the week-end at her home on South Second avenue.

Miss Sophie Pryzekop has resigned her position with the Ponemah Company.

St. Jean Baptist Society met Sunday afternoon at Parish Hall.

STARTING TO BUILD ON NORTH MAIN STREET

Charles W. Burton has broken ground for a new house on North Main street.

It will contain two apartments of seven rooms each and will have all improvements and will be thoroughly modern in every respect.

He is also planning on building a seven-room bungalow on Boswell avenue, near North Main street.

Rev. E. G. Biddle Recovers.

Rev. E. George Biddle, D.D., formerly of Norwich and New London, now pastor of the Federated church in Amherst, Mass., has been ill with the grip three weeks in North Cambridge, where his last previous pastorate was, but has recovered and preached in North Cambridge Sunday.

Some men are as anxious to get into the limelight as others are to dodge it.

SALVATION ARMY HEAD DENIES PUBLISHED REPORTS

Commandant E. W. Wilbur of the Salvation Army has received from Commissioner Thomas Estill, head of the Salvation Army in the Eastern and Southern States, the following statement.

"In the attitude of the Salvation Army with regard to secret societies, there is nothing to which the members of such organizations can possibly take offense. It is quite true that we do not wish our officers to be 'joiners' and our reasons are such as to commend themselves to any reasonable person who thoroughly understands the purpose and mission of the Salvation Army.

"First I should like to deny most emphatically several allegations made in one or two of the morning papers. The statement that so many of our officers resent the attitude of their organization on the subject that there is likely to be a 'revolt' is totally irresponsible. Salvation Army officers are loyal to their organization and to intimate that any of them would withdraw is greatly to underestimate the feeling of devotion and attachment with which they serve in their chosen work.

"Another irresponsible implication is that this question has anything to do with Commander Evangeline Booth's tenure of office in this country or with the control or lack of control over our work in this country by the International Headquarters in London. So far as we know Commander Booth is in her present appointment for an indefinite period. The two questions have no bearing whatever on one another. In this morning's "World" the statement was made that the International Headquarters in London exercised such control over the Salvation Army in the United States that it passed upon every promotion and policy and held the power to divert monies raised in this country to purposes other than those for which they were raised. Nothing could be farther from the truth.

"Among our reasons for not wishing our officers to be 'joiners' are that they haven't the time to devote to frequent meetings and to committee work of various kinds. They are required to be on duty and subject to the call of those who need them at all hours.

"They haven't the money with which to pay dues and assessments in various organizations. Their salaries, or allowances, are not more than sufficent to provide absolute necessities of life.

"Membership in these societies frequently leads to controversial embarrassment that handicaps an officer in the prosecution of his work. Salvation Army Officers are in the field to serve everybody regardless of race, color or creed. Therefore we must not take sides in controversies that are to destroy our usefulness to any groups of people who are likely to need and welcome our help.

"I should like to call attention to the fact, also, that the articles in the Staff Review to which reference was made in the morning papers was written for international consumption, and some of the criticisms included in the article, have no reference to the United States.

"Nothing in this article can be construed as demanding the withdrawal of officers from societies to which they already belong."

The following which is taken from a clipping in one of the papers containg observations by the Chief of the Staff Commissioner Higgins, on this controversy. This may be taken as authoritative.

"Denial that General Bramwell Booth, head of the Salvation Army, issued an order calling upon officers of his organization in America to resign from any secret societies they may belong to was given out today by Commissioner E. J. Higgins, Chief of the Staff.—General Booth has issued no order, Higgins declared, nor has he prohibited members of the Army from joining such societies in the future.'"

Higgins admitted, however, that his chief prefers officers not to belong to secret societies. Denying also that General Booth is waging a campaign against his sister, Commander Evangeline Booth, Higgins said before sailing for Australia, General Booth confirmed her appointment as the Army's chief officers in the United States for three years more.

NORWICH MOOSE HAD EIGHTEEN FOR INITIATION

A class of eighteen candidates was initiated Sunday afternoon at a special meeting of Norwich Lodge, No. 950, L. O. O. M., at the Moose Home, Laurel Hill. The meeting opened at 3.30 and the class was initiated by the regular degree team of the lodge, Dictator George J. Geopfert presiding. After the initiation the remainder of the afternoon was devoted to sociability. LaRoche's orchestra provided a concert programme and about 6.30 o'clock a chowder was served the large number present.

The arrangements for the initiation and entertainment were in the hands of the "On to New York Committee," W. R. Hastedt, chairman, Seymour DeRusha and Bernard Wunderlich. Since the present membership drive started the lodge has initiated about 40 candidates, bringing the membership up to about 500.

The lodge is making preparations to observe the paying off of the mortgage on the Moose Home which was purchased in 1914, soon after the lodge was organized. The burning of the mortgage will probably take place on the date of the lodge's anniversary, May 19th.

BATTERY B DANCE FILLED STATE ARMORY

A crowd estimated at 1,000 attended the Battery B dance Saturday evening at the armory, which was one of the most successful held this season by the battery. The Paul Whiteman Leviathan orchestra, which is now on furlough from the ocean liner, furnished the music. From 8 to 8.30 the orchestra gave the following concert programme:

Selection, from Little Nellie Kelly, orchestra; fox trot, Linger a While, orchestra; violin solo, At the Dawning, Robert Berne; Blossom Time, and Shanghai Lullaby, orchestra; Maggie, Yes, Ma'm, Keith Pitman, bass saxophone and Robert Bowman, soprano saxophone.

The dancers were highly pleased with the excellent music furnished by the orchestra and hope was expressed by a number of those in attendance that the orchestra will play a return engagement soon. The orchestra, in meeting with popular demand from many quarters, March 13th they are to play in a three cornered battle of music and shortly after that they are going on a tour of Pennsylvania an New York states. Next Saturday night they are booked for Meriden.

PARENTS NOT TO COERCE CHILDREN, SAYS PRIEST

"Parents should advise and counsel their children—they must not decide their state of life for them," said Rev. Myles P. Galvin, preaching at the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church, Sunday, in continuation of his series of instructions on the Fourth Commandment, "Honor thy father and thy mother." Father Galvin was making the point that God has given each mortal free will; hence that children grown to manhood and womanhood must not be coerced into anything distasteful for which they have no true vocation.

He took up again the three states—the religious, the married and unmarried. Some mistaken parents force their sons or daughters into the religious life when they have no direct call from God to be His special servants. Others prevent their children from marrying from selfish reasons, or will prove a source of trouble by being too critical, when the two questions that should be asked in regard to any young man or young woman whom a child shows an inclination to marry are, "Is he or she a practical Catholic?" and "Do they really love each other?" Still other parents wreck the lives of their children by forcing them to marry against their will, or to marry a man or a woman of the parents' choice, through motives of avarice or ambition.

The preacher spoke of the unmarried state, of those whom God has destined to show no inclination to marry, who spend their lives in doing good, often in the devoted care of parents or others, who by their example and lives of virtue aid others in saving their souls, as well as saving their own. Such, too, should have a choice of vocation, as should those whom selfish parents often oppose in marrying because desiring their support or their care.

The day was Quinquagesima Sunday, about fifty days before Easter. The epistle read in all the masses throughout the Catholic world was 1 Corinthians, 13, 1-13, and the gospel was Luke 18, 31-42—the restoration of sight to blind Bartemeus.

In giving Holy Communion Father Galvin had the assistance of Rev. Rocco J. Guerriero.

ONE TRAFFIC OFFICER FOR EVERY 2,125 PERSONS

One traffic officer is provided on an average for every 2,125 persons in twenty-six of the larger centers of population in Connecticut, according to a police survey completed by the state motor department. Out of 1,373 policemen available for all purposes in these cities and towns of over 10,000 inhabitants each, it was found that 391 were assigned to traffic duty, in addition to seventy-seven state policemen all of whom are qualified to work on traffic, making a maximum of 468 traffic officers provided for the total if nearly 1,000,000 population represented by these municipalities.

The motor vehicle department survey was made in connection with an effort to ascertain the attention given to traffic supervision in Connecticut and to determine whether it is sufficient to keep pace with the increase of traffic hazards as the motor vehicles registered for use on the state highways continue to gain in numbers.

In the twenty-six municipalities covered, 1,286 regular policemen are on duty for all purposes, of whom 391 are assigned to traffic work, 149 on full time and 176 part time; also sixty-six motor patrolmen.

Not all of the seventy-seven state policemen mentioned are detailed to traffic duty. Between fifteen and twenty are almost constantly engaged in giving motor vehicle examinations, there is a traffic enforcement squad of twenty when traffic is heavy, and the balance of the force is available as an emergency force for traffic work but the men are chiefly engaged in other work.

In addition to the municipal police on regular duty in these twenty-six places, there are 587 supernumerary and special officers, who are used now and then as needed, but the reports received by the motor vehicle department do not show that any of these are assigned to traffic.

POETRY

Ice Storms

He casteth forth His ice like morsels.—
Ps. 147, 17.

Diamonds flash from ice-garmtsed trees
Bejewelled to their branches' tips.
King Winter's glories all eyes please
And praises flow from ardent lips.
Yet nowaday suns these soon will melt,
Beauty lives ever but through the change.
The heart's emotions deepliest felt
Through like perpetual changes ranges.

Joys of our lives dependent are
Upon each passing moments's dash.
From icicle to farthest star
Rays instantaneous quickly flash;
Changes alternate will succeed,
Grasp swift what's in thy power today.
Nor boast the future is thy mede,
Time's jewels melt like ice away.
Heaven is beyond? And why not Now,
Each instant thou with God may'st be
Icicle gems upon the bough
Sparkling in winter sunshine free.
Teach well "Now is th' accepted time"—
Moments in morsels forth are cast
And glitter as Life's Jewels prime,
Valued and used but while they last.

Thou'lt never know of God the more
Than what the Living Present gives,
Or here or there, His will doth pour
Love's gifts, and He within thee lives:
Diamonds and rubies glitter shine
On every twig of thy Life Tree,
In moments "cast like morsels"—thine—
Look, "pure in heart" thy God to see.

The Great Days

There have been great days, and they are dead—
Are dead: and we remember them with pride,
That they were ours—and all the joy that died
With them, and glory. They are fled
Beyond our calling, and the tears we shed
Are unavailing. Like the flight of dreams,
They fade and vanish, and their passage seems
A sudden gloom about the ways we tread.
Now we must ever tread those self-same ways
In shadow—till the glory come again.
Though the great days are dead, yet shall rebirth
Renew their triumph in still greater days—
Some golden future, when this present pain
Is over, shall give back their joy to earth.
—E. Worsley Gough.

Mrs. Twombly—Our cook says those eggs you sent yesterday were quite old, grocer. "Very sorry ma'am. They were the best we could get. You see, all the young chickens were killed off for the holiday trade, so the old hens are the only ones left to do the laying." Mrs. Twombly—Oh, to be sure! I hadn't thought of that.—Exchange.

OFFICIAL TRANSLATIONS OF CODE MESSAGES TODAY

W. F. Friedman, Cipher Expert of the Army Signal Corps, Will Present His Decoding of the McLean Telegrams to the Senate Oil Committee—Plans Are Being Formulated For the Investigation of Attorney General Daugherty by Special Committee of Senate.

Washington, March 3. — Official translations of the code messages found in the McLean telegrams will be presented to the senate oil committee tomorrow by W. F. Friedman, cipher expert of the army signal corps.

Mr. Friedman, who assisted in the decoding of a number of enemy messages during the war, has been at work on the telegrams for several days. Since he began his study, Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, dominant figure in the pressing of the oil inquiry, has obtained and turned over to him an old code of the department of justice which was used in at least some of the messages.

After Mr. Friedman has, presented his translations, the committee will call Mrs. Mary Duckstein, an operative of the justice department, for questioning concerning the cipher message she sent to her husband, W. O. Duckstein, one of McLean's confidential agents at Palm Beach.

This message said William J. Burns, chief of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, had sent for Mrs. Duckstein and told her to say that the "McLean investigation" was under way by agents of the bureau and that he regarded the information as important.

Burns will be placed on the stand after the questioning of Mrs. Duckstein is concluded. He will be asked not only about the "Mary" message but also as to reports that the publisher of the Washington Post is on the roll of special agents of his bureau at a salary of $1 a month and how employes of McLean came into possession of a copy of a code once used by the bureau of investigation.

It was learned today that in the batch of telegrams furnished to the committee last Saturday by the Western Union Telegraph company is one sent to E. L. Doheny at Washington from Los Angeles. This message is in code and was received here on last January 30, the day the California oil magnate returned to Washington to deliver to the committee a notated copy of the note which he claimed was evidence of his unpaid loan of $100,000 to Albert B. Fall.

This message is signed "J. A. Y." and has been turned over to Mr. Friedman for translation. Examination of it led committeemen to the conclusion that it was in a different code from that used in the McLean messages.

After Burns has been examined the committee will continue the questioning of McLean's employes as to the telegrams and the efforts made to keep the publisher of the press stand after he had informed the committee that he loaned Fall $100,000.

TENTATIVE PLANS FOR INVESTIGATION OF DAUGHERTY

Washington, Mar. 3. — Tentative plans for beginning the investigation of Attorney General Daugherty and the department of justice were made by the special senate committee today but Chairman Brookhart said the actual hearing of witnesses probably would be delayed until next week.

The committee appointed Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, author of the investigation resolution, a subcommittee of one to determine the first subject of inquiry and when the hearings should open.

The committee meeting was today's only development. There was no discussion of the attorney general in the senate.

At the White House it was said no communication had been received from Mr. Daugherty, although news dispatches from Miami, had quoted him as expecting to send some message to the president during the day.

The extent of participation by the attorney general in the inquiry was determined at today's meeting of the committee and will be communicated tomorrow in a letter from Chairman Brookhart to Mr. Daugherty's counsel, Paul Howland and former Senator Chamberlain of Oregon. Some of their requests as to procedure will be denied and others granted.

Chairman Brookhart said there was no question of Mr. Daugherty's right to be represented by counsel, but the committee had decided not to give unlimited privilege of cross examination or calling independent witnesses.

"The committee decided that these questions should be kept under its control," said Senator Brookhart. "This is not a technical trial, but an investigation, a summary investigation to get at the facts."

The attorney general's counsel will be permitted, however, he added, to cross-examine witnesses within limits fixed by the committee as the circumstance seems to require and to have the committee issue subpoenas for witnesses or documents which the committee may determine are necessary.

The delay in hearing witnesses until next week was said by Senator Brookhart to be necessary because of the time required to examine a mass of accumulated papers.

The committee's designation of Senator Wheeler to sift the preliminary evidence, determine the first subject to be taken up and fix the time for opening the hearings was regarded as placing him in the role of counsel or prosecutor. This follows the lead he took in pressing his resolution through the senate.

Chairman Brookhart said the committee was not yet interested in Frank A. Vanderlip's statement that he had information that President Coolidge had requested but had not received the resignation of Mr. Daugherty. Senator Brookhart said that while the committee was in search of facts, no thought had been given to summoning Mr. Vanderlip. At the White House it was said that President Coolidge did not care to dignify the Vanderlip statement by comment.

CHARGES MADE IN HOUSE AGAINST SENATOR CAMERON

Washington, Mar. 3.—A charge that Senator Cameron, republican, Arizona, had sought to gain control of the famous Bright Angel trail, the approach to Grand Canyon National park, and had refused to obey a supreme court candate that he vacate his claims there, was made on the floor of the house today by Representative Cramton, republican, Michigan.

Mining claims, the Michigan representative said, had been staked out by Mr. Cameron in such a way as to give him possession of some of the choice vantage points along the trail. He read from a letter from the interior department saying that "these claims were strategically located with reference to proposed and probable development of the canyon as a tourist attraction."

Speaking on the interior appropriation bill, of which he had charge, Mr. Cramton asked the house to restore the Hayden amendment, struck out by the senate, providing that the federal government itself purchase Bright Angel trail.

The Michigan representative declared that Senator Cameron had attempted to secure control of the trail both through a lease from Coconino county, and by staking out his mining claims. The Cameron claim at Indian Gardens, he said, had been denied by the highest court in the land, but a representative of the senator still maintains a group of disreputable looking tents and shacks there. He asserted that the supreme court in April, 1920, and February, 1921, had enjoined Senator Cameron from the use of these sites, and ordered him to remove his buildings within 60 days. This order, he added, was ignored.

Mr. Cramton also declared he could prove that notwithstanding the presence of typhoid germs in the water available to tourists, at Indian Gardens, Senator Cameron's caretaker prevents the use of pure water and destroys signs posted to warn the public.

In speaking of the senator's efforts to secure a lease from Coconino county, Mr. Cramton said:

"I do not hesitate to say that so crafty, over-reaching a contract as that, sought by one individual at the expense of his own community to say nothing of the rights of a nation, that were sought to be imperilled thereby, marks its proponent as strangely lacking in civic pride and insensible to the common welfare."

FIUME HAS BEEN PLACED UNDER ITALIAN LAW

Fiume, Italy, March 3.—Fiume was placed today under Italian law in accordance with a decree issued by General Giardino, the military governor, establishing the civil and political organization of the city. The new territory, which is designated as Carnaro, has not yet been officially annexed to Italy, so the administrative offices there will continue until after the annexation formalities and the government orders the holding of elections.

PROGRESS IN SUPPRESSION OF MEXICAN REVOLUTION

Mexico City, March 3 (By the A. P.)—General Joaquin Amaro has arrived at Manzanillo after leaving five thousand men at Colima to continue the campaign against General Manuel Diegues, the rebel commander. Strong federal garrisons, totalling more than three thousand men, have been left in the important towns along the Guadalajara Colima railway. These will be reinforced by troops commanded by the former rebel leader Petronilo Flores, who surrendered at Autlan.

General Estrad's troops have been reduced to less than half through the unconditional surrender of several of his chiefs with followers numbering three thousand. Estrade with the troops remaining loyal to him and Generals Diegues, Aurelio Sepulveda, Gustavo Salas and Felix Barajas, will not make a stand at Coalcoman, but intends to withdraw into Guerrero.

General Gonzalo Escobar, with cavalry will pursue the rebels by land, cooperating with General Felix Ramirez, military commandant at Michoacan, while General Amaro's troops aboard the steamers Progreso and Coahuila start from Manzanillo for Acapulco, where they are expected to land within four days. Should the Acapulco rebels resist, General Amaro will bombard the port.

General Almazan already has been fighting the rebels in the vicinity of Venta Salada. According to the war department the revolutionists are withdrawing toward Tomellin canyon.

REFUNDS OF TAX PAYMENTS MADE BY U. S. TREASURY

Washington, March 3.—Refunds on tax payments totaling $123,392,830.94 were made by the treasury in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, according to a report sent to the house ways and means committee by the department.

The refunds which were made to 263,820 persons, covered payments for several years and were made on account of "illegal or erroneously collected taxes." The report showed 10,162 persons had received more than $3,000 in reimbursements.

Among those receiving refunds was the American Brass company, Waterbury, Connecticut, $766,275.05.

TWO WOMEN ARRESTED FOR ASSAULT IN BOSTON

To Abolish Caliphate

Constantinople, March 3. (By The Associated Press)—The national assembly at Angora today passed the bill for the deposition of the Caliph and the abolition of the Caliphate.

MRS. HARRIS NARRATES STORY OF HER LIFE

New York, March 3.—Mrs. Eleanor Elaine Harris, who is fighting a marriage annullment suit brought by her banker husband, Beverly D. Harris, took the witness stand this afternoon to deny charges that she was once a notorious character of the Memphis, Tenn., underworld.

Mrs. Harris told a detailed story of her life, from girlhood, as far as she remembered it, bearing out in almost every detail the testimony of her aunt, Mrs. Alice Pace, giving by deposition last week and by her elder sister, Mrs. Rocha Corder, who preceded Mrs. Harris on the stand.

Mrs. Harris described the courtship by the banker, to whom, she said, she was introduced by Congressman McLemore, of Texas, at Houston, Tex., on Jan. 15, 1915. Mr. Harris, she declared, began an intensive campaign to win her hand. In June of the same year they became engaged, and the banker urged an immediate marriage, she testified.

"I didn't want to marry him," Mrs. Harris continued, "and I pleaded with him to wait. I said he would have to wait at least a year, but then he pleaded for six months and I agreed."

This had taken place at Mineral Wells, Texas, Mrs. Harris said. At this time, she testified, she went with Mrs. Hopson Harris, who was her chaperone and not related to the banker, to St. Louis, and saw Eli Rayner, to whom she referred as "Uncle Eli," throughout her testimony. Mrs. Corder, who preceded her on the witness stand, had said their mother had told her when dying that Rayner, a Memphis gambler, was the father of her younger sister.

Rayner, Mrs. Harris said, objected to her marrying a man as old as Harris, but she said she would do as she pleased.

While in St. Louis, the young woman said Harris went to her, after writing a letter which very much upset her, saying he would not marry her. When the banker reached St. Louis, however, he renewed his plea for an immediate marriage, she said, telling her, "If you don't marry me now you never will."

Mrs. Harris said she finally agreed to his request and they "went out and got married," on July 31, 1915. Then, she said they set out on a trip through the west.

Her husband soon manifested jealousy, the defendant said. Three weeks after the wedding, she testified, he accused her of allowing a friend of his to make love to her. Then, in 1916, she continued, he told her, "my life doesn't suit me. Let's quit."

Harris finally left her, she said, when she was seriously ill, sending word by a physician that he would not return. She did not see him again, she said, until two years later.

Questioned by her counsel about an alleged proposal of the banker to pay all expenses of her divorce, Mrs. Harris excitedly cried out:

"They told me of statements I had never heard of before, the most horrible——"

"That will do, madam," the court interrupted. "What did you say to that?"

Mrs. Harris answered slowly and distinctly: "I said that I was not going to divorce him unless he made some proper settlement. If he wants his freedom he can get it on those terms."

She said she had discovered she was born out of wedlock about the time Rayner took her to a private school, near Pasadena, Calif., in 1908. She said before the wedding she had told this to Harris, adding that she had every reason to believe Rayner was her father. Asked what the banker had said, she replied:

"He told me he loved unusual children. He said Alexander Hamilton was a love child and told me of several other famous people who were the same."

The defendant was asked, if, prior to her marriage, she had told Harris she was a "pure and chaste woman."

"I made no such statement," she answered. "He knew it and he knows it now."

Asked if she ever had had improper relations with Rayner, she replied:

"I never did and no one knows that better than this plaintiff."

Cross examination of Mrs. Harris by her husband's counsel, Caruthers Ewing, developed into a verbal sparring match. Her answers to questions were sharp and several times she was admonished by Justice Wasservogel to confine herself to the question.

After answering in the negative a series of questions relating to her alleged life in Memphis, Mrs. Harris was asked whether she had ever been in a disorderly house there.

"Mr. Battle, this is too much," she exclaimed, turning to her attorney. Told by the court to answer the question, she denied the allegation.

The defense rested its case tonight.

HOUSE BILL WOULD CAUSE SHRINKAGE IN REVENUE

Washington, March 3.—The tax bill as passed by the house will produce $646,000,000 less revenue than the existing law, in the opinion of treasury actuaries.

It would produce $113,000,000 more, the treasury figures indicate than by the Garner democratic plan.

The treasury surplus under the present rates, according to present estimates, will be only $323,000,000—so that the house bill, if finally enacted would result in a deficit of $123,000,000.

Losses in revenue under the bill as passed by the house are estimated to be $130,000,000 in normal income taxes; $150,000,000 in surtaxes; $90,000,000 in earned income and $126,000,000 in miscellaneous taxes. These same taxes as carried in the Garner plan would have resulted, according to the treasury, in losses from existing amounts of $227,000,000 in normal income taxes; $171,000,000 in surtaxes; $85,000,000 in earned income, and $126,000,000 in miscellaneous taxes.

Provisions of both the Garner plan and the bill as passed by the house would bring $60,000,000 more into the treasury than existing law under the capital loss and limited deduction sections.

Many species of spiders migrate by "ballooning." The spider stands in an open place, with the body elevated, and projects from the spinnerets a line of silk which continues to issue until the spider feels the pull on it by the wind. It then releases its hold and clasping the line is borne away by the wind.

Belasco to Fight The Actors' Equity

Threatens to Close All His Productions on Tour and Darken His New York Theatres.

New York, Mar. 3.—Declaring he no longer could accept the principles of the closed ship as applied by the Actors' Equity of the American Federation of Labor, David Belasco today announced he would before June 1 close the engagements of all his productions on tour and darken his New York theatre.

Among prominent members of the Actors' Equity whose contracts with Mr. Belasco will expire in the next few months and, he says, will not be renewed, are Lenore Ulric, Lionel rymore and David Warfield.

Mr. Belasco's decision was announced in a statement in which he said that, although he had worked beside and made friends with officers of the Actors' Equity, he "does not feel that the principles involved in forming the American Federation of Labor apply to the theatre, or in fact, to any art."

"The theatre is not a shop, it is an art", he said. "No manager worthy of the name goes into it for money. We all die poor; but the theatre goes on. Others must come to take our places, and we must think of them. I dare not be called a shirker 20 years hence."

WARFIELD SURPRISED BY BELASCO ANNOUNCEMENT

San Francisco, March 3.—Announcement by David Belasco that he intended to halt his road companies and darken his New York theatre because of his "closed shop" convictions, came as a surprise to David Warfield, Belasco star, who will not be given a new contract, according to the New York announcement.

"I am particularly surprised because I am not affiliated with the Actors' Equity," Warfield said today. "While I sympathize with the effort of the actors to gain all the recognition they honestly believe due them, I have engaged in no controversies in the matter. I understand that Mr. Belasco himself was one of the first to favor the payment of actors for rehearsals so his move today surprises me greatly."

TAKING EVIDENCE FOR AND AGAINST RAIL RATE REDUCTION

New York, March 3.—Bankers and manufacturers from the middle west today adde dtheir voices to those of transcontinental railroad officials in asking the interstate commerce commission to permit a revision of railrates which would meet the lower water freight rates between Atlantic and Pacific ports.

Today's hearing was a resumption of the series conducted in many cities, the last at Chicago. It is expected the New York session will conclude the commission's accumulation of evidence for and against rail rate reduction.

Witnesses were unanimous in declaring that the existing differential in rail and water rates was hurting the middle west and that the carriers should be permitted to reduce rates to halt the diversion of transcontinental freight to steamship companies operating via the Panama canal.

J. E. Dawes, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, summarized the testimony of other witnesses when he said:

"There is a constantly diminishing shipment of freight by rail from the middle west to the Pacific coast. If Panama canal transportation hurts mid-western railroads, thereby affecting manufacturers in the middle west, we should have an adjustment that would equalize the rail and water rates."

HEARINGS ON SOLDIER BONUS FOR THREE DAYS

Washington, Mar. 3.—The form of payment of a soldier bonus occupied the attention of spokesmen before the house ways and means committee today at the opening of a three day session of public hearings.

Several propositions, including a plan to limit the bonus entirely to paid-up insurance policies for all veterans who served more than sixty days, were presented to the committee by members of the house who have introduced bills.

The American Legion, through John Thomas Taylor, vice chairman of its national legislative committee, declared a willingness to accept "whatever bonus legislation this congress enacts."

Some opposition was voiced to the insurance proposition, advanced by Representatives Fish of New York, and Andrew of Massachusetts, republicans. Representative Lineberger, republican, California, urged the committee to report out a bill similar to the one vetoed by President Harding and accepted by the American Legion, expressed fear that new legislation would "muddy the water and hinder speedy action."

Not a word of opposition either by committee members or those appearing before it was expressed against bonus legislation, most of the speakers devoting their time to outlining various proposed methods of bonus payments.

THREATENED WITH POVERTY COUPLE TOOK POISON

New York, Mar. 3.—Clasped in each others' arms and unconscious, Raymond Smith, a former investigator for the New York Title & Mortgage company, and his wife, Margaret, were found today in their apartment on Park avenue, hours after each had drunk a wineglassful of poison.

A patrolman, hearing their groans, broke into the apartment and gave first aid to the aged couple. Bellevue hospital authorities say they may live.

Beside the would-be suicides were two insurance policies for $1,500 each, an unfinished letter which began: "Dear Sister—Your letter should have been answered sooner," and a pencilled request that the bank where Smith had worked be notified, as well as his sister, Mrs. A. M. Allen of Great Cove House, Wharton, N. J.

Threatening poverty induced the Smiths to enter a suicide pact, detectives said. The wife recently had suffered a long illness which culminated in pneumonia and took most of their savings for treatment. Then the husband, despondent over the loss of his position, spent what they had left in a two weeks' session of drinking, said the police. Their last 28 cents had gone for the bottle of poison.

Contest in Senate Over Farm Relief Bill

Opposition Developed to the Norbeck-Burtness Bill Proposing a Loan of $75,000,000.

Washington, March 3.—Strenuous opposition today greeted the appearance in the senate of the first special farm relief measure—The Norbeck-Burtness bill proposing the loan of $75,000,000 to finance diversification. Declaring it was "paternalism run rampant", Senator Fletcher, democrat, Florida, said it was time to call a halt upon such measures.

"We are proposing to loan this money," he said, "For the purpose of enabling the one-crop farmers to keep livestock on land never adaptable for grazing; or to raise other crops where the land will not produce but one. We have already gone the limit along this line."

An effort of Senator Ladd, republican, North Dakota, to end debate at 3 o'clock tomorrow was blocked by notification from several senators that they desire to discuss the measure.

The North Dakota senator, having reported the bill from the agriculture committee, assumed charge of it on the floor. He contended the government owed special consideration to the spring wheat farmers because of the evils they had suffered through the war-time propaganda which at once increased production and decreased consumption. Every other class in the United States has been aided, he said, either by the tariff or through direct or indirect subsidy.

Several amendments already have been proposed to the bill yhich would increase the amount carried to $105,000,000. Among them is a provision offered by Senator Bursum, republican, New Mexico, which would add $20,000,000 for loans to banks in the northwest. Senator Fletcher said the purpose of this was to "Bolster Busted Ranks."

Senator Johnson, Farmer-Labor, of Minnesota, said the "Chambers of Commerce" were too strong for the farmers who tried to carry out their co-operative organizations" when the Florida senator suggested this was the logical solution of their difficulties.

"I refer you to the recent decision of the Federal Trade Commission," said Senator Johnson. "It should be interesting to the senator."

Senator Bookhart, Republican, Iowa, also took exception to the arguments advanced by Senator Fletcher. The credit faculties requested, he said, were actually provided in a large measure from the farmers' deposits."

PACIFIC FLEET AT ANCHOR OFF RIVERSIDE DRIVE

New York, March 3.—For the next ten days New York will play host to a formidable division of Uncle Sam's marine police force—seven ships of the line, comprising the major part of the Pacific fleet. The ships dropped anchor in the Hudson river today after their winter maneuvres in southern waters.

Welcoming salutes were omitted by the forts on Governor's Island because, it was explained, the fleet had on board so many admirals and vice admirals that the courtesy would have resembled a battle at sea.

Thousands lined the harbor shore at the battery as the warships, led by the flagship Seattle carrying Rear Admiral Coontz, steamer in column formation to their anchorage off Riverside drive. The crowd cheered and received in return the greetings of the bluejackts who lined the rails of the war craft.

While the vessels are here the officers and men will be accorded the heartiest welcome the city can provide. Nearly one-half of the complement of 15,000 men, will have shore leave daily. A number of official and unofficial entertainments have been planned.

On March 18 the ships will sail for Culebra where further maneuvres are scheduled to begin on March 18.

NUMEROUS REVOLTS ARE UNDER WAY IN HONDURAS

Washington, Mar. 3. — Widespread confusion in Honduras, due to numerous revolutions in behalf of at least three leaders who aspire to the presidency, was indicated today in advices received at the state department from Consul George P. Waller at Ceiba.

The American cruiser Denver, after being at Ceiba for several days because of a situation regarded as menacing to American life and property, however, has now been sent to Tela, which on Saturday was reported to be occupied by revolutionists headed by General Tosta.

The situation at Ceiba, according to advices dated March 3, was "temporarily tranquil" while a new governor has been appointed and was said to be "doing his best to preserve order."

Nevertheless the 70 marines and sailors which were landed last week at Ceiba to guard the American consulate and protect American lives and property remain in that city.

Consul Waller said that Lagos, commander of the forces of the de facto government of President Gutierrez at Ceiba, fled at outbreak of fighting several days ago in that city.

Control of the city, he added, was then given to one Delgado, who in turn gave the city over to Monica Zerlaya.

BOOTLEGGERS FASTENED TORPEDOES TO DOORS

New York, March 3.—Prohibition agents attacking a bootleggers' establishment today were met by torpedoes, gas and water defense but emerged as triumphant captors of a $50,000 re-distilling apparatus whose daily output was estimated at 20,000 gallons. The operatives escaped.

Throwing front and rear doors open simultaneously, the raiders were met by a detonation; they drew their pistols, thinking they were fired upon. Investigation revealed that the "shots" came from railroad torpedoes fastened in the doors to warn the workers.

Proceeding, the party was met by a gas attack which persisted even after the valves had been turned off. The gas man was summoned and discovered that the gas escaped from a main which the bootleggers had tapped to steal fuel for their operations.

Entering the room where the elaborate plant was concealed with 20 barrels of denatured alcohol and other supplies, the officers met and repulsed the last attack which came when the cooling vats stationed overhead upset and drenched them to the skin.

But the enemy amply warned by the torpedoes had escaped.

PROHIBITION ATTITUDE OF GOV. AL. SMITH ASSAILED

At Prohibition Rally in Syracuse, Wayne B. Wheeler, General Counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, Questions the Sincerity of the Governor of New York in Advocating Enforcement of the Constitution and the Volstead Act.

Syracuse, N. Y., March 3.—Colonel William Hayward, federal district attorney for the southern district of New York, Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon league, Arthur J. Davis, new state superintendent of the league, and Rev. Dr. L. P. Tucker, superintendent of the central New York district, were speakers at a prohibition rally here today at which the prohibition attitude of Governor Smith was assailed and resolutions adopted urging padlock for one year for places violating the liquor laws, deportation of aliens convicted of violating the constitution and taking the appointment of federal prohibition officers "out of politics."

Mr. Wheeler asserted "presidential years make strange converts, but few are stranger than Governor Smith, who today advocates enforcement of the Constitution and the Volstead act, after having done everything in his power to make this impossible in New York."

"Branding as anarchy the attempt of citizens to select laws which they will obey," Mr. Wheeler continued, "the governor trusts to public forgetfulness of his own violation of his oath of office when he stripped his state of power to concurrently enforce the 18th amendment. If that be anarchy, then the governor has labelled himself as an anarchist. The governor's invitation to the moonshiner and bootlegger to migrate to New York, met with instant and widespread acceptance. It has not yet been rescinded."

Colonel Hayward urged enactment of a law permitting judges of city courts and courts of like jurisdiction to hear prohibition cases as misdemeanors without jury trial.

Superintendent Davis declared for vigorous and unrelenting enforcement of the prohibition laws. He asserted he would be less personal in his attacks on enemies of prohibition but no less vehement in attacking them collectively. His course and that of the former superintendent, William H. Anderson, Mr. Davis said, are directly opposite.

Dr. Tucker expressed disappointment at federal prohibition enforcement work in Central New York. He said the way to get prohibition enforcement was to divorce politics from bootlegging.

"We reaffirm our conviction that the Anti-Saloon League of New York state is the effective agency in the field to represent us in the accomplishment of this purpose. Whatever may be the facts concerning Mr. Anderson and the past administration of the league the vicious attacks made upon him and the league by the liquor forces in the highest possible testimony to its power as a fighting organization. Mr. Anderson deserves the sympathy and needs the prayer of all friends of the league that he may be able to clear his name of the charges."

NEGRO KILLED IN SHOOTING AFFRAY IN NEWFIELD

Middletown, March 3—Julius Land, negro, was shot and killed here tonight by James McArthur, also a negro, at the latter's home in Newfield, two miles from here. McArthur after the shooting called the Middletown police headquarters by telephone and said he shot Land in self-defense.

It is said that Land who boarded with the family of Pender Ashford, another negro, on the first floor of the house where the shooting took place, was visiting the McArthur home on the second floor early this evening. He is said to have gotten into an argument with McArthur. Land went downstairs to his own room at that time but is said to have threatened to get McArthur. It is alleged that later he went upstairs to the McArthur home with a 38 calibre revolver in his hand. Ernest McArthur, a brother of James tried unsuccessfully to block his entrance. Land ran into the living room and then into the bed room where Arthur was standing with his wife, Mrs. McArthur told Land not to shoot and she ran out of the room. McArthur ran into a closet and tried to close the door but could not. Land, who was standing about 12 feet away, is said to have tried to fire his revolver but the cartridges were corroded and the gun became jammed.

McArthur, who had a 35 calibre automatic with him, emptied his pitsol at Land, two of the shots taking effect, one near neck and the the other in the heart. The other three shots went wild.

Land died one hour after the shooting.

McArthur was arrested and taken to the police station and locked up. Ernest McArthur, a brother of James, and Charles Vicks, another negro, were held as witnesses.

Both men were employed at Tuttle's brick yard and are each about 23 years old.

Julius Land, who was shot and killed here tonight, on the night of February 2, 1923 shot and killed Walter Thorell and Arthur Swanson, both of Cromwell, at the railroad station in that town. He was tried for second degree murder, and on April 20, 1923, was acquitted by a jury in the criminal superior court here. The jury's verdict was that of justifiable homicide and self-defense.

KLAN PLAYED PROMINENT PARTS IN MAINE ELECTIONS

Portland, Maine, March 3.—The Ku Klux Klan played prominent parts in two of eight city elections held in Maine today. In Saco where John G. Smith, an attorney, was swept into mayoralty in a republican sweep, defeating Mayor Walter J. Gilpatrick, democrat, the successful candidate and his ticket had been endorsed by the klan as "100 per cent. American." In Rockland Lieutenant Commander Carleton F. Snow, republican, who was elected, had the klan endorsement.

Three cities, Saco, Rockland and Eastport, changed from the democratic to the republican column. Ellsworth and Bath, returning to the party system after several years of non-partisan administration, divided on the issue, the former returning a democratic, the latter a republican mayor and council. Lewiston and Waterville remained democratic; South Portland remained republican. In each of the eight cities the total vote broke all previous records.

MRS. ASA G. CANDLER, SR. EXONERATED IN POLICE COURT

Atlanta, Ga., March 3—Mrs. Asa G. Candler, Sr., wife of the Atlanta soft drink millionaire, today was exonerated at a police court hearing of having been an occupant of a "dive" which charge grew out of a raid on a fashionable apartment here in Mrs. Candler, W. J. Stoddard and G. W. Keeling, business men, were arrested.

The identical charge against Keeling and Stoddard was also dismissed. Stoddard, however, was held under bond of $300 for violation of the state prohibition law when he assume responsibility for a small quantity of whisky found in a bottle on a table around which the three persons had been seated when the police made their raid.

Stoddard said after the trial that "the evidence of Chief Beavers disclosed the details of the miserable conspiracy which is back of this whole affair. The court's judgment completely cleared Mrs. Candler, Mr. Keeling and myself of even any suspicion of misconduct of any kind."

The police chief testified that "less than a month" before the raid a complaint that led to the raid came from the aged millionaire husband, Asa G. Candler, Sr. On cross examination he testified that Forest Adair, well known realtor and an advisor of Mr. Candler asked him to take personal charge of the raid.

None of the defendants testified and no witnesses were put up in their behalf.

A bottle which Chief Beavers said was taken in the raid and contained whisky, was introduced in evidence over the protest of defense counsel who insisted that the liquor did not make the apartment in which the defendants were arrested, "a dive" the general term for section 1748 of the city code under which the arrests were made.

Attorney Dorsey, representing Mrs. Candler asserted that "Atlanta has many beautiful dives, if this apartment, 43 Juniper street, can be classed as such."

Chief Beavers said that he brought Pitt to the apartment and identified Mrs. Candler positively through him. The prisoners were then taken to the police station, he continued, and there Mrs. Candler "didn't want her name on the docket. I told her that we could not avoid that; that her name would have to be put down."

EXECUTION OF DIAMOND SET FOR WEEK OF APRIL 7

Ossining, N. Y., March 3.—Morris and Joseph Diamond, John Farina and Joseph Pantano, sentenced to die in the electric chair in the week of April 7, for the murder of two bank messengers in Brooklyn last November, arrived at Sing Sing prison from Brooklyn late today.

On Pantano's coat was a badge which he said he had received for selling $136,000 worth of Liberty bonds during the war.

"I expected to get an 'E. S.,'" said Joseph Diamond.

Asked whether that meant "suspended sentence" Diamond replied: "No—it means 'some sentence.'"

"I feel," said Morris Diamond, "that they won't give me a new trial."

Farina, too, was gay, laughing and joking with the officers who brought him to the death house.

WILLIMANTIC

Helen Eileen Cotter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Cotter, and Wayne Cortland Dallmore, son of Mrs. Georgiana Dallmore, of Hartford, were united in marriage Monday morning at 9 o'clock in St. Mary's church, South Coventry. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William H. Kennedy who also sang the nuptial high mass. Miss Cecelia Day played the wedding march and several beautiful solos were given by Miss Annie Wellwood. Miss Gertrude Noone, of New Haven, was bridesmaid and the best man was William Redman Barry of Hartford, a cousin of the bride.

The bride wore a gown of navy blue charmeuse, trimmed with old blue, with hat to match and a brown fox for neckpiece. She carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid was attired in a brown canton crepe gown, wore a fawn colored hat and carried pink roses.

The groom gave his best man a gold watch and the bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a platinum bracelet.

Mrs. Dallmore, who was recently transferred to the office of the state bureau of child welfare at the capitol in Hartford, was given two showers by the girls there and presented a mahogany smoker desk, linen, china and other articles. Mr. and Mrs. Dallmore left later in the day for a short honeymoon journey after which they will reside in East Hartford, where the groom is a painting contractor. The bride received many gifts, including a check of $100 from her father.

Contrary to expectations, all was serene at the town meeting in South Coventry, Saturday afternoon. Evidently the fireworks had been dampened as none were in evidence, although the hall was packed to capacity when the meeting was called to order by Moderator E. H. Woodward. Town Clerk Louis W. Daniels was the secretary. The entire business was completed after an hour's session. A resolution was adopted fixing the tax rate to be levied on the grand list at twenty mills. The total valuation will be $1,515,398. Exemptions on property will amount to twenty-seven or twenty-eight thousand dollars and will leave an increased grand list of taxable property approximating $1,488,000.

In the opinion of the town officers the valuation was as high as it should be.

The gathering was addressed by Selectman Higgins with regard to the financial condition of the town and the present state of affairs brought about by the revaluation and reference was made to the problems confronting the town officers, including schools, roads, etc. Selectman Higgins stated that the increase in the valuation remaining at a figure about four thousand dollars lower than that recommended by the state board of equalization.

By a special resolution it was voted to publish pamphlets containing a thorough explanation of the new valuation, to be distributed among the taxpayers.

The budget for the year was adopted, as were the reports of all the town officers. The budget follows: Schools, $12,000; poor, $2,000; roads, $14,000; state roads, $3,000; bridges, $3,000; expense account, $1,500; interest account, $1,650; state, county and militia tax, $3,000; cemetery account, $150. Town officers, $1,000; election account, $300; annual library appropriation, $100; vital statistics, $75; health officers, $75; removal of snow from roads, $800. Total $31,-900.

Some two years ago the board of selectmen was authorized to investigate and report on the project of securing a distinctive seal for the town of Coventry. No report had been made and Selectman Higgins offered to present the town such a seal, providing that it contain something commemorative of Nathan Hale, the Revolutionary war patriot, who is buried in Coventry in the cemetery which bears his name. John H. Reynolds moved that the proposed gift be accepted and this was seconded by a unanimous vote.

A brief discussion took place relative to the purchasing of trucks by the town for highway work and it was deemed advisable to apply funds which could be spared to the reduction of the town's part in the state road hill. Accordingly no action was taken on this matter.

The vocational agricultural course, instituted at Windham High school last year is proving a great success. The course is in two divisions, with a total enrollment of thirteen pupils. The instructor is R. L. Hahn and he predicts that this course is bound to increase in the favor of pupils who reside in the rural communities and to whom the course is of practical value. At present Mr. Hahn is instructing his class in the utilization of agricultural machinery and implements.

There are now fourteen instructors working in the state under federal vocational act of 1917 and the state vocational educational law accepting federal money. When time permits Mr. Hahn also teaches agricultural pursuits in the surrounding communities.

The teachers of the course do not rely entirely on their own farm experience and agricultural training for teaching material, but they attempt to find out in what the local farmers are succeeding best. Upon entering a community, a teacher of this course tries first to get acquainted with the boys who are to be in his course, with the home conditions of rural life and the farming conditions of the locality. The teacher then organizes a course of study based on his findings and he then resolves each of the enterprises into various jobs which a farmer finds it necessary to do in conducting them. No text books are used, although bulletins and reference books are utilized freely. High school boys take other academic subjects for half time, including general mathematics, history, current events, and some of the natural sciences.

FINDS AGAINST ENDORSER IN $4,000 NOTE CASE

Judge George E. Hinman of the superior court, before whom the case was tried some time ago, has handed down a decision in favor of the plaintiff, Giuseppi Contino of New London against John Turello of the same city one of the endorsers on a $4,000 note made May 4, 1921 by Giosue Duca and Augustino Di Nota. The other endorser, Thomas Ragonese, who was a defendant in the suit, was dropped as a defendant because of his discharge in bankruptcy.

The defendant claimed that the account loaned by Contino to Duca and Di Nota was only $4,950 and that this was done in violation of and evasion of certain statutes.

In his memorandum of decision, Judge Hinman says:

The evidence fully establishes that the defendants endorsed the note in suit before it was delivered to the plaintiff; that the endorsement was not for the accommodation of the plaintiff, payee, who had no agreement or even contract with the endorsers prior to the delivery of the note; that the note was usurious as between the maker and the payee in that the amount loaned and paid by the payee was materially less than the face of the note even after deducting lawful interest for its term, but the endorsers were not parties to the usurious agreement.

The defendant Ragonese, by leave of court, filed an amended answer setting forth his discharge in bankruptcy and by stipulation of counsel, he has been dropped as a defendant.

Decision of this case was, by agreement of counsel, deferred until after determination of the second appeal in Baggarish vs. Offengand, 97 Conn. 312, 99 Conn. 683. The construction which the court places upon the decisions in Baggarish vs. Offengand does not, upon the facts of the instant case, leave the defenses of accommodation endorsement and of usury available to the defendant here. Judgment that the plaintiff recover of the defendant John Turello $5,000 principal and $1,014 interest, a total of $6,-014, and his costs.

DANIELSON

One of the most elaborate weddings of St. James' church in years and one largely attended, was that of Miss Mary Frances Longo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Longo, and Louis John Joseph Bertorelli, at 8 o'clock Monday morning.

By virtue of the bride's membership in the Children of Mary the marriage ceremony was performed on the steps of the altar by Rev. Joseph Deschaud, M. S., the pastor, who was also celebrant of the nuptial high mass, the marriage being directly after the gospel, when the wedding party entered the sanctuary.

The bride was given in marriage by Misses Margaret A. Head and Margaret Duggan, officers of the Children of Mary. Their gowns were of white and they wore veils.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Justine Longo and Celesto Bertorelli, of New York, brother of the groom, was best man.

The bride's gown was of white satin with trimmings of pearl and she wore a veil. Her bouquet was a shower arrangement of white roses and sweet peas.

The bridesmaid's gown was of coral canton crepe with gold trimming and she had a hat to match. Her bouquet was of white and pink carnations.

A choir of the church gave the marriage mass, the music including an Ave Maria sung by Mrs. Albert Bernier.

Following the church service the many guests here for the wedding and many of Danielson's people were at the home of the bride's parents for a reception by Mr. and Mrs. Bertorelli. Dinner was served for a large party of relatives and friends at the noon hour. In the early afternoon the bride and groom, having been feted by the large number who came to wish them every happiness left for their wedding trip, which will take them to New York.

The gifts to the bride were exceptionally beautiful and in great variety.

The bride's gift to the groom was a ring, his gift to the bride a necklace of pearls. To her bridesmaid the bride gave a white gold ring with a pearl setting.

Upon their return from their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Bertorelli will live in their newly furnished home, corner of School and Potter street. Both are well known in Danielson. The groom is a partner in one of the borough's business enterprises. He is a veteran of the world war, having served with the American forces.

Henry H. Gavit of New London was fined $1.00 and costs by Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court Monday morning for operating a motor vehicle without having an operator's license—and thereby hangs a tale. A few days since, on February 23, Mr. Gavit's machine figured in a minor accident in which another car was involved. It happened that Mr. Gabit asked the driver of the other machine to see his operator's license. This was produced, but when Mr. Gavit was asked that he produce his own he was unable to do so. He had lost it. State Officer Gardner of the Danielson barracks ordered Mr. Gavit's appearance in court.

Fifty attended a banquet Sunday evening by the Bijou Whist club in G. A. R. Hall, this marking the end of the club's activities for this season. Pink and green were the shades used in the decorative color scheme and lighted pink candles were on the tables.

The menu included grape fruit, creamed roast turkey with dressing and brown gravy, mashed potatoes, turkey, cranberry sauce, olives, pickles, fruit salad, rolls, ice cream, cake and coffee.

There were pretty favors for both men and women.

The program of the evening included recitations by Mrs. Aldei LaMothe and Mrs. C. Arnold. There were vocal and instrumental solos by Mrs. F. Pahneuf and Mrs. Frederick Dugas. A period of whist followed, prizes were given to each member of the club. High honors for the evening went to R. L. Beauteau and N. L. Dube and the consolation award to Mrs. P. Jodoin.

The committee in charge was made up of Mrs. Howard Withey, Mrs. O. A. Bessette, Mrs. Floyd G. Sweet and Mrs. Aldei Lamothe.

Monday afternoon at one o'clock, at his home in the Mashentuck district, funeral services for James W. Burlingame were conducted by Rev. Walter B. Williams of Westfield Congregational church at Danielson. Many relatives and friends, including a delegation from Moriah lodge, No. 15 A. F. and A. M., of which Mr. Burlingame had been a member for years, attended. During the service the lodge quartet—Sidney P. Marland, John Ashworth, Elijah Berriman and John Ashworth—sang Abide With Me, and Rock of Ages. Burial was at Westfield cemetery, where the Masonic burial service was conducted by F. E. Kennedy, worshipful master and Harry Brearley, chaplain.

The bearers were John W. Gallup, F. E. Bitgood, Winthrop Short, L. E. Young, Herbert Chase and Burdette C. Hopkins, members of Moriah lodge. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

The condition prevailing in Danielson as to allowing sewage from the borough's system to find its way into the Quinebaug river, in violation of a statute of the state, is duplicated at points along the Quinebaug river. This is of interest in that it does not leave Danielson standing alone in this matter, though it does not excuse it. The borough will remedy the conditions complained about, and in all probability other points where sewage is getting into the stream will be given attention. As it is today, the Quinebaug river for miles of its length is little more than an open sewer, and cattle that have drank of its waters have been made ill, it is said. In addition to sewage, quantities of dye stuffs and chemicals find their way from mills into the waters of this stream. Under conditions that exist today it is not likely that one ever would see duplicated, even though the dams were removed, the heavy salmon runs about which history tells as having occurred in this river each spring many years ago.

John B. Lucas, of Broad street, who has been seriously ill for a number of weeks, has shown material improvement of late.

A man who knows a lot of things says that President Calvin Coolidge will be inaugurated to succeed himself one year from today.

Rockville High school team is the next scheduled to appear here against Killingly High school, this fast five making its appearance Wednesday evening.

Only a few days remain for filing income tax returns for 1923, and there are many who have not yet given their attention to this matter, though they must before the 15th to escape the liability of being penalized.

To date the town of Killingly has escaped any very heavy charges for snow removal. This may appear insignificant, but there have been years when this item has amounted to as much as $5,000.

Members of the Danielson Radio club met with Walter Anderson of Broad street Monday evening.

Danielson will be represented today (Tuesday) at the prohibition information institute to be held at the Congregational church in Putnam.

John Clair Minot, literary critic for the Boston Herald, will be the speaker at Wednesday afternoon's meeting of the Killingly Woman's Club at the assembly hall of the high school. Current Literature will be Mr. Minot's topic.

Joseph Birch, who has been ill for some time, is still unable to give his attention to business.

Homer A. Hewitt of Bridgeport has been a visitor with friends in Danielson for a few days.

Just why there is a demand for the rebuilding of the state highway from the northerly line of the borough at Morin avenue and Elmville will be apparent to anyone who rides over it just now. This stretch of highway is, in the vernacular of the day, about shot to pieces. It is a stretch of macadam built more than a quarter of a century ago.

Danielson rejoiced Monday in The Bulletin's announcement that the Pace Manufacturing company is to center all of its manufacturing interests here in the old Danielson Cotton Co. plant. It is the best industrial news the town has heard in a number of years.

Something a bit out of the ordinary is due to please the dance lovers this evening—when a free Mardi Gras dance is to be given at the state armory.

MRS. BUSH TELLS OTHER WOMEN

How Pains in Side and Dragging Down Feelings Were Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Massena, New York.—"I had terrible pains in both my sides and a dragging-down feeling that affected me so that I could hardly walk, and I got rundown. A friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advised me to try it and I have taken it with the best results. I do my house work and also some outdoor work on the farm. The Vegetable Compound has given me back my health and I cannot praise it enough. I am perfectly willing that you should use these facts if my letter will help other women who still suffer."—Mrs. DELBERT BUSH, R. F. D. 1, Massena, N. Y.

The spirit of helpfulness shown in the letters we are constantly publishing is worthy of notice.

These women know by experience what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will do. Your troubles are the same as theirs.

If you have pains and a dragging-down feeling and are nervous and irritable, profit by Mrs. Bush's experience and give the Compound a trial.

August Anderson, 81, of North Grosvenordale, committed suicide between 8 and 9 o'clock Monday morning, hanging himself to the bedpost in his room. The man had been in poor health for several years and it was noticed that for a number of weeks he had appeared despondent.

It was Mr. Anderson's custom to remain in bed quite late and when he did not appear at the breakfast table nothing was thought of it. Between 8 and 9 o'clock, Mrs. Anderson, who is 78, went to Mr. Anderson's bed room and found him hanging. He had used a small cord which he had tied to the post and the body was found with the legs drawn up. He had strangled to death.

Miss Vendelia Anderson, who was at home with her mother, ran to the home of a neighbor and summoned Dr. R. C. Paine of Thompson, medical examiner, who pronounced it a case of suicide, and stated that Mr. Anderson had been dead but a short time.

Mr. Anderson had lived in North Grosvenordale many years and was employed in the mill until he retired on account of age. He leaves besides his wife and daughter, a son, Charles Anderson, boss carder in the mill of the Grosvenordale company, and an older daughter, Mrs. Frank Converse, of Quinebaug.

The annual city meeting of Putnam was held at the Municipal building at 9 o'clock Monday morning, and in less than five minutes the appropriations recommended by the common council amounting to $53,130, were made. There were 13 present at the meeting, eight being city officials comprising the mayor, city clerk, prosecuting attorney, captain of police and one patrolman, superintendent of streets, superintendent of the water department, and city janitor, three citizens and two newspaper reporters.

As soon as the call had been read by the clerk Prosecuting Attorney J. F. Carpenter made a motion that the amounts as called for by the budget be appropriated. This was voted. Mr. Carpenter then moved that a tax of 9 1-2 mills be laid and an additional tax of 1 1-2 mills for the payment of interest and reduction of the principal on or before the 10th day of July, 1924.

The common council was empowered to borrow a sufficient sum of money to meet the current expenses of the city until the tax is collected and the meeting adjourned.

Appropriations were made as follows: Fire department, $12,000; police department $12,000; city court $1,800; highway department $9,000; sewer upkeep $450; general expenses $3,000; street light $8,500 city clerk $400; city treasurer $400; interest $4,800; janitor $480; fuel and light $300.

Manuel Pina, a Pomfret man, appealed Monday, when presented before Justice Bryden in Pomfret and fined $1, with costs, on a charge that he refused to assist an officer when called upon to do so. He was represented by Attorney Charles L. Torrey of this city.

State Officers Merrill Keith, of the Danielson barracks, and Sergeant George Laird, of the Putnam police department, went to Pomfret about 5 o'clock Sunday morning in serach of a woman against whom a complaint had been lodged, with the intention of placing her under arrest.

The officers were not certain as to just where she lived and stopped at the Pine place to make inquiries. Pine from within his home responded to the call of Officer Keith and inquired what was wanted. He was told that his assistance was wanted in locating the woman sought. This did not seem to make much of a hit with Pine.

Having fully informed Pine that the request was made in the name of the state Officer Keith asked Pine to come out. "Come in," said Pine. "The door is locked," said the officer. "Then go to hell!" said Pine. And he is declared to have repeated that direction when again told that his assistance was wanted.

That's how Pine came to be arrested. And that is how he opened a little discussion that is of interest to attorneys and officers, for it involves the question of a man's obligation to assist an officer excepting in emergencies. Mr. Torrey representing Pine, contended there was no obligation resting on Pine to give assistance in such an instance as brought about the controversy that resulted in his arrest. Justice Bryden, nevertheless, imposed a fine, a very small one it will be noted, and Mr. Torrey promptly appealed in behalf of his client. Pine, who is married and has five children, was at his own home when the officers called.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistant colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. —(Adv.)

Is Winter Time Your Backache Time?

DOES YOUR BACK FORETELL EVERY CHANGE OF THE WEATHER? DO YOU FEEL OLD AND STIFF AND SUFFER SHARP, RHEUMATIC PAINS? THEN LOOK TO YOUR KIDNEYS!

DOES every cold, chill or attack of grip leave you lame, stiff and achy? Are you nervous and depressed; feel tired, worn-out and miserable? Does your back throb and ache until it seems you just can't keep going another day?

Then look to your kidneys! Grip, colds and chills throw a heavy strain on the kidneys. They overload the blood with poisons and impurities that the kidneys have to filter off. The kidneys are apt to weaken under this rush of new work; become congested and inflamed.

It's little wonder, then, that every cold finds many folks suffering with torturing backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying kidney irregularities.

If this is the case with you, don't risk neglect! Help your weakened kidneys with a stimulant diuretic. Begin using Doan's Pills. Doan's have helped thousands. Local users testify to their worth. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Norwich Folks:

HARRY HULING, 24 Avery St., says: "I am glad to tell what Doan's Pills have done for me. Backache and kidney trouble are a thing of the past with me for Doan's cured me several years ago and I have never been troubled since. I give my experience in the hope that it may do someone else good to know what Doan's will do. I hold them above other kidney remedies."

MRS. H. SPALDING, R. F. D. No. 1, says: "I always hold Doan's Pills above other kidney remedies and they have always proved valuable. Sharp, darting catches would cut through my back just over my kidneys that felt like sharp needles. Doan's Pills are used by another member of the family with good results and I was sure they would help me. True to the word of Doan's, relief was most wonderful and I have used them a few times since with the same good results."

Kellogg's Bran did more in two weeks than medicine taken in 20 years

Out of regard for your own health, read this letter:

Gentlemen:

Your "Krumbled Bran," used by me as a cereal, has done more for me in two weeks than the hundreds of dollars' worth of medicine I have taken in last twenty years for constipation. It is wonderful, and it is so simple.

Yours truly,
Arlington H. Carman,
Patchogue, N. Y.

Mr. Carman's experience has been duplicated in thousands of homes. Why does Kellogg's Bran succeed when drugs and pills fail? The answer is simple. Drugs have an unnatural effect upon the bowels. They irritate the intestines. The more they are used, the more one has to use. Finally, they have no effect at all.

Kellogg's Bran STIMULATES the intestines. It cleans, sweeps and purifies them. It acts exactly as nature acts. And it is never necessary to increase the amount eaten. If eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran is guaranteed to bring permanent relief to the most chronic cases of constipation, or your grocer returns your money. For Kellogg's Bran is ALL bran. Nothing but ALL bran can be so effective. That is why doctors recommend Kellogg's.

The wonderful, nut-like flavor of Kellogg's Bran is exclusive. It is delicious—totally unlike ordinary bran. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream and in the recipes on every package. Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is made in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers.

NAVAL SONSTRUCTION.

How the road that is taken by one nation makes others uneasy and sleepless is well illustrated by the action of Great Britain in its new plan to carry out a building programme for warships.

By it now that country has been dispelled of the naval treatment and the desire for peace. It is not to be supposed that the British are now inclined to go contrary to the naval treaty. On the other hand whatever they do will be in full accord therewith. It is the fact that the British consider it necessary to lay down new ships in order to provide employment for many of its people that makes others uneasy.

Thus when it is announced that the British, even though their navy yards and the others are to start work on the new cruisers at once it makes the others sit up and take notice. The attitude is that if the British are doing a bit of strengthening it is time for us to think about the same thing. There can be no such thing as falling behind in the procession. That was the view which resulted in the ruinous competition in naval construction previous to the naval agreement. It meant the squandering of hundreds of millions of dollars without increasing the relative strength of navies just because someone started it and others felt compelled to follow.

Nations have enough ways to use their funds these days without engaging in a race to see which can spend the most money for naval vessels, though it is not improbable that this country will feel an increased pressure for a naval building programme just because the British government is taking that means of aiding the unemployment situation across the water.

No nation may suspect the British of entering upon many building activities but none is disposed to be caught napping, and instead of taking any chances they find themselves badly persuaded to follow the leader against that uncertainty of failing to be prepared after having received what can easily be interpreted as a warning.

ENFORCING THE LAW.

The mere placing of a law on the statute books doesn't solve the problem which that law was intended to correct. The existence of a law is sufficient for many people, but for the few there must be enforcement if the law is going to amount to anything.

Secretary Hughes didn't mince matters any in his recent address before the American Law Institute, when, after declaring that though Americans have a passion for law-making they show little interest in effective enforcement of the laws, he insisted the need of the hour is not to make law but to enforce law.

In a government of laws it is plain that some legislation is more important and will get more attention than others. Likewise some will get a larger degree of public support, but when laws have been enacted they should be upheld.

There are instances where the law turns out to be poorly drawn, inadequate, full of holes or too exacting points. There are others which work out contrary to expectations. There are those against which sentiment seems to increase so much that failure to enforce causes them soon to fall. Changed conditions or changed sentiment may have the same effect.

When situations of that kind exist the lack of or lax enforcement creates disrespect for all law, the impression growing that if one law amounts to nothing the others may be no better. Instead of creating contempt for law by allowing the statute books to remain filled with such laws, of continuing to wink at them and to permit it to be known that the authorities have no respect for them, it would be far preferable to hasten their repeal.

If a law is worth having it is worth enforcing, and when laws exist that are not enforced the very existence of such a situation carries its own objections. Better law enforcement would create greater respect for law, less lawlessness, less efforts to circumvent the law and less laws would be needed.

RESTRICTION WILL CONTINUE.

In all the discussion about immigration there seems to be no question but what sentiment runs strong for restriction. The problem is to determine just how much.

The argument is heard that this is a big country, that it has a vast amount of sparsely settled territory and that those who will should be permitted to locate thereon and aid in the development. Such an argument is supported by the claim that while some states are so thickly populated that they have over 500 persons to the square mile on an average, there are others where there are only two. It doesn't get very far, however, even as a pointed fact that the enemy of the newcomers are opposed to take up their residence in the given the United States cannot nities and let the thinly populated sections remain that way. They are also disposed to close and fastened up securely over the country and follow its customs and ways and get in touch with the language and manners. Here too many of them cling to their own languages and ways and fail of the melting pot.

The war brought us to a realization of this more than anything else. For our own protection and the good of the nation there was realized the need of looking sharply to our own welfare. Restrictions were the policy agreed upon and the views in a marked change in consideration to this be continued.

Centers that are keeping foreign ore not looking with an open door upon such a plan as the old stock of America. They realize an interest in the land of their birth or where they may have resources and it must be realized that if such continued to be the case weighed and the hard kept up it must be done before those with foreign attachments get into the majority.

Time has brought about a change relative to opening the door to all who knock. We have experienced the detrimental features of such a plan. Advantage has been taken of our generosity and we are the most of giving due consideration to country rather than ourselves, and of bringing in only such a number of desirables as can be assimilated. Our new immigration bill will be patterned on such lines.

CLEARING THE HIGHWAYS.

Clearing the highways of snow is a new task that has been imposed upon the state highway department since the state highway system has been developed and with a large number of motor vehicles make use of them throughout the year. Formerly through the roads were to be left to the towns or those who dealt them, but now there isn't much in the way of a snow storm but what the state highway department employees are called out to clear the way and in some instances to sand the hills where the concrete pavement proves driving slightly dangerous after a sleet, slippery grades exist.

Clearing and safeguarding the highways means much work to the road employes. It is a service upon which much dependence is placed but Highway Commissioner Macdonald takes the right attitude when he states that the work of getting the snow out of the highways in such that there is no time at the disposal of the department for clearing it from entrances to driveways or from rural mail boxes. Snow removed on the highways of the state is different from the clearing of city streets, but it is apparent that there is ground for expecting a bit of cooperation from those who may happen to have a bit of snow thrown up at the entrance to the driveways or those whose mail boxes may happen to be set where the snow is dipped. Lots there than is devoted to the clearing of the highways to the end it should be done before those with foreign attachments get into the majority.

Time has brought about a change relative to opening the door to all who knock. We have experienced the detrimental features of such a plan. Advantage has been taken of our generosity and we are the most of giving due consideration to country rather than ourselves, and of bringing in only such a number of desirables as can be assimilated. Our new immigration Bill will be patterned on such lines.

DAUGHERTY AT COURT.

The vote of the senate to proceed with the Daugherty investigation is what was expected and it is what was asked by the attorney general. There were some sensible changes made in the allegations, and as might be anticipated the charges now carry the word "alleged" before them.

It has been the position of the attorney general that he would not resign just because a lot of unproved stories had been going the rounds about him. He insisted that he should be granted a hearing, that he should be given a chance to relate his side and not be given a blackened reputation just because someone started certain tales about his conduct of the department.

He insists that there has been no wrong doing, and it is to be hoped that he can establish unquestioned proof of it, as should be able to when now for the mill that has been carried by the political antagonists. There can be no question in his mind however but what he is for vindicated upon the investigation, and it is hoped that the inquiry will not unnecessarily create a lack of confidence.

Inasmuch as he has defied the efforts to have him resign the office, it is to be expected that the proof that will carry vindication. It is to prevent such an avalanche of charges that he had asked the day in court. Whatever the outcome it seems highly probable that his days as a cabinet member are numbered.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

Washington, D. C., March 4.—The house seems to be carrying off the honors just now as against the senate where the time has been given over more to political partisan discussions and wholesale for "investigations" made by imminent Democratic-inspired conversations, than to the discussion and passage of necessary legislation. At a reception given here last week by the Massachusetts Society of Washington, Senator Lodge was the principal speaker, and he summed up the situation in his opening words when stating that: "I was asked to speak to you tonight, but after my experience in the senate for the past month or more, I cannot understand how any one wants to hear a man talk." It is a fact that no sooner are the senate galleries crowded with visitors expecting some racy scandal exposition, that the junior senator from Alabama, Hon. Oscar Underwood, quietly puts down his white vest and begins a long tirade, or Robinson, of Arkansas, shouts in Mentorian tones that the republicans are all wrong and the country must depend on his leadership to bring it safely through, or Caraway of Arkansas rubbing his hands together as if washing them with invisible soap takes up the talk, and hour after hour goes by without the possibility of transacting customary legislative business. Over in the house there have been rough tilts and many hot words, but in the end bills have been passed and been sent to the senate.

New England senators have come through the ordeal with a clean slate and so far not one of them has taken up senate time by debate or discussion on matters not requiring immediate attention along the line of legislative business. Senator Brandegee, as chairman of the judiciary committee is up to his neck in work, as not only do the routine matters assigned to that committee require much time and attention but the twenty or more constitutional amendments are pending before it.

The banking and currency committee of which McLean is chairman, is getting a busy one, but this year it is not so hurried in work as was the case in the 67th congress.

Tilson of New Haven led the fight for passage of the Mellon bill without change, and did not yield even when the vote was taken. Later he sent out a statement giving the reason why he voted against the measure and made clear his belief that owing to changes made under the coalition vote of democrats and insurgents, several matters were embraced in it that would prove to be pitfalls to the success and detriment to the country's interest in later years. Mr. Merritt and Mr. Fess agreed with Tilson and voted against the measure, Freeman and O'Sullivan voted for it.

Senator Brandegee recently warned the senate that if the proposed resolutions looking into all actions of the prohibition enforcement acts and calling for a formal investigation along such wholesale lines were carried out, it would be an unending task and the judiciary committee have but little if any time for its prescribed functions. Senator West Virginia, the only senator to vote against the Daugherty investigation, summed up the present senate leadership correctly and in a few words, after one of the coalition moves had gone successfully through.

"The democratic party is now under the leadership of Senator LaFollette," said he, and looking over the average house vote the same may be said of the situation in the house, where the balance of power is held by the so called "John Nelson wing" for Nelson, works entirely under the leadership and dictation of LaFollette, so it is fixed as to what shall be best by authority. If any one doubts this all they need do is go behind the scenes, listen to corridor talk and then watch the vote that follows.

Down at the White House offices a day of two ago, the usual number of press gallery correspondents watched with interest the meeting between President Coolidge and Sir Harry Lauder, who is playing an engagement at one of the local affairs. As usual, a star wants to see the president while in Washington, and the president usually gives the desired interview which lasts but a couple of minutes. But when Harry Lauder came into the president's offices just as the press had ended its bi-weekly conference, everybody stopped, looked and listened. For Sir Harry was dressed in highland killies with a little Scotch cap on his head. The bright plaid of the kilted skirt and the bare knees made a notable contrast to the dark grey sack suit of President Coolidge. Each greeted the other with cordiality and Sir Harry then presented his wife.

Lauder later told some of the newspaper men an experience he had in a hospital as an entertainer of wounded soldiers. 'Twas in California, at Palo Alto and shell shocked men composed much of the audience. "I fixed my eye on one poor fellow near the front who did not show the least interest in what was going on," said Lauder. "But after I had sung several songs and found they liked 'Roamin' in the Gloamin' and others of that sort the men I was about to stop, for I had sung myself hoarse, the chap in the front row rose, clutched out his arms and cried 'Ah give us just one more!' Quick to note the suppressed look that came over the face of the man nearby, I realized that he must have broken a long silence, and moreover I caught the lingo of a brother, so I broke out into Barney from Killarney. A bright light came into the eyes of that shell shocked lad, and afterwards the doctors told me it was the first hopeful sign that they had seen and may be he would recover helped on by that one awakening." Lauder said he hoped President Coolidge would be reelected as he admired him greatly.

Although the national conventions are scarcely three months away, no word is heard here of the probable candidates for vice president on either ticket. That is not to be wondered at as the democratic side of the senate, for more than a score of possible presidential candidates have either shown their intentional formally known or "in the hands of the friends." With McAdoo and Smith on the outside, you can't look across the senate on the democratic side of the middle aisle, without looking into the face of a president who at least is getting his "hopes there" ready for use in case lightning strikes him. Every day a new name or two is added to the list of "peaceful possibilities" and as neither the race nor the locality from which the democratic candidate is to come has been selected, the presidential running mate is naturally held back, but on the republican side, where the nomination of President Coolidge is taken for granted, the real primary point of decision may be readily understood, but just why no one stands his claim for second place, is one of the mysteries of the day.

The Daugherty investigation is likely to take weeks, if not months, according to the early statements of Senator Brookhart, chairman. The ranking member will be Moses of New Hampshire, a man of quick and independent thought familiar with methods of procedure and fearless. And it is well it is so, for the democratic members of that committee are Ashurst of Arizona, known as the cowboy senator, and Wheeler of Montana, prime mover in the against-Daugherty movement.

Both are hot headed and peppery. Brookhart, who is an insurgent leader, Moses and Jones of Washington, the other members, are all men who are not afraid to stand by their guns no, though no one can foretell the outcome of the investigation, it is certain it will not be a dull and water affair.

The Women's City club gave a reception last week to the ladies of the New England delegations in senate and house. Connecticut was represented by Mrs. Merritt, Mrs. Frank and Mrs. Freeman.

The placing of the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence in the Congressional library when they can be seen by visitors has met with much favorable comment. The ceremony was one of formal simplicity, attended by the President and Mrs. Coolidge, and the shrine in which they are securely placed, is in the midst of the magnificent marble hall. For more than a century and a half these documents have been hidden in the steel vaults of the treasury and only seen by special orders issued to but a few persons.

The figure seems in Washington have leaped 331 per cent. during a period when the population increased only 32 per cent. is the statement issued here today. These figures cover the period from 1916 to 1923. The great number of prohibition arrests is said to be accountable for much of the increase. And speaking of prohibition arrests, guilty persons with hereafter be pretty careful about opening their doors to moving vans. Last night two members of the vice squad went to a suspected apartment and gave a good imitation of gypsy's move. In a minute the door opened a "scat, you beggar," shouted a man from within. "You are under arrest," replied the "cat" and the raid was under way.

THE TAMING OF A SHEIK

David Richings Shand was the world's original sheik and admirers of it was no fault of his that the frail sex found him irresistible. Nature had endowed him with good looks, charming manners and a magnetic personality.

"It's a shame," he muttered as he preened before the mirror, "that a man of my type becomes such a cynic but I'm thankful I'm not a romantic sloft like Jerry and Fred. Could you imagine me married? The minute a girl begins to get interested in me that very instant I begin to dislike her."

"It is well," I admitted cheerfully. Young Shand yawned "Nice place you have here, Bill. I'm going to enjoy the solitude."

"You needn't worry about any adorable females here." I laughed. "There'll be nobody but you and me and the servants. My little niece June, arrives some time tomorrow by, she'll be going into town immediately.

David, old boy, she's such a sweet, trusting, romantic little thing. There must be no leading on of heart smashing, please. I love her as though she were my own daughter."

"Don't you fret, old man. You're the best friend I have. After all, it will be nice for a girl to have someone fresh and youthful about."

And humming a bit of jazz he gave an immaculate person a critical inspection in the hall mirror.

June arrived the early next morning, and greeted me as I came down to breakfast. I realized with a pang of regret that two years at a fashionable college had robbed me of my little girl. Before me stood a grown-up woman. She was adorable in her tailored long skirts and short cropped curls.

"Young Shand is with me for a few days," I told her, as I heard him whistling down the hall. "I hope you'll like him."

"What! Not that long-legged sheik that thinks he's Romeo and Beau Brummell rolled into one? Good gracious! Uncle Will, how can you stand that person?"

"June!" I implored. Of course David had heard.

My niece ignored the hand David seemed so eager to extend, and nowed haughtily.

"I've had breakfast," she informed us coldly.

June's behavior puzzled me. I could not understand the child's dislike for David. Most assuredly this was not the simple little girl I had kissed goodby two years ago. Before me stood a young person with blood in her eye. A week dragged by. To my young dismay June was coolly civil, nothing more. The kneeling process was something new to David. He did not expect it to endure, but it did. He was impressed.

"Oh-a! Not so loud," I warned.

"He fancies himself irresistible," she cried. "He's quite an amusing topic. Lydia was telling me the girls are making a perfect monkey out of him. If he weren't so cocksure himself and his lady-killing methods he would see they're only leading him on. Oh, he's the vainest imbecile! I'll bet he'll actually turn up his toes and perish if he ever got that hair or him mussed up!"

"You know perfectly well, Uncle Will Barnes I'm speaking the truth!"

David was undisposed and we saw nothing of him for the remainder of the day.

"Do you mind if I potter about in the garden a bit?" he asked me rather sheepishly, a day or so later.

"I'm tired of golf, and tennis bores me. Couldn't I hoe potatoes or something?"

When my partner left without giving notice, David insisted on taking charge.

"I've simply got to have the chores," he told me earnestly.

David mowed the lawns, and cared for the flowers and seemed to like it. When the cook suddenly took to her bed, one Sunday morning David dropped an enormous apron around his tall figure and buried himself with the pots and pans. It was an excellent breakfast. June ate heartily of the cooky's cooking, but still maintained her icy attitude.

I could scarcely restrain my mirth. Watching these two youngsters was as good as a play. Instead of returning to town as she had planned to do, June remained to work. David, who had come out to loaf for a few days, was doing the first real work in his life.

"Bother, I'm in love for the first time in my life, and she hates me like a poisoned pup! I've been waiting 31 years for June Munson. I know now that I've always loved her but I haven't a ghost of a chance.

"Oh, I admit I've been a fool and a cad, and seven kinds of a boob, but I'm a changed man now, old top. I love her. I love her, I tell you! I've simply got to have her."

"That's the stuff, David, old man," I cried joyously. "Perhaps when June is convinced that you've quit the sheik business for good, she'll change her mind."

June, too, made a confession that night.

"I had been here only a few minutes when I heard you and David in the library. I was about to surprise you when I heard him bragging about what a love pirate he was. I made me so angry that I decided to cure him of this evil business. It was easier than I thought. Well, I've had my revenge, to my humiliation, I've discovered that I've gone and fallen in love with the wretch! Isn't his magic, Uncle Will?"

With a contented smile I had to admit that it was.

But just to prove that all women aren't susceptible to the wiles of mere man, Jane kept the world's original sheik dangling after her for almost a year before she finally said "yes."—Ottawa Citizen.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

No Reason Why South Couldn't Love Lincoln.

Mr. Editor: Will you kindly allow me to say a few few words in answer to Lillian A. Bulman's letter of Feb 29th? I was surprised and astonished to think that anyone living in the north could not love Mr. Lincoln. I, being a granddaughter of a Civil War veteran, could not let this pass by unnoticed. I cannot see why both the north and the south could not love Lincoln, because he teaches us the lessons of honesty and truthfulness.

Robert Lee was a great soldier and general and a good man, but I cannot compare him to Lincoln. Lee was reared in affluence while Lincoln was brought up in the poorest of surroundings and made one of the greatest men in American history.

In Lillian A. Bulman's letter she says "We have no reason to love Mr. Lincoln." I cannot see how any Christian country could allow human beings to be bought and sold and to divide our country which Washington made and which Abraham Lincoln saved.

BRESLAU.

"A street car strike of a few days' duration is enough to upset an American city of half a million population; the suspension of trolley operation in Breslau, Germany, is another calamity of the declining mark," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Breslau, in size and industry, is a Pittsburgh of Prussia, plus some of the German functions of Milwaukee.

"Its prosperous growth before the War was nourished by every element that goes to building a great industrial center. It lay in a fertile plain on a navigable river, the Oder, which afforded a deep waterway to the Elbe and the Vistula. Its railways ramified to Berlin, Vienna, and other important cities, and it was the nearest trade depot to the Russian and Austrian borders.

"While the Russian army still was in the field Breslau was a major objective, for it was, and still is, the capital of Silesia, an important industrially as the Ruhr basin. It was a distributing point for the world's richest zinc deposits, near Beuthen; for the great mining and smelting district, Zabrese and Konigshutte; for the glassware of Gielwitz and the water-power textile works of central and southern Silesia.

"Factories and train yards have not eradicated traces of Breslau's historic career from the time, in the 13th century, when it was a stronghold of the Hanseatic League. Its old fortifications were converted into beautiful walks and its moats now are attractive ponds.

"The new commercial visitor finds his chief interest in its churches and its beer. The customary place to sample the latter is in the Schweidnitzer Keller, located in the Town Hall, and the cellar's 'swinging doors' have not been closed since 1255.

"The Town Hall is a fine Gothic building, conspicuous on the city's market square, wherein also is the historic Furstenhaal, where the Silesian diet formerly met.

"One of the noteworthy churches is St. Elizabeth's, has the highest steeple in Prussia, rising some 300 feet, the largest bell in Silesia, and one of Germany's most famous pipe-organs. The Sandkirche, dedicated to 'Our Lady of the Sands,' formerly was the church of the Augustinian Canons, more popularly known as the 'Black Canons,' because of their hoods. The Roman Catholic cathedral, dating to the 15th century, is a treasure-house of painting and sculpture. Among its art works is the 'Madonna of the Pines,' attributed to the elder Cranach.

"A statue in the square of Schleiermacher recalls that the famous theologian, forerunner of the modern revivalist, who laid great stress upon the emotional element in religion, was born in Breslau.

"Dispatches indicate that the street car strike's interference with the city's manufacture of locomotives, beer, textiles, and its hundred or more distilleries, may have a more important effect than that of merely causing great inconvenience. City planners are urging that workmen's homes be built within fifteen minutes' walk of factories and that the factories be so constructed that they will not mar the beauty of a residential neighborhood.

Don't Leave Film
On your pretty teeth

See how this new way combats it

Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. You can feel it now. Even when you brush teeth, much of it clings and stays.

That is your teeth's great enemy. That is what mars their beauty, digs in what destroys them.

Let this five test show you how millions now combat it.

That cloudy coat

What is that viscous coat you feel. It clings and stays, because old-way brushing cannot effectively combat it.

Soon it becomes discolored, then forms dingy coats. Tooth by tooth it may become unsightly.

Film also holds food substances which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with the acid, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Now there are ways to do that, due to modern research. One very distinguishes the film by all stages of formation. One removes it without harmful scouring.

Dental authorities have proved these methods effective. A new-type tooth paste has been created so all might apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

A test will show

Pepsodent results are very quick and convincing. It does more than fight film. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids. It multiplies the ptyalin in saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth.

These combined results bring quickly a new conception of tooth beauty.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how much more whiter are the film-coats disappear.

What you see and feel will soon convince you that this method is essential. Cut out coupon now.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

POETRY

For all they love the sea and the sands
All around a sweeping bay
With never a thought of the grief and tide.
Their own hearth and fire.

For beauty calls and loyalties
Leave little marks and scars
Though hearts may lose all their dearest
Youth remembers after;
Through years may whisper half and kind.
Caressed to cheer by memories
A-sudden, lyres to all its mind
And smiling only—home.

Apple, cold and sweet come into their
Thirsty mists of memory,
And visions, of the lately eaten
Oh, forever, of an ever
And man realizes, with darkened sight
Again no more to roam.
(The while they smile the way to lead
And free the best days of home.
—Cecil Fieldman in New York Sun and Globe.

Mr. Vanderip says:
"Absolute knowledge have I none,
But why—that's washerwoman's song."

Hears a Policeman on his beat
Say to a laborer on the street
That he has a niece just back
A letter which he did not speak
From a Chinese merchant in Manchuria
Who said that his brother in the Klaw
Of an Indian chief in a Texas town
Was got the hide from a circus clown
That a man in Klondike had it stripped
From a guy in a South American state
That a wild mash over in Borneo
Was held by a woman who claimed to know
Of a well-known small society fame
Whose mother-in-law will undertake
To prove that her husband's sister's niece
Once stated plain in a printed piece
That she had a son who never came home
Who knows all about this Teapot Dome.

AUTHORIZES E. C. POWER CO. TO SELL ELECTRICITY IN OCCUM

Rumors that the special city meeting would be filled with plenty of action were verified Monday evening when the last notice in the warning came up for discussion: that of determining whether or not the city of Norwich will give consent and permission to the Eastern Connecticut Power company to sell electricity in that portion of the town bounded and described as follows: Beginning on the northerly boundary of the town of Norwich where it is intersected by the easterly side of the first highway westerly of the main highway between Occum and Baltic and running southeasterly to a point on the easterly side of the main highway between Taftville and Occum 1305 feet northerly from the northerly line of Providence street measured on the eastern side of said main highway to Occum; thence in the same direction southeasterly to the center of the Shetucket river; thence northerly and northwesterly in the center of the Shetucket river to the northerly boundary of the town of Norwich; thence westerly along the northerly boundary of said town to the place of beginning.

For nearly a half hour the discussion waxed hot and furious but the meeting finally voted to allow the Eastern Connecticut Power company to sell power to Occum and the meeting adjourned.

The city meeting followed the adjourned town meeting in the town hall and was called to order by Mayor Milo R. Waters and the warning was read by Clerk Weston C. Fullen. The first business was that of determining whether or not the court of common council be authorized to appropriate a sum not exceeding $3,000 for the contingent expenses of the city in addition to the amount they had heretofore been authorized to appropriate. This was voted following a resolution offered by Acting Corporation Counsel Thomas Shields.

In like manner the meeting voted that the sum of $3,500 be appropriated for the purchase of traffic signals of the flashing beacon type.

The same course followed when votes were taken to allow the court of common council to appropriate a sum not exceeding $10,000 for general expenses of the department of public works, in addition to sums already voted, also to allow the court of common council to expend any balances of specific appropriations heretofore authorized and not exceeded for purposes other than those for which they had been authorized.

The meeting also voted to authorize and sanction the borrowing of an amount to be determined by said meeting on notes or certificates of indebtedness of the city to meet the appropriations made at the meeting.

It was also voted that the deed made by and between Rowland D. Hill and the city of Norwich be authorized and sanctioned. In explaining this to the meeting Mayor Waters said that the land in question consisted of a tract of about 40 acres on the northern shore of the lake at Mohegan park. The land was wanted by a camp for New York girls and a price higher than that offered by the city had been turned down by Mr. Hill. The sum of $2,500 would be paid from current park appropriations, no appropriation being necessary at the meeting.

The last matter of busines was that of allowing the Eastern Connecticut Power company to sell power in Occum. The motion was offered by Attorney Thomas M. Shields and when remarks were called for Meyer Blumenthal took the floor and spoke in favor of having the City of Norwich Gas and Electric department extend its lines to Occum and furnish power. He said that if the Eastern Connecticut Power company succeeded in getting a hold on Occum it would practically mean that in time they would take all outside territory.

President James L. Case of the board of gas and electric commissioners explained the situation, saying that the proposition had twice been up for consideration by the commission, there being about 40 petitioners. The commission found that it would cost between $3,000 and $4,000 to extend the city lines to Occum and the gross revenue from sale of power would be about $600 a year. A petition came up in the spring of 1923 and was later withdrawn by the people in Occum and only a few weeks ago they asked that the Eastern Connecticut Power company be allowed to furnish power. Mr. Case said that the city gas and electric plant had the franchise in Occum before the Pomeroah company, but neither wished to extend lines to Occum. He felt that the city had no right to deny the people of Occum light if it could not furnish it.

Permission was then given Rev. F. R. Beckwith of Occum to speak on the question and he put up a strong plea for power in Occum. For years, he said, villagers about Occum had desired electricity now known as a necessity, but Occum to this day remained a slave to Standard Oil. Electricity, he said, means not only lights for Occum, it meant running water, baths, sanitary conditions, also an inducement for growth which would benefit the city. Give us a show, he said; we might surprise you.

Albert Boardman next took the floor and stated that he believed the people of Occum should have electric lights, but assailed the members of the commission for what he believed their preference for the Eastern Connecticut Power company. We lost the option on the Scotland dam and the power company got it and now we propose to give them Occum. He then offered an amendment to the motion; that the gas and electric department reconsider giving power to Occum. The amendment was voted and was adopted by a majority vote.

Mr. Case again took the floor and in answer to charges by Mr. Boardman said that the commission always welcomed constructive criticism. The commission, he said, stands ready to furnish any information asked for, tries to do the best it can, and always works for the interest of the city. It was because we did not wish to spend $6,000 of the taxpayers' money for something that would bring in an income of only $600 gross a year, that this matter was proposed. We only ask your interest in the department, said Mr. Case, we are your servants and as far as possible we try to fulfill our mission in the best possible way.

Alderman Edward Crooks asked if the amendment meant "consider" and Shepard B. Palmer asked if the meeting had the right to vote to allow the city plant to furnish power, and received the answer of "no," as nothing in the warning mentioned this.

Mr. Blumenthal then got up and moved that the city furnish power to Occum but his motion was ruled out of order by Mayor Waters.

Dr. J. J. Donohue at this point, when everything seemed at a standstill, got up and said that he believed the motion as it stood was "all rot." No appropriation has been made, he said, to spend $6,000 for this work. He felt that most of those voting for the amendment failed to consider what it meant. Asked if he voted for the amendment he said he had. The motion to reconsider offered by Dr. Donohue was then seconded and after more speaking by Mr. Boardman, General Manager C. H. Taggart of the city department, and Mr. Larrabee of the Eastern Connecticut Power company, the motion to reconsider was voted, and the amendment to the original motion last.

The motion as originally put was then voted and won by a large majority, Occum to have power furnished by the Eastern Connecticut Power company.

Adjournment was at 9 o'clock.

DWOJAKOWSKI HELD FOR DEATH OF ROZANSKI

Presented before Justice of the Peace Walter F. Drew at hearing in Lisbon Monday night, William Dwojakowski of 40 Convent avenue, this city, was bound over to the criminal term of the superior court on bonds of $5,000 on a charge of manslaughter in causing the death of Raymond Rozanski, late of No. 760 Boswell avenue. Rozanski died Sunday night in the hospital here as the result of a bullet wound received during an argument at a dance in the Lisbon Shooting club, Saturday night, January 26th, and it is alleged that the fatal shot was fired by Dwojakowski.

The hearing was held in the Lisbon Shooting club with Justice Walter Drew on the bench. Grand Juror George Helmboldt and Lawyer E. T. Perkins represented the state, while the accused was represented by Lawyer Charles L. Stewart. The state presented five witnesses, Leo Beauregard, John Herd, Aubrey Potter, State Policeman Palmer and Dr. W. T. Driscoll. No witnesses were presented by the defense.

After hearing the testimony Justice Drew found probable cause and bound the prisoner over to the criminal court, fixing the bonds at $5,000. There was a large number of spectators at the hearing which lasted until 10 o'clock.

TOWN MEETING VOTES TAX OF 22 1-2 MILLS

The adjourned annual town meeting held Monday evening at 8 o'clock in the town hall voted a tax of 22 1-2 mills on the dollar on the grand list of the town, one-half mill less than that voted in 1923.

This reduction in the tax rate means a saving of approximately $10,730 in the running expenses of the town as figured by the selectmen, from the final total of the grand list fixed by the board of relief at $21,482,086.

The annual town meeting which had been adjourned from the first Monday in October, 1923 was called to order promptly at 8 o'clock by Henry H. Pettis who explained the purpose of the meeting, to lay a tax which he said had been figured at 22 1-2 mills by the selectmen, sufficient to cover state and county taxes, appropriations for schools and necessary town expenses.

This was speedily voted by the meeting and adjournment was taken at 8.04 o'clock, three minutes being needed for the meeting.

The tax of 22 1-2 mills will raise approximately $482,211.91, the amount fixed for current expenses of the town.

Subscription Dance

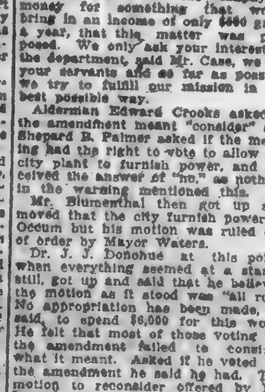
Seventy-five couples enjoyed a subscription dance Monday evening in the Wauregan house ball room for which the dance numbers were by Herb Smith's orchestra. Part of the floral decorations for the Lions' club charter night celebration last Friday night which had been allowed to remain in the ball room made an attractive setting for the dance.

MAMMOTH AMATEUR MINSTRELS SCORE BIG SUCCESS

An audience that filled Broadway theater from pit to dome Monday night piled encore upon encore for the mammoth minstrels presented by Mercier assembly, Catholic Ladies of Columbus, and White Cross council, Knights of Columbus. The big troupe had everything that goes to set a new and high standard for amateur minstrel productions here — snap, spirit and melody in their ensemble songs, sweet voiced soloists, clever dancers, and beautiful scenic effects —the whole run off with a smoothness and finish that was professional.



EDWARD T. CONNELLY
Director and Minstrel Star

As the curtain was rung up on the opening scene, The Land of Minstrelsy, there was a burst of appreciative applause for the gorgeous stage effect. The stage was set in purple with the K. of C. emblems on the back drop and the mixed chorus ranged in tiers in minstrel style with Interlocutor William McClafferty, resplendent in a white satin suit, seated in the middle of the front row. The ladies of the chorus were in green coats, faced with black and white stripes, black and white striped skirts and green turbans. The men wore long minstrel coats of purple, faced with yellow, black and orange striped trousers, and big orange ties under their daring minstrel collars.

The end men, Edward Connelly, George Madden, Danny O'Brien and Nappy Kerosick, and the two end women, Roseanna Peloquin and Nonie Nagle, were in black face.

The production was staged as follows:

In the minstrels the interlocutor and end men carried on a snappy line of jokes that kept the audience in roars of laughter as a number of local names were brought into the fun. Danny O'Brien, for his singing and dancing, was given a triple encore and three were repeated encores for the solos by Nappie Kerosick, Eleanor Donovan, Roseanna Peloquin, Sadie Driscoll, Henry La Fontaine and Warren Kane, the last named rendering one of McCormack's latest ballads, Somewhere In the World. Nonie Nagle scored a special hit for her song and dance and the two premiers, George Madden and Edward Connelly, were side-splitting in their give and take with the interlocutor.

The Blue Ribbon Syncopators, eight artists in jazz, under the direction of Michael D'Atri, added a pleasing feature with their music and were not allowed to go until they had added all encore for good measure.

Ed Connelly and Bill Ward in their negro act, The Three O'Clock Train, were screamingly funny every minute and had the house shaking with laughter while they held the stage.

The bill closed with the old plantation novelty, In Old Virginny, which was capitally done and in which Roseanna Peloquin and George Madden were heard in a pretty duet, Nellie Moore, as Aunt Chloe, captured the house with her buck and wing dance, Danny O'Brien did another good dance number and Fred Dugas was a limelight number for his hard shoe dancing. Mary Coyle and Warren had well rendered solos and Thomas Fields and Dan Desmond did a duo dance number.

The minstrels are promised another big house when they repeat the performance this (Tuesday) evening.

WILLIMANTIC TOWN MEETING FULL OF FIZZ AND FIREWORKS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, March 3—The special town meeting Monday night at the town building proved as lively as a three-ring circus, the activity being divided between Eugene Randall, Lyman Maine and John Regan. The meeting lasted over an hour and a half and was attended by over 600 tax-payers. First Selectman Russell A. Andrews was chosen moderator and Town Clerk Frank F. Fuller read the warning and acted as clerk.

The first clause, which was to determine if the town would vote to construct sidewalks in front of the Alms House and the Willimantic cemetery property on West Main street was flatly turned down. Eugene Randall put the damper on the idea by making a motion that no action be taken. He was vigorously seconded by John Regan who pointed out that the property in question was at least a half mile away from the nearest concrete sidewalk, but little used, and that it would be more fitting to erect park benches along the route for the spooners who get the most enjoyment out of the West Main street district.

The argument on the second clause which called for the purchase of a lot of land in the fourth voting district, started off with a bang. The Randall-Regan combination advocated no action. The town and city each purchased voting booths and Mr. Randall expressed his fears that the town might buy land and place one booth thereon and that the city would then come along and claim it. Mr. Randall was very much incensed at the man who owned the property which it was planned to purchase. He made some rather straightforward remarks and intimated that the seller did not even own the property. Lyman Maine then took the floor and declared, "I doubt that land is my wife's two young aged parents but it's nobody's business what I do. Neither my wife nor myself cares whether the land is sold or not." Mr. Maine then upbraided Mr. Randall for his personal methods at the meeting. Amos Fowler joined in the argument which did not think until it did definitely voted to take no action.

Claude Jones rose to determine if the town would vote to establish a new rate of compensation to be paid after the first Monday in 1924 to the following town officers: Selectmen, Town Treasurer, Tax Collector, Board of Assessors, Assistant Town Treasurer and Clerk for the Board of Selectmen. Mr. Randall and Mr. Regan secured control of the floor and advised that no action be taken on the clause, with the exception of the tax collector's compensation. Mr. Randall said that the assessors had told him that they had never asked for an increase. He said that the board had had some difficulty this year because one of the members had refused to do any work. This particular assessor was defended by John D. Stoughton.

As to the selectman's salary, Mr. Randall said that the first selectman received $900 salary and $300 for being secretary of the cemetery committee. In his opinion that is fair pay. With regard to the second and third selectmen he was positive the $150 which they receive annually is all they are worth. Mr. Randall said that the public would be surprised to know just how much one of these selectmen got out of the town this year.

"This meeting is getting to be a one-man affair," said Lyman Maine. "If we must have reliable officers we must pay the market price. The first selectman now receives less than does the janitor in the building where he holds office; $1800 a year would be none too much."

Valentine L. Murphy started loud cheering when he arose and declared that no action leads to no progress, and I have never known Mr. Randall to be ready to take action! Let us take the stigma of no action out of this gathering and accomplish something." He then recommended the increase of $1500 annually. The vote was called and the house rang loud in the affirmative, while the request for "nos" was answered by one faint female voice.

Eugene Randall and Joseph Peck held the forts in the discussions for determining the compensation of the town tax collector. Randall advocated a cut of from 3-4 of one per cent to 3-5 of one per cent. In conformity with a recent action taken by the city fathers reference to the city's tax collectors' commission. It was voted to slash the compensation to the last amount mentioned.

No action was taken on the fourth clause to determine if the town would instruct the selectmen as to the maximum compensation to be paid the personal tax collector and the special canvassers of the military enrollment and personal tax enrollment. Robert Snow explained that this matter was up to the selectmen, according to the charter.

The big guns boomed loudly when the fifth clause was brought up to lay a tax rate on the grand list of the year 1923. Corporation Counsel T. J. Kelley, made it known that this was one clause upon which it was possible to take no action. Town Clerk Fenton then gave the estimated totals of the grand list, the amount raised by 11, 12 or 13 mill taxes and the budget which the tax would have to cover. The final total of the grand list approximates $17,239,894. A twelve-mill tax plus $87,000 from other sources of income would just take care of the budget, which was placed at $274,000, which plus the $78,000 income would aggregate $352,000. By this amount a handsome balance would be left after the expenses would be paid and a substantial payment could be made on the town's floating debt. This debt totals about $250,000 which has accrued within the past 20 or 25 years and on which 4 1-2 per cent. interest is being paid. The town has a sinking fund of $17,000 which will be utilized toward paying up the debt to 1935.

John R. McCarthy, who lost his sight some years ago, pleaded strongly for the young people to take hold and have some of the town's debt paid off. He said it was accumulated by those who are now gone and will have to be paid off after Mr. Randall, who strongly upheld a 12-mill tax has departed for other lands. Joseph Meikle, father of a large family, and a man only working three days a week accused Randall of always being on the watch for a handout. He said that he himself was willing to pay a few additional mills on his property to see the town get on the level. When the question was brought to a vote the 13 mill tax was carried by acclamation. It was voted that the town taxes be made payable on March 31.

Adjournment was taken at 9.45 o'clock.

BOSTON WHIRLWINDS NOSE OUT PLAINFIELD FIVE IN CLOSE GAME

The Boston Whirlwinds, New England's crack basketball five, had a narrow escape from defeat Monday evening at the hands of the Plainfield team at the Plainfield Community house when they barely nosed out the Plainfield team, 18 to 16, in the last ten seconds of play. The game was absolutely the best game that has ever been played on the Plainfield floor and was sensational from start to finish. The Plainfield team, which was strengthened by the addition of three former college stars, Berry, Murphy and Jackson of Worcester, practically had the game sewed up until the last few minutes of play.

The Plainfield team, playing a strong defensive game held the Whirlwinds in complete subjection during the first half and it looked as though they would be able to continue their almost perfect defense in the second half. However, the passwork of the Whirlwinds was too strong for them and they lost their advantage until the last twenty seconds of play saw the teams battling on even terms. A long court shot by Morley in the last ten seconds of play spelled defeat for the home team.

At the end of the first half the Plainfield team led by a score of 11 to 6, the Whirlwinds being able to score only two baskets during the half. At the opening of the second half the Whirlwinds came back with renewed strength and set out to overcome the seven point lead. This was a harder task than the Boston team thought for the Plainfield boys were fighting tooth and nail for the victory. Plainfield, however, was hardly able to hold their own but managed to get five more points in this half, bringing their total score to 16. The Whirlwinds gradually crept up on them until they were on even terms and the game hung in the balance up to almost the final whistle. With barely ten seconds of playing time remaining Heal, the fast Boston guard, got possession of the ball and in a dazzling display of footwork worsted his way through the Plainfield team to almost within shooting distance of the basket. He then passed the ball to Morley who took the chance on a long shot, the ball settling through the hoops a few seconds before the final whistle terminated the game.

As in practically all the games that the Whirlwinds have played, Heal, Martin and Morley were the stars. Murphy, left guard for Plainfield, starred for the home team although every man put up a wonderful exhibition of basketball. The summary:

A number of the local golfing fraternity were deeply interested in an article appearing in a New York newspaper by Grantland Rice, relative to the golf picture that is being shown in New York. The picture is "The National Rash" and is a series of 26 film masterpieces in connection with Mr. Rice's column "The Sportlight."

In "The National Rash" the cast includes Bobby Jones, open champion; Gene Sarazen, professional champion; Miss Edith Cummings, women's champion, and Lee W. Maxwell, Jr., coming champion, in slow motion attitudes depicting perfection of form and style.

DEMPSEY TO BE DISCHARGED FROM HOSPITAL TODAY

New York, March 3.—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, was so far recovered today from the effects of an operation, that he left the hospital for a few hours in company with his manager, Jack Kearns. The champion, however, returned to the hospital tonight for final observation but expects to be discharged tomorrow.

Kearns said plans for the future were indefinite. Dempsey has expressed a desire to take a trip to the Pacific coast and visit his parents at Salt Lake City, but Manager Kearns is contemplating a theatrical engagement, that will keep Dempsey busy until time to begin training for pending ring engagements.

TIGER PITCHERS MAY PLAY GOLF AT CAMP

Detroit, Mar. 3.—Ty Cobb has relented on his recent edict against golf, according to reports from the Tiger training camp at Augusta, Ga. Cobb's new order permits pitchers to play the Scotch game but keeps the bars up to other members of the squad.

Cobb's opposition to golf is that in his opinion, it adversely affects the "batting eye." Inasmuch as pitchers as a rule, cannot hit anyway, Cobb sees no reason to keep them off the links.

SISLER CONFIDENT OF MAKING STRONG COMEBACK

St. Louis, March 3.—"I'll be there playing this season—there is no doubt about it," was the enthusiastic statement today by George Sisler, manager of the St. Louis Americans, after he had worked out for three and one-half hours with the Browns squad in training at Mobile, Ala., according to word received here today. Sisler said his vision still bothers him, but added that it will not trouble his batting.

Chip Dugas Has Some More to Say Sporting Ed:—

Mr. Barber started this bowling argument and has now failed to finish it. We who reside in Taftville are ready and willing to invest our money on Morin if Barber will agree to Morin's proposition. If Barber insists on rolling half the match on ten-pins I will say everything is off. It is up to Barber now or it is no match. When Mr. Barber wants a match it would be just as well if he was not so insulting in his remarks especially as he started the argument. If Barber wants to really bowl Morin he can make arrangements with me at any time, he knows my address and telephone.

CHAPMAN TECH. HAS EASY TIME IN BEATING MADISON HIGH FIVE

New London, March 3.—Chapman Technical High easily defeated the quintet representing the Madison High last evening on the Chapman Tech basketball floor by a 45 to 19 score. In the preliminary game between the Chapman Tech Sophomores and the 10th Troop Boy Scouts, the Tech second year men scored a 25 to 5 win.

The game between Chapman Tech and Madison had all the ear-marks of a good game but as the game progressed, the Tech team seemed to be getting better and better until the beginning of the second quarter found the Madison boys hopelessly outclassed. No doubt the effects of the Killingly game had something to do with the early game that the Tech outfit put up. During the early minutes of play many easy chances for the basket were missed. And the baskets from the field that the wearers of the Red and Black scored were largely due to the element of luck which followed this team. Every basket scored was of the spectacular kind and it was hardly expected that the ball would drop through the basket for a goal.

Madison easily outpassed the New London boys in the first half and time an dagain threatened to bring the ball down the floor within distance of the basket by short snappy passes. Almost at the end of every Madison pass was McKeown, the visiting team's center. The smallness of the court had something to do with the breaking up of the passing system that Madison developed, and many times members of that team would not judge the distance across the floor where a team mate would be waiting apparently open and with a good opportunity for a score. But the Tech back court men were ever on the job intercepting these passes or would knock them down to the floor.

For over five minutes the teams battled with little results for either side. During this time both Andrews and Linkletter both missed easy goals. McKeown for Madison made good on the first attempt the Madison players received for the basket, with a spectacular goal from center of the floor. The ball traveled in the air in a straight line for the basket and gave Madison the only lead that this team enjoyed during the entire game. Hewitt seemed to have an off night in his playing. He made good but once out of three attempts from the foul line mark. Linkletter lucked in a basket right after Hewitt added the point for the lead for Chapman Tech. Linkletter added another basket from a difficult angle and McKeown retaliated for Madison. With but one point separating the two teams, Hewitt added a lone point followed closely by a double-decker by Andrews.

Play in the second quarter was easily in Tech's favor and the Red and Black had a safe lead rolled up when the curtain rung down for the first half. The second half saw the entire second team of Chapman Tech enter the game and remain throughout that period until the beginning of the fourth quarter when the first team entered the contest again.

Andrews for Chapman Tech was a hard player all evening. His floor play was good, as was his passing. Both Linkletter and Hewitt were tied for high scoring honors, each credited with 12 points.

McKeown played brilliantly for the visitors. His playing and basket shooting were good to watch. E. Lent also showed up to advantage for Madison, but two men cannot accomplish the results that five men can. The Madison team could be called a two-man team.

New London, March 3—With the termination of the Society Circus at the local Y. M. C. A. Saturday evening Physical director A. B. Dawson is now turning his attention to the numerous events that are scheduled to take place at the "Y". The scheduled games of the Industrial, House, Intermediate Church and Junior Church leagues were all postponed last week and consequently it is necessary to advance all dates in this league one week.

On Wednesday evening two games are scheduled for the House league, and one game in volleyball. Thursday evening boys of the junior gym class will play two games. On Friday night, four games of volleyball are scheduled in the Business and Professional Mens league. And Saturday, five games are already scheduled with a possible sixth pending. Two games will be played in the junior Church league, with the first contest getting under way at 2.30. In the evening, four games are expected to obe played off. One game in the Intermediate league and two games in the Industrial league.

Besides these every day features, a state wide swimming meet will be held in the swimming tank of the local "Y".

The semi-final in the Y. M. C. A. state basketball championship will find the New London "Y" opposing the Norwich "Y" at New London on March 22.

"Babe" Ruth's Condition Better.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 3.—Babe Ruth's condition continued favorable tonight, according to his physician who said the famous slugger probably would be out again within a week unless complications develop. Ruth, suffering from his fourth attack of influensa, declares the malady is his "jinx."

Mcinnis Leaves For South.

Gloucester, Mass., Mar. 3.—"Stuffy" McInnis, first baseman of the Boston Braves, left today to join his teammates at St. Petersburg, Fla. Before leaving for the south McInnis denied reports that he was a hold-out, and declared that he signed a 1924 contract some time ago. He has been in training at Gloucester armory for a month.

Mrs. Hurd Ties Miss Collett.

Belleair Heights, Fla., March 3.—Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, of Merion Cricket club, scored an 80, tying Miss Glenna Collett, of Providence, R. I., for the low medals in the women's Belleair championship golf here today. Mrs. Caleb Fox, of Huntingdon Valley, made a 95.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Lou Gowan, who pitched for Enid in the Western Association last year, has obtained a transfer to the Kalamazoo Club of the Mint League.

Among new umpires signed for the Mississippi Valley League is Tinker Driscoll of Peoria, Ill., well known in independent circles as the handler of an indicator.

The Beaumont Club announces the purchase of Outfielder Camp Skinner from San Antonio and the signing of Cliff Hill and Sigman, two left-handed pitchers, who were free agents.

Chick Knaupp, veteran 2nd baseman shipped by Nashville last year to Charlotte of the Sally League, is coming up again. The Minneapolis Club announces that it has purchased his contract.

Mike Schmidt, slugging pitcher of the Waco Texas Association team last year, sold to Fort Worth at the end of the season, has been returned by the Panther management to the Waco Club for a little more experience.

The National League will permit bonuses to be paid players for good behavior. Thus a dub can get a thousand extra for staying sober, while a star can't collect an extra cent for hitting .400. Blame that on prohibition.

The backers of the Cushing Club of the Oaklahoma State League are building a new grand stand, which will seat 3,500 persons, or nearly double the capacity of the old stand. The bleachers will seat several hundred additional.

Elmer Shaughnessy, third baseman of the Minneapolis team, has notified Mike Kelley that he has quit baseball and gone into business in San Francisco, which may have something to do with Kelley's inquiries for a third baseman.

The Portland Club announces the signing of Ed Lennon, a right-handed pitcher who has been a free agent. He formerly was with Bridgeport in the Eastern League and last year pitcher for an independent team at Camden, N. J.

The deal by the New Orleans Club, through which it repurchases from the New York Americans Outfielder Ollie Tucker, gives the Pelicans their 1923 outfield again intact, the other players being Manager Gilbert, Schick and Bogart.

Not only Izzy Bandrimer, but Tommy McMillan also, it seems, was held up on waivers when Little Rock tried to ship them out to Muskogee and different plans will have to be made by Winder and Allen for filling places in the Muskogee infield.

Mack Hillis, infielder recently reinstated by the Rockester Club, has been sold to the Atlanta Club. Hillis did not play with Rochester last season because of a dispute with the club management. He was used quite regularly in 1932, batted well and fielded so-so.

The Nashville management has cancelled its deal with Reading for Fred Thomas, veteran infielder, and to replace him at short, where he was expected to play, has made a deal with Syracuse by which it obtains Walter Keating, giving in exchange Pitcher Minatree.

Joe Jackson, who got a verdict of $16,000 in round figures against Charles A. Comiskey, in his suit in Milwaukee, the verdict then being thrown out by the presiding judge, will take an appeal in hopes of collection. Meanwhile Jackson has engaged a new attorney to push his case, in the person of Winfred C. Zabel, former district attorney of the Milwaukee court. Meanwhile the charges of perjury against Jackson and Oscar Felsch have been held in abeyance. Jackson has been permitted to return to his home in Savannah and there is talk that the actions of Judge Gregory may result in developments likely to be unpleasant to that party to the case. Evidently things are just beginning to develop in this suit and the finale may be of considerable interest.

Harry Wingfield, first baseman and catcher, has been named manager of the Burlington team of the Mississippi Valley League, completing the list of managers in that circuit. Winefield formerly managed the Fargo team in the new defunct North Dakota League.

The Ardmore Club of the Oklahoma State League has named the veteran catcher, Drap Hayes, as its manager. Hayes knows the class of ball played, has had experience in team leading in that section of the baseball world and ought to keep Ardmore on the map.

Bob Harmon, athletic coach at Quincy (Ill) College, has been signed as an umpire for the Eastern League. Last year he worked for awhile in the Mississippi Valley League. He is not the same "Dancing" Bob Harmon who formerly pitched in the National League.

Colonel Jake Ruppert of the New York Yankees has donated the use of his ball park for trials of athletes competing for representation in the coming Olympic games. These trials will be held at Yankee Stadium on June 7, or such of them as can be pulled off in a ball park.

John McGraw wants more speed on his ball club, so has signed Armando Marsans, the Cuban formerly with various major clubs, as a coach for young base runners. This is the news that comes from Havana where McGraw is spending a week or two before joining the Giants in camp. Maybe Marsans showed some of his old speed by putting the rush act on McGraw and getting a contract before John knew what it was all about.

The Western League schedule meeting drew its program with "Sioux City" the map, in place of "Lincoln," because of the uncertainty of obtaining the Nebraska city, but there will not have to be any change in the program with Lincoln finally arranged for, except in the matter of names of cities represented. The season of the Western is to open April 16 and close September 30, with 168 games being played.

John Meydler has another scholarly gentlemen on his umpire staff. They may all be such, but, be that as it may, Monroe Sweeney, a recent arrival, is a Bachelor of Arts. He is pointed, is a Bachelor of Bethany College, in a graduate of Bethany College, in West Virginia, and got his degree, there. Like Ernest Quigley, alumnus of Kansas Agricultural College, Manhattan, Kan., he is a football and basketball referee. Erudition is no bar to ability to call 'em right.

Joe Walcott, who is "on the inside looking out" at one of the Boston institutions this winter as a result of over-indulgence in "white mule", was in his prime the greatest of all welterweight champions. He fought 115 battles during his long ring career, meeting and defeating some of the top-notch heavyweights.

Charley Ledoux, the little French boxer who formerly battled in the bantam class, has now the featherweight championship of France, by defeating Edouard Mascart. Ledoux commenced his boxing career as far back as 1909, and at once he became famous as a knockout artist, winning most of his contests by that route. He arrived at the summit of his fame when he gained the world's championship by knocking out the Englishman, Digger Stanley, in 1913. He held the world title for one year, only as he was put out of action by "Kid" Williams in a contest at Vernon, Calif., in 1913.

Two clubs in the American League—Chicago and New York—have refused to waive on Pitcher Roy Moore. The Detroit Club recalled him from Birmingham and had planned to send him out again this year, to Minneapolis, so the story has it, but failure to get waivers has canceled the deal.

BREED THEATRE

Forty-eight states have forty-eight different divorce laws. Men can marry 18-year-old girls in some states. Divorced men can marry, move to another state and become bigamists. There are tangles of law, galore—and Rupert Hughes uses them to help tell the remarkable story of Reno, which is the feature attraction at the Breed theatre today and Wednesday.

The action of the unusual story centers around two young couples who hoped to end their matrimonial troubles through the divorce courts. A prim maiden aunt, some children with four sets of fathers and mothers, and complications which resulted when the laws began to conflict, carry the action of the story into a romantic cross-country chase that runs the gamut from grim drama to hilarity.

Rupert Hughes himself wrote the brilliant, epigrammatic titles which spice the picture, and directed the story which he wrote in his best romantic vein.

The parts are played by some of screenland's most popular favorites, including Helene Chadwick, George Walsh, Lew Cody and Carmel Myers.

Other pictures on the bill include the Pathe news and Clyde Cook in the roaring two part comedy titled The Broncho Express.

PALACE THEATRE

Madame Butterfly, Puccini's exquisite lyric drama, to be presented in Norwich by Fortune Gallo's San Carlo Grand Opera Company on Monday evening, March 10, at the Palace theatre, was founded on the book of John Luther Long, and the subsequent drama of David Belasco. The story describes in unusually realistic fashion the love of the little Japanese cherry blossom maiden, Cho Cho San, for the handsome United States naval lieutenant, Benjamin Franklin Pinkerton, whose ship has carried him to the port of Nagasaki, upon an adjacent hill of which the little Nipponese maiden resides. Her passion is genuine, but it must be confessed that Pinkerton's interest is more one of casual curiosity instead of real love. The curious Shinto wedding ceremony in the first act and the sudden and ill-omened entrance of the Bonze, Butterfly's uncle, soon thereafter, are incidents possessing profound significance for the earnest-minded little bride, as the first is to change the course of her entire life, while the second separates her irrevocably from her past. What happens in the second and third act is closely connected with these incidents and forms the remarkable dramatic frame-work into which Puccini has woven his exquisitely beautiful symphonic score.

When this famous modern Italian composer first became award of Mr. Long's fascinating story and Mr. Belasco's vivid dramatization, he at once became impressed with the remarkable possibilities offered the lyric composer, and just as had been the case with La Boheme and Tosca, he commissioned his librettists Illica and Giacosa, to write a book for which he composed the music. The opera came to its initial production at La Scala, Milan, in 1904, but for some unaccountable reason did not prove immediately successful, but its eventual triumph could not be gainsaid, and today it is considered, along with La Boheme, Puccini's best work, a verdict which the composer himself shares. Favorite gems from the opera include the beautiful entrance song of Butterfly in the first act; the exquisitely orchestrated aria Un bel di vedremo in the second act; the admirable Intermezzo between the second and third acts, and the dramatic finale and death scene of the dishonored maiden at the end of the opera.

AT THE PALACE

Beginning on Monday The Imperial Revue opened a week's engagement at the Palace theatre and played to large houses at both performances. The revue is snappy from curtain to curtain with plenty of humor and a good dancing chorus. In the revue a number of pleasing specialty numbers are introduced by clever artists. The two comedians are very good and fit in above those men in the general run of alleged musical revues. Felix Martin one of the comedians is no stranger to Norwich people and he is even better this time than when he appeared here a number of years ago. With him is Jimmy Evans a versatile comedian who plays up well to Martin in the amusing situations. As a whole the revue is one that is very good and should draw capacity houses during its run in this city.

The feature picture The Marriage Market, written by Evelyn Campbell, is a superb treatise on modern marriages. The author contends that marriage is a market in which the prettiest face and form and the most charming personality gets the highest price. The story centers around an attractive young girl who is sent to a fashionable "finishing school" to be prepared for marriage—but because of her impulsive nature is hurled into a series of entanglements and barely escapes in time to prevent burning her fingers.

Pauline Garon as the irresponsible young daughter is adorable. Miss Garon possesses a wardrobe which will delight the feminine portion of the audience, and is bound to bring gasps of admiration from the men. Alice Lake runs a close second when it comes to clothes and Shannon Day is not left far behind, either. It is the contention of these three charming actresses that clothes make the screen actress almost as much real emoting, and they have clothed themselves for The Marriage Market in their most expensive and exclusive raiment possible.

A news weekly, and comedy complete the bill.

BROADWAY THEATRE

An ideal entertainment for every class of theatregoers is promised at Broadway theatre, March 5th when the Messrs. Wilmer and Vincent, in association with George Jessel, will present that altogether different musical comedy, Helen of Troy, N. Y., after its long run in New York. This piece is the work of George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly, collaborators, who have to their credit a trilogy of successes, to wit: Merton of the Movies, Dulcy, and To the Ladies. The musical score with which the story of Helen of Troy, N. Y. is embellished was provided by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby, who also wrote the lyrics. Helen of Troy is not the Helen of Troy of ancient history, but a stenographer Helen McGuffey, in the Capitol city of the modern world.

The story is cleverly developed with the aid of tuneful and sprightly music. In the matter of costuming the producers have spared no expense, and the effect is one that surpasses the editorial display in any musical show now travelling. There is an especially selected cast which includes Pauline Chambers, Marcella Shields, William Bellery, Marie Berno, W. J. McCarthy, Lew Christy, Allen Ainsworth, Charles Williams, Thomas Ingram possesses a wardrobe which will delight the feminine portion of the audience, and is bound to bring gasps of admiration from the men. # NEW LONDON GETS $70 HOSPITAL FUND TO BE AVAILABLE IN 300 YEARS

New London, Mar. 3.—The police believe they have cleared up the mystery surrounding the sending in of false fire alarms from the East New London section. On the evidence the officers presented in the police court today, Robert H. Powers, a probationer from the superior court where he was charged with breaking and entering, was turned over to Sheriff Brown and was locked up to await further action by the judge who put Powers on probation last fall. Rexford Bogue, another youth of the gang in which Powers travels, was fined $50 and was ordered committed to jail for a term of ten days, but the jail sentence was suspended. Patrick John Hubbert, accused with the others, convinced the court that he was not with the pair penalized and he was discharged. Judge Prince declares that he will put a stop to the sounding of false alarms if that is within his power. He thinks it is. Powers Sergeant Heward stated, declared to him that certain youths he named were guilty of having sent in previous alarms that were not genuine, when the sergeant told him to tell the truth and warrant the extension of leniency to him. The sergeant was not so interested in the previous alarms to the extent that he was interested in the alarm Saturday midnight last and he insisted that Powers divulge the names of the fellows who trailed out the fire companies last when they were not needed. Powers would not give up, so he went up. Bogue was rather defiant, for he told the police that while he did not know who pulled in the alarm he would not "squeel" if he did know. The court was not satisfied inasmuch as Bogue and Powers both admitted that they were at the location of the fire alarm box that they should not have known who sent in the alarm. The youths declared that they ran because others were running. The penalty imposed on Powers in the superior court did not, obviously, weigh heavily upon him, as he admitted on the witness stand that he drank considerable intoxicating liquor at a dance he attended Saturday night and that he did not realize all that he did. He gave evidence in other ways that he had no background to travel on as he has traveled. The names of other youths were mentioned in connection with the case today, and they will be watched to discover how they are conducting themselves.

Emilio Falconi of Stonington was prosecuted in the Groton town court this morning, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. He was fined $100 and costs, but Judge Cornelius C. Costello remitted $50. In submitting his defense Falconi denied that he was intoxicated, stating that the odor that came from his breath the day he was arrested was from medicine he had taken for a cold. To substantiate this statement Falconi submitted two bottles, one of which showed contents of five per cent alcohol and the other eight per cent.

Another case scheduled to be tried was that of Peter Mros of North Bank street, New London, charged with reckless driving. The case was called as Mros and Bruno Benvenuti, also of New London and whose car figured in the accident that brought about Mros' arrest, had been able to reach a settlement.

TO DISGUISE HEARSES AS ORDINARY LIMOUSINES

New York, Mar. 3.—Enough gloom prevails in the world without sombre hearses passing through the streets to remind people of death, in the opinion of the Associated Undertakers of New York, who today voted to disguise their hearses as ordinary limousines.

It is the purpose of the association "to surround the death with reverence and beauty and try not to remind the world of what it seeks to forget," Frank D. Campbell, president, stated.

The association last year eliminated black gloves at funerals and voted to make its mortuary estbalishments bright and attractive. The membership of the organization extends into Connecticut and New Jersey.

MARKET WAS SEARISH.

New York, Mar. 3. — Professional short traders taking advantage of several news developments of a potentially bearish character, exerted pressure against today's stock market and succeeded in depressing prices through most of the list. Net losses among the active issues ranged from small fractions to two points.

Announcement that the house ways and means committee had again taken up the [illegible] of Washington disposed [illegible] further sensational developments this week in the oil inquiry and disclosure through official correspondence that serious differences of opinion on important matters still exist between France and Great Britain, all were used as ammunition for bear attacks. At no time, however, did the selling assume large proportions. Just before the close special strength developed in several sections of the list.

Receivership proceedings against the Virginia-Carolina Chemical company, while largely discounted last week, nevertheless sent all issues to new low records for the year.

Late strength was practically pronounced in the copper shares, which responded to a further increase in the price of the red metal to 14 cents a pound. Anaconda advanced 1 1-4 points to 35, a new high on recovery, and Inspiration gained about the same amount, closing at 25 3-4. Buying in this group also was influenced by the favorable showing made in the 1923 earning report of the American Smelting and Refining company. Utah Copper moved up more than a point to 67 on declaration of the regular dividend.

Continuation of pool operations in U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, sent that stock from 74 1-2 to 78, the closing price of 77 1-8 representing a net gain of nearly 2 1-2 points. A run-in of the spots in American Woolen lifted that stock to 75 3-4 but it fell back later to 74, covering operation being influenced by a report that the company planned to set aside a reserve fund for the year's dividend requirements.

Oil shares were again adversely affected by the Washington investigation, Pacific dropping 1 3-4 to 50 7-8. Unsettlement of the rubber shares was based on speculative expectation of poor 1923 earning reports.

Heavy profit-taking in Norfolk and Western, which closed two points lower at 114 1-4, featured the trading in railroad shares.

Call money held at 4 1-2 per cent. all day. Time money and commercial paper markets were quiet with rates unchanged.

Heavy offerings of French francs, which dropped within a few points of their record low, was the outstanding development in the reactionary foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.23 1-2 and French francs ruled around 4.10 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, March 3.—Receivership proceedings against the Virginia-Carolina Chemical company unsettled the industrial section of today's bond market, while reactionary tendencies developed in general investment issues on the renewal of soldiers' bonus hearings at Washington. Closing of the Argentine loan syndicate with a sharp break in the six per cent. bonds and the call for payments of Japanese loan subscriptions also were credited with exerting a depressing influence.

Although the Virginia-Carolina receivership had been discounted in the collapse of its stock and bond issues last week, the bonds again broke sharply on today's announcement. Heavy liquidation forced the 7 1-2s with warrants down 8 points to a record low level at 32 before they rallied slightly. The 7 per cent. mortgages lost 3 points after touching a new low at 69 1-2.

In view of the general unsettlement in the market an dthe weakness of stock prices, selling pressure was exerted against a wide variety of railroad and industrial issues. Sugar and rubber company liens and speculative railroad bonds were the heaviest losers. Punta Alegre 7s declined almost 3 points and all the seaboard issues moved lower. Frisco and St. Paul mortgages also were weak.

Liquidation of U. S. government issues was implied by uneasiness over the possible passage of bonus legislation. Argentine government 6s broke more than four points to a new low price of 87 in trading on the curb market upon the withdrawal of support by the syndicate, which, it was reported, had closed without disposing of $30,000,000 of the $40,000,000 bonds originally offered to the public.

CURB MARKET.

New York, March 3.—Renewal of selling pressure against the oil shares, based on Washington intimations of further sensational disclosures at the oil inquiry, imparted a reactionary tone to stock prices in today's curb market. Trading, however, was on a restricted scale.

Prairie Oil and Gas was the principal target for bear pressure, closing 5 1-2 points lower at 230 after having sold 1 1-2 points below that figure. Standard Oil of Indiana and Vacuum, the two most active issues, each closed 3-4 lower at 61 3-8 and 64 1-4, respectively. Special strength developed in Borne Scrymser, which advanced 15 points to 220.

Industrials were irregular. Dubilier Radio touched a new 1924 high at 23 3-8, while Dupont Motor sold at a new low.

Weakness of Argentine 6s, which recorded an extreme break of 4 1-2 points to 87 on withdrawal of syndicate support, was the feature of the trading in bonds.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, March 3.—Wheat scored a moderate upturn in price today chiefly owing to talk about an advance in the wheat tariff and about a plan to finance the export of farm products from this country to Germany and Austria. Closing quotations were unsettled 1-4 to 3-8 @ 1-2c net higher, May 111 1-2 to 111 5-8 and July 111 3-8 to 111 3-4 @ 1-2. Corn showed 3-4 to 5-8 @ 3-4c loss, with oats 1-8 to 5-8c off, and provisions varying from 3c to decline to an equal gain.

Attention to reports that immediate action by the president increasing the import duty on wheat and flour was likely gave the wheat market an upward tendency at the start, and continued to act as a bullish influence throughout the day. There was a noticeable absence of selling pressure except on decided bulges in price. Such selling was assumed to be of a profit-taking character, and was largely offset by broadening out of new purchases for commission houses. Part of this new buying appeared to result from incorrect reports that the house and senate agricultural committees had approved a proposal to return to foreign claimants $150,000,000 on condition that the money be used to buy foodstuffs and other commodities in the United States.

Liberal receipts of corn had a bearish effect on values of corn and oats, notwithstanding predictions that the movement of corn would be greatly curtailed before the end of this week. A large increase of the visible supply of corn led to considerable selling. On the declines, however, the demand for corn became active and general. Higher quotations on hogs upheld the provision market.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

A Call to See Little Jack

Oh, the Haystack House
Is a cozy place.
The curtains are spun
From cobwed lace.
The chairs and tables
Are made of straw
And a round grass rug
Lies on the floor.

"Walk right in," said Mr. Grasshopper cheerily.

"How's Lady Love?" politely asked Mrs. Grasshopper, handing the little

Mr. Grasshopper opened the door.

bunny boy a saucer of wild strawberries.

"Are you fond of music" asked Mr. Grasshopper, and he began to play a pretty tune by scraping his leg under his wing, at the same time singing in a sweet tenor voice:

"Over the clover, all the day long
The Bumble Bee sings her drowsy song.

But hid in the yellow fields of wheat
You'll hear me tune my fiddle sweet."

"That's a pretty song," said the bunny boy.

"Glad you like it," answered the Grasshopper. "Shall I sing you another?"

Of course the little rabbit didn't want to be impolite and say no, neither did he want to be polite and say yes. So, he waited a second, when, all of a sudden, just like that, a great knocking came at the front door.

"Who can it be?" asked Mrs. Grasshopper, all a tremble, for she was a very timid insect and afraid of her own shadow.

"Calm yourself, my dear," whispered Mr. Grasshopper, opening the door just a tiny bit and bravely enquiring: "Who knocks so loudly on my door? You shake my house from ceiling to floor."

"Ha, ha!" laughed a pleasant voice, and there stood the cow That Jumped Over the Moon. Her pink sunbonnet was half off her head, blown back, no doubt by the wind when she jumped over the moon.

"I just heard that Little Jack Rabbit is here," she went on to say, "so I ran over at once to meet him. Sorry he didn't see me jump over the moon."

"Well, I'm glad it's you and not Mr. Wicked Wolf," answered Mr. Grasshopper. "I have never forgotten how badly he frightened Little Red Riding Hood."

"But that was very long ago,
When I was but a boy,
And whistled on my way to school
Chock full of health and joy."

GALES FERRY

In the Methodist Episcopal church at Sunday morning worship, Rev. W. D. Woodward, spoke from Acts 23: 1: Acts 24:16, the theme being, Conscience. Preceding his sermon he addressed the young people from the words, "So run that ye may obtain —the topic being Baseball. At the Sunday school session, at noon, Superintendent Colver announced that, under the auspices of the New London County Sunday school association, a training school of religious education, would be held at New London in the First Baptist church, Friday evenings, beginning March 7, and concluding April 4. The lectures to be given by M. A. Honline, Litt. D., of Pasadena, California. Delegates appointed to attend this school were Mrs. W. D. Woodward and Mrs. C. E. Colver. Others who signified their intentions of attending were Rev. Mr. Woodward, Superintendent Colver and Miss Jennie G. Perking.

An interesting stereopticon lecture of the Island of Java was given in the M. E. church, Sunday evening, illustrated with seventy slides, descriptive of the island, its people and its products. Mrs. C. E. Colver was the reader, and Alifred Erickson and Gordon Maniere operated the slides. Special singing was by a group of young girls, Helen L. Colver, Margaret S. Colver, Ida Erickson, Margaret Parker and Myrtice Coman. Miss Jennie G. Perkins was at the piano.

A pleasing addition to the Camp Fire Girls' circle corner, in the vestry of the M. E. church in its decorations, is a border in brown, with the inscription in white letters, Love is the Joy of Service, so deep, self is forgotten—and the word Wohelo (meaning Love). This was recently added by Miss Ethel Woodward, the guardian of the local circle, while on one of her week-end visits, at her home at the parsonage, from her duties at Storrs Agricultural College.

The Gales Ferry Pinochle club met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund B. Lewis, at Allyn's Point, on Thursday evening. Prizes were won by Miss Em-Beth Bennett and Mr. Lewis, consolation award went to Mrs. Lewis and Orrin S. Bennett. Luncheon was served by Mrs. Lewis. Pupils perfect in attendance for February in the village school, Mrs. Winifred Crapeau of Norwich, teacher, were Robert Allyn, Herbert Coman, Frank Jennings, Richard Latimer, Karl Nylen, Ernest Nylen, Oliver Nylen, Em-Beth Bennett, Grace Maynard, Christine Maynard, Rose Norcross, Carol Norman, Viola Riley, Eleanor Smith and Elizabeth Main. Mrs. Crapeau attended the monthly meeting of the teachers of the town, with school Supervisor S. H. Reed of Norwich, at Redyard Center Wednesday afternoon, the school closing for that period, sewing lessons were started in the school last Thursday, and a school journal, noting school activities, and facts of interest in the town, is being issued and sent to Supervisor Reed, who in turn passes it on to the state board of education, and then to the homes of the children. Supervisor Reed was a visitor at this school last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hackenson of Groton moved into one of the C. E. Colver apartments at the submarine base, Saturday. Mr. Hackenson is connected with the base.

A meeting of the Junior Village Improvement association, was held at the home of Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham last week, when plans for the clean-up campaign were discussed. The work began last Saturday afternoon, Myrtice Coman, president, and her brother, Earl, being captains for the month.

MANSFIELD CENTRE

At the First Congregational church Sunday morning there were special services conducted by Rev. and Mrs. Jones, when 22 new members were received, eleven of these upon confession of faith and eleven by letter. There was a baptismal service and following the reception of the new members there was a communion service. Mr. and Mrs. Jones have been here less than three months, but in that time have accomplished a great amount of good work, and have called upon almost every one in the entire larger community.

Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones preached at Spring Hill Sunday morning, his subject being, The Power of Prayer.

The Ladies' Aid society is to meet at the parsonage, Wednesday afternoon.

The directors of the Mansfield Library are making a worthy and ambitious attempt to provide entertainment of a superior class for the people of the community this spring. A course of four numbers is to be given.

Echo Grange is to have a box social at its next meeting. The women will prepare boxes of lunch which will be sold at auction to the men.

The Young People's club was delightfully entertained at the parsonage Wednesday evening, with Mrs. Jones as hostess. The committee in charge was Mrs. Stedman Storrs, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Homer and Mervyn Little.

A kitchen shower was given Mrs. W. B. Tiebout, at the home of Mrs. G. H. Wyman, Wednesday afternoon.

The Mansfield Library has received from the Mothers' club of Storrs a gift of $25 for the purchase of books for small children.

HERE'S WHAT PEOPLE SAY ABOUT TANLAC

"If it had not been for Tanlac I would still be a sick, discouraged woman, for nothing else seemed to do me any good," says Mrs. Edward Gibbs.

All the advertising in the world and all the sales efforts combined could not have made the great success for TANLAC that has been attained, unless this reconstructive tonic possessed merit of the greatest degree. Over 40 Million Bottles of Tanlac have been sold and the demand today is greater than ever before.

That TANLAC possesses merit and has brought relief to hundreds of thousands of persons is attested by the great number of testimonials that have been received by the company from people in every state of the Union and every province of Canada. There are over 100,000 such statements on file with the company, all ringing with sincere praise for TANLAC and what it has accomplished.

Mrs. Edward Gibbs, Lancaster, Pa.—"For 2 years indigestion deprived me of nearly all the pleasure of living. If it had not been for TANLAC I would still be a sick and discouraged woman, for nothing else seemed to do me any good."

Mrs. Mary A. Benson, Seattle, Wash.: "Following an operation my stomach and nerves seemed to give way and I became almost helpless. As a last resort I tried TANLAC. I began to improve from the very first, gained 20 lbs., and today am feeling fine."

O. E. Moore, Kansas City, Mo.: "My stomach seemed to pain me constantly, food seemed to do me no good, I would bloat up with gas, lost my strength, and could not sleep or rest. I was on the down grade all the time. Tanlac corrected my troubles and put me in excellent shape."

Thomas Lucas Petersboro, Ontario: "Well, sir, buying TANLAC was the best investment I ever made, for it built up my health and strength to where I haven't a complaint in the world."

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Kaske, Detroit, Mich.: "For more than a year our three children, ages 2, 4 and 5, had been so peaked and lifeless that we were worried about them. Their stomachs were upset, appetite poor, the color had left their cheeks, their nights were restless and during the day they would just mope around, taking no interest in play or anything else. They began to improve with the first dose of TANLAC, and today there are no more healthy children in Detroit."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 40 million bottles sold. Accept no substitute.

Take Tanlac Vegetable Pills.

WESTERLY

The March session of the Westerly town council was held in the council chambers of the town hall Monday morning at 9.30 o'clock, with Council President Campbell, Councilmen Morrison, Utter, Rossi and Nichols present, Councilman Smith being the only absentee. Clerk Walpole and Town Solicitor Ferguson were also present. Clarence Brown of Norwich appeared before the council and asked that a license be granted for his shoe ball alleys in the Martin House block on Canal street. On motion of Councilman Utter, seconded by Councilman Rossi, the license was voted granted.

For boxing exhibitions, Peter M. Rose appeared before the council with his attorney John J. Dunn, to obtain a license to carry on athletic exhibitions, including boxing, at the hall at No. 5 Rose avenue. Mr. Dunn said that the hall there had been fitted up suitable for the purpose and that two policemen would be provided or as many as the council might deem necessary, the idea being not to conduct prize fights but like the exhibitions which have been conducted with much favor as in Community hall. Solicitor Ferguson said that the petition would require dates under the law and it was made to read March 6, 12, 20 and 27. It was moved by Councilman Rossi and seconded by Councilman Utter that the license be given with the police officer to be selected by Chief of Police Brown and that participants be given an examination by a physician before the contest was stated, with fee of $5 and the costs to be paid before the exhibition was staged.

Town Clerk Whipple presented the bill of Health Officer Dr. Samuel C. Webster for six months' services for $175. As the six months' salary of the health office would be $200 or as the yearly salary fixed is only $380 it was the council sentiment that it be corrected.

A letter was received from Rhode Island State Federal Prohibition Officer Harry G. Sheldon, directed to the council, asking what the attitude of the board was relative to the revoking of licenses of hotels or boarding houses which are convicted of a violation of a state or federal prohibition laws, also asking if the federal officer might appear before the council body. It was the sentiment of the council that their body would co-operate with the federal officer and the clerk was directed to inform him that regular meetings of the council are held on the first Monday of the month and they would be able to hear him at such time. A discussion relative to the local enforcement of liquor laws was held. Town Solicitor Ferguson informed the council members that he would be pleased to receive any evidence the councilmen might furnish along this line.

The report of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown for February showed ten arrests made as follows: Unlawful possession of liquors 3, violent assault 1, intoxication 2, theft 1, breaking and entering 2, and loitering 2. One raid for stolen cloth was made.

A lengthy report was received on the cooperative extension of the farm bureau and taken by Council President Campbell for consideration.

An appearance before the town council by the Westerly board of tax assessors, promised a couple of months ago, was made by Howard B. Thorp and Walter C. Hiscox. Mr. Thorp said that the board thought that the time to get the assessors' plats was now and as there were financial questions as well as questions of procedure involved, the board would like to have a committee of three named from the council to cooperate with them. The work could not be done in one year, as records and details would have to be dug out. Some of the present plats had been worn thin by constant use and they had now been bound so that it was not possible to take them out. President Campbell appointed Councilman Clerk Whipple, Councilmen Utter and Nichols a committee to cooperate with them and stated that they could begin work immediately as there was money available for the purpose.

The regular bills were voted paid.

Police bills were voted paid, amounting to $31.61.

The action of the town treasurer on notes of Nov. 1, 1923, due May 1, 1924, and March 1, 1924, due Sept. 1, 1924, as issued was voted approved and confirmed. It was also approved by the council to hire for school construction $50,000 on May 18, 1923, due May 18, 1924. It was the sentiment of the council that the time was ripe to bond the $350,000 indebtedness for school construction in serial notes at 4 per cent., selling at 96 or 97 and selling near par. It also met with favor to have the first come due in 1927 and the years of 1926 and 1926 be used to reduce the indebtedness $10,000.

The report of the committee on town financing was submitted by Council Committeemen Fowler and Utter, who arranged with the firm of Wall-Over & Co., of Providence, as directed by a vote of the council passed Jan. 7, 1924, to make an investigation of the accounting system of the town of Westerly. The investigation has been made and the report makes the following recommendations:

"(1) An adequate system of accounting for the town as a whole, having provisions therein for control of the several departments assets, liabilities, appropriations and expenditures, said system to be effective from Jan. 1, 1924.

"(2) The office of a town auditor, through whose hands would pass every proposed disbursement, for audit and approval, before being recommended to the treasurer for payment.

"(3) The payment by the town treasurer of all moneys, for whatever purpose, upon order of the town auditor.

"(4) An auditing or finance committee in whose hands would be vested the responsibility of complete and absolute check-up on the work of the town auditor and disbursements of the town treasurer."

CITIZENS PETITION TO HAVE UNCAS STREET MACADAMIZED

At the march meeting of the court of common council held Monday evening a petition was received from George L. Ingalls and others asking that the estimates to be prepared for the city meeting in June include an appropriation for the macadamizing of Uncas street The petition was accepted and referred to the finance committee. Little but routine business was transacted at the meeting which was called to order at 9.12 o'clock by His Honor, Mayor Milo R. Waters, the delay being caused by the special city meeting which necessitated the presence of Mayor Waters as moderator. The minutes of the previous meeting took the usual course, being accepted without reading.

Petitions Received

Petitions were received and disposed of as follows:

From Gilbert Bowers asking permission to connect Lot No. 3, Buckingham avenue with the sewer in Washington street. Referred to the public works committee.

From Mrs. H. L. Mussey, calling attention to dangerous condition of decayed tree near her home, No. 13 Winchester street. Referred to the public works committee and tree warden with power.

From George W. Rathbun and others, asking the installation of an electric light at the junction of Dunham street and Potter place. Referred to the police committee with power.

From George L. Ingalls and others asking that an appropriation to provide for the macadamizing of Uncas street be included in the estimates for the city meeting in June. Referred to the finance committee.

From Joseph Steinkewitz and others, residents of Tenth street between Boswell avenue and Prospect street, asking that a culvert be built at Tenth and Prospect streets. Referred to the public works committee with power.

From Michael Krujewski asking the acceptance of Howard street off Prospect street, as a public highway. Referred to the public works committee for investigation and report at the next meeting, if possible.

From the Richmond Radiator Co., for permission to erect a storehouse, 253 feet long and 50 feet wide on land owned by them. Referred to the fire commissioners with power.

Waste Sunday Concerts

From Abe Davidson, proprietor of the Broadway theatre for permission to conduct Sunday concerts at the Broadway theatre Sunday evenings. Referred to the amusement committee and corporation counsel.

From Alvin J. Barrows and others for an arc light at the corner of Sturtevant and Tyler avenues. Referred to the police committee with power.

The monthly report of the city treasurer was accepted. Alderman P. F. Sweeney, reporting for the police committee, stated that in response to petitions referred to them a light has been granted at the corner of Yerrington avenue and Laurel Hill and a light has also been granted midway on Park street.

The public works committee reported that they had investigated the petition of Gilbert Bowers for permission to connect Lot No. 3 Buckingham avenue with the sewer in Washington street and recommended that such permission be granted. Their recommendation was adopted by the council.

Resolutions were then adopted as follows:

Authorizing the borrowing of $5,000 for the contingent expenses of the city; authorizing the borrowing of $3,500 for the purchase of traffic signals for the central part of the city; authorizing the borrowing of $10,000 for the general expenses of the public works department during the ballance of the fiscal year. All three appropriations were granted at the special city meeting earlier in the evening.

Mayor Waters announced the appointments of Henry F. Parker, and William A. Norton as park commissioners for terms of three years to succeed themselves.

Standard Time Conference

The council received and accepted an invitation from New London County Pomona Grange to attend a conference on the standard time law to be held Wednesday afternoon in the city court room. Mayor Waters was delegated to attend the conference as a representative of the council.

Councilman Clegg inquired if the committee appointed to consider available parking spaces for the bus lines running in and out of Norwich, had any report to make.

Mayor Waters said he had been in conference with the auto bus people but nothing definite had been decided. He stated that the bus people favored Ferry street as a parking place but the mayor felt that the use of Ferry street for the purpose should not be granted until after a hearing on the matter.

Councilman Clegg said he represented the Merchants Bureau in making a recommendation that Ferry street be designated as the parking place for auto busses. The Merchants Bureau, he said, held a meeting Monday and favored that location.

Alderman Sweeney asked if all five of the busses could park there at one time.

Councilman Clegg said that the five busses won't all be there at the same time and that there is plenty of room for the machines to turn around there.

Mayor Waters said that a number of objections had been made by business men in that section. He said he thought there ought to be a hearing on the matter before such permission is granted. Alderman Bliven said he believed the use of Ferry street for a parking place for the auto busses would add greatly to the congestion of that street.

The report of the committee, as made by the mayor, was accepted as one of progress.

Bills Approved

Department bills were approved as follows: Park department, $284.98; water department, $3,422.20; fire department, $7,552.31; police department, $4,632.12; cemetery department, $218.31; gas and electric department. $46.50; 2.70; public works department, $7,277.05; finance department, $16,129.45.

The council adjourned at 9.35 o'clock.

Crandall of New London. Following the luncheon, the company assembled on the porch, where Mah Jong, whist and 500 were played until 5.30.

This is said to be the busiest season that St. Petersburg has ever experienced, there being over 60,000 tourists there, including 42 from New London.

At the gathering, it was voted to hold a reunion of all New London tourists at Brown's camp during the summer. A banquet was planned and Louis Mabrey was chosen chairman to arrange for the feast.

PRISONER'S NOTE WINS PAROLE FROM JUDGE

William Bates, of Norwalk, first prisoner to be sentenced at the February term of the Criminal Superior court which opened in Bridgeport on February 19, is also the first to be paroled. Bates, instead of going to the Cheshire Reformatory in accordance with the sentence of Judge Allyn L. Brown of this city, has rturned to his home in Norwalk, "to make a man of himself."

The unusual feature of Bates' case is that he obtained his own parole, County Attorney John Cunn, of Norwalk, appeared in court for him when he was arraigned for burglary and made an eloquent plea. Bates, however, was regarded as the leader of a group of four others similarly charged, and while sentences in other cases were suspended, he was committed to the reformatory for an indefinite term.

In the county jail, awaiting transfer to Chesire, Bates thought over his situation and decided to make one more attempt to gain a new chance to make good. He wrote a letter to Judge Brown which impressed the court as an expression of real penitence and firm resolve to avoid error of ways.

Farewell Gifts For Priests

A former pastor of St. Mary's church, Greeneville, Rev. J. H. Fitzmaurice, recently transferred from the pastorate of St. Patrick's, Waterbury, to St. Francis', New Haven, and Rev. P. J. O'Reilly, former assistant at St. Patrick's, Waterbury and at one time in Montville, who has assumed charge at St. Joseph's church, Canaan, were guests of honor at a parish gathering in Waterbury on a recent evening. A reception held at the Lyceum gave a large gathering of members of the parish an opportunity to express the appreciation felt by all for the services rendered the parish by the priests now called to other fields of labor. After several speeches wishing them success in their new surroundings, Father Fitzmaurice was presented a gold chalice and Father O'Reilly was given a purse of $1,100.

Noon Meeting at Radiator Co.

In the absence of Rev. C. H. Ricketts, Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis of the Congregational church in Taftville spoke to the men at the Richmond Radiator Foundry Monday noon and the audience was large and greatly interested by the real heart to heart message.

The speaker at once secured the interest of his audience and held it to the end of his message.

Rev. Mr. Crowdis took as the basis of his remarks that the common people heard Jesus gladly—What was the reason for this and the fact that the same situation is still largely true. The people heard Jesus, not only because of a winning personality but also because of his kindness. He expressed and lived the best in our humanity. This is the ideal that always calls us from any situation in life. We are all inspired by such ideals and especially when they become practical in genuine interest and service. It is this we welcome and to their kindly impulses we usually respond. When we meet life in this spirit we find our own higher selves and also begin to have a clear understanding of the situation and why the "people heard Him gladly." This life and example still call us and catching and spirit that continues to speak to us and trying to live in this truth and service we shall earn the right to the reward that awaits us when the things that in our material world seem so important now will have little meaning for us.

CAN'T CLEAR SNOW FROM R. F. D. MAIL BOXES

As a result of a number of requests to the State Highway Department that entrances to driveways and mail boxes on roadways be cleared of snow following storms, Commissioner John A. MacDonald, in a statement issued Monday, gives his reason why this is impracticable for the state's forces at this time.

In addition to calling for an enormous increase in the number of men required for snow plow work, the time at the disposal of the snow removal organization in such an emergency is so little as to require all possible attention to the opening of transportation routes.

Pointing out that while all care is used to prevent snow carried to one side by the plows from blocking approaches, he said that in some cases it is impossible to prevent such a happening. Commissioner MacDonald feels that this represents a small amount of inconvenience to the property owners, when the advantage of a clear highway for travel is considered, and that co-operation by the owners of driveways and rural free delivery boxes in the matter will go a long way towards improving travel conditions throughout the state when the problem of clearing snow-blocked transportation routes following storms confronts Connecticut.

VOLUNTOWN TOWN TAX LAID AT 40 MILLS

A town tax of 40 mills of which 6 mills is for schools was laid by the Voluntown town meeting Monday afternoon at which John N. Lewis presided. This is the same rate as the town tax last year.

OUTLINE OF PROCEDURE IN DAUGHERTY INVESTIGATION

Charges of Failure to Enforce Anti-Trust Laws Probably Will Be the First Produced Against the Attorney General—Senate Committee Informs Counsel For Mr. Daugherty That the Proceedings Will Be Conducted in a Summary Manner Rather Than According to the Technical Rules of Evidence—Sensational Developments at Senate Oil Committee Hearing.

Washington, March 4—Chargees of failure to enforce the anti-trust laws in connection with cases transmitted by the federal trade commission probably will be the first produced against Attorney-General Daugherty in the investigation ordered by the [illegible].

This was indicated today by members of the special committee after another meeting, at which procedure was discussed and the privileges of Mr. Daugherty's counsel determined definitely. Senators adhered to the plan to begin the hearings early next week.

At today's committee meeting a letter, drafted by Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa, chairman, to Mr. Daugherty's counsel, defining their part in the inquiry, was approved and forwarded. Replying to specific requests of the attorney-general's two legal representatives, Paul Howland of Cleveland, and former Senator Chamberlain, of Oregon, the committee agreed to permit their examination of witnesses "subject to control of the committee," and also to introduce independent evidence and have subpoenas issued for their own witnesses, but also subject to committee approval.

An intention to retain complete control of the inquiry's course was declared emphatically by the committee which informed Mr. Daugherty's counsel, that "regarding this as an investigation and no to trial." It "will proceed in a summary manner rather than according to the technical rules of evidence."

Counsel for the attorney-general were also informed that the request for notice of specific charges could not be granted, these being stated generally in the resolution of Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, moving spirit of the investigation.

The federal trade commission cases about fifty in all, figured prominently in the impeachment case against Mr. Daugherty in the house a year ago. Only a few days ago, in response to resolutions by Senators King, democrat, Utah, and Norris, republican, Nebraska, reports regarding department of justice action on them were transmitted to the senate. Much of the maetrial, however, has been withheld from publication as confidential.

Papers in the trade commission cases and others relating to complaints received by senators against the attorney general are being sifted by Senator Wheeler, who virtually is committee counsel. He is negotiating with an attorney to assist him as law clerk in the conduct of the inquiry and will determine the date when the hearings will open, the subjects to be taken up and, largely, the witnesses to be called.

Chairman Brookhart said today that no advance information would be given regarding the summoning of witnesses. The committee, he declared, had determined upon a policy of secrecy in such matters, as the senate oil committee at times had been embarrassed, if not obstructed, by making public information concerning issuance of subpoenas.

INTERESTING DEVELOPMENTS IN THE SENATE OIL PROBE

Washington, March 4.—Three more interesting contributions were added to the records of the oil committee today while special government counsel were completing plans for action within the next few hours for the annulment of the Sinclair and Doheny leases.

Senator Walsh of Montana, chief prosecutor in the oil scandal disclosed that in the midst of the inquiry, E. L. Doheny had suggested that he might care to associate himself with the Doheny interests in a proposal to develop oil lands.

The second disclosure was produced by William J. Burns, director of the bureau of investigation in the department of justice. He testified that in order to save possible embarrassment to Attorney General Daugherty he had hinted to Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post that he resign his commission of a $1 a year secret agent of the bureau, a position he said McLean had held since 1921.

Francis M. McAdoo of New York, son of William G. McAdoo furnished the third sensation of the two hour session. He declared McLean, for whom he is counsel, had telegraphed him that A. Mitchell Palmer, former democratic attorney general was counsel for Albert B. Fall and Harry F. Sinclair. Palmer denied before the committee last week that there was any such relationship.

In presenting to the committee copies of a telegram and two letters exchanged with Doheny, Senator Walsh said that reports concerning these documents had been "whispered about for the purpose of discrediting me," the telegram was found in the files of the Western Union Telegraph company while a search was being made for messages relevant to the oil inquiry. In-meanwhoany [illegible] mt. th the low I

The first communication in the exchange was a letter dated December 14, 1923, and sent to Doheny at New York city by the senator Enclosed with it was a letter sent to Senator Walsh by T. S. Hogan of Great Falls, Montana, and inquiring as to whether Mr. Walsh might not be in touch with men who would be in a position to finance the development of oil fields in Montana. Senator Walsh wrote Mr. Doheny that if he had not dismissed the idea of entering the Montana field, the Hogan letter might be of interest to him.

A week later Doheny telegraphed Mr. Walsh that if the senator or his brother were willing to "take interest" in the Hogan proposition he would be pleased to have Hogan visit him at Los Angeles, bringing necessary data concerning the property in question.

On December 24, Senator Walsh replied that the suggestion made by Doheny "is to me most alluring." He added that he should "appreciate very much indeed the opportunity to be associated with you in some business enterprise," but that he could not while in his present official position engage in any business "dependent in any appreciable degree on government favor."

"This may be squeamishness on my part," the senator's letter added, "but I prefer rather to be thought oversensitive, than to be under suspicion of having utilized the position to which my people have elevated me for my own profit."

This exchange of communications took place before Doheny startled the committee with the statement that he had loaned Fall $100,000 in 1921 while he was secretary of the interior.

After Senator Walsh had read the messages into the record, Chairman Lenroot stated that the committee had voted unanimously that the Doheny telegram to the senator was wholly irrevelent to the inquiry and expressed regret that members of the committee had violated an agreement under which telegrams delivered by the telegraph company and not pertinent to the oil scandal should be regarded as confidential.

While the oil committee was in session, a second step was taken looking to the recovery to the federal government of additional oil lands in California, operated by the Standard Oil company of California.

Pursuant to the directions of congress, President Coolidge named Samuel Knight of San Francisco as special counsel to initiate court proceedings to determine the validity of titles to these oil lands granted to the Standard by the state of California. The state acquired the property —Sections 16 and 36 in the Elk Hills reserve—as non-mineral lands when it was granted statehood.

Mr. Knight's appointment will await senate confirmation before he begins work, but the special counsel already appointed to prosecute the Doheny-Sinclair cases was virtually ready tonight to go into court. It was indicated that civil proceedings probably would be filed tomorrow or Thursday, but members of counsel declined to reveal where the suits would be brought of their exact character.

Meantime the committeee will continue following up the McLean and other telegrams which are being presented to it daily by the telegraph companies. Ira E. Bennett, an editorial writer on the Washington Post and other of McLean's employes, will be called tomorrow.

FIGHT FOR CASH PAYMENT OPTION OF SOLDIERS' BONUS

Washington, March 4.—Indications of a determined fight for a straight-out cash payment option developed today in connection with hearings on soldiers' bonus legislation before the house ways and means committee. Chairman Green of the committee said the reporting of a measure might be delayed beyond Saturday because of expected efforts to make considerable changes in the old bill as substantially re-introduced in the McKenzie measure now before the committee.

Representative Jeffers, Alabama, chairman of the special committee of five appointed by the house democratic conference to outline the views of that party on bonus legislation, declared tonight in favor of a two-fold bonus bill. He advocated the cash payment and paid-up insurances options. This committee will present the bonus program to the ways and means committee tomorrow. Mrs. Jeffers emphasized, however, that their proposition was not to be considered as a partisan matter.

The hearings today brought out the first opposition to the bonus, when the committee heard spokesmen of the chamber of commerce of the United States and the Ex-Service Men's Anti-Bonus League. Questioning by committee members, representatives of the latter organization developed a committee row and brought demands from Representatives Oldfield, Arkansas, and Rainey, Illinois, democrats, that the list of the league be investigated.

Representative Garner, Texas, ranking democrat on the committee, who has opposed the bonus in the past, and other democratic members of the committee, have indicated they favored the full cash payment option.

REP. POLITICAL CAMPAIGN OPENED IN MASSACHUSETTS

Boston, March 4.—The republican political campaign in Massachusetts was officially opened tonight with a dinner given by the republican state committee to the republican members of the state legislature.

William M. Butler, republican national committeeman from Massachusetts, urged a "magnificent" vote in this state for President Coolidge's election, and asked the voters to begin work at once toward victory.

SCHOONER WATERLOGGED AND ABANDONED AT SEA

The schooner, which registered 628 tons net, and hailed from Wilmington, Del., sailed from Georgetown, S. C., for Philadelphia on February 19 with a cargo of lumber. In command of Captain Colburn. The Oneida is bound from Charleston and Jacksonville for Boston.

Confessed Part in Wall St. Explosion

Confesser Now in an English Prison — Extradition Proceedings Suggested—State Department Silent.

New York, March 4—District Attorney Banton announced late today in an English prison is a man who confessed to a part in the Wall street explosion of September 16, 1920, in which thirty persons were killed and scores injured.

That portion of the telegram which Mr. Banton received from Governor Smith and made public said:

"I quote the following telegram from the department of state received this morning:

"'The American consul general at London telegraphed March 1 suggesting extradition proceedings be immediately commenced for Ralph Thurber alias Louis A. Repell alias George Darg alias Walter Sharr'".

Aside from this confession, Mr. Banton said, the state department in Washington has the names of others implicated in the explosion.

Mr. Banton said he had received a a telegram from Governor Smith advising him of the receipt by the governor of a message from Secretary of State Hughes relating to the explosion.

"Thurber is also said to have executed an affidavit on March 1," the department of state's message to Governor Smith continued:

"Implicating himself and others in the Wall street bomb explosion of September 16, 1920 Thurber states that all details of plot and names of conspirators are known."

Upon learning the contents of Governor Smith's telegram to Mr. Banton, criminal court officials disclosed that a young woman bearing the name similar to that of Thurber was found on a southern California beach a year ago, dead and that a man calling himself as one of Thurber's aliases was questioned relative to her death.

Officials of the district attorney's office pointing out that many persons under arrest in various parts of the world had implicated themselves in the explosion said a thorough investigation would be made before proceedings for the extradition of Thurber were begun.

"All details of plot and names of conspirators," Secreatry Hughes' telegram to the governor said, "are known to Rev. Herbert Wilson of San Diego and Los Angeles, Cal., and following were participants in affair:

Herbert Wilson, mentioned in the telegram, was arrested a little less than a year ago in Los Angeles and William J. Burns of the United States secret service department questioned him there. Later, however, Burns said he was convinced Wilson had nothing to do with the plot.

It was pointed out that requests for Thurber's extradition from England would have to come from Governor Smith, since the crime was committed in New York state. The governor's request would be made to the state department in Washington which would start international proceedings.

STATE DEP'T OFFICIALS HAVE HEARD SOMETHING

Washington, March 4—State Department officials declined to discuss in any way the state ments made in New York today by District Attorney Banton concerning the Wall street explosion of 1920.

At the department of justice it was said no official information had been received concerning the disclosures reported by Mr. Banton, although officials there admitted that "in a general way" they had heard something of them.

TWO-YEAR-OLD SUIT AGAINST ALBERT B. FALL

Los Angeles, Cal., March 4.—Deputy U. S. Attorney Camerillo today unearthed a suit filed two years ago by Calvin Giffin, of Fresno, against Albert B. Fall, then secretary of the interior, charging Fall with awarding to E. L. Doheny's Pan-American Petroleum company an oil lease in Kern county, after Giffin had filed the first claim upon it.

Giffin's suit sought to compel the Pan-American Petroleum company, The Eight Oil company and Secretary Fall to relinquish the property to him.

Camerillo, then acting for Fall, said that Fall avoided coming into court by entering objection that the subpoena had been served on his secretary and not on himself.

Baruch to Squelch Character Assassin

Financier Secretly Designates State Senator Youngman of Massachusetts For Charge of War-Time Profiteering.

Washington, March 4—The joint legislative committee on constitutional law will meet tomorrow to act on the request of Bernard M. Baruch, the New York financier, that he be granted a hearing to enable him to reply to statements alleged to have been made by Senator William S. Youngman, of Boston, chairman of the committee. In a letter to President Frank G. Allen, of the senate made public today, Mr. Baruch characterized the statements, which charged him with war-time profiteering as "slanderous."

President Allen in replying to Mr. Baruch's letter, said that he had suggested to Senator Youngman that the committee be called together for a hearing and that the senator had agreed to urge his fellow members to meet for this purpose. Representative J. Bradford Davis, of Haverhill, house chairman of the committee, said late today that he was opposed to such a hearing because the committee already had acted upon the matter which was before it at the time of Senator Youngman's statement.

Mr. Baruch in his letter said that Senator Youngman was quoted in a Boston newspaper as having said at a committee hearing on February 8 on a resolution to memorialize congress for the conscription of wealth in time of war.

"I recall that during the war he (Baruch) admitted on the witness stand having made half a million dollars in two days in speculation in war stocks."

"That statement," Mr. Baruch write, "is false. Before the United States entered the war—during 1916—as I testified in the so-called 'leak' investigation by congress, I made less than half a million dollars in the sale and purchase of various stocks and I made that profit in anticipation of peace, not war. At that time the nation was at peace with the world; I was in Wall street; and what I did was not only my legitimate occupation but a unanimous congressional report absolved me of any wrongful action."

With regard to Senator Youngman's alleged reference to "a man like Mr. Baruch who made his money out of the bodies of the boys who fought for this country in the war," Mr. Baruch said: "That statement also is not only false but it is monstrously and slanderously false. Before the entrance of this country into the war I entered the government service, and from that time until at least two years after the end of the war the only occupation in which I was engaged was in the service of my country as chairman of the war industries board and in other capacities. In all that time I had no commercial interest in, or income from any activity that could even remotely be connected with the war."

He declared that the senator must "retract or prove his statements," asked for a hearing "in the interest of truth and fair play," and concluded:

"There are already too many character assassins at large. This one, whose politics I do not know, must apologize or make good."

GRAND JURY INVESTIGATION ORDERED BY THE PRESIDENT

Of Charges That Two Members of Congress Had Accepted Bribes to Obtain Paroles and Pardons For Persons Convicted of Crimes—Coolidge Has Given Instructions to Acting Attorney General Seymour to "Proceed With Every Diligence in the Prosecution of the Cases"—The Identity of the Congressmen Has Not Been Made Known.

Washington, March 4—President Coolidge tonight ordered an immediate grand jury investigation of charges that two member sof congress had accepted bribes to obtain paroles and pardons for persons convicted of crime.

Instructions have been given acting Attorney General Seymour, it was announced at the White House, to "proceed with every diligence in the prosecution of the cases."

The announcement, given out by C. Bascom Slemp, secretary to the president, follows:

"The president, immediately on noting the newspaper reports this morning that evidence before the grand jury at Chicago implicated two members of congress, gave immediate instruction sto Mr. Seymour, acting attorney-general, and reiterated the instructions again this evening to Mr. Seymour that prompt and immediate steps be taken to place the evidence before a grand jury and that he proceed with every diligence in the prosecution of the cases."

A grand jury is expected to be convened here shortly to go into the charges. Their identity has not been made known, even to congressional leaders, although it has been established that they are members of the house.

It also was disclosed today that while in Chicago last week, Attorney General Daugherty appeared before the grand jury investigating veterans bureau affairs to submit evidence regarding the activities of the two congress members.

Coincident with an announcement today by the senate veterans committee that it would pursue a hands-off policy in the matter, Representative Garrett, the democratic leader, introduced a resolution calling for the appointment of a house committee to establish whether the persons mentioned in the Chicago jury's report were members of the house and whether there was any ground for the charges against them.

The resolution went to the rules committee of which Mr. Garrett is a member. He announced he would press for action on it, although he did not desire to embarrass any investigation that might be conducted here by a grand jury.

In announcing the decision of the senate veterans committee not to go into the charges involving the house members, Chairman Reed declared that information furnished him showed the matter was one for prompt prosecution, not investigation.

He made this statement after a conference with John W. H. Crim, a government counsel in the veterans bureau case, who is understood to have informed the committee chairman that the activities of the house members had no relation whatever to affairs of the bureau.

Mr. Crim announced tonight that the investigation into charges against the two house members would be "deliberate," and that every effort would be made to ascertain the exact situation.

A section of the Chicago grand jury's report relating to the alleged activities of the two congress members was made public by Mr. Crim as follows:

"Incidental to the investigation of matters of which this grand jury had jurisdiction certain other facts not directly pertaining to the veterans' bureau were developed by counsel for the government which we regard of great importance. There is no jurisdiction of them in the northern district of Illinois, but we are assured by Mr. Crim that he will lay them before the attorney general and president for consideration. We do not feel that it would subserve the best interests of the government for this jury to make public at this time he details of these transactions.

"This jury feels it will suffice to report to your honor that they involve (1) that speculation by one or more officials of the government wherein it has been asserted that official information was used for purposes of speculation; (2), that certain sums of money were paid to two members of congress; (3) that possession of a file of one of the departments for about a month was had by persons having no official connection with departments; (4) that money was accepted by certain individuals (not attorneys) for the purpose of obtaining clemency for prisoners through their intimacy with officials; (5) that money was collected by certain individuals (not attorneys) for obtaining, through such intimacy, permits for intoxicating liquor."

Mr. Crim, also made public this statement as to his attitude:

"I am working on all of these matters: I can't finish them in a day. It may require many days for me to finish my investigation. As the situation develops, I will report from time to time to my superiors. I have not reported to them; I will not report to them unless they send for me, until I have exhausted the entire situation; I do not propose at this time to make public what I have done, and I do not propose to prophesy as to what I will do in the future."

COOLIDGE DESIRE IS TO ASSIST THE FARMERS

Washington, March 4.—President Coolidge is in entire accord with the desire to assist the farmers of the northwest and those of the country generally through the present period of depression, it was stated officially today, but has arrived at no decision as to the form such aid should take. Officials of the department of agriculture are expected to submit recommendations to the president, upon the various legislative proposals now assuming shape in congress.

The first of these measures—the Norbeck-Burtness bill proposing a $75,000,000 federal fund to finance diversification of crops—occupied the attention of the senate for the entire session today and was still the unfinished business when a recess was taken with no indication of when a vote would be had.

Opposition to the Norbeck bill ranged all the way fro mthe position voiced by Senator Wadsworth, republican, New York, who classed it as "fruitless paternalism," to that of Senator Gooding, republican, Iowa, who held that it should be laid aside in favor of the McNary-Haugen bill, proposing a $100,000,000 corporation to export surplus farm products. The latter measure would aid all agriculture, Senator Gooding insisted, and would accomplish the same purpose designed to be effected "locally" by the bill before the senate.

GIRL GARMENT STRIKERS CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

Boston, March 4.—Two young women, members of the Dress Workers' Union, whose members are now on strike in this city, were arrested today on warrants charging assault on workers employed in shops affected by the strike. Two women were arrested yesterday on similar charges, and last week disturbances near the arrest of six men.

Two girls employed in a shop on shops affected by the strike caused Washington street swore out warrants today charging that yesterday Nellie Shir, of Chelsea and Ida Barber, of Boston, followed them when they left work, and when a police escort left them, gave battle. The attack occurred in the business district when the streets were crowded. Traffic on the corner where the fight occurred was held up while traffic policemen left their posts to separate the combatants.

The strike was called to enforce demands for a five day, 40-hour week. Approximately 2,000 workers are affected.

CRAIG HELD FOR ASSAULT WITH INTENT TO MURDER

Newton, Mass., March 4—Gerald L. Craig, who was hot by Lewis Foster Curtis, sportsman, in the latter's Commonwealt havenue home, a month ago was held in $10,000 bonds today on a charge of assault with intent to murder.

Curtis testified that he found Craig asleep on his sun porch and shot him when he reached for a revolver. Craig was struck several times and Curtis was wounded in the arm in the duel that ensued.

FORD'S MUSCLE SHOALS OFFER BEFORE HOUSE

Washington, March 4. — Henry Ford's offer for Muscle Shoals, pending before congressional committees for more than two years, finally reached the floor of the house today.

Under an agreement limiting debate to ten hours, the McKenzie bill, providing for acceptance of the bid was taken up, with a final vote in sight before the end of the week.

As the decision got under way, the proposition of the Detroit manufacturer was alternately commended and attacked. Representative McKenzie, republican, Illinois, led the fight in behalf of the offer, while the opposition rested chiefly in the hands of four republican members of the military committee which recommended acceptance of the bid—Representatives Morin, Pennsylvania; Hull, Iowa; Hill, Maryland; and Wainwright, New York former assistant secretary of war.

As reported, the McKenzie bill provides for the sale to Mr. Ford of the two nitrate plants at Muscle Shoals, with the understanding that he is to manufacture fertilizer there, and the leasing of dams Nos 2 and 3 for the development of power. The measure was amended in committee to provide for the replacement by the government of the Gorgas steam power plant, recently sold to the Alabama Power company.

GOOD SHOWING BY THE AMERICAN WOOLEN CO.

New York, March 4—Further increases in 1923 earnings were shown in annual reports which were made public today by a large number of industrial corporations, including the American Woolen Company and the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation.

Net income of the American Woolen Company was approximately $400,000 greater than in 1922. Total earnings were not made public but it was assumed that a special reserve of $5,500,000, sufficient to cover two years' common dividends, which has set aside during the year was deducted from the 1923 revenues.

He was born at Lyme, Conn., was educated at Bacon Academy, Colchester, and came to Meriden to teach at the state school for boys. # WILLIMANTIC

The police court room was filled, Tuesday morning, when the Philip Pagano liquor case was closed, as far as the local court is concerned. The accused was charged with keeping liquor with intent to sell and an actual sale was taken up. The case was the outgrowth of a raid conducted at Pagano's store on West Main street, Saturday night, February 8, and has been continued several times.

Prosecuting Attorney Harvey testified that he had conducted an investigation and had concluded that the charge of selling liquor should be dropped, on the grounds that one of the principal witnesses denied that he had ever made a purchase of liquor in Pagano's place. The court agreed to this action and the trial then proceeded on the other counts. Attorneys King of this city and Jacob Schwolsky of Hartford appeared for the defendant. A demurrer was entered to the charge of keeping liquor with intent to sell, which demurrer was overruled by Judge Foss.

Pagano was found guilty and after a fine of $200 and costs and a sentence of thirty days in jail had been imposed, Judge Foss freshened the memory of the accused by reminding him that he had been before the court on two previous occasions for violation of the liquor law. In one instance the charge was nolled and a discharge was entered in the other case. This was Pagano's first actual conviction under the law, for so far as the local court is concerned the entering of a demurrer constituted an admission of guilt. In consideration of public sentiment Judge Foss said that as Pagano was not in the position of a first offender it was his duty to impose a sentence of sufficient severity to be a warning.

Attorney King gave notice of an appeal to the next criminal term of the superior court. Bonds of $1,000 were named and were furnished by Michael Licchiello of this city.

When the assault case against County Detective William E. Jackson was taken up, it was announced that his attorney, Harry S. Gaucher was called out of town and could not attend the court trial. Jackson was charged with assault against Pagano. Prosecuting Attorney Harvey was anxious to have the case disposed of. He said that he understood that a demurrer was to be entered in behalf of the accused and he wanted to know why it could not be done immediately. The court ordered a short recess and when the session was resumed Judge Foss stated that he would defer sentence until after the demurrer was entered. Accordingly the case was continued until this (Wednesday) morning at 9 o'clock at which time the matter of the sentence to be imposed will be considered.

Frank Goelier, 60, caretaker at the Thomas Porter place in Coventry, was found dead in bed at his home in Coventry. Goelier lived alone. James Fitzgerald of South street, South Coventry, owner of the place, and Deputy Sheriff A. E. Harmon made the discovery after Mr. Fitzgerald had made one of his customary calls at the residence and had found all the doors locked. Knowing that Goelier was subject to heart attacks, Mr. Fitzgerald surmised that something was wrong and called Deputy Sheriff Harmon, with whom he returned to the house. They broke into the place and found the caretaker dead in his bed. Medical Examiner Dr. William L. Higgins of Coventry pronounced death due to heart failure. In the opinion of Examiner Higgins the man had died on the night of February 26 or in the early morning hours of the next day.

He was last seen about a week ago when he went into the village to purchase groceries and appeared exhausted. It is believed that the long walk hastened the end. The body was taken in charge by Avery and VanZandt of this city.

The members of the Willimantic Rotary club were regaled with a most original and optimistic talk at their regular meeting and luncheon, Tuesday noon, by Walter Stemmons, director of publicity at the Connecticut Agricultural College, Storrs, formerly of Oklahoma. Mr. Stemmons' services were secured by Professor Richard E. Dodge of the entertainment committee.

Mr. Stemmens' satires on the everpresent abominations threatening the downfall of the country and humankind, were entertaining, humorous and enlightening. Referring to articles which have appeared in publications for the past century the speaker said that alleged downward trend of the morality of politicians, young girls, college boys and the like, there is a parallel in bygone days. Since Eve bit the apple the pessimists have been writing that "the young girls of today" are without the high standard morals of "the girls when I was young." A few years ago when the flapper was so conspicuous with her short skirts and bobbed hair, everyone joined in the chorus that young womanhood had gone to the dogs. Today she appears in skirts that nearly trail the ground and her hair is back in the proverbial net and still she is on the downward road. On the other hand the girls of grandmother's day were simple and pure in every way, but if a local lass attempted to walk the streets with a swinging hoop skirt and pantelettes hanging in plain view she would be committed to jail.

Mr. Stemmons said that in his opinion the girl in the motor car did not invite temptaton any more than the shy maiden in the rubber tire buggy. "If a mother and father wish to know what their children are doing when they are out at night all they have to do is to go through the history of their own youthful days—and nights," said the speaker.

Other guests at the meeting were George Siswick of Stafford Springs, and Charles W. Taggart, the Gas and Electric man, and Grosvenor Ely, cotton manufacturer of Norwich. The latter spoke regarding The Hidden Idol, which will be presented in the Rose city this month for the benefit of the John S. Blackmar Boys' Work fund.

Professor Dodge reported for the committee which investigated the feasibility of furthering and extending boys' work in this community. He offered several resolutions which included a Boys' Week the latter part of April. Mention was made of the proposed duplication of Charter Night of the Putnam club in April, to which the Willimantic, Norwich and New London clubs would be invited.

Jim Fullerton invited the members to attend the stag social at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday evening next.

BALTIC

The meeting that was adjourned Sept. 24, 1923, to the first Monday in March, to lay a tax on the grand list to meet the current expenses of the town, was held Monday evening with a great number of voters in attendance. An 18-mill tax was voted levied on a $3,039,083 grand list, which will cover the ordinary expenses and in addition will take care of the outstanding obligations created by financing, for the state the building of the Sprague-Franklin state road. The tax will be paid in two installments of 9 mills each, the first due and payable April 1st and the second due and payable Nov. 1, 1924.

DANIELSON

The centering here of the manufacturing activities of the Facu Manufacturing company may start another building boom in Danielson. This assumption is based on the fact that the company will transfer 200 workers, now engaged in its Boston plants to this city and that members of their families will come with them as a matter of course.

Even though all of the Boston employes do not see fit to follow the concern in its move to Danielson, the company will require an equal number of workers here and is bound to get them from this territory or somewhere in New England. They will have to be housed, and on that fact the prediction of the building of more homes is based. There are few available rents in Danielson and any great increase in growth is going to call for more houses.

A great open air or tented show may bring this season's boxing exhibitions to a close in Danielson. This is looking ahead to the days of May or June and following several cards of indoor bouts that remain to be given. Promoter Frank Barber has his plans laid, however, for a great big closing show at which the fastest boxing talent ever seen in Danielson will appear. Boxers whose names are familiar to the fans the country over are available for this event, which in baseball park or large tent is expected to draw from 3500 to 3500 people, making the appearance of the stars of the squared circle possible. More likely will be heard about this late in the spring, as plans at present are but in the formative stage.

Tuesday afternoon, at one o'clock, at her home in West Brooklyn, funeral services for Mrs. Josephine Porter, wife of Frederick S. Porter, were conducted by Rev. John R. Pratt, of Brooklyn. Nearer My God to Thee, and Shall We Meet Beyond the River were sung during the service by a trio, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall J. Frink and Mrs. Charles S. Hyde. Burial was in South Cemetery, at Brooklyn. The bearers were Judge Oscar F. Atwood, Marshall J. Frink, Fred Woodward and Joseph Scott. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Some of the boys who like to take a chance now and then are quietly congratulating themselves over the fact that they have been setting by since the first of the month without it being discovered that they are operating motor cars without having 1924 licenses. This is amusing as long as it lasts, but a day of accounting is certain to come—and that means court appearances of fines and costs amounting to more than license renewal costs for several years. Officers who will check up drivers are certain to get the scofflaws sooner or later.

Frederick E. Kies, veteran of the Spanish American war and former deputy game warden of the county, left Tuesday to enter the Soldiers' home at Nortolk, Va. Mr. Kies is in poor health.

His decorations for extraordinary heroism were awarded by the American and French governments for services he rendered the Allied nation sat Belleau woods.

Attention was called Tuesday to the fact that Frank Westcott, who died at Goodyear the past week was married June 11, 1907 in this town to Mrs. Mabel Arnold by Rev. Walter B. Greene, formerly pastor of the United Baptist church at East Killingly. By an inadvertance, it was stated in the obituary notice in this column that Mr. Westcott was unmarried.

Herbert Barber, who has been ill at his home on Carter street the past week, was extremely low Tuesday.

The body of Mrs. Mary E. Walker, who died in Brooklyn, N. Y., is to be brought to Brooklyn, this state, for burial. Mrs. Walstr was a daughter of the late Dr. James W. Whitcomb, formerly of the neighboring town of Brooklyn.

Morris B. Diamond, sentenced Monday in New York to be electrocuted at Sing Sing during the week of April 7, for complicity of the murder of two bank messengers last November and the robbery fro mthem of $41,000 spent six months in Brooklyn jail in the latter part of 1922 and the early part of 1923 for infractions of the law committed on one of his expeditions into this territory.

Promoter Frank Barber of the Casino arena was in Hartford Tuesday relative to arrangements for the card of bouts to be staged on March 18.

More of the ice that has covered streets and walks here for a month disappeared under the mild weather of Tuesday. But there is plenty of ice left.

Jerome Keech, who has been ill for several weeks and who underwent a surgical operation, is steadily improving.

Elmer Gallup, pharmacist, formerly employed here and more recently in Massachusetts, has taken a position in a drug store at Putnam. Mr. Gallup is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gallup.

Warnings are now in order against allowing children to venture onto rotting ice on ponds, lakes and rivers hereabouts. Danielson can recall drownings in March because of reckless adventuring in this respect.

Distribution of ashes, marking the opening of the penitential season, will be made at St. James' church this (Ash Wednesday) morning. The ashes are from palms blessed at the high mass at the church last Palm Sunday.

At the Orpheum theatre Tuesday evening a cast from the student body of Killingly High school presented the drama, Clarence. The attraction drew a large attendance.

Some chopping of the ice that covers sections of the pavement in Main street was undertaken Tuesday to give freer flow to water sent rippling along by the thaw that was under way.

There will be general regret here this Wednesday morning over the fact that Herbert E. Barber died Tuesday night, just before 7 o'clock, at his home on Carter street. He had been ill just one week but his condition was not considered at all critical until Saturday. He showed material improvement during Sunday, but Monday afternoon he became decidedly worse and his strength, notwithstanding every care, gradually ebbed away until the end came, Tuesday evening.

Mr. Barber was born in Arcadia, R. I., Nov. 9, 1885, a son of Herbert L. and Jeanette Jordan Barber. His father died while the son was a boy. The family came to Danielson in 1899 and Mr. Barber has since made his home here. For the past seventeen years he has been in the employ of the Larkin Reed company and by his employers and all who worked with him he came to be known as one of extraordinary faithfulness to duty and loyalty to the concern. All who knew him often remarked on the perfection of his life and the kindliness of his nature. To all of these his death comes as a great shock and leaves a sense of personal loss. Mr. Barber was unmarried.

He leaves two brothers, Frederick and Irving, both of Moosup, and two sisters, Mrs. May Tyler of New Haven and Mrs. Ella Owens of Florence, Mass., all of whom were with him when he died. Mr. Barber was a member of Moriah lodge of Masons, Danielson, of the Bohemian club of Danielson, and Putnam lodge of Elks.

Get from any druggist, one ounce of Parmint (double strength) add to it a little sugar, and enough water to make a half pint. The minute you take it, like a soothing, healing poultice it spreads, and relief comes at once. Children like to use.

PUTNAM

Drivers of a number of cars had one of the thrills—very unwelcome ones—that sometimes come to motorists, Tuesday, as they steered their machines up the steep incline from Pomfret street into the business center of the city. The grade was icy—one of the few places on the state highways from which the ice has not disappeared—and about all cars were going without chains. Drivers who did not take the grade at speed suddenly found their machines slowing down, then stopping, then sliding backward down the hill. If one thinks there isn't a thrill connected with this—just sit back of a steering wheel and try it!

Those backsliding machines were really out of control and only the efficiency and experience of the drivers prevented accidents—and then merely by good fortune for a car following one of them up the hill might easily have been smashed, if in just the right position.

Sanding of the grade seemed to be the remedy for the dangerous condition existing, but this had not been done up to early afternoon.

A dog—just a big, good natured dog—made men who were witnesses of the incident show the mettle that is in them, when the animal broke through the ice covering the canal near the mills of Canal street and started to struggle for the earthly existence that is so dear to every living thing.

Dr. E. F. Murphy was the first to risk his neck in an effort to get to the floundering dog and save its life. The doctor broke through and was immersed in the ice cold water, but his place in the rescue effort was immediately taken by his son, Francis, who managed to reach the dog and bring it ashore. Thus in this crass age of wise men and gunmen, there are those who still are inspired by a spark of chivalry that possessed men of old, and only the occasion is needed to find them risking their own existence to save even a friendly dog from an untimely end. And in this lesson there may be hope for the future, forbidding as it appears to be to many students of the times.

Securing recently an award of $30 from the Associated French-speaking societies, who have held a carnival to raise funds for the general convention of French-speaking organizations of Connecticut, to be held here next summer, Mrs. Eugene Durocher, as expression of appreciation, entertained a party at her home on Woodstock Sunday evening.

Whist was a diversion during the early part of the evening, awards being assigned by tables. Those at table No. 5—Paul St. George, Mrs. Ernest Tetreault and Mr. and Mrs. Willis B. Carroll—won first honors, with 130 points. Consolation awards went to the players at table No. 3—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dufault and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dufault, with 130 points.

Following the whist supper was served, this consisting of grape fruit, creamed chicken on toast, marshmallow jelly, ice cream and coffee, cigars for the men following.

John W. Kennedy, for the past 13 years in charge of the inn of the Beachmont Worsted company at Mechanicsville, has resigned and will be succeeded by Frank W. Russell, who for a number of years has been engaged with restaurant enterprises in this city.

Mr. Kennedy is to fill a place as chef in this city for a few weeks while he is fitting property he owns near the children's home for use as an automobile inn. During the time he has been at Mechanicsville Mr. Kennedy has been prominent in the political affairs of the town of Thompson, of which the village is a part. He is a member of the town school committee, chairman of the building committee for the new school authorized for Mechanicsville and a constable. In view of the fact that occupation of his own property, which is in this town, will take him officially out of Thompson, he said Tuesday that he will resign the positions he has been filling in the town.

While it was no surprise—having been discounted as a foregone conclusion—following conviction—the news carried by many papers Tuesday that M. Barlow Diamond had, with his brother, Joseph, and two other conspirators been sentenced to die at Sing Sing prison during the week of April 7, startled the people here and surrounding towns.

Morris Barlow Diamond became a figure of interest to Windham county people, when, with a companion, he ventured into this territory on Labor day, 1922, and for a really minor cause threatened to shoot up a group of men who remonstrated with him and his companion for stealing fruit out of the orchard at the Gardner Sumner place in Woodstock. He cowed the unarmed men who faced him when he flashed a revolver at them and was allowed to drive away in the big Cadillac car in which he was riding—afterwards established to be a stolen machine—but at Willimantic officers apprehended him and locked him up and, eventually he was sentenced to serve six months in Brooklyn jail for his indiscretions in the county. His companion found upon investigation to be no more than a dupe of Diamond's was allowed to go. Diamond, with his craftiness and taking advantage of every legal protection, managed to escape prosecution by federal authorities for being in possession of a stolen car.

His exploits in this corner of the state received such publicity that his arrest in New York with others for the murder of two bank messengers and the theft of about $41,000 from them by the gang has proved of exceptional interest in the territory, and everything printed about it down to the sentencing of the four men found guilty—Diamond being among them—has been followed with the keenest attention.

Jerry Bernard, lightweight of this city, will get another chance to show his ring prowess when he battles at Danielson again, Thursday evening of next week. Promoter Frank Barber was in Hartford Tuesday arranging for a worthy opponent to meet Bernard, who made an excellent showing in his bout at Danielson last week, winning decisively in three rounds of a scheduled six-round match.

Several hundred people assembled in St. John's hall, Providence street, Tuesday evening for the annual Mardi Gras parish festival. There was a literary program, vocal and instrumental selections and dancing. For the majority of those attending, it will be the last social event until after Lent.

A short calendar session of the superior court, marking the activities of the March term, will be here on Friday.

Copies of the Municipal Register of the city of Putnam with reports covering the past year have been made available for the public.

A communication from a Boston man relative to the famous "Ghost Train" of the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R., appeared in a Boston paper Tuesday. This train, which ran through Putnam, is well remembered by scores of people resident here.

Edward S. Carpenter, who left this city 62 years ago to make his home in Danielson, was a visitor here Tuesday.

It is announced that E. P. Armstrong, state commander of the American Legion, is coming into Windham county for a week to hold a series of meetings. Mr. Armstrong will speak on varied subjects and will talk on the soldiers' bonus if requested. Meetings will be held as follows:

In the chamber of commerce rooms, Putnam, Tuesday evening, March 11th at eight o'clock; North Grosvenordale, Monday evening, March 10th; Danielson, Wednesday evening, March 12th; Hampton, March 15th, and Willimantic Sunday evening, March 16th.

The meetings are for both ex-service men and for the public and the purpose is to instill new interest in the American Legion, both on the part of ex-service men and members and the general public.

Following the meeting in Willimantic there will be a mass meeting of committees and representatives of all posts in the county for the purpose of perfecting a county organization and reviving interest in the Legion.

A similar campaign has been staged in other counties of the state and has proved interesting and the result has been to revive interest in the Legion, where that interest has been lagging.

All day Tuesday, everyone seemed to be talking about the great basket ball game of the evening before. When the Boston Whirlwinds met the Plainfield team on the floor of the Community House. Although the admission was double the usual price, everyone was wholly satisfied, for the games was recognized as the best ever played in Plainfield and one of the very best, if not the greatest ever staged in New England. The visiting manager admitted the game to be the hardest fought one ever played, introducing every play ever known to break the Plainfield defense and that his team was covered better here than when they played the Celtics of New York, the champions of the country.

Every man on the Plainfield team starred. On both teams every man was so covered that it was difficult to shoot the baskets. The lines were well filled with enthusiastic spectators, who claim that it was one of the biggest, fastest and most scientific games possible. At half time, the score was 11-4 in favor of Plainfield when, in the last ten second of the game Heal broke the tie. A sensational, backhand shot was made from the corner, caging the ball, and winning the game. Both teams played whirlwind ball throughout and at no time during the game was time called. Few fouls were made to mar the best game ever seen in Plainfield. An effort is being made to secure the Whirlwinds for a second game.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Heap motored to New Bedford Saturday afternoon, spending the week end with friends, and returning early Sunday evening.

A BETTER WAY TO TREAT ALL CROUPY COLDS

An External Treatment That Replaces Internal Dosing. Nothing to Swallow—You Just Rub It On.

They use Vicks, the vaporizing salve, because it is externally applied. There's no dosing to upset a delicate little stomach.

When rubbed on over throat and chest Vicks acts like a liniment or plaster. At the same time, the ingredients, released as vapors by the body heat, are inhaled directly into the affected air passages.

For spasmodic croup you rub Vicks well in over throat and chest until the difficult breathing is relieved, then spread on thickly and cover with a warm flannel cloth. An application at bedtime will prevent most night attacks.

Vicks is just as good, of course, for the other cold troubles of children and also for adults.

THE TAX REDUCTION.

With the opening of the hearings on the tax reduction bill before the senate finance committee this week, there will be reason for devoting new study to the measure which was put through the house.

Tax reduction is what is wanted, but there is no desire for a cutting of taxes which will necessitate an unhealthy financial situation and larger taxes later on. What is desired is an economic reduction, one made on a scientific basis that will accomplish the benefits desired without involving any harm.

As a result of the study of the house bill it is figured out that the measure if put into effect will mean not only the wiping out of the money which the treasury has for the purpose of applying to tax reduction but there will be a deficit of $116,000,000 in addition. That in itself constitutes a good and sufficient reason for seriously considering amendments that will prevent it. It isn't a worse situation, but a better one, that is desired through the cutting of the taxes.

Fighting the Mellon plan has been carried on chiefly for political reasons. The senate should realize the necessity of getting away from any such method of dealing with so important a matter. The country is desirous of reduced taxes and it understands that it would be wise to go so far and no farther. Running into debt in order to cut taxes isn't any better than for an individual to plunge himself into debt for an elaborate banquet on a pork and bean income.

This is a feature of the matter to which the senate must give its attention. Whether it can do so any better than the house has remains to be revealed. With the tendency to pile up a deficit as displayed in this instance it becomes evident that the warning of the president against the filling of the "pork barrel" for which so many are anxious was timely and to the point. Burning the candle at both ends doesn't pay when it comes to treasury funds any more than it does in respect to health.

BACKING UP THE LAWS.

In the neighboring state of Massachusetts the registrar of motor vehicles has been waging a relentless campaign in behalf of greater safety in the highways. He has not only advocated new legislation from time to time in order to accomplish it but he has devoted conscientious and impartial efforts towards enforcement. Not only has he endeavored, so far as his office and authority are concerned, to provide better protection to all users of the highways and thus obtain better respect for the regulations, but he has considered it necessary to call the attention of the judges in certain courts of that state to the fact that they are failing to do their duty in upholding the law. That might be considered rather a delicate matter to deal with but having backed himself up with records he never flinched.

Before a gathering of judges, called for the particular purpose, he pointed out that of more than 103,000 cases in police and district courts during the past year in Massachusetts where there was no acquittal there were 37,600 fined, 30,146 cases placed on file, 25,841 placed on probation and only 5,748 sent to penal institutions. In the superior court 4657 were placed on file, 1577 were fined, 2148 were placed on probation and 1289 were imprisoned out of more than 11,000 cases, and this in spite of the fact that there was an increase in crime and the number in jails was about half what it was ten years previous.

The registrar of motor vehicles was striking at the disposition to be lenient and to treat the law breakers with greater consideration than the public. Perhaps it looks at the figures from a cold blooded point of view. He doesn't have the opportunity to hear each case, but he laid much stress upon the influence to which the courts were susceptible.

Whether it is in the enforcement of motor vehicle laws or other laws, greater respect for the law is seldom obtained by administering a slap on the wrist when a substantial sentence is deserved. It creates the impression that there is no need for respecting the laws and that crime can be winked at if there is only a proper amount of pull.

TURNING DOWN MEXICO.

The understanding has been that the recognition of Mexico by Great Britain had been withheld for some time because of the fact that the United States had not extended recognition, the attitude being that it could not accept as a stable government what this country could not approve.

Having satisfied the United States that conditions in Mexico were such as to justify the resumption of diplomatic relations with the Obregon government, Mexico had reasons to expect that Great Britain might follow suit, inasmuch as it had been intimated that it was desirous of bettering its trade relations.

But in addition to that, Mexico might have been justified in feeling that inasmuch as the British had displayed such an eagerness to proclaim its recognition of soviet Russia that it would show no hesitation in following the course adopted by the United States.

There has been a change in the British government since Mexico was recognized by this country, and since the new ministry has had hold of the reins Mexico has been struggling with a revolution. Whether the ending of that fight for control, which thus far strongly favors the established government, will have any influence upon the British labor government remains to be seen. Naturally, Mexico cannot see the consistency in hastening to extend a welcoming hand to the soviet Russian government and turning a cold shoulder upon the Obregon government. And in this respect Mexico takes no different view than do prominent labor leaders.

Mexico has conformed to the demands of the United States relative to the protection of foreign subjects and their property and the upholding of constitutional government. It is not a recognition that has been based upon trade possibilities, though that seems to have been the guiding spirit in connection with the British recognition of Russia. What governs in one instance doesn't seem to make a favorable impression in the other.

TURKEY'S RADICAL MOVE.

Turkey has been doing some interesting stunts in the past few years. It has succeeded where it wasn't believed that it could. It has caused surprises and perhaps none greater than the action of the Angora government in deciding that the caliph, the successor of Mohammed as both temporary and spiritual ruler, must get out of Turkey. This decision has even been followed by the announcement that the caliph has left Turkey for Switzerland.

Turkey, under the present control, is giving evidence that it does not intend to be guided solely by the past. It is ready to throw over the power that it has possessed in connection with the Mohammedan religion in its determination to have a house cleaning of certain traditions which are now regarded as a handicap.

It has long been to Turkey's advantage that it has been in a position where others have feared to take action for fear that it would result in a holy war, which would not be confined to Turkey but would extend to other sections of the east.

Now, apparently, Turkey has decided that it wants to be rid of such a power. In decreeing that the caliph must go it has also abolished the caliphate. Turkey of course understands that while it may end such an office in that country its abolition decision affects none other. Abolishing the caliphate by Turkey will simply mean that it will be shifted to some other country. It will not end, but the power that it has given in the past to Turkey will be terminated. This must be regarded as a most radical step, even though taken by Turkey.

DOHENY AND M'ADOO.

New Doheny complications are being encountered almost daily. Now the democrats of California have taken up the cudgel. They have hitherto appreciated the counsel and support that the oil magnate has given to their state organization. The extent of this is indicated by the fact that he was a vice president of the California democratic state central committee, but in view of the disclosures that have been made the committee has removed him from that office and requested his resignation from the committee. There can be no thought of harboring such an individual in a democratic organization.

But what did the same committee do about William G. McAdoo? Well Mr. McAdoo hasn't done anything but what might be expected a person would do who was in the law business, whose services were needed, who had influence to exert and who expected to be paid for it. He has been upheld by the California committee and in addition endorsement has been given to his candidacy for the democratic nomination for president.

The California committee has felt that it would be tainted by the continued association with Mr. Doheny, but it takes the position that even though he has received large sums from the oil magnate and stood in a position to have raked in $1,000,000 had he been able to accomplish what Mr. Doheny desired that the relationship with the oil man has not been contaminating. There are those who can put through the oil man's deals without getting their hands dirty but there are others who cannot. Possibly the committee is right.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: Many a great cause has been strengthened by the character of its opponents.

Count every day as it goes and figure that you're just that much nearer to the opening of the baseball season.

It is all right to guess as to whom President Coolidge will make his secretary of the navy but that proves nothing.

For killing a person while driving his machine a Philadelphia man has been sentenced to prison for eight years. Will it be a lesson to others?

LaFollette says he will not be a candidate for the republican presidential nomination. He must be given credit for reading aright that he has no chance.

That flag with a green field which has been adopted by Egypt will probably be recognized by the British as resembling one that has long caused them much trouble.

If McAdoo had obtained that additional $900,000 which Doheny had ready for him his qualifications for the presidency would probably have been considered improved.

That fellow who sues for a million because he failed to land the Bok prize and therefore lost all the advertising that went with it certainly appreciates the value of printer's ink even if he doesn't win his suit.

GOLD BRICKS

"There's more ways of cheating than one," declared Bobby gloomily. "And cheating gets folks into an awful lot of trouble, and costs a heap."

"I am pleased to see that you are learning some necessary lessons quite early," said his father. "But I trust that no one whom I know has been cheating."

"Not if you mean me," said Bobby. "If I wasn't so awful honest I wouldn't be in any mixup at all, I wouldn't, and that's what makes me so sore."

"What happened?" asked his father. "It was all along of Susie Herrick's getting funny," Bobby began. "She up and said she bet she could get into Mamie Kelly's house for all they had a sign on the door, and she sneaked in the back way and went upstairs to Mamie's room and talked with her a whole lot before they chased her out. She says Mamie Kelly wasn't hardly able to say a thing she was so kinder weak, and when she told her where we was in 'rithmetic, she said she didn't care."

"If I remember," said Bobby's father, "Miss Kelly is the star in arithmetic. But what the trouble with Susie? You didn't tell me."

"Sure I did," said Bobby patiently. "Of course she up and got scarlet fever, too, off from Mamie Kelly and she's been sick something terrce. Mamie Kelly's back to school already and Susie's still sick. Sam's been over three times to holler outside her winder but she ain't up yet. The last time he was there was yesterday and Mrs. Herrick she opened another and called down to know would Sam go to the store and get some things right off. She said she couldn't get 'em on the telephone and she was in a hurry. She told Sam what she wanted and he wrote it all down with a pencil he got for his birthday and ain't lost yet. Then he called for me and Billy and we chased over to the store."

"That was nice of you boys," said his father approvingly. "It must have been a great help to Susie's mother."

"It's one of these here stores where you help yourself," said Bobby with a sigh. "And you have to chase around the place picking things out. The guy that runs this one was changing the winders and he had a lot of stuff piled on the floor what he was going to put in to show off the things he had to sell. He was in the back of the store getting some of the stuff Mrs. Herrick wanted out of the piles by the window and save us a lot of trouble chasing around. So we got a lot of the things from the piles and Sam checked them off from his list as we put them in the basket.

"There was some things we had to get off from the shelves but mostly we found what we wanted right there, all right. Sam said we was in luck on account of him being in a hurry to get home and see an uncle who was coming."

"Was Mrs. Herrick grateful?"

"I don't know about that," Bobby said. Sam, he left the big bag out near the back fence in her yard, and after we'd lit out she came and got it.

"Well, me and Billy went over to Sam's to get a look at his uncle and see what he brought him, and while we was there Mrs. Herrick telephoned about the things, and all us fellers had to go back to the store and get some more right off. Sam's mother, she lent us the money, because she knew Mrs. Herrick wouldn't want her husband to stop in and pay twice. Of course, there's no use saying anything to Sam's mother, she's so fussy, so when she said we had to pay for them ourselves we just got to, that's all. And the worst of it was we couldn't get back the other things because of the scarlet fever, and then, of course, the regular feller was out of the store and the woman wouldn't believe us."

"I'm afraid I don't get this very straight," said his father, puzzled. "Will you tell me what was the matter?"

"Sure! I'm trying to," said Bobby with a sigh. "You see, we took a lot of things from the piles, like I told you. Well, that's what I mean by folks cheating. Every one of those winder things is a fake, sawdust and blocks of wood and things like that, and we had paid good money for them and ain't had any proof. That's why I got to have 45 cents to pay back Sam's mother, and I ain't got a red."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

James F. Byrnes, who has announced his intention to be a candidate in the South Carolina primaries this year for the seat in the United States senate now filled by Nathaniel B. Dial, enters the race with a long and creditable record as a national lawmaker. For fourteen years he has been the representative of the Second district of South Carolina in the lower house of Congress. He was first elected at the age of 30, far below the average for newcomers in that body. As a member of the Appropriations committee he is numbered among the influential members on the Democratic side of the House. Mr. Byrnes is a native of Charleston and is now in his forty-fifth year. He received his education in the public schools, studied law and since 1903 has been engaged in the practice of his profession in the city of Aiken.

Try This on the Dog.

"Washing a short-haired dog," said a man to an acquaintance on a street car, "is not so easy as it might seem, but I believe I've found a good way to do it. Get a pair of canvas gloves—furnace gloves—put 'em on, wet the dog well, soap it and give it a real hand washing. It's the best and easiest way to do it; easier than using a brush."

A Calendar Proposition.

Returning from school the other day little Elizabeth chanced to fall in step with her teacher. Their conversation had to do with a little boy of the school, who had shown unusual ability. Arrived at home Elizabeth told the family of the chance meeting and the conversation.

"And what was the little boy's name?" asked a member of the family.

Elizabeth hesitated for a moment, and then replied: "It was October."

The family had doubts, and pressed her, but that was her recollection, and she stuck to it. A little while later she returned, somewhat bored. "That little boy's name was August," she said.

MONGOLIA

Were Skipper Jason of ancient Greece to take up his famous search now he would have to pilot a ship of the desert instead of a galley, because Mongolia, by the whim of the desert instead of a galley, because Mongolia, by the whim of the American lady of fashion, is now the land of the golden fleece.

"For the last two years skins of newly born Mongolian lambs have brought a shower of wealth to the astonished sheperds of the southern Siberian steppes because of a decree of style," says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society which continues; "As the lady of fashion trips her way down Fifth avenue of Michigan boulevard in her tiny short jacket of sandy-hued, close curled fur, she little realizes the life history of that lambskin coat which graces her shoulders, or the vast power she wields in many obscure places by following the latest fads.

"The style for curled lambskin fur is one of the many witnesses that the lady of fashion is a person of importance, worthy, perhaps, of a seat on the right of prime ministers or, failing that, between the dignified ministers of commerce and foreign affairs in remote regions her influence sometimes ranks with that of missionary cohorts. She scatters her gifts more extravagantly than any speadthrift monarch the world has ever known, Louis XIV not excepted. As inconstant as the wind, she pours wealth into some land beyond the seas one day and leaves it starving in dire poverty the next.

"Two years ago she enriched primitive black tribes of central Africa, paying exhorbitant prices for monkey fur. Some years back she sent bullion to the dropics for dainty head tufts of a species of heron. The aigret is now outlawed. Natives of another part of Africa found a gold mine in ostrich feathers but that mine soon was worked out. Unscrupulous hunters once made fortunes killing seals on north Pacific islands for this same lady, but this year 10,000 seal skins owned by the United States government were a 'drug on the market.' Distance, evidently makes her heart grow fonder.

"It is considered good time if a letter dispatched at Peking is received at Urga, capital of Mongolia, two months later. Although this city is 300 miles from the narrow gauge Trans-Siberian railroad, it is more than 1,000 miles by road from the terminus of the nearest Chinese railroad. The overland trail is not an easy one. For centuries the camel held the transportation monopoly of the winding track across the Gobi desert, but today the camel must compete with the automobile.

"Within the last few years Urga has become the fur market of central Asia. In Urga the native Moguls sell their curly-haired lambskins and from Urga the hides start on their long journey to the United States, England and France. A number of great fur houses now maintain resident buyers at Urga and other firms send their agents to the mart in fur sale seasons. Today this inland, isolated mid-Asia state is supplying American stores and show windows not only with Mongolian lamb, but also with sable, martens, marmots, thousands upon thousands of squirrel pelts and wolf, fox, and goat skins. In fact Mongolia stole some of Africa's thunder by sending out goat skins to be dyed and sold for monkey fur.

"Even the ignorant Mongolian native may be forced to think seriously on the subject of conservation before many years because some of the animals whose pelts bring to him British cotton and Chinese brick tea are becoming scarce. Mongolia's taxing system is partly responsible. The provider of a Mongolian family is required to pay to his government three sable skins and one hundred and twenty squirrel skins per thousand head of cattle. The premium on sable has made it scarce. Furs are currency in Mongolia much as they were among the early French and English traders in America. A snow leopard may bring twenty squirrels, a wolf and a marten a sable may equal forty squirrels, or ten wolves or six martens.

"Mongolia, however, has its own fur bearers, Yellowstone Park, a sanctuary for animals of all kinds, guarded night and day by two thousand lamas (Buddhist priests) stationed around its confines, instead of uniformed soldiers. This National Park is the sacred mountain of Bogdo-ol, whose snow-capped peak stands guard over Urga. Some years ago several Russians from Urga made their way up the mountain during the night and killed a bear. They were brought back in chains by a mob of frenzied lamas. Although the hunters had been beaten nearly to death, it required all the influence of the Russian diplomatic agents to save what remained of their lives.

"To most people Mongolia means the Gobi desert and vast plains. But a mere recital of the pelts bought at the Urga mart hints the existence of some forests. Northermost Mongolia is largely a timberland, not a desert. Roughly speaking, Mongolia is half as large as the United States without Alaska. It is divided into four parts: the southern grass plains which are rapidly falling into the hands of Chinese immigrants, the Gobi desert comprising one fourth of the territory, another great plains district similar to Kansas and Nebraska, and finally Northern Mongolia, which has more climatic and topographic ties with Sibera than wth China."

BILLS IN THE HOUSE FOR LIGHT WINE AND BEER

Washington, March 4—A batch of bills favoring light wine and beer were presented in the house today as part of a concerted move toward modification of the Volstead act.

The measures were divided into two groups, one restricting alcoholic content by volume to 2.75 per cent and the other providing for four per cent by volume for beer and ten per cent by volume for wine and cider.

Possession, sale, manufacture and transportation of these liquors would be confined solely to the limits of the state which authorizes them by appropriate legislative action.

RAID AT "BLACKIE" POTVIN'S— PROPRIETOR ABSENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, March 4.—Upon the strength of a search warrant, local police officers raided the home of Ethaze alias "Blackie" Potvin, at 41 Temple street, about 6 o'clock Tuesday evening and secured a quantity of evidence. The owner was not about the premises and had not been located up to 10 o'clock at night. Four local young men were awaiting the arrival of Potvin, presumably to make purchases and were given a surprise when confronted by the police. The quartette and another young man who walked into the place while the officers were searching the rooms were notified to appear in police court Wednesday morning, charged as frequenters. The raiding officers were Chief MacArthur, Captain Grady and Patrolman Lariviere, Bombari and Leahy. A burlap bag was thrown aside in one room and revealed a five gallon tin container half-filled with pure grain alcohol. Drinking glasses and empty bottles were found in the room where the men sat. A trip to the basement disclosed nine empty five gallon containers and one quart and two pint bottles filled with colored moonshine. If Potvin is located he will be ordered to present himself in court Wednesday on charges of violation of the liquor law.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. James Service

After being in failing health for a short time, the life of Isabella Glover Torrance Service, widow of James Service, came to a close Tuesday afternoon about 5 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Richard Stephenson of 435 Boswell avenue.

Mrs. Service was born in Prestonholm, Scotland, June 1, 1833, the daughter of Walter and Anne Sharp Torrance and came to Norwich with her widowed mother and brothers in 1849. For 57 years she had made her home in the old family homestead on Boswell avenue, the last years of her life being cared for by her daughter, Mrs. Stephenson.

On June 20, 1853 she was united in marriage with James Service, a prominent resident of Greeneville, who died on December 15, 1919. The marriage service was conducted by Rev. Alvin Bond, pastor of the Second Congregational church.

Mrs. Service is survived by the following children: Mrs. James Knowles of Millville, N. J., Mrs. Hector McConnell of Killingly, Conn., Mrs. Richard Stephenson of Norwich, James Service of South Willington, Conn., and William Service of Oakland, Cal. There are also numerous grand children and great grandchildren.

Mrs. Service was a member of the Greeneville Congregational church and as long as health permitted was always interested in church work. She was of a loving and tender disposition, her likeable qualities gaining for her an ever widening circle of friends. Her death removes from the family a loving mother, and those surviving have the sympathy of many friends in their bereavement.

RAN OVER WOMAN AND DID NOT STOP

Accused by two eye-witnesses of having knocked down and run over a woman in Burnham square about 7.20 Tuesday evening with his automobile and then apparently trying to get away, Seymour Bohara, 19, was arrested later in the evening at his home in the Falls. He was charged with driving without a license, and evading responsibility after an accident.

Miss Jane Reagan, residing in the Marguerite building who was run over was taken to the Backus hospital where it was found she was suffering from shock and severe bruises of the body.

Bohara's arrest came after report had been made at police headquarters that Frank Krupinski and Robert Snaw had seen the woman run over and that the driver of the machine put out his lights and started up North Main street. Krupinski jumped on the running board of James Mileski's machine and chased the other up North Main street. They came up to Bohara as he was turning around and he told them, Krupinski said, that he was going to the police station to report, but he did not go.

W. W. Bromley of 20 Main street took the injured woman to the hospital and Officers P. Murphy and M. Flounch were sent to the Falls to arrest Bohara.

MINE WORKERS' EDITOR ASKS WHAT ADDS "SPREAD" TO COAL PRICES

Find where the "spread" of from $12 to $14 between the cost of anthracite at the mines and the price in the consumers' bins comes from and you will solve the problem of the high retail price of anthracite, declared Ellis Searles of Indianapolis, editor of The United Mine Workers Journal, when he spoke Tuesday evening at the Wauregan house before the March membership meeting of the chamber of commerce, held at 6.15 with a supper and an attendance of about 100.

Mr. Searles' address was an answer to the address given a month ago by Byron R. Newton of New York, who presented the coal situation from the operators' standpoint.

The visiting speaker was introduced by President H. M. Leron of the chamber of commerce and during the dinner hour Swahn's orchestra furnished music, with Joseph C. Worth as song leader. At the conclusion of the address, President Leron expressed to Mr. Searles the appreciation of all present for the exposition of the coal situation which he had given.

In an informal talk with Lucius Briggs of the Edward Chappell company, Mr. Searles expressed his approval of the suggestion made by Mr. Briggs that one of the roads to help the individual consumer would be by the use of the smaller sizes of coal which are now little used in households.

Mr. Searles spoke as follows:

A short time ago a man named Byron R. Newton, of New York, a paid agent and representative of the anthracite coal companies, came to Norwich and delivered an address to the Chamber of Commerce, and I have been privileged to read in a newspaper what purports to be a verbatim copy of his speech. It seems that Newton had two main objects in view. One was to plead for mercy for the poor, downtrodden coal companies, one of which declared a dividend of 80 percent on last years business. The second object, as it appears from a reading of his speech, was to denounce the United Mine Workers of America and all of its officers and members as a band of highway robbers, cutthroats, sandbaggers and all-round undesirable citizens. It was a bald-faced attempt to create in your minds a prejudice against the coal miner and his union, and his attack on the union was such as to justify a representative of the United Mine Workers of America in coming to you with a message of truth and fact which, I sincerely trust, will set you right on this interesting and important subject. I do not wish to impute bad faith to any man for expressing his honest opinion on any subject. This is a country of free speech and free press. I love this grand old country of ours and I would be the last man to take any step or do any act that might be detrimental to the God-given ideals and institutions of America or to curtail or infringe upon the rights that are guaranteed to every citizen by the Constitution. But I do object most strenuously when any man, under the cloak of these rights takes advantage of an opportunity to misrepresent facts to the American people. Therefore, I am here, representing the United Mine Workers of America, the coal miners' trade union, to try to set you straight in regard to some of the matters that were discussed by Mr. Newton.

There are in the United States 170,000 anthracite mine workers and 670,000 in the bituminous or soft coal industry. All of the anthracite comes from a few counties in northeastern Pennsylvania. Bituminous coal is found in thirty states of the Union scattered from the Pacific to the Atlantic and from the lakes to the gulf. The total annual output of anthracite coal is about 80,000,000 tons. The total annual output of bituminous coal is approximately 500,000,000 tons. You people of New England are particularly interested in anthracite because it is your kind of domestic fuel. But the rest of the country is interested particularly in soft coal because it is the universal fuel for industry and transportation the country over.

All of the 170,000 anthracite mine workers and more than 400,000 of the soft coal workers are members of the United Mine Workers of America. Therefore, this union of coal miners is the mouthpiece of this vast army of laboring men. The union is their defender against the greed and oppression which a certain class of employers would inflict upon them if there were no such union. The United Mine Workers of America was organized in 1890. It has brought better wages to the mine workers of the country. It has brought about better living conditions. It has made the life of the miner and his family brighter. It has brought a ray of sunshine into their homes. It has raised the coal miner from his old-time submerged condition to a higher level of existence. It has aided him to obtain better education and wider opportunities for his children. The coal miner is many times better off today than he was thirty five years ago, before the birth of the union. Who among you will raise objection to this progressive development.

Coal Miners' Wages

This man Newton came here and told you members of the Chamber of Commerce that the coal miners were making enormous incomes, that their wages were outrageous. He gave you a lot of fictitious figures to prove to you that the only way to solve the coal problem and bring down the price of fuel was to reduce the wages of mine workers. I do not know where Newton got those figures, but I do know that they were untrue. He didn't get his figures from the reports of the United States Coal Commission, because those reports contain no such figures or information.

How much does a coal miner earn? The basic wage rate for bituminous mine workers is $7.50 per day, but this does not mean that all of them get that much money. In the unionized fields the highest day wage rate is $7.65 and the lowest around $6.75. But in the non-union fields where the men are not permitted by their employers to organize, the wage runs as low as $2.75, with others paying as much as $4 and some even higher than that. Non-union miners of Alabama are the poorest paid in America. The United States Coal Commission reported that non-union pick miners earn an average of $1 a day less than union pick miners the country over. In order to earn $1,000, the Commission stated non-union tonnage workers were required to work sixteen more days than union men. When we speak of tonnage men we refer to the men who actually dig the coal. In the year 1921, according to the report of the Commission, the majority of these men earned between $900 and $1,400 in non-union mines and between $1,600 and $1,800 in union mines.

In order that a man might earn $2,000 the men known as outside men were required to work 280 days in union mines and 316 days in non-union mines. Now and then we read in the newspapers where a miner earned enormous wages in a month. Of course, this kind of matter is nothing more than propaganda put out, generally, by non-union coal companies for the purpose of creating a prejudice against the union miner. Let me point out that the United States Coal Commission found only sixteen men who earned from $300 to $333 per month, but these men had to work from 508 to 515 eight-hour days in the year to do it. Think of these figures, if you please. In order to earn from $3,600 to $4,000 a year, these exceptional, supermen were obliged to work 200 more days than there are work days in the year. To earn even $3,000 the Commission found 73 union men who worked 378 days and 20 non-union men who worked 339 days in the year. And there are only 308 work days in the year.

Three Days a Week

It sounds like high wages for a laboring man when you hear that coal miners receive $7.50 a day. But it means nothing when we remember that the miners are employed only one to three days a week. Over a period of thirty-two years, bituminous miners have been employed from 149 to 279 days a year, the average being 213 days. They lose more than fifteen weeks in a year because of unemployment. Therefore, it is not the amount of a man's wage per day that counts, but it is his earnings for the year. When a man loses fifteen weeks work time in a year he must earn enough in the remainder of the time to maintain himself and his family for the entire 365 days of the year and his rate of pay must be sufficient to enable him to do this. He and his family must have food, clothing, shelter and all the other necessities of life throughout the year, regardless of whether he is steadily employed. This short time employment is the same in union and non-union fields. Some one may say that the fault is with the miners—that they do not work when they have the opportunity. This is not true. They produce all of the coal the country can consume, and if they were employed full time they would swamp the country with coal. There are too many mines and their productive capacity is far beyond the needs of the country. This is the great evil that affects the coal industry in America, and it is a condition for which the miners are in no way responsible. The miners do not own any mines, nor have they ever opened up any new mines of their own. These men want steady employment. They have got to make a living for themselves and their families. They have no other means of earning a living than by their labor. Of course, there are drones among coal miners just as there are drones and lazy men among lawyers, carpenters, merchants and every other class of men. But the percentage is not greater among the miners than elsewhere.

From $1,100 to $1,600 Per Year

The Coal Commission showed that the bulk of bituminous miners earn from $1,100 to $1,600 a year. That is not enough for a man who risks his life and limb day after day in the coal mine.

We must also keep in mind the fact that the Coal Commission and the most expert economists of the country have found that at the present cost of living a family of five persons must have approximately $2,300 a year in order to live on a level of decency and reasonable comfort and according to a fair American standard of living. How is the coal miner to keep his family and educate his children as it should be done with his present income? If there were no other argument in favor of better wages for the coal miner this one single fact would be sufficient to establish his claim to better wages.

Not Too Many Anthracite Mines

In the anthracite industry the men are employed an average of approximately 270 days a year, because anthracite mining is not afflicted with the same degree of intermittent operation. There are not too many anthracite mines. There is a market for every ton of anthracite that can be produced, and this means practically all-year operation. But wage rates are much lower there than in the soft coal regions, and men are compelled to work a greater number of days to make the same amount of money that the soft coal miners make. For instance, the Coal Commission reported that out of 19,095 laborers in the anthracite region more than 17,000 earned between $500 and $1,500 a year. Those who earned $1,500 worked 293 days. Of this total 19,095 laborers, 718 earned from $2,000 to $2,500 and they had to work 308 days in 365 to earn $2,500? What is true of the laborers in the anthracite industry is approximately true of all other classes of employes. All of this wild talk about fabulous earnings of mine workers is bunk, pure and simple. Such a man is the marvelous exception. The Coal Commission showed that out of 57,998 inside men in the anthracite mines, only 21 earned more than $3,100 in the year 1921 while more than 17,000 earned less than $500.

We sometimes hear criticism leveled at the coal miners because they own automobiles, pianos, phonographs, sewing machines, washing machines and other modern conviences. Some people seem to regard it as a crime or a sin for a coal miner to own and drive a Ford car. They hold up their hands in holy horror and shout that the miner earns too much money, that he lives too high and that he should be brought down to his proper

DRY AMERICA TO BE MOSES OF THE NATIONS

We are going to have the 18th amendment enforced if it takes another Civil war to do it, said Rev. Dr. Sam W. Small of Washington, D. C., in an address on Prohibition Tuesday at the prohibition information institute at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church. The institute which included an afternoon and evening session was held under the auspices of the Connecticut Anti-Saloon league and was one of several that are being held through out the state this month.

With Dr. Ernest V. Claypool of Hartford, president of the Connecticut Anti-Saloon league, presiding, the evening session opened at 7.15 o'clock. There was a good sized attendance. How Did We Get That Way? was the topic of a stereopticon address given by Rev. Harry E. Olcott of Hartford. Rev. Mr. Olcott showed slides of figures and statistics relating to the prohibition movement and also portraits of some of the noted leaders of the country. He explained in an interesting manner the programme of the "wets" to influence congress to allow the sale of light wines and beers and contrasted this sharply with the programme of the "dry" to uphold the Constitution and enforce the 18th amendment.

Following the stereopticon lecture Dr. Claypool led in the singing of a hymn after which Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of the church, offered prayer. Rev. Dr. Small was introduced by Dr. Claypool. In part Dr. Small said:

We occupy a prominent place among the nations of the world. God gave us this country. He gave us religious freedom; He gave us self-government. He gave us those principles of self-government which are filling the hopes of the world. Tonight our government is the model for 23 other nations and it is being looked to by the foremost statesmen of Europe.

We have given the leadership of the world for a divine purpose. We have been given world leadership for the purpose of saving the rest of the world from anarchy, chaos and destruction. A great many people are wondering tonight why America went dry in the midst of the war. The reason is that God Almighty wanted us to go dry. He knew it would take a dry, sober America to save the world. He knew that a drunken America couldn't do it. He needed a sober America to make it the Moses of the nations of the world.

It was the providence of God that put the 18th amendment in the Constitution. I have seen this fight coming for 40 years. When the liquor men tell us we put it over on them when they weren't looking, they are simply lying. They were looking all the time. If they weren't looking, as they claim, then the only explanation is that they were too drunk to keep their eyes open.

It is there in the Constitution, just the same as it would have been if the men who wrote the Constitution had put it there. It is going to stay there until Heaven's last thunders shake the world. It took 36 states to put it in the Constitution and it will take 36 states to get it out. How many states have the "wets" secured? Two. Where are they going to get the other 34? With two states and 34 to get they have as much chance of repealing the 18th amendment as they have of putting out the fires on the sun with a perfume squirter.

We've got enough states to keep the 18th amendment in the Constitution forever. We intend that the 18th amendment shall be enforced just as much as any other section or article in the Constitution. We are going to have it enforced if it takes another civil war to do it.

The afternoon session opened at 2 o'clock with President Claypool in the chair. Following the singing of hymns and a devotional period there was an address on Connecticut Court Conditions by Rev. Ralph H. White of New Haven and an address on What the Law Provides by Dr. Claypool. The remainder of the session was voted to questions and answers.

SAYS SYNDICATED PRODUCTS ARE TYPE OF TIMES

Our New American Ideals was the topic of an interesting address given at the Community House Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock by Dr. Earl Barnes of Philadelphia, who spoke under the auspices of the Norwich Teachers' League. There was an attendance of 150, including the teachers of the public schools. Miss Susie Whittlesey, president of the Teachers' league, opened the meeting and presented Dr. Barnes.

Dr. Barnes contrasted the old American ideals with the new. The old day of outstanding ideals is gone, he said. Formerly our newspaper editors stood out as national figures. He spoke of the fame of Greeley, Watterson, Belles, and others. In New England today, he said, there is no outstanding editor. The New York Times is probably the largest paper in the country and in the world, for that matter, but few people know who the editor is. The big papers of today are largely run by editorial boards. There is one newspaper man—William Randolph Hearst—who is known to more people than Horace Greeley. Greeley had an individual personality but Hearst is a syndicated product.

Touching another field Dr. Barnes spoke of the ministry. Years ago we had preachers of the same type as our editors of the old days, he said. They were great national figures. Just now controversy has brought forward a few ministers, but the old type of preacher is gone. But just as the press is more powerful than it ever has been, so is the church more powerful.

We have in the religious world today one preacher who is known to more people than Henry Ward Beecher. That is William Sunday. He is a syndicated product.

Drama was next spoken of. There are now no outstanding men of the old type of actor. However, we have the syndicated articles, he said. You can make a syndicated article with money and brains enough.

Speaking of politics he said there is a deep consciousness among the people today that we have reached the point where we want to run things ourselves.

LOCAL Y. M. C. A. SWIMMING TEAM MEETS PLAINFIELD MERMEN TONIGHT

A swimming meet of great interest is scheduled for this evening between the Plainfield swimming team and the local Y swimming team at the local Y pool.

The Norwich boys will have their work cut out to win over Plainfield as Plainfield has several star performers in Green, formerly of Brown college swimming team, and Swanson, a former New Haven Y swimmer. The Norwich boys have been putting in some hard practice in preparing for this meet and they should give a good account of themselves. The Norwich boys have new swimming suits which they will wear for the first time in this meet. These suits are very attractive. The suits are white with a large Y in the center and a small "y" on one side and a small "c" on the other.

TEDDY KUNDIG

All who attend the meet will be treated to an exceptionally fine exhibition of aquatic sports and there will be no undue delays between the different events.

The Norwich team will be composed of Sayles, McNamara, Hindricks, Kundig, Fellows and Ely. The events will be as follows:

Plunge for distance, fancy diving, four-man relay, breast stroke, forty yard dash, back stroke, one hundred yards free style.

Teddy Kundig who is the mainstay of the Y swimming team has an enviable record as a swimmer both in this country and in Switzerland. Besides being a swimmer of some note he is also recognized as being a very good all round athlete, he winning the hexathlon championship of the local Y. M. C. A. in 1922 and stood 30th in the country against a field of 16,000 athletes.

In Switzerland he held several breast-stroke titles for various distances and also a championship in the long distance swims. He holds the one-mile open record at Passaic, New Jersey, and also the Susquehanna river record at Harrisburg, Pa. About three years ago he won the Providence to Newport swim, a distance of 17 miles, his time being 18 hours and 53 minutes. He is a member of the famous L Street Swimming club of Boston, where Charlie Toth and Henry Sullivan, noted English channel swimmers trained. He was entered with Toth and Sullivan in the famous Boston light swim and would have made the swim easily had he not been fouled by his attending boat when a few hundred yards from the finish and forced to be taken into the boat.

He is a high diver of good reputation, having a record dive of 126 feet made at Central Falls, R. I., a few years ago. He is a graduate of the Switzerland Institute of Technology at Zurich, where he was prominent in athletics. He holds a Carnegie medal for bravery in saving two lives in Switzerland.

Pite made 8 field and two foul goals during the game. Giblin and Stevens scored the other field goals for Yale.

The Pennsylvania team was leading by a score of 14 to 8 at the end of the first half. In the latter part of the second half with the score 18 to 17 in favor of Yale, Kneass of Pennsylvania, threw a foul goal, tying the score.

BERLENBACH NOW READY TO MEET TOP-NOTCHERS

New York, Mar. 4.—Paul Berlenbach, who has hung up a record of twenty-three consecutive knockouts in his meteoric rise through middleweight and light heavyweight ratic ranks, now is ready to meet all comers in these divisions, Dan Hickey, manager and ring mentor of the sensational youngster announced today.

As a result of Hickey's sweeping challenge, efforts were begun to match Berlenbach with a first class opponent at Madison Square Garden. Hickey has agreed to a fight on May 2 or 9 and his antagonist probably will be drawn from a quintet of the middleweight top-notchers including Harry Greb, the 160 pound titleholder; Johnny Wilson, a former champion; Jimmy Delaney, Bridgeport, Conn; Jock Malone of St. Paul, and Roland Todd, English holder of the European middleweight crown.

Hickey, who has been selecting Berlenbach's opponents with unusual precaution within the past few months of his professional career, declared his charge would meet no more "set-ups."

"I am satisfied Paul is ready for a real test," Hickey asserted, "and I am now ready to match him with all comers, champions and contenders alike."

Berlenbach has bowled over ten professional rivals in a row, none lasting more than six rounds with him. As a result of the east of these triumphs, Hickey had been criticised for not subjecting his fighter to stiffer tests and his action today is viewed as an accession to popular demand.

OLYMPIC STARS TO COMPETE IN MEET TONIGHT

New York, Mar. 4. — The greatest gathering so far this season of timber for the American Olympic track and field team will be seen in action tomorrow night in the national senior A. A. U. indoor championships at the Twenty-Second Regiment armory. At least forty of the 150 athletes entered, representing 20 colleges and clubs are practically assured of berths on the international squad that will go to Paris in June.

Their performances will be especially significant because they will be under the scrutiny of Colonel Robert M. Thompson, chairman of the American Olympic committee, and William C. Prout, president of the A. A. U. and chairman of the Olympic track and field team selection committee. Prout will act as official referee.

Outstanding in the list of events is the two-mile run in which one of the finest fields of distance stars ever brought together will face the starter. The entries include Joie Ray, Illinois A. C., who ran the fastest two miles ever credited to a human being; Ray Dodge and Ray Buker, also of Illinois A. C., R. E. Brown, Boston A. A.; Verne Booth, Johns Hopkins, intercollegiate indoor two-mile and cross-country champion, and Harry Helme, Georgetown.

SISLER ABLE TO SEE BALL TO HIT DRIVES

St. Louis, Mo., Mar. 4.—George Sisler, manager of the St. Louis Americans, says he feels he could "get by" as an American league player at present, according to a dispatch received by the St. Louis Post Dispatch from the training camp at Mobile, Ala. Discussing his vision impairment which kept him out of the game last season, the star first sacker is quoted as saying:

"The improvement has been remarkable. Not that I could play great baseball now, but that I could get by. I won't say that I will or will not play on any day; but I am confident that I soon will be able to see as well as I ever did."

The dispatch adds that in yesterday's practice Sisler "soaked line drives to the outfield and laid down bunts with ease. He stopped grounders with either hand and made one particularly brilliant stop, racing over toward first base and stopping a vicious grounder with his bare hand."

REDS HAVE LIGHT PRACTICE AT ORLANDO

Cincinnati, O., March 4.—Manager Pat Moran, of the Cincinnati Reds, still was confined to his room today, suffering from indigestion, advice from the training camp at Orlando, Fla., stated.

Light practice was indulged in by the Cincinnati players under the leadership of Coach Jack Hendricks. Interest centered largely on Jakey May, but the little southpaw made no effort to extend himself until other exercises have worked his arm into condition.

Bert Humphries, who pitched for the Reds several years ago, signed with the Orlando club of the Florida league today, making his twenty-fourth professional contract. Counting his amateur and semi-pro days, Humphries has been pitching for thirty years.

Leach and Bruno of Portsmouth, Ohio, hit 1222, which put them in a tie for third place in the doubles with Rebok and Furrow of Springfield, Ills. Vallos and Crute of Youngstown, Ohio, are leading with 1268.

Quinlivan of Chicago is leading the all events standing with a total of 1894. Crute, the Youngstown sharpshooter, is second, ten points behind.

THREE BOXERS SUSPENDED BY N. Y. COMMISSION

New York, Mar. 4.—At its weekly meeting today the state boxing commission sanctioned a benefit program for the American Olympic team at Madison Square Garden, March 19, and suspended three up-state boxers.

Babe Ruth Better.

Hot Springs, Ark., Mar. 4.—"Babe" Ruth, the king pin of the Yankee ball club, tried to chase the flu away today by pacing the hotel corridor and attack his "jinx" with a big black cigar and a bit of solid food.

Clad in a bathrobe, the famous slugger "worked out" in his room and the corridor while physician, Dr. W. T. Wooten, repeated his prediction of yesterday that the patient would be out in a few days.

The Babe lost exactly 5 1-2 pounds during his brief illness, now weighing 218 1-2 pounds.

DANIELSON TEAM DISPUTES AMATEUR TITLE CLAIM

Sporting Editor—The Bulletin of March 1 contained an account of the victory of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. over the Baltic Wanderers with the statement that the "Y" claimed the amateur title of Eastern Connecticut by virtue of this win.

The Service Battery of Danielson has met most of the amateur and semi-pro teams in this section and has met defeat but three times. Two of these losses were to the Wanderers at Baltic, but were balanced by two victories over the same team at Danielson. The remaining defeat was by the professional Plainfield outfit.

The Service Battery has negotiated with the Norwich Y. M. C. A. for games but to date has received no definite reply, and feels that it should have an opportunity to prove its worth before any titles are awarded.

Very truly yours,
GORDON J. GALE.
Director of athletics, Service Battery, 102nd F. A., C. N. G.

M'CUE DOMINATES LEGISLATIVE HEARING ON BOXING RESOLUTION

Albany, N. Y., Mar. 4.—Popular desire for legislative investigation of the boxing situation in New York state into activities of the state athletic commission, seemed to have decreased considerably today when the assembly ways and means committee conducted a hearing on a resolution introduced in the legislature by Assemblyman James Male, New York, democrat, who sought such an inquiry.

Instead of the wave of opposition to boxing which was expected to sweep the hearing, the meeting turned into an inquisition by Martin McCue, former state senator and boxer, of Assemblyman Bert Lord, sponsor of the bill designed to repeal the Walker boxing law.

After McCue had announced his opposition to passage of the Male resolution, he declared that "if there is anything wrong with boxing in this state, take it to the proper place—the athletic commission—before you drag it into the legislature for a so-called investigation."

"If you think Tex Rickard is wrong, get definite proof of the fact, and place the charges before the state athletic commission," McCue continued. "If you find him guilty, throw him out, ban him from taking part in boxing promotion in New York city and state ever afterward. But before you place charges against a man, be sure of what you say, then go to the athletic commission."

A question interposed by Assemblyman Lord brought from McCue the sharp query, "and have you facts to back the bill you have introduced, by which you intend to repeal the Walker boxing law?"

"Certainly," Assemblyman Lord answered.

"All right, then we are getting somewhere," returned McCue. "Let's sit down here right now, and go over every fact which you have. I am sure that others in this room would join with me heartily in doing that."

"It might take too much time now." Assemblyman Lord retorted, and the matter was dropped, with the hearing coming to a close a few moments later.

Ticket speculation, which had formed the basis of charges made by Thomas O'Rourke, veteran sports promoter, against Tex Rickard, New York city promoter, at an earlier hearing before the committee, was scarcely mentioned today.

Assemblyman Male was the only speaker in favor, his resolution and the bulk of his information he credited published accounts of wrongs alleged to exist in boxing circles.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

The world's record for opening oysters is held by William Lowney, of Providence, R. I., who opened 100 in 3 minutes 3 3-4 seconds.

The Olympic track and field tryouts for the territory embraced in Mississippi, Texas and Louisiana will be held at New Orleans the last two days of May.

Two Frenchmen recently did a roller-skating marathon, skating without a break for twenty-four hours, during which period they covered a distance of 22 miles.

An Australian club-swinger recently swung a pair of Indian clubs, three and one-half pounds, for 107 hours continuously—and then went into a fit of delirium.

Billy DeFoe, the St. Paul junior lightweight, is scheduled to take on Eddie Brady of Brooklyn in a 10-round contest to be fought at Passaic, N. J., the night of March 6.

English boxing enthusiasts propose to make Champion Jack Dempsey a flattering offer to appear in an exhibition bout at the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley this summer.

The famous Tom Sayers, who held the English heavyweight championship for a number of years, weighed only about 160 pounds and fought and defeated many opponents of 200 and over.

A good entry list is reported for the first annual tournament of the Midwest Railroad Bowling association which is to hold forth in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, during three weeks of March.

The French Boxing Federation has just decided that in future, when a boxing match is ended, instead of the two men kissing each other, as has been the custom, they shall merely shake hands.

LOTTIE TRIPP; AT NEW LONDON, ATTEMPTS SUICIDE BY POISON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, March 4.—Lottie Tripp, about 25, known as "Mrs. Miller, attempted self-destruction this noon by swallowing 15 grains of bichloride of mercury. She is now a patient at Lawrence hospital where the outcome of the girl's rash act will not be known for several days, the result all depending on the amount of poison that the system has absorbed.

Why the girl should have endeavored to destroy herself it is not known, but it is believed she brooded over an endeavor on the part of her sister to cause her to return to her home in Massachusetts, for it was immediately following the arrival of the sister at the home of the girl that the latter attempted to end her life.

She had been at her home the greater part of the forenoon. About 12 o'clock her sister arrived for the purpose of securing the consent of the girl to accompany the former home. Hardly had the sister reached the living apartments than the Tripp girl excused herself and went to the rear of the house where she swallowed the poison. She fell unconscious to the floor and was found by her sister, who caused a physician to be summoned. The girl's stomach was washed out so that a large quantity of the poison was removed.

At the hospital it was stated that the girl's condition remains unchanged and that while not considered critical, the outcome is problematical.

Thomas McElree of Providence, formerly of New London, and Sarah S. Luce of Marion, Mass., are named executor and executrix, respectively, without bond.

The amount of estate will inventory is not known, but it is understood that it will be in excess of $25,000.

The will provides for the following bequests after the just debts of the testator have been paid and his name is inscribed on the headstone of his lot in Evergreen cemetery, Marion, Mass., where he is buried beside his wife:

To Evergreen Cemetery corporation of Marion, Mass., is bequeathed $300, in trust, the income to be expended for the care and maintenance of testator's lot.

This noon Lusta secured a surety on his bond, but he was not liberated, for he was immediately rearrested on a warrant issued by Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. The city manager is considering the application of the Gulf Refining company for permission to establish a gasoline station, corner of Bank and Truman streets. On the decision arrived at will depend whether the Gulf company will buy the property and go ahead with plans which have been made. The company has an option on the premises for quite an extended time, but it is proposed to close the deal for the purchase as soon as the city gives the right to the company to go on and erect a station.

Meyer Hollandersky, the owner of the so-called Ridewald property on Bank street which was damaged by fire and which the building inspector declares is damaged so that it cannot and should not be rebuilt, has gone to Lakewood in the hope that he will get rid of an affection of the throat which prevents him from speaking in louder tones than a whisper. If the expected relief does not come to him there he will have to go to Florida. While he is absent his brother, Perry J. Hollandersky, is looking after his affairs and these include the Rodewald property. The city council is yet to act upon the report of the building inspector, and that action is likely to be slow until such time as every phase of the matter has been considered. There are questions of law that enter into the decision that is to be reached and these will necessitate study and deliberation. The insurance companies which carried the fire risk on the property secured one of the most competent contractors in the city, the owner secured another, and the former owner of the property, who has a mortgage upon it, offered a third expert, and all these agreed that the building was not damaged to the extent of one-half its value. On that basis the settlement of the fire insurance was made. These facts are stated in opposition to the opinion of the building inspector that the damage is greater than 50 per cent of the value of the structure. Next Monday the decision of the council will be announced.

POETRY

Ode on Solitude

Happy the man, whose wish and care
A few paternal acres bound,
Content to breathe his native air
In his own ground.

Whose herds with milk, whose fields with bread
Whose flocks supply him with attire;
Whose trees in summer yield him shade,
In winter, fire

Blest, who can unconcernedly, find
Hours, days and years, slide soft away
In health of body, peace of mind,
Quiet by day

Sound sleep by night; study and ease
Together mixed, sweet recreation;
And innocence, which does please,
With meditation.

Thus let me live, unseen, unknown;
Thus unlamented let me die;
Steal from the world, and not a stone
Tell where I lie.

Alexander Pope.

Rain Song

The raindrops fall—the winsome sound
Is like my heart with glee,
And tells by hope by pleasure crowned,
And beauty soon to be;
And Fancy, cheered by visions gay,
Limns summer's soft delight
That while away the happy day
And charms the fragrant night.

The raindrops fall; and gladly heard
Behind the tinkling chime
Catch the future song of bird—
'Tis sweeter far than rhyme—
And sighing winds amid the trees
Around the hidden nest,
And lullabies of tolling bees
Deep sky and blossom blest.

The raindrops fall like silver seed
By fairy fingers sown—
Why should not music have indeed
A germinating tone—
Wee harmonies that wax and wax
And pass from strain to strain
Until wild nature nothing lacks
And joy's almost a pain?

The raindrops fall the winter's numb
And chill to wash away;
'Tis meet from Springtime sky should come
The kind and magic spray;
The fountain of eternal youth,
Of laughter, light and love
Bides not upon sad earth, in sooth,
Its source is far above.

The raindrops fall, and in the dark
To Dreamland I am wait—
O what was that? You heard it? Hark!
Was that a Pixie laugh?
Perhaps. Who knows? It is the hour
Earth owns a mystic thrall;
A spell is wreathed round every flower
On which the raindrops fall.

level and made to realize that he is nothing but a working man and as such he must be content without the things that other people possess and enjoy. Why should not a coal miner own an automobile. Are automobiles made only for a certain particular and favored class of people? Suppose a coal miner does own an automobile? What of it? Is there any earthly reason why a miner should be denied the hectic enjoyment of owning and driving a flivver? If there are any among you who have ever been in one of those isolated, out of the way, God forsaken, desolate mining communities that are so frequent in most parts of the country, I am sure you will not complain because the miner tries to find a grain of pleasure or convience in an automobile to brighten the drab, dreary life which he leads.

Gunmen and Thugs

But when they tell you about the automobiles they do not tell you about the armed gunmen and thugs in the private employ of non-union coal companies in West Virginia, Kentucky and elsewhere who roam over the hills with a roving commission to assault, shoot and abuse men and their families who dare to join the union or speak in favor of organization. They do not tell you how these gun-toting desperadoes bully helpless people; how they evict them from their homes and throw them and their little belongings out on the mountainside or roadside when the family has no other place to go. They do not tell you that these gunmen, on one recent occasion, actually raided a tent colony erected by the miners' union to shelter twelve thousand evicted people and poured coal oil in the milk that was furnished to them for their babies. They do not tell you how these gunmen have shot up these tent colonies in the dead hour of night, killing men, women and children without the slighest excuse or provocation except that they dared to favor the union. Resistance in or out of court, is useless, because the power of the coal company is supreme. They own the land, the highway, the court, the sheriff and everything else, and the miner has not a chance in the world. I do not mean that this practice is general. It does not prevail in the organized fields where the union is strong enough to protect the men. The union brings this protection to the men. It helps them to gain the better things in life. It spreads a little more sunshine in and over the homes of the miners and we believe this is a purpose that should command the respect and receive the encouragement of the entire citizenship of America.

The coal miner, because of the very nature of his employment and his environment, is deprived of enough of the good things of life that you and I are privileged to enjoy. We should be willing to help him to a higher level of life where he can be a man among men and where he and his children may have equal opportunity for development and progress. We can accomplish this end by paying the miner a fair and just wage that will enable him to do the things for his family that the rest of us do for our families.

Cost of Producing Anthracite

Let me call your attention to another matter in which you will be interested and which this man Newton did not mention to you at all. We frequently hear some fellow who knows nothing about it say that the miners are solely to blame for the high price of coal. Such an irresponsible individual tells you that the wages of the miner are so high that they keep up the price of coal at exorbitant figures. I want you to know that this is not true. The United Mine Workers contended that the total labor cost of producing a ton of anthracite was $3.92. This $3.92 covered every cent of expense for every bit of labor that entered into the production of the coal from the time that the first hand touched the deposit in the mine until it was loaded on the car ready for shipment. While the miners claimed that the labor cost was $3.92, the operators said it was $4.11. When the Coal Commission made its investigation it determined that the total labor cost was $4.12 a ton.

Between Mine and Customer

I don't know what you people pay for anthracite for your furnaces here in Norwich, but I assume the retail price is $15 to $18. The $4.12 labor cost of this coal is but a very small part of the $15 or $18 which you pay. Who gets the rest of the money? You would like to know. The miners would like to know who gets it. There is a spread of $12 to $14 between what the mine workers get and what you pay for the same ton of coal. If you want to reduce the selling price of coal you must begin somewhere else than with a reduction of the miner's wages. Why, if you were to cut the miner's wage in two and compel him to take a reduction of 50 percent it would reduce the retail price about $2 a ton, but there would still be a spread of $12 to $14 between the labor cost and the retail price. This reduction would not mean a great deal to the individual consumer of anthracite, but it would be a calamity to the miner to have his earning capacity reduced just one half. No, my friends, the miner is not responsible for the high selling price of coal. The miner has nothing to do with what you pay for your fuel. He only digs it out of the ground and prepares it for shipment. He performs the manuel work. But he has no connection whatever with the commercial phase of the coal business, and it is unfair to charge that he is to blame for the highway robbery and profiteering that gouges the public's pocketbook. I am wondering why this man Newton failed to tell you these things.

The United Mine Workers of America have no fight against the operators because the operators make a profit on their coal. The miners are glad if the operators make money. They are glad when anyone makes money and prospers. But we do object when this man Newton comes before this chamber of commerce and attempts to show that the anthracite operators are downtrodden and oppressed, that they and their coal companies are suffering the pangs of starvation because the plutocratic miners are robbing them with high wages. He says the anthracite coal companies are not making a fair profit. I don't know how much these coal companies make. I hope they are doing well. The United States Coal Commission, after a twelve-months investigation reported that these companies were making a good profit. And in this connection I wish also, to read a brief Associated Press dispatch which was published in the daily papers on December 28:

New York, December 28—Receipt by stockholders of the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal Company, an anthracite concern of checks representing an amount equal to $40 on $50 par value stock, disclosed today that the company on December 8 voted a dividend of 80 per cent. The company has outstanding 144,200 shares, making thetotal dividend $7,288,000.

This dispatch does not indicate that these coal companies are suffering the distressing pangs of starvation that were so graphically and pathetically laid before you by Newton in his speech. How many of you business men paid a dividend of 80 per cent on your entire capital in the year 1923? And if you were so fortunate as to pay a dividend of 80 per cent, are you running around over the country telling people that you are starving to death because your employes are taking too much money from you?

Preventing Strikes

This man Newton, the paid agent of the anthracite coal operators, also declared in favor of a policy of preventing strikes by law. He would have a law enacted that would make it impossible for coal miners to strike, no matter what their grievances might be. In other words, he would chain a man to a job and compel him to remain there, with no privilege to exercise his constitutional right to quit. Does he think, or does anyone think that such a policy could be enforced in this country? The day of slavery has passed. Abraham Lincoln led the way to the emancipation of the human slave in the sixties, and neither this man Newton; the anthracite operators nor anyone else can bring that inhuman practice back into American life. Newton said "make strikes impossible and you will have solved the coal question." It would be impossible for any man to make a statement more senseless, more silly or more brutal than that one.

Do Not Want Strikes

The United Mine Workers of America do not want strikes. No one knows better than the coal miner what a strike means to him and his family. He knows that it means hardship, suffering, hunger and sacrifice. The coal minngr is just like any other man. He loves his family as you and I love ours. He is just as anxious to bring up his children in the right way as you and I are. He does not want his family to go hungry. He does not want them to be without food, shelter or clothing. Yet he knows that that is what a strike means to him and to them. But the coal miner will strike to obtain or to maintain his rights when a strike is the only method by which that end can be reached. And the best thought of public men, the courts, the pulpit, the press, civic organizations and a healthy public sentiment throughout the land sustains him in his right to strike to gain that which justly belongs to him. The United State's Supreme Court, in a recent decision holding the Kansas industrial court law to be unconstitutional, declared that men have the right to strike and that this right cannot be taken from them, nor can they be compelled under our Constitution to submit to compulsory arbitration. I would like as soon take the judgment of the United States Supreme Court on that subject as to take the foolish recommendation of a man like Newton, the coal operatrhs' hired man.

Arbitration

I noticed in reading his speech that this man Newton, the paid agent and representative of the anthracite operators, offered a very unique and impossible remedy for a certain phase of the coal industry's problem. He said the miners should be compelled to arbitrate the question of wages. He said a commission should be created that would take up every dispute over wages and render a decision and if the miners refused to accept the decision they should be forced to step aside and allow some one else to do the work. In fact, he would have the coal operators name the commission, have that commission fix the wage rate at any figures which the operators see fit to offer and then compel the men to accept it or lose their jobs. That would be a fine plan, indeed. The worker would be deprived of any right to a voice in the fixing of his wages. In the first place the miners would not agree to any such plan of arbitration. They have had their experience with such business. They tried it once in 1920 and they will never forget the frame-up that was worked on them. There was a general strike in the anthracite region and in order to settle it, the president of the United States, under the war laws then still in effect, created and appointed a commission known as the Anthracite Coal Commision. This commission was composed of one operator, one miner and one man representing the public. The commission sat for weeks and heard the case. In March, 1920, the representatives of the miners were informed officially one night that the award would be handed down the next morning at 10 o'clock and that it would give the men an increase of 27 per cent, the same rate of increase that another government commission had given to the soft coal miners. The next morning the award came down, but it gave the anthracite miners an increase of only 17 percent instead of the 27 per cent that had been promised. Something happened over night. We do not know what happened but somthing did that deprived the men of 10 per cent of the increase that they were to have. This incident only goes to show what happens to the miners whenever they submit their wages to arbitration. Do you wonder, then, that they do not take kindly to arbitration?

This man Newton went on to tell you that the United Mine Workers of America defied the government at one time by refusing to accept an offer of arbitration that was made by President Harding, but he did not tell you the facts about the matter. I am going to tell them to you. Soft coal operators in West Virginia discharged 12,000 men because they joined the Union. It was not a strike, it was a lockout. The United Mine Workers of America took care of those 12,000 men and their families, a total of nearly 50,000 souls, men, women and children. The union spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in providing houses, shacks and tents for these unfortunate people and in supplying food, clothing and medical attention for them. This condition continued many months the union trying all the time to effect an adjustment of the trouble. After exhausting every other means, the United Mine Workers of America went to Washington and pleaded with the Administration to help to make a settlement. The Union offered to arbitrate. It begged for arbitration, for it knew its case was just. But the Administration refused to take a single step. The miners were told that the government could not interfer. In other words, the miners were turned down cold.

Then, soon afterward, came the nation-wide strike of coal miners. The industry was closed down tight. What happened? I'll tell you what happened. The Administration at Washington sent for the officials of the United Mine Workers of America, brought them to Washington and demanded that they agree to arbitration of the issues involved in the strike. This demand was made not once but numerous times. The miners refused to arbitrate in that case, just as the government had refused to arbitrate in the other case. There is such a thing as being fair in such matters. How can Newton or anyone else justify the policy of the Administration in refusing arbitration in one case and insisting arbitration in another case?

We had a strike in British Columbia. The operators declared their intention to put in effect a 23 percent reduction in wages and the men refused to stand for it. Under the Canadian law the controversy went to arbitration before a royal commission. That commission heard the case and handed down a decision making a reduction of 37 percent in the wages of the miners instead of the 23 per cent reduction which the operators had offered.

Effect on Coal Miners

What effect do you suppose such performances as these produce in the minds of the coal miners? How can you expect them to have confidence in arbitration as a solution for their troubles in the face of such experiences? They know that in every case of arbitration of wages they get the worst of it.

I wish you also to understand the position of the United Mine Workers of America on the subject of arbitration. This organization refuses to submit to arbitration the provisions, terms and conditions that shall be included in a wage and working agreement. But the union will, and it does, arbitrate every question that arises under the provisions of a contract, once the contract has been made. In every organized coal mining field in the country where the miners have a contract with the operators there is a provision in the contract for that kind of arbitration and machinery is set up for that purpose. If the miners and the company are unable to agree upon any question involving the interpretation or application of a provision of the agreement it is submitted to arbitration for settlement.

But the union holds that the question of how much a man shall receive for his labor and the conditions under which he shall accept employment is a matter to be decided and agreed upon between him and his employer. It holds that this is not a fair or proper issue to be determined by a third person. A man should have the right to a voice in the fixing of his wage rate. But there is a broader reason for this attitude of the union. When a man authorizes a third person to determine his wage rate he authorizes that third person to determine also just what shall be his status as a citizen. The arbitrator decides what that man's earning capacity shall be. By the same token he determines what kind of food the man and his family may eat, for he decides how much the man can earn to spend for food. He determines what kind of clothing the man and his family may wear, because he decides how much the man can spend for clothing. He decides what kind of domicile the man and his family may occupy, how much money the man will have available for education for his children and for all other purposes. The union holds that this is too much power to place in the hands of any third person. Each man's earning power should be limited only by his own skill, avility and industry. He has a right to make the best possible bargain for the sale of his labor. There is a vast difference between arbitrating what shall go into a contract and how the terms of a contract, once made, shall be interpreted and applied.

The Check-off System

I wish to explain one thing that is not generally understood by the American public. Much has been said about what is known as the check-off, and you have been told the check-off is an illegal, un-American, dangerous form of highway robbery or something of that kind. The check-off is a minor business arrangement between miner and operator for the convenience of both. The check-off is used for collection of the dues of members of the union. Wherever the union has a working agreement with the operator each individual employe gives to the operator a written order directing him to detuct from his pay envelope each month a sufficient sum to pay his dues to the union. The operator deducts the money and pays it to the union. That is all there is to the check-off. It does not cost the operator a penny. It is the miner's money. It is simply an assignment of a part of the man's wages. Assignment of wages is a common practice in every business. United States courts have declared it to be legal. It is not un-American. Coal operators themselves for more than seventy years have used the check-off for the collection of house rent, store bills, taxes, lodge dues, insurance, doctors' bills, accounts for merchants, Liberty bond subscriptions, old age pensions, Red Cross subscriptions and dozens of other purposes. The miners only ask that they add one more item to the list of about forty for which they now make collections by the check-off. Some of the largest railroads in America refuse to deal with organized labor but maintain what they call their own company unions. They compel their employes to join the company union, and they check off each month the employe's dues for the company union. One of these railroads is the Delaware & Hudson, which owns many large anthracite mines. Although it checks off the dues for its own company union it refuses to check off dues for members of the United Mine Workers of America, who are employed in its mines.

It is time to put the soft pedal on criticism and denunciation of the coal miner. Think of him not as a dangerous and undesirable element of our citizenship, but rather think of him as a fellow citizen entitled to respect. The coal miner is the same kind of loyal, patriotic American that you and I are. Let me remind you that in the World war more than 80,000 members of the United Mine Workers of America laid down their tools and went to the front in the military service, and they fought with the same devotion to the flag that other men displayed. More than 3,000 of these men made the supreme sacrifice by giving up their lives in that struggle that civilization might not perish. Coal miners are not anarchists, bolsheviks and reds, as you have been told many times. To make such a charge is not only unfair and unjust in view of their splendid record, but it is an insult to the sacred memory of those 3,000 union coal miners who marched bravely to their death in the war. And when, during the war, coal was the one thing that was needed to win the struggle those miners who remained at work produced more coal in 1918 than ever before or since. They bought millions of dollars worth of Liberty Bonds out of their earnings, nearly all of which they have since been forced to sell at a loss because of unemployment. They subscribed millions of dollars to the Red Cross, the Salvation Army, the Knights of Columbus and other war relief agencies. They did and they are doing their part. Let us be fair and just in our consideration of them and their problems.

TECH SHOW MEANS MUCH WORK FOR STUDENTS

Work has been going forward on this year's show, which will be staged at The Palace theatre on Friday, March 14, under auspices of the Norwich Rotary club, ever since last spring and when the call for books came this fall, about ten complete books were handed in by the undergraduates, and from these has been selected the best for production this year. The name of the selected book is The Hidden Idol, written by W. T. Cook, '24, of Norwich. There have also been handed in some twenty songs for the show and a few more are expected. In answer to the first call for candidates for the cast about sixty or seventy men signed up. About the same number signed up for the ballet, chorus and orchestra. The cast and chorus is being coached by Ralph L. Harlow, who was for some time connected with George M. Cohan and Raymond Hitchcock and has lately devoted most of his time to the Tech show and the annual amateur production of Filene's company of Boston. The ballet is being coached by Miss Virginia Tanner, who is perhaps best known for her work in directing the pageant at the tricentennial anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth. The direction and coaching of the orchestra is in the hands of Charles Young, who is very well known for his work in this line.

This twenty-sixth annual production of Tech show will be like its predecessors in that it will be a musical comedy but in every other way we look for it to set a mark for itself in perfection to greater an extent than ever before. The show will, of course, be entirely written, staged, acted and orchestrated by the undergraduates; the scenery, and posters are all designed by students in the architectural school.

The setting for the first act that was accepted was designed by Fred Winsor, Jr., '25. The set is a scene in a camp in the Karakoram mountains in northern India. The second act has scenes in the interior of the palace of the Marajah and was designed by William Muschenheim, '25. Norman Herreshoff, '25, designed the third act settings. They are of the interior of the Temple of Gar. All these men are members of the architectural school.

This year's trip includes Norwich, Northampton, Hartford and New York. March 15th is the date of the Northampton matinee and evening performance. It will be in the Academy of Music. The evening of the 17th, we will give the only Hartford performance at the Parsons theatre. On the 18th, at the Hotel Astor, New York, we shall give a matinee and evening performance. The Boston performances will all be in the evening and at the opera house. They are April 21, 22 and 23.

Consolidated Advertising

Today's news is good news for it contains the announcement of a new method of advertising adopted by fifteen of Willimantic's leading retail business houses and will be known in the future as "Consolidated Advertising". Summarily this new method is group advertising with the "advs" appearing under one heading and serves in a large measure to facilitate the reading of advertising.

The firms names are to remain the same but when the Consolidated Advertisements appear on Friday of each week they will be enlivened by constant changes which will enable the readers of the Bulletin to keep well posted on the weekly trend of business in Willimantic. These merchants have been selected as leaders in their respective lines of business and those who adopt this new method of advertising as their directory to know "What to Buy—Where to Buy—and How to Buy" may rest assured that they will receive full value for every dollar invested in their purchases. Fraudulent advertising had died a natural death and the Special Saturday offerings which will appear herein from time to time will be standard articles of high quality sold at remarkable reductions.

The "Consolidated Advertising" will appear on the Willimantic page every Friday. Bear this fact in mind and let it be the bridge between yourself and these reliable Willimantic firms. Buy at Home. Avoid Traveling, and Save Money.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Strand Theatre

Two splendid careers that may be pursued just as successfully from the family breakfast nook or the library desk as anywhere else, are open to the woman of today. They are screen and magazine fiction writing. The woman who entered the limelight most recently as a screen writer, Ethel Styles Middleton of Pittsburgh, Pa., author of Judgment of the Storm, the first Palmer Photoplay Corporation film production, presents a particularly striking example of a home success as a photoplaywright.

Mrs. Middleton trained herself in scenario writing at home, as many others have done. She learned by repeated attempts that she was not fitted to write magazine fiction, but on transferring her talents to the screen she found her ideal "niche." She did not succeed until her course of training had been finished, but the brilliance of her final accomplishment speaks for itself in Judgment of the Storm which is presented at the Broadway theatre starting Saturday.

Judgment of the Storm, with Lloyn Hughes, Lucille Ricksen, George Philo McCullough in the principal roles, is one of the strongest, most life-like and human dramas of an emotional character ever shown at the Broadway theatre. All aside from its other merits, our hat is off to the story, and to Mrs. Middleton in the initial success of her career: If husbands and babies and housework are in any way responsible for a story of this humanness and whole-someness, long may they accompany her!

PALACE THEATRE

No where in the realm of grand opera can there be found a more charming bit of feminity than dainty Baby Tamaki Miura, the celebrated Japanese prima donna soprano who will appear in Norwich with the San Carlo Grand Opera Company next Monday evening, March 10, at the Palace theatre, in the magnificent Puccini opera Madame Butterfly. She is the only Japanese prima donna in the world and is the very essence of the sweet and lovely woman whom John Luther Long had in mind when he wrote the book Madame Butterfly.

The history of Mme. Miura's rise to fame is familiar to American opera lovers, and yet the story bears repeating and never loses its interest. It was in 1914 that this demure little Japanese singer made her debut in London, and it was with no less a person than Adelina Patti who gave her the first opportunity of appearing before the public, in the farewell concert of the great diva, with whom she appeared as assisting artist. Her subsequent triumphs in the role of Madame Butterfly are a matter of history. She has appeared in this role with all the leading opera companies of the world, winning fame for her naive interpretation of Puccini's heroines.

There have been many Madame Butterflys since this, for the work is the most popular of all the beautiful Puccini scores. Many of our greatest singers have won distinction in the part, but it remained for this little daughter of the land of Cherry Blossoms to reveal the true interpretations of this most pathetic tragedy in all operatic literature. Mme. Miura did not have to study the Japanese characteristics, she had only to be herself. So identified has this little Japanese artist become with the role that a performance of Madame Butterfly without Miura would be very much like Hamlet without Dane.

BREED THEATRE

Interesting in connection with Rupert Hughes' new Goldwyn production, Reno, which will be shown for the last time today is the news that Paris threatens to be the Mecca for Americans seeking easy matrimonial transportations.

Americans have been finding French divorce laws most attractive. For in France a couple that agrees to disagree has a perfect right to obtain a divorce. In America, despite varying divorce laws, a decree requested by the mutual consent of husband and wife is held as a collusion and hence promptly refused. Therefore the popularity of the Paris divorce market—the very best and fashionable excuse for a six months' sojourn in the merry metropolis.

However, the French have been losing patience with wealthy foreigners who come to patronize French divorce styles and threaten a revision of their divorce laws.

Major Hughes' new picture deals with the confused divorce laws in America by which a man may be single in one state and married in another. Helene Chadwick, Carmel Myers, Lew Cody, George Walsh, Hedda Hopper, Rush Hughes and other leading players have roles in the production.

Other pictures on the bill include a news and a comedy.

BROADWAY THEATRE, FRIDAY

H. H. Frazee will present William Courtenay in Oliver White's new comedy-success, Dangerous People, at the Broadway theatre, Norwich, Conn. Friday night, March 7th.

This attraction is said to have created a furore in Chicago where it ran for four months, and the producer announces an early presentation of the piece in Boston and New York. Dangerous People is written along new lines which accounts for its popularity. It possesses something of everything the theatre going public revels in; it is good drama with many thrills and has an abundance of comedy situations. The leading character is a gentleman crook. The company includes such celebrities as Charles Millward who played The Fool in Iolanthe; George Parsons, for years a star in George M. Cohan productions; Virginia Hammond, formerly in the support of Henry Miller in The Famous Mrs. Fair, and Gertrude Hits formerly leading lady with William Hodge.

Seats now on sale at box office.

WESTERLY

It was nearly 11:30 Tuesday forenoon when the Superior court for Washington county came in for the second day's session, with the Westerly trial calendar, in the Superior court rooms, Associate Justice Sumner on the bench. Judge Sumner called the calendar and the case of James W. Burke vs. Thomas J. Healy was announced as ready. This was a case in which James W. Burke, represented by Attorney Clarence E. Roche, sought to recover possession of a farm on the Post Road on the south side of the highway and one mile from Dunn's corner, it being an action of trespass and ejectment. The respondent, Thomas J. Healy was represented by Attorney John J. Dunn.

The jury was empanneled as follows: Harry W. Scott, farmer, South Kingstown; Paul W. Pierce, electrician, Westerly, (excused, when he stated that he lived on the Post road and had heard enough of the case to form an opinion); Andrew N. Tefft, expressman, South Kingstown; Henry B. Northrup, mill employee, South Kingstown; George I. Champlin, hotel keeper, South Kingstown; Simon Wreschinsky, tailor, South Kingston, (challenged); William H. Thurman, farmer, South Kingstown; Omer Emond, mill operative, North Kingstown; Arnold H. Tefft, farmer, North Kingston, made foreman; Arthur L. Cook, farmer, South Kingstown; William O. Barber, laborer, Hopkinton; Charles B. Smith, retired, North Kingstown; Thomas Gourlay, poultryman, Westerly, (excused, when he told the judge that he had heard enough of the case to form an opinion); George E. Campbell, weaver, North Kingstown; and Fred H. Straight, mill operative, North Kingstown.

On April 17, 1922 a lease or agreement was entered into between Mr. Burke and Mr. Healy for one year, with the option of a renewal for five years. Under the terms of the agreement Burke was to supply the fertilizer, seed and ploughman, Healy to care for the crops and the proceeds to be split fifty-fifty.

The plaintiff's attorney called James W. Burke, owner of the farm as the first witness. He testified that he owned the farm for three years and signed a lease with Mr. Healy whereby he was to cultivate the farm for one year and received $865 in addition to his services. The lease was filed as evidence Mr. Burke said that after a year's time Mr. Healy ceased to cultivate the farm and refused to vacate the premises, when directed to do so through his attorney. The spare jurors were excused until 2 o'clock.

Frederick T. Mitchell, deputy sheriff of Washington county, testified to having served a formal notice to vacate. W. Herbert Caswell, clerk of superior court, testified to a conversation he had with Mr. Healy relative to his working for him. The plaintiff rested at 12.20. For the defendant Attorney Dunn said that it would be shown that a lease was signed, the premises entered, and all requirements of the lease performed.

Thomas J. Healey testified to leasing the farm May 4, 1922, saying that he planted the farm and performed his work "thoroughly" and continued to enlarge on his ability until the judge directed him to "stop talking."

On court reconvening Healy was followed on the stand by Herbert Caswell who testified that he hired him for a year.

Warren Thomas Sheffield, an iron moulder, who sold nursery stock, seeds, etc., on the side testified to be directed by Healy to see Burke. Clarance E. Roche testified to serving notice on Healy to vacate and to Healy's being hired by Caswell.

When the jury had been returned the court directed them to return a verdict for the plaintiff, on grounds purely of law.

At 3.15 the case of Victoria M. Brown, administratrix, vs Adolphus La Sonte of Stonington was begun and the following jury empanelled: From North Kingstown, Nathan C. Rathbun, Arnold H. Tefft, Charles B. Smith, George E. Campbell; South Kingstown, Harry W. Stott, Simon Wreschinsky, William E. Wilbur; Westerly, Merton L. Stott, George H. Spargo; Hopkinton, William O. Barber, William G. Holberton Charlestown, Ernest G. B. Champion. This case is really two cases being tried together and an action to recover money loaned which the defendant borrowed from his mother to buy raw furs. The first witness was Everett E. Whipple.

Jacob Wierch, of Stonington driving the auto truck of Franz Voight, of Trumbull avenue, New London, was gathered in by State Policeman Fred Caron, of Groton barracks, the first of the week. For a month he has been operating an auto truck which had been repainted without the stencilled figures which should show weight and figures. In Stonington town court Tuesday morning he was before Judge William A. Wilcox. He was fined $5 and costs amounting to $11.13 which he paid.

This (Wednesday) evening William (Pussyfoot) Johnson is to speak at the Seventh Day Baptist church under the auspices of the Westerly Ministerial association. The Cross and the Crescent will be his subject and he will detail conditions as he found them in his globe-trotting trips. He will be accompanied by G. M. Hammond, of Nashville, Tenn., almost as well known a prohibition advocate.

Max Reichel, a radio fan of Westerly, has proven himself a benefactor to other radio enthusiasts in the town. Equipping two automobiles with radio hookups he has been enabled to locate sources of trouble and found one on Granite street near the store of E. George Dolan, where the electric light circuit was badly grounded on a tree having burned through both sides of one of the branches. The trouble was reported to the lighting company who gave it attention.

Returning to their duties in the public schools of Westerly this week were Sperintendent Willard H. Bacon, who has attended a superintendent's convention in Chicago; Miss Laura E. McIntire, principal of the High school, who has been visiting friends in Providence; Miss Thigbe Galanie, teacher of English and French, from Melrose, Mass.; Miss Ethel N. Frizzell, teacher of mathematics, from Woburn, Mass.; Miss Lena J. Russell, stenographer and typewriting, from Boston; Miss Ruth R. Crockett, history and civics, from Boston; Miss Mabel R. Comstock, commercial subjects, from Fall River, Mass.; Miss K. Marie Lloyd, teacher of English, Boston and Charles F. Weston, science and Mathematics, from Somerville, Mass.

The work on the new Washington Trust Co. building at the corner of Main and Broad streets is progressing rapidly. ## CALIPHATE IN TURKEY OFFICIALLY ABOLISHED

Constantinople, March 4 (By the A. P.)—The caliphate in Turkey was officially abolished today and the caliph, Abdul Medjid Effendi, left Constantinople for Switzerland.

The vali of Constantinople, director general of public security, accompanied by police, at 2 o'clock this morning proceeded to the Dolmabaghcha palace. They ordered the caliph to take his seat upon his throne, and when he had done so the decree of the grand national assembly at Angora ordering his deposition was read.

The caliph was immediately ordered to descend from the throne and make his arrangements to depart at once from Constantinople. An hour later, accompanied by two of his wives and his son, the caliph was conveyed by motor car to Chatalja, on the frontier, where a special train was in readiness to convey him westward.

Ismet Pasha, the foreign minister, during yesterday's discussion of the abolition of the caliphate and the deposition of the caliph made the following statement before the grand national assembly in Angora:

"Our religion will suffer no change, even if the caliphate is abolished. Our ideals are based on such exalted principles that we never hesitate openly to tell the people and officers and soldiers the aims we are pursuing.

"We intend to maintain to the bitter end our determination to suppress the caliphate. We have taken all the necessary precautions. Constantinople remains in our hands because we fought the Greeks and the caliph. Constantinople will never leave our hands if we continue to show the same energy."

New guns which are to be placed at various points in the New England coast defenses will be tested near Provincetown some time next month.

NORWICH TOWN

A farce comedy, "The Elopement of Ellen," was given before a large and enthusiastic audience Tuesday evening, in the First Congregational chapel, under the auspices of the social committee of the Young People's Christian Endeavor society, Robert Avery chairman, assisted by Miss Lucile D. Bailey.

The cast comprised the following: Richard Ford, a devoted young husband, Arthur Avery; Molly, his wife, Mable Corrigeux; Robert Shepherd, Molly's brother, Walter Hitchon, Jr.; Max Ten Eyck, a chum of Robert, Robert Avery; Dorothy Marsh, engaged to Max, a guest of Mrs. Ford, Florance Sterry; June Haverhill, Wellesley '24, who is doing some special investigation for economics courses during the summer, Lucile Bailey; John Hume, rector of St. Agnes, John Browning. The parts were well cast and all were acted with ability.

The synopsis of the play: Act. 1—Morning room at Mrs. Ford's home, eight a. m. Act 2—Corner of Mrs. Ford's garden at five a. m., the next day. Act. 3—Same corner in the evening of the same day. Place Pleasant Hill, a suburb of New York City. Time, the summer of 1923.

Mrs. Ford's maid Ellen having eloped, Richard communicates with the employment Bureau by long distance telephone and a first class maid is promised to come on the train. June Haverhill, having applied for a position through the Employment Bureau, in order to get ahead some in her next year's investigations, is the one sent. Upon finding her friend Robert Shepherd there, she deems it advisable no tto stay; but after an interview with Mrs. Ford, under the assumed name of Huldah Svenson, she decides to remain and at the request of her mistress takes the name of Ellen. Rob, declares on his honor he will not give the secret away and they consider it will be quite a lark. Max Ten Eyck having had a previous flitation with June visits the Ford home and finds his betrothed Dorothy Marsh in their house guest, and he (Max) recognizes the maid as June, but does not make the fact known. Given these complications, the development of the story held the closest attention of the audience.

Preceding the entertainment and between the acts The Quile Trio furnished excellent music. The following young women sold candy during the evening, Ross and Esther Durr, Doris and Lucile Browning, Elizabeth and Bessie Whaley, Grace Wheeler and Dorothy Heath. The play is to be repeated this (Wednesday) evening.

DEVIL'S HOP YARD TO HAVE FORESTRY FIELD MEET

New Haven, March 4.—The first field meeting of the Connecticut Forestry association will be in May at the Devil's Hop Yard state park in East Haddam, with the Middlesex county farm bureau cooperating. There will be a demonstration of the best method of thinning out poor trees in a woodlot.

The Devil's Hop Yard has been a favorite picnic ground for people of eastern Connecticut for many years. Recently lumbermen started to cut the hemlock forest which covered the spot, destroying its beauty. The park commission felt that the value of those particular trees standing was worth more than they would be cut into lumber and by stepping in and purchasing the area saved it as a forest, playground and game refuge for the state.

The summer field meeting will be in Litchfield county probably at the estate of Alain C. White near Bantam Lake.

Stage carpenters make more hits than do the high-salaried stars.

What you can do with the Traffic Transmission

Change Speeds Without Clashing

Because it represents the solution of the gear shifting problem, this exclusive Chandler feature is generally acknowledged to be the most important automotive improvement of the decade. Be you a veteran driver or an unschooled beginner, you cannot clash gears—cannot fail to make a split-second, positive, silent change to any speed at any time under any conditions.

There is nothing new to learn. You use the clutch and shift lever exactly as before. Only the results are different.

Descend Steep Grades in Safety

Until the Traffic Transmission was developed, the safe descent of a long steep hill was a matter of luck or expert driving. In the Chandler it is now neither.

Regardless of car or motor speed, a three inch movement of the lever puts you into second speed or low—brings the combined compression of six cylinders into instant braking action. No danger of failing to get into gear.

No riding the brake pedal or burning out brake linings. That is real safety—the comforting kind.

Park Easily and Swiftly

There is a trick to parking neatly, or there was until Chandler made it easy.

With the Traffic Transmission you never fumble to get from low to reverse—you never hear the gears rasp, rumble or whine. You change to the desired speed at will—the lever moves at a finger's touch. What used to take three minutes of expert manoeuvering, now takes twenty seconds in a Chandler.

The steering wheel is partly responsible. It requires no tugging—turns with the weight of a hand. Women like that.

Stop Short without Skidding

Skidding and swerving are caused by unequalized braking. Even the finest brake systems develop this fault.

There is only one car in which it cannot occur. For only one car has the Traffic Transmission. With it you snap instantly into a lower gear. At once the perfectly equalized braking power of the motor stops the car with the front and back wheels tracking.

And if you know that helpless feeling of skidding toward the curb or ditch, such surefooted safety must have a strong appeal.

Drive Without Worry

You have the matchless, velvety power of the Pikes Peak Motor to take you anywhere. Hills never check its masterful high gear capacity that made Chandler the national performance champion.

And as for deep snow or mud—no terrors there! Two or three short, snappy shifts from low to reverse and out you roll before you stall.

A Woman's Reward For Insistence

EVERY grocer realizes that the woman who insists on getting just what she orders is of higher intelligence than one who doesn't. For she has reasons. When a woman, for instance is indifferent about the brand of soap she orders, she has not reasoned that common household soap irritates the skin and makes red, rough and coarse looking hands.

Intelligent women, who are as particular about the kind of household soap they use as they are about their toilet soap, insist on Kirkman's. And this insistence rewards them because Kirkman's Soap is as harmless to their hands as is the most exquisite toilet soap.

AND their reasons are: Kirkman's Soap, being free from irritating lye, will not harm the skin or injure the most delicate fabrics. It is made of the purest and finest materials. It contains absolutely no adulterants such as starch, talc or water-glass, which have no cleansing value.

For the sake of your hands insist upon Kirkman's Soap.

YOUR HANDS WILL BE GRATEFUL

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

New York, March 4—Stock prices moved within narrow and irregular limits during the early part of today's trading, but stiffened perceptibly during the afternoon in response to President Coolidge restatement of his position on the tax bill, the rally in Foreign exchanges and easier money rates. Business was again on reduced scale with professional operators supplying the bulk of the trading.

Chief speculative interest centered in American Woolen which opened three points higher at 77, and advanced to 77 1-4 on anticipation of a favorable showing in the annual report. Actual publication of the report at noon brought forth a flood of selling orders which carried the stock down to 73 1-4, through misinterpretation of a reserve item. When this was cleared up later, the stock rallied to 76, where it closed.

One commission house pointed out after the market closed that today was the eighteenth consecutive session of irregular price movements without any outstanding trend. While fluctuating with this narrow range, however, the averages held somewhat nearer to the higher level.

Norfolk and Western was again the strong and active feature of the railroad group, closing four points higher at 115 1-4 on buying attributed to revival of reports of its ultimate acquisition by the Pennsylvania railroad. Several of the northwestern carriers, which had been heavy as a result of poor January earning statements, made good recovery on the announcements by several officials of these roads that the February figures would show marked improvement. Northern Pacific rallied 1 1-2 points to 49 7-8 and Great Northern preferred moved up more than a point to 56.

American Can made the best showing among the so-called pivotal stocks closing nearly two points higher at 114 1-2. United States Steel, Baldwin and Studebaker all closed fractionally higher. Corn Products was in good demand, closing a point higher at 173.

Marked strength also was shown by a number of specialties. Fisher Body touching a record high at 210 for an extreme gain of more than four points. Commercial Solvents A advanced 4 1-2 points to 58 and then dropped one. Bear traders, however, singled out a few stocks for selling operations, Central Leather preferred being hammered down nearly three points to 83 1-4.

Call money opened at 4 1-2 per cent. and then eased to 4 1-4 as March 1 funds were redeposited. Time money and commercial paper were still on a 4 3-4 to 5 per cent basis.

Another break in French francs which carried them to an extreme low of 4.03 1-2 cents was the feature of the foreign exchange market. Subsequently, however, francs rallied to 4.10 1-2 cents, practically unchanged on that day. Demand sterling was slightly firmer around 4.29 3-4.

BOND MARKET

New York, March 4—Moderate improvement in bond prices took place today as selling pressure, inspired by yesterday's unfavorable developments, was lifted from the market. Offerings of the Virginia-Carolina issues was absorbed readily, with prices rallying several points above yesterday's record low levels. Norfolk and Weakness of these issues was attributed almost four points, and there were other strong spots scattered through the industrial list.

Reactionary tendencies, however, prevailed in the Liberty bond list. Weakness of these issues wa sattributed to the growing commercial demands for money, causing a withdrawal of institutional buying, and to continued uneasiness over tax legislation prospects coupled with renewed agitation for a bonus.

In bond circles the explanation advanced for the retarded activity in trading, which has been noticeable since the flotation of the Japanese loan, was the withdrawal of large buying interests from the market until income tax returns have been filed.

The market accordingly has been given more than the usual speculative aspect, with recurring bursts of activity in convertible and second grade issues which occupied most of the spotlight today. Bonds of the Northwestern roads continued to lose ground today while Southern railway issues moved up in response to common dividend prospects.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, March 4—Chop damage reports from states west of the Mississippi led to enlarged buying of wheat today and the September delivery rose to a new high price record for the season. Final quotations were unsettled at 1-8 to 3-4c net advance, May 1.11 3-4 to 1.11 7-8 and July 1.12 to 1.12 1-8. Corn showed 1-4 to 1-2c gain, with oats ranging from a shade lower to 1-8 a 1-4c, higher, and provisions 7 to 12c up.

Definite evidence of serious winter killing of wheat was at hand here in the shape of samples of wheat received from Central Illinois, indicating that the crown of the plant was rotted. Reports from other sections, although less disturbing, gave emphasis to misgivings in regard to the condition of a large part of the winter crop, and led to a steady increase of buying through commission houses as well as to a dearth of offerings. Some of the purchasing, especially of the September delivery, was ascribed to foreign interests. There were signs apparent, too, that demand here from mills had improved. The price bulge that ensued was fairly well maintained despite considerable selling near the day's top figures.

Corn rallied when wheat turned strong, but during the first part of the day had a downward tendency as a result of speculative selling. Unsettled weather likely to break up dirt roads and thus hinder the movement of corn did more or less to stimulate renewal of buying. Besides, word came that five cargoes of corn had already been sold for shipment from Duluth at the opening of lake navigation. Oats were bearishly affected to some extent by rather liberal receipts here.

Provisions readily responded to an upturn in hog values.

CURB MARKET

The oil shares were again inclined to heaviness with Standard Oil of Indiana and Vacuum, the two most active issues, showing small fractional losses at the end of the day. Losses of two points each were registered by Standard Oils of Kansas and Nebraska and Ohio Oil, while Borne and Scrymser broke six points to 214 and Cumberland Pipe dropped four to 135. Prairie Oil and Gas advanced two points to 232.

Industrials were more mixed. Dubilier Radio established another record top at 23 3-4, closing slightly below that for a small fractional gain, and Kresge Stores climbed one point to 52. Ford Motors of Canada broke seven points to 445 on a small turnover. Tobacco products exports was active and strong on reports that the sales in January and February exceeded those of the same months last year.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Starting for the Red Barn

"Shake hands with Little Jack Rabbit," said the old grasshopper, after jumping from the last story into this ones.

"I always did like bunnies," said the Cow That Jumped Over the Moon, shaking hands with the bunny boy. "You should hear the little cat fiddle the High Diddle Diddle. It is a great help. I really believe I'd never get over the moon if it weren't for her lovely music."

"At our little white bungalow in

"I always die here because"

Rabbit Country," answered the little bunny, "we have a large Mother Goose Book. Lady Love, my pretty mother has often read about you."

"To be sure, to be sure," said the Cow That Jumped Over the Moon. "Your mother is the prettiest lady bunny in Rabbitville."

"I would invite you in for a cup of tea, but our house is too small," said Mrs. Grasshopper, who, by this time, had recovered from her fright. "Don't mention it," replied Mrs. Cow, with a smile. "Haystack House looks large but from the size of your back paddo pinoa I guess we'd scrooch all if I stepped inside." Then, with a toss of her head, which nearly upset her pink sunbonnet, she cantered away.

"She's a very sociable sort of a person," exclaimed Mr. Grasshopper. "I often talk to her in the meadow."

"Guess I must be going," said the little rabbit, suddenly. "It's near sundown."

"Don't be in too much of a hurry," advised Mr. Grasshopper, hopping along with him as far as the brook. "Remember the best time to hunt chocolate mice is at midnight. You've plenty of time. Goodbye and good luck!"

"Thank you for a pleasant time," answered the bunny boy, politely, and with a nimble jump, he hopped over the little stream and set out for the red barn. The sun was now hidden behind the dusky hills and faint chirpings from the birds in the wood came down the evening breeze. Shadows glided behind the bushes and into the forest, and the Evening Star looked down from the sky. Soon, the big yellow moon rose high in the dark heavens and an old owl hooted from a treetop nearby.

"In the Candy Barn, the chocolate mice

Will give a dance at twelve tonight. If I can fly through the hayloft door, I'll see, without doubt, a pretty sight."

Then, with a chuckle, that wise old bird shouted: "Too-wool too-woo-oo!" three times.

"Much obliged," thought the little bunny, "maybe I can hop through the hayloft door," and away he went, faster than ever. All of a sudden the clock in the old church tower struck 12.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

MRS. MARY WILBUR, 100, HAS PARTY AT LEDYARD

Mrs. Mary Wilbur celebrated the hundredth anniversary of her birth at the home of her son-in-law, Emil Wyder, in Ledyard. She was born in Warren, R. I., March 2, 1824, the daughter of George Miller and Elisa Price Miller.

Mrs. Wilbur, when she wished to go to Norwich, a distance of fifteen miles, used to walk it, in the old days.

Sunday, Mrs. Wilbur cut her large fifty-pound birthday cake that was made by a New London chef especially in her honor. A dinner was enjoyed by about 75 relatives and friends. She received many gifts, baskets of fruit, candy and flowers.

MOORISH REBELS ATTACK FRENCH IN MOROCCO

Madrid, March 4—(By the A. P.)—The Moorish rebels have launched a general attack against the Spanish communication in Morocco, says an official statement issued today. Reinforcements are being embarked at Spanish ports for hurried transportation to Morocco.

The rebels, the statement adds, have shelled the Spanish cruiser Cataluna, killing a captain and two sailors and wounding two officers and seven sailors.

"Since last night's announcement," says the statement, "news of major gravity has reached the government, which it is making without delay to impress upon the country its importance and to avoid exaggerated news upon such an important occurrence.

"The enemy with great precision attacked our positions at Tizziarra and Azid Demidar with the intention of interrupting our communications. This action precipated similar partial offensives by Spanish forces on other parts of the front to relieve the pressure caused by the rebels. The enemy suffered heavy losses and was repulsed.

"As the enemy was not sufficiently punished, the general staff decided to launch a counter-offensive, and in orde rto avoid any possible reverses, has ordered reinforcements to embark forthwith to Morocco.

"The enemy shelled the Spanish cruiser Cataluna, the shell exploded on deck and killed a captain and two sailor sand gravely wounded two officers and seven sailors."

By equipping a lighthouse with perches, the British Royal Society for the Protection of Birds has reduced the destruction of birds confused by the light from nearly a thousand a night to less than that number a season.

MYSTIC

Fred Williams, Past Commander of A. C. Latham Camp No. 19, Sons of Veterans, of this place, is trying to complete the records of Williams Post, Grand Army of the Republic, so that future generations may have this record for reference. Although Mr. Williams has given considerable time to this work, there remain the names of seven men which appear on the roster of William Post whom he has been unable to locate, Herbert a Gilmore; Charles Heacox; George B Howard; Acop Howelth; Ernestus Kinney; David C. Minor; J. B. F. Navarea. Members of Williams Post now living do not recall these men who served with them. This effort of Mr. Williams to complete the records of these men is from a purely patriotic motive. # JUDGE JENNINGS SUSTAINS WILL OF E. H. COTTRELL; WESTERLY MILLIONAIRE

Mrs. Leone Balfe Cottrell who was a nurse before she married Edgar H. Cottrell, the millionaire printing press manufacturer of Westerly lost her suit to break his will when Judge Newell H. Jennings of the superior court handed down a decision here Tuesday sustaining the will.

Trial of the case before Judge Jennings occupied several weeks in the superior court where Mrs. Cottrell and her children were the appellants against the executors of the will on the claim of mental incompetency and undue influence.

Under the terms of the will, as interpreted by the executors, Mrs. Cottrell and her children would have received the income and the children eventually the principal of a gross estate of nearly a million dollars, mostly in cash.

Memorandum of Decision

In his memorandum of decision, Judge Jennings says:

On 11th April, 1922, the court of probate for the district of Stonington admitted to probate the will of Edgar H. Cottrell, dated 11th November, 1913, and a codicil thereto dated Feb. 2, 1920. From this decree the appellants appealed to the superior court.

The appellants claimed the case for the jury but when it came on for trial at Norwich it was, by consent of the parties in open court, tried to the court.

With this case also, by agreement of the parties, was tried the so-called equity suit No. 4913, a suit between the same parties but involving somewhat different issues. It was also agreed that, when applicable, the evidence offered might be considered as applying to either or both causes. A separate memorandum will be filed in the equity suit but it will appear that this memorandum disposes of many of the issues in the equity suit. The question of the value of the stock is treated in detail in the memorandum in the equity suit and is therefore omitted in this discussion.

Trying this case as a jury would, I might give a jury's verdict and let the matter rest there. The case has been so thoroughly tried, however and with such force and sincerity that I feel that I should notice the main contentions of the appellants and give my reason for not assenting thereto.

The issues in this suit are statutory and regardless of the contents of the reasons of appeal (see memorandum on motion to expunge filed in this case Oct. 4, 1922) are as follows:

"Was (the will in question) executed according to the formalities prescribed, freely, by a person of lawful age and of sound mind and sufficient capacity, and is (it) a valid will?"

For the purpose of the orderly consideration of this matter the question is ordinarily divided into three parts:

1. Was the will properly executed?
2. Was the testator of sound mind and sufficient capacity?
3. Was the testator at the time of the execution under undue influence?

The appellees have the burden of proof under the first two heads and the appellants under the third.

No serious effort was made to question the legal execution of the will and this issue is found for the appellees.

The battle was chiefly waged around the question of testamentary capacity. The familiar rule for determining this question is thus stated in Kimberly's appeal 68 Conn. 428,439; "one who at the very time he undertakes to make a will is possessed of sufficient intelligence and memory to fairly and rationally know and comprehend the effect of what he is doing, the nature and condition of his property, who are or should be the natural objects of his bounty, and his relation to them. The manner in which he wishes to distribute his estate among, or withhold it from them, and the scope and bearing of the will he is making, his testamentary capacity, that is, the power to make a will."

It would serve no useful purpose to review here the mass of evidence introduced to support the respective claims of the parties. I have endeavored to consider and weigh it all as a jury would—or should.

The appellants picture Edgar H. Cottrell as a man prematurely aged, unsteady on his feet, reticent in speech, and, when he did talk, wandering and inconsequential; a slave of doctors and drugs; without any memory of recent events; subject to dizziness, headache and insomnia; suffering as early as 1912 from an advanced stage of arterio sclerosis of the senile type, as well as nose bleed and frequent "cerebral insults" and in general a physical and mental wreck kept alive by the devoted and constant attention of his wife and doctors.

The appellee, on the other hand, portray a man appearing young for his years, whose only physical ailments were catarrh and indigestion; a man of extraordinary mental endowments, deeply read and well informed on all subjects; of wide and diversified interests; an extraordinary conversationalist with his wide acquaintance, capable of and enjoying sustained conversation on any subject; of marvelous memory; unexcelled in technical knowledge of the details of his intricate business or that of others in which he became interested, and, until his death, the active executive head of a large and successful company manufacturing printing presses.

As is customary in cases of this character, I was provided with a very full life history of the testator. I see him as a man proud of his New England and more remote ancestry and interested therein. He was brought up in the business of manufacturing printing presses by his father and was devoted to it and to his family, with whom to the day of his death he maintained the most intimate and affectionate relations. When he was about 56 years old and was regarded as a confirmed bachelor, he fell in love with an married Miss Balfe, a trained nurse and Roman Catholic. At the time of his marriage he was fixed in his mode of life and relationships and while his attention and devotion to his wife and children were ideal, his marriage altered in no way his relation to his own relatives—who, as well as himself, were Baptists. He never contracted any ties, even of acquaintance so far as appears, with his wife's family. The relations of Mrs. Cottrell to his family and theirs to her were, if not intimate, pleasant enough and no word of active animosity to her before the death of the testator, was in evidence.

While the pictures painted by the parties apparently have little similarity, most of the testimony can be reconciled. The testator was apparently not as well as he appeared to be. He was, however, in my opinion, well enough to do the things and carry on the conversations testified to by the witnesses for the appellees. He had the peculiarity—and common sense—to discuss the theory of medicine as applied to his own case with his doctors; genealogy with Mr. Peckham, the genealogist; photography with Mr. Burdick, the photographer; refrigeration with Mr. Clark, the butcher; antiques with Mr. Alger, the the antiquarian, etc. With a man of his own breadth of knowledge and education he delighted to discuss any subject. While always courteous, he had little to say to governesses, seamstresses, corsetieres, chauffeurs and janitors and little interest in their affairs.

There are only two other matters I wish to speak of in this connection, the will itself and the expert medical testimony.

The will itself is always of great importance in determining the question of testamentary capacity. The rules under which this matter is to be determined are too familiar to require citation. The appellants cite the will in support of their contention in two main aspects. They claim first that it is an unnatural document, far two complicated in its provisions to be understood by the testator and second that the conflict of its provisions with the provisions of the contracts conclusively proves that the testator did not know what he was doing.

As to the first contention, if the mental attitude of the testator is borne in mind, as I have found it to be, the will does not appear unnatural in its provisions. It was drawn and executed some five years after his marriage and nearly ten years before his death. The testator appears by it to attempt and intend to carry out a family policy of long standing. This policy was affected by his marriage as indicated and only as indicated by the document in question. It apparently was very similar to many other wills of other members of this family in existence at the time it was executed. Only one of them was an exhibit in the case, the will of the testator's father. The family resemblance between the two documents is strong, as is their complicated character. The difference made in them both in the provisions for the daughter as distinguished from the sons is particularly noteworthy. The provision much stressed by the appellants giving the "guardianship, tuition, and control of the education of them (his children) respectively during their minority" to the executors seems to me sufficiently explained by the difference in religious faith and the other considerations hereinbefore referred to. The codicil, taken in connection with the will, is of course a very strong argument that the testator understood not only his own affairs but the effect on his will of the course of prevailing rates of interest.

What the testator left to his family was the subject of a sharp difference of opinion during the trial. The widow claims that he left all his property to his brothers. The brothers (the executors) claim he left it all to his family. The executors are right if their contention is understood to be subject to the proviso that the testator attempted to charge his estate with an option to Charles to purchase his stock in the Cottrell company. The testator apparently felt that it would be to the advantage of both the company and his family if the family had a specific claim in money against Charles rather than a minority interest in this close corporation. If the widow had seen fit to accept the offer of Charles, she and her children would have received the income and the children eventually, the principal of a gross estate (I have no means of determining its net value) amounting to nearly a million dollars, for the most part in cash. It seems to me that this provision is not only not unnatural under all the circumstances but shows good business judgment.

Expert Medical Testimony.

The expert medical testimony introduced was of the highest class. The appellants' testimony, however, taken together and analyzed, on direct and cross examination, does not appear to me to meet the case made by the appellees. In analyzing it the first important feature is that Dr. Lee, Dr. Wilcox and Dr. Thompson never saw the testator at all. Dr. Bishop saw him three times in 1919 and 1920. Dr. McBarron saw him twice in 1913 and then not until 1919 and while Dr. Miller saw him more often than either, he was concerned only in relieving the specific trouble in which he specialized (e. nose trouble) and, as he said, had no time for general discussion with his patient. Dr. Bishop would go no further than to say that his mind was "quantitatively impaired", a definition which gives little assistance when the doctor admittedly did not know how much mind the patient had before and did not say how badly it was impaired. It is also to be noted that this conclusion was reached six years after the will was executed. Dr. Miller was unable to give any illustration of illogical or irrational conversations or actions and admitted that Mr. Cottrell was "competent at times." Dr. McBarron testified as follows:

Q.—Could any man that suffered as he did in 1912 do business after that time?

A.—They do it, but should not.

Q.—Would he understand at that time how much property he had?

A.—He certainly would.

Q.—Would he know who the natural objects of his bounty were?

A.—Yes.

Q.—The fact is, doctor, that you became pretty close friends with this man eight years later?

A.—I certainly did.

Q.—And enjoyed his friendship?

A.—I certainly did," etc.

The medical testimony really boils down to this. In spite of the statements above quoted (made on cross examination) the appellants claim that this testimony proves that Mr. Cottrell was of unsound mind on account of his arterio sclerosis and attending complications. Experts as well as laymen are prone to error and, if their testimony can be said to support this claim in view of the cross examination, I am satisfied on the whole evidence that they erred in this case.

The way in which the best of experts may go wrong was well illustrated by the testimony of Dr. McBarron. After the most meticulous examination in 1913 he gave Mr. Cottrell a year or a year and a half to live. He lived, and lived abundantly, for ten years thereafter.

Contradictory Provisions.

The second claim to be considered under this head is the contradictory provisions in the will and contracts. The main underlying purpose of these provisions is manifestly the same and far from indicating mental incompetence shows a fixed and unalterable intention to do everything possible to carry them out. The differences come not in the main intent but in the details of execution. These differences may well indicate (as suggested by the appellees) a change of intention at the time the various documents were executed. The mere fact that a testator does not fully apprehend all the legal entanglements that may follow his acts does not in itself indicate unsoundness of mind. If it did, few will contests would result in sustaining the will.

I find that Edgar H. Cottrell had testamentary capacity and was of sound mind as defined at the outset of this discussion.

As to Undue Influence.

The appellants further claim that the will was procured by undue influence. They cite in this point the opportunities for its exercise and the control by Charles and Arthur of their brother's affairs, the provision of the will itself and the actions of the brothers towards Mrs. Cottrell before and after the decease of the testator.

Opportunity is not enough.

As for the control exercised over Edgar's affairs it is no greater than that exercised under similar circumstances in all families with which I am familiar.

My finding with reference to the will itself and the relations with Mrs. Cotrell before the death of the testator I have already sufficiently commented on.

The actions of Charles and Arthur after the death of their brother certainly left something to be desired, but after all they have a quite human explanation. At the first hearing in the probate court Mr. Charles Cottrell says that he was called "a criminal and everything else" and he apparently decided that he would do nothing further for the contestants without an order of court. This, neither by itself nor taken in connection with the other claims of the appellants, appears to me to sustain the burden of proof on the question of undue influence.

The testimony of Mr. Sherman on page 1572 of the transcript appears to me to be particularly significant on this point. He was a credible witness and the conversation to which he testified was certainly not that of a man whose free will had been overcome and who had been forced to do something contrary to his own volition and intention.

Judgment may be entered affirming the decree of the court of probate for the district of Stonington.

HEARINGS ON PETITIONS OF N. H. ROAD COMMUTERS

Hartford, March 4.—That commutation rates which were in effect prior to February 15 on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad were discriminatory in Connecticut, as compared to rates in Rhode Island and Massachusetts and in some cases in intra-state traffic, and that they failed to provide sufficient revenue to the road were the main contentions of Charles M. Sheafe, Jr. of New York, general solicitor for the road at a hearing for protesting commuters before the public utilities board here today. He said that his witnesses would produce evidence proving these contentions and showing standard, state-wide, commutation rate per mile.

The entire day was devoted to the testimony of two executives of the railroad, Edward G. Buckland, vice president and general counsel, and Benjamin Campbell, vice president in charge of traffic. A great mass of documentary evidence, numbering on all nineteen exhibits, was submitted by the road to show discrimination in the former commutation rates and to show that commuters have never paid a fair proportion of the revenue when the expense of providing service to them is considered.

One of the most significant statements made during the day was that of Mr. Campbell when he submitted figures showing that, from 1910 to 1923 there was an increase of approximately 5,000,000 in the total number of passengers of all classes carried; an increase of approximately 13,000,000 in the number of commuters carried; and a decrease of approximately 10,000,000 in the number of local passengers carried. This shows that approximately 10,000,000 patrons of the road who used ordinary tickets for short trips in 1910 had changed to the lower priced commutation tickets in 1923. Mr. Campbell coupled with this group of statistics another set showing that the amount of service required to carry commuters increased more than 10 per cent from 1910 to 1923 while the amount of revenue from commuters increased less than 3 per cent. The per cent of increase of number of commuters carried (based on tickets sold) was almost 113.

The hearing was adjourned to March 18.

City Court Cases

In the city court Tuesday morning the case of Joseph Steina which had been continued from Monday morning was called up. The charge of breach of the peace entered against Steina was nolled by Judge Arthur F. Libby.

The case against Fred Gagnon, who figured in a serious automobile accident near De Wolf's switch in Thamesville Sunday night was continued until Thursday. The case of non-support against Joseph Berchard of Taftville went over until Monday of next week.

The case of Theofil Lejeunesse of Taftville, for non-support was next called up and Lejeunesse was ordered by the court to pay his wife $25 weekly until April 7th.

The two Taftville men were arrested by Constable Parquette.

Mrs. Gardner at Fifth Ave. Musicale

New York papers note that at a reception and musicale for the League of American Pen Women-writers, poets, and presswomen—Jean Milholland, 247 Fifth avenue, Friday evening, following a talk on the poems of Sidney Landier and the reading of some of his poems by Mrs. Mitchell Taliaferro, who was born in Georgia, the native state of Lanier, Mrs. Leila Troland Gardner, a native of Norwich, was heard in a program of Negro spirituals. Mrs. Gardner was received with every evidence of favor by the newspaper women and their guests, who warmly praised her interpretation of the appealing songs of the South.

REMOVAL OF DAUGHERTY FROM CABINET IMMINENT

Rumor is Current That Developments at the White House Portend Early Retirement of the Attorney General—President Coolidge is in Possession of Information Regarding Department of Justice Officials Said to Be Involved in Evidence Produced in Chicago—The President Had Another Conference With Senator Borah, Prominent Among Republican Leaders, Who Advocates the Removal of Daugherty.

Washington, March 5—Hints that another important turn is impending in the fortunes of Attorney-General Daugherty were given today by developments at the White House and before the special senate committee appointed to investigate his administration of the department of justice.

As a result of the trend of the day's events there was a belief tonight in some well-informed quarters that the situation actually had reached the stage where the question of choosing a successor to Mr. Daugherty was being given serious consideration.

The White House had no comment to make beyond the statement that no demand for the attorney-general's resignation has yet been made, and that no one had been selected to take his place in the cabinet.

Coincident with the renewal of indications that President Coolidge was again given attention to the question of removing Mr. Daugherty from office the senate investigation committee conferred behind closed doors for nearly three hours with John W. H. Crim, special federal counsel in charge of the veterans bureau criminal investigation before the Chicago grand jury.

Important information was said by officials to have been given the committee by Mr. Crim. While he has not yet conferred personally with President Coolidge, information in his possession regarding department of justice officials, as well as the two members of congress said to be involved in the evidence produced at Chicago, is in the president's possession. Acting Attorney General Seymour conferred recently with the president after receiving a report of the Chicago disclosures from Mr. Crim.

A further development today was another conference between President Coolidge and Senator Borah, of Idaho, prominent in the recent movement among republican leaders for the removal of Mr. Daugherty. Senator Borah refused to discuss the subject of his white house call, but it was believed to be regarding Mr. Daugherty.

Chairman Brookhart said that the committee had agreed unanimously against taking any action which would hamper or embarrass Mr. Crim, who in turn was said to have promised his assistance in the work of the committee.

Several "important leads" and the names of department of justice officials and others believed to have information of interest to the committee were said by members to have been disclosed during Mr. Crim's long walk with the senators. After conferring with the entire senate committee, Mr. Crim had an extended conference alone with Senator Moses of New Hampshire, prominent in administration affairs, who earlier today talked with President Coolidge.

Much evidence given in the Chicago grand jury room which has not yet been made public is said to be in the possession of President Coolidge, and all of it that is pertinent will be applied in his reconsideration of the question of Mr. Daugherty's continuance in the cabinet. Another factor to be considered is whether Mr. Daugherty, under fire of the senate investigation and engrossed with that fight, will be able to function effectively as attorney general.

Committee procedure was discussed further at today's meeting with Mr. Crim, and it is still the present plan first to take up charges that the attorney general has been negligent in enforcing the anti-trust laws.

With Attorney General Daugherty's affairs before both the white house and the senate, the house today also took a hand by adopting resolutions calling on the department of justice for information about the war frauds prosecution. One resolution by Representative Connally, democrat, Texas, called for the names and compensation of special attorneys engaged in the war frauds section and paid from the $500,000 fund appropriated annually for the last two years. Another resolution, by Representative Howard, democrat, Nebraska, called for similar information regarding the number of persons prosecuted in the fraud cases and the settlements made with and without prosecutions.

ASTONISHING CHARGES AGAINST OFFICIALS

Washington, March 5—Its sensibilities already overtaxed by the kaleidoscopic career of the oil scandal, the national capital is about to witness the further ordeal of a grand jury investigation into astonishing charges against several important public officials.

President Coolidge has ordered that of the mysterious allusions to wrong doing in Washington contained in a recent Chicago grand jury report be sifted to the bottom. Plans to carry his instructions into effect already have begun, and the presentation of evidence on which criminal indictments will be sought will start within a few days.

The charges, turned up incidently in the course of the Chicago Veterans Bureau inquiry, relate to a number of subjects unconnected with the bureau and involving at least two members of the house of representatives, who are alleged to have improperly accepted money.

At least one "high official" is accused of having used official information for purposes of speculation; liquor permit withdrawals are said to have been issued illegally, pardons are said to have been improperly secured, and government files are said to have been entrusted to persons not entitled to them.

All of these charges were mentioned by the Chicago grand jury in its report, with the notation that it was without authority to act on them. No names were included in the report, however. As a result rumors that rival some of the choicest whispered stories of the oil scandal are running like wildfire through congressional cloak rooms and over the broad sweep of the government departments.

John W. H. Crim, who as special assistant attorney-general placed the government's evidence before the veterans grand jury in Chicago, has declined to divulge the names of the accused men to senate and house members who have proposed an investigation, but their identity has been disclosed to acting Attorney-General Seymour and to President Coolidge.

Mr. Crim has taken the position that to lay the evidence before a committee of congress might embarrass its presentation to the grand jury, which probably will begin early next week. In this view congressional leaders generally have agreed.

CONSIDERING SUCCESSOR FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL

Washington, March 5—(By the A. P.)—The question of attorney-general Daugherty's immediate retirement from the cabinet is again receiving serious consideration.

The situation today suddenly developed to a point where the selection of a successor was taken under advisement at the white house.

Those under consideration for the post include William S. Kenyon former senator, from Iowa, and now a judge of the eighth United States circuit court of appeals; Frank S. Dietrich, federal district judge of Idaho; and Curtis D. Wilbur, chief justice of the supreme court of California.

Steps have been taken indirectly to ascertain from each of the three men whether he would accept if appointed but no definite selection has been made.

DAUGHERTY IS NOW EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON

Miami Fla., March 5—Attorney General Daugherty left Miami at 10.35 o'clock tonight for Washington without making a statement on dispatches from Washington, that his immediate retirement from the cabinet is impending.

Those close to the attorney-general said there "was nothing new in the dispatches" to the cabinet member and that he would not make a statement or talk for publication on the latest developments in the case.

The attorney-general has had reservations since yesterday.

Mrs. Daugherty, who has been at Miami Beach for several weeks, did not accompany the attorney general north.

MUSCLE SHOALS OFFER DISCUSSED IN THE HOUSE

Washington, March 5.—The house talked itself out today on Muscle Shoals but adjourned determined to resume discussion of Henry Ford's offer tomorrow.

For nearly four hours debate which began yesterday on the McKenzie bill providing for acceptance of the Ford bid went along at a steady clip, then suddenly terminated when no one appeared willing to continue the discussion. Only fifty members were on the floor when adjournment was taken.

General debate on the bill, limited to ten hours, will be completed tomorrow, clearing the way for the offering of amendments. Representative Hull, republican, Iowa, leading the fight against the measure said that a least a dozen amendments which would materially alter the terms of the proposed contract, would be offered.

Proponents of the McKenzie bill agreed today to accept an amendment specifying that the heirs and assigns of Mr. Ford should be obligated for one hundred years to carry out provisions of the contract.

Among those who urged acceptance of Ford's offer today were Representative James, republican, Michigan; Fisher, Tennessee; Geran, New Jersey; Hill, Alabama; McSwain, South Carolina; and Wright, George, democrats, all members of the military committee which reported the McKenzie bill.

$16,000,000 DAMAGE BY EARTH SHOCKS IN COSTA RICA

San Jose, Costa Rica, March 5—(By the A. P.)—The estimated loss in government buildings and churches from the earthquakes which have been in progress for two days is about $15,000,000. The private losses are very heavy but have not been estimated.

Four hundred and eleven earth shocks occurred in twelve hours and the tremors continue in a milder form.

There are many appeals for help coming from the west, but thus far very few casualties have been reported, as the first shock gave the people time to find places of safety. The government has ordered the closing of all administrative offices on account of the damage to official buildings.

The American embassy building in San Jose was not badly damaged and there were no casualties there.

20,000 BARRELS OF BEER POURED INTO A RIVER

It is understood that Paul Hymans, former foreign minister, will take over the department of foreign affairs. Both the Flemish right and Christian democrats will be represented in the cabinet, the former probably by M. Poullet, president of the chamber of deputies.

PRESSURE AGAINST THE FRENCH FRANC IN EUROPE

New York, March 5.—Two interesting developments in today's foreign exchange market were the establishment of a new low record since 1921 by Spanish pesetas at 12.13 cents, an overnight drop of 24 points, and the offering of French francs for future delivery at quotations 5 to 25 points below the demand rate, which held fairly steady today around 4.04 cents. Weakness of Spanish exchange was attributed to reports of further disorders in Morocco.

The eight point spread between the demand and 30 day rates on French francs was the widest that local traders could recall. It was attributed to the heavy speculative pressure against the French franc in European financial centers, Paris included, and the general pessimism concerning the future of the French currency.

Thirty day bills were quoted at four cents flat, 60 days 3.93 cents and 90 days at 3.87 cents. The extreme low record for the demand was 4.02 1-2 cents established early this week. Ordinarily a buyer of francs for future delivery would be required to pay a small premium above the demand rate, amounting to a fraction of a point, which condition held until about a month ago. Early in February franc futures moved to a discount, which has steadily increased since that time.

The wide discounts quoted applied only to trading between banks. Outside interests purchasing francs for future delivery were offered about 5 points under the demand rate.

COOLIDGE DENIES FILIPINO PLEA FOR INDEPENDENCE

Washington, March 5.—The Philippine plea for immediate independence was dealt a stinging blow today by President Coolidge.

The president in a letter to Manuel Roxas, head of the Philippine independence mission, declared flatly the administration did not believe the time had come to grant independence to the Filipino people and asserted that grievances against Governor-General Wood were unjustified and were like the independence appeal, unsupported by a considerable portion of the islands' population.

Mr. Coolidge's views on the Philippine question were embodied in a three thousand word letter covering almost every angle of the controversy ranging about that problem. It was written in reply to resolutions adopted by the Philippine legislature and presented to the White House several weeks ago by the independence mission. It will form, in the opinion of political observers here, the basis of the Philippine independence plank to be inserted in the republican platform for the forthcoming presidential campaign.

Opposition to any immediate grant of complete autonomy to the Philippines was based by the president on the danger of the Filipino people of economic or political disorders, perhaps even amounting to disaster, in event of withdrawal of American support and protection; inability of the Filipino people at present to maintain the financial burden that would be imposed by political independence, and lack of the political capacity necessary to the people of a minor nation assuming the full responsibility of maintaining itself in the family of nations.

THREE BANDITS GOT $5,800 PAYROLL IN CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge, Mass., Mar. 5.—The police were still searching late today for three men who held up a negro messenger of the Central Trust company and robbed him of $5,800 payroll money. Rufus A. Johnson, the victim, gave the police the license number of an automobile in which the bandits escaped but the plate was found to have been stolen from another automobile.

Johnson was about to enter the office of the Elliott Addressing Machine company with the payroll funds which he carried in a leather satchel when two men who leaped from a touring car at the curb levelled revolvers at his head and took the bag. One of the bandits then felled Johnson with a blow of his revolver butt, and when the negro recovered the automobile driven by an accomplice had disappeared. The messenger gave the police descriptions of his assailants.

OBJECTS TO THIRD STANZA OF STAR SPANGLED BANNER

New York, March 5—Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, who financed the $1,250,000 First Church of Christ Science in this city, testified before Deputy Commissioner of Accounts Loudon she had spent $16,000 for advertising space in New York newspapers in a campaign to strike the third stanza from the Star Spangled banner.

Subpoenaed for the deputy commissioner's investigation of financial sources for an alleged flood of propaganda against the national anthem Mrs. Stetson declared her advertising was prompted by a life ambition to foster peace and good will on earth. The third stanza of Francis Scott Key's poem was subversive to both peace and good will, she declared.

Mrs. Stetson told of erecting hte First Church of Christ Scientist in this city and of having spent $179,000 here in the last three years in the publication of Christian Science doctrines.

Delivers Pledge of British Friendship

New Ambassador Bearer to President Coolidge of Messages of Cordial and Sincere Good Will.

Washington, Mar. 5.—King George sees in the good understanding between Great Britain and the United States, "the best guarantee for the future peace of the world."

This declaration was made today to President Coolidge at the request of the king by Sir Esme Howard and marked the presentation of the new ambassador's credentials to the American chief executive.

Replying to the ambassador's statement, President Coolidge asserted that the "conscious identity of general aims" existing between the United States and the British government "will be a mighty force in bringing to the world a just and lasting peace."

"Before leaving England," Sir Esme said, "I was charged both by his majesty the king and his prime minister with messages of cordial and sincere good will and friendship towards the United States and towards you, sir, as president of this great republic."

"The king," he added, "further desired me to say that he sees in the good understanding between the two countries the best guarantee for the future peace of the world. Both his majesty and the prime minister referred with heartfelt satisfaction to the cordial relations now existing between the two countries."

President Coolidge in reply said in part:

"The greetings and expressions of friendship which you bear from his majesty, the king, and from the prime minister of your country are cordially reciprocated and, together with your own well known good will, give every assurance of the success of your mission in promoting that good understanding and intimacy of intercourse which both governments desire to maintain.

"Happily no clouds shadow the relations between our two countries.

"When two nations cherish similar ideals, growing out of a common regard for disciplined liberty, for truth and love of justice, they seek to work in essential harmony. It is this common foundation, this conscious identity of general aims which, I believe, will be a mighty force in bringing to the world a just and lasting peace. In your relations with this government you may always be assured of sympathy and understanding."

MUST PRODUCE $100,000,000 MORE THAN HOUSE TAX BILL

Washington, March 5.—The tax reduction bill passed by the house will have to be remodelled to provide for $100,000,000 more revenue, Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee announced tonight on the eve of consideration of the measure by that committee. Basing his calculations on estimates reported this week by the treasury department that the house bill would cut off $446,000,000 in revenue in the calendar year 1925, Mr. Smoot said this would fall by $100,000,000 to provide funds for the working expenses of the government alone, exclusive of a soldier bonus bill or other pending extra appropriation measures.

Mr. Smoot declared that undoubtedly some of the tax rates would have to be changed to meet this expected deficit but expressed no opinion as to what taxes would be affected pending consideration of the bill by the senate committee. The principal tax reductions made by the house were in the personal income taxes, the miscellaneous or excise taxes and a special deduction of 25 per cent on earned incomes.

This situation will be presented to the committee tomorrow by Senator Smoot when it holds its first session for consideration of the bill.

FAMILY MAY HAVE BEEN VICTIMS OF SUICIDE PACT

Atlantic City, N. J., March 5—That George Meade Thomas, 35, world war veteran, his wife, Lola and their two year old son, George, Jr., who died of asphyxiation, may have been the victims of a suicide pact was intimated today by County Physician Louis R. Souder, who is conducting an investigation into the circumstances surrounding the tragedy.

Thomas who was found unconscious in a gas-filled room Monday night beside the bodies of his wife and child, died in the Atlantic City hospital last night. Police assert that when they broke into the room Thomas and his wife were stretched on the bed partly clothed. Gas was flowing from a cook stove jet and all the windows were tightly closed, they said.

George M. Thomas, of Philadelphia, father of the dead man, who arrived here today, scouted the suicide theory, but admitted that his son had been in financial straits for some time.

Amnesty for Army And Navy Deserters

President Coolidge Rest[illegible] Rights of Americ[illegible] ship to Post[illegible] 1918 to 1921.

Washington, March 5.—President Coolidge by proclamation today restored the rights to American citizenship to all deserters from the army and navy during the three-year period between the armistice and the formal ending of the World war.

The proclamation, issued upon the recommendation of Secretaries Denby and Weeks, affects in nowise those who deserted in the face of the enemy or at any time before the armistice, and does not remit or commute the court martial sentences of those who deserted after the armistice and prior to the technical ending of the war.

The president acted to clear up a situation whereby under the law those who deserted after the fighting ceased suffered the same loss of citizenship as those who left the military forces during the war's prosecution. The war was actually over on November 11, 1918, but all who deserted after that date and before the last proclamation of peace on Nov. 17, 1921, were deemed under the law voluntarily to have relinquished and forfeited their rights of citizenship, as well as their rights to become citizens, and to be forever incapable of holding any office of trust or profit under the United States or of exercising any of the rights of American citizenship.

Secretary Denby in a letter to the president, made public at the navy department coincident with issuance of the proclamation at the White House, declared the citizenship penalties "however justifiable in cases of desertion committed during the prosecution of a war, are uncommonly harsh and severe for offenses committed at any other time."

"With mere boys, as many of them were when they deserted, a full conception of the statutory disabilities which confronted them was not possible," Mr. Denby said. "It is during the years which have ensued, and which they may yet have to live, as they grow to manhood and old age, that they realize the terrible consequence of their offense and the shame which it involves and which, unless relieved, they must carry with them to the grave, to the everlasting dishonor of themselves and their posterity. They are forever marked men living in a country without any of the benefits of citizenship and forever deprived of obtaining such benefits."

REPARATION EXPERTS MAY REPORT WEEK OF MARCH 16

Paris, March 5—(By the A. P.)—The reparations experts who have been examining into Germany's financial position now expect to hand in their report to the reparation commission in the early part of the week beginning March 16. Before that time they will have a meeting with the members of the reparation commission, in the course of which the substance of their report will be explained.

Despite the desire of Charles G. Dawes, the American representative, and his colleagues to make the report succinct, it seems likely it will run into many thousands of words. In order to relieve that section making recommendations on details of the various plans the subjects will be dealt with in annexes. It appears now to be clearly established that the experts will not recommend ever a momentary moratorium.

They will, it is announced, estimate the period necessary for the recovery of German finances and the balancing of the budget.

The report is also likely to be silent on the question of the total payments Germany may be able to make, though provisions probably will be suggested for determining the total paying capacity of the Reich, if this is necessary.

OFFICES OF BROKER G. F. REDMOND CO. CLOSED

Boston, March 5.—Deputy federal marshals today took possession of the offices of the G. F. Redmond Company, Inc., investment brokers, in Boston, Worcester and Springfield as a result of a federal court injunction and receivership proceeding. The offices of Withington and company, Boston brokers said to be allied with the Redmond concern also were closed by court order.

George F. Redmond, founder and treasurer of the firm, once a waiter in a Boston restaurant and now living in a pretentious residence in West Newton issued a statement in which he asserted that the firm never failed to meet any of its obligations. The "deliberate wrecking" of the good will of the public, he said, would result in an injury to the business.

A statement of the firm's condition filed with the secretary of state in January last gave its cash on hand as $9,088,924, accounts receivable $338,707 and accounts payable $7,965,269.

"KING OF BOOTLEGGERS" PAROLED FOR PRISON

Derigibus, who was said by Cummings to have profited to the extent of "several hundred thousand dollars" by his illicit trade, carried on on a gigantic scale, was convicted in the superior court at Bridgeport March 6, 1923 and sentenced to prison by Judge John P. Kellogg. He will resume his residence in Bridgeport where he is living, on Ocean avenue, at the time of his arrest.

SQUADRON OF 21 SHIPS HAS JOINED THE RUM ROW FLEET

Under Cover of Heavy Fog the Vessels Were Led Into Formation by the British Steam Yacht Istar—Cargoes Total 160,000 Cases of Liquor, With Valuation Placed at $8,000,000—Customs Authorities Say that Price Per Case Will Be Approximately $50 F. O. B.—Small Two Man Boats Are Fed From the "Mother Ships".

New York, March 5—Slipping in from the high seas under cover of a heavy rolling fog, 21 vessels, headed by the British steam yacht Istar, today rattled anchor chains along Rum Row and swung into formation to dispose of 160,000 cases of liquor—$8,000,000 worth.

Thus the squadron presented to the coast guard cutters, who reported its discovery, approximated pre-holiday strength. There were 23 rum ships of the line before Christmas. But, according to the customs authorities, the vessels out there now are enough larger to more than make up in cargo capacity for the slightly smaller number.

The price—also according to customs authorities—will be approximately $50 a case f. o. b. Rum Row. They admitted, however, that their efforts to board the Istar today met with as little success as attended a similar strategy attempted a year ago when the British yacht first became "the flagship Istar" and "Queen of the Fleet."

Six steamships, all former tramp freighters, were described by the authorities as the backbone of the fleet. There were a couple of converted yachts smaller than the Istar nine three stack schooners and four other nondescripts which the customs men called "sea going tubs, gas and sailing." There were several new name plates among them, and enough new paint to indicate that a few commanders had taken advantage of the heavy weather and dull market to slip off to a quiet haven for repairs as well as for fresh cargoes.

Coast guard cutter men said today they had discovered a new system of liasion established between the fleet and the shore since the proposed treaty with Great Britain authorized search and seizure within 12 miles, or an hour's sail from port. Between the "mother ships" and the small two man motor boats, whose deep water zone of operations is limited, has been established a secondary fleet of intermediate sized craft, it was reported.

These "half way" ships, according to the authorities, are faster than the steamers and more mobile. They take a few hundred cases from the row, slip in a few miles nearer shore, and there drop anchor, to await the arrival of the boat fishermen, whose vocation is the smuggling of liquor to land runners.

The customs men declared these half way craft met each day at established rendezvous. They already have spotted such rendezvous, they said off Montauk Point, Atlantic Highlands, Asbury Park, Atlantic City, Long Beach and Waterwitch—along the New York and New Jersey coasts.

FOUR VARIETIES IN BILLS FOR SOLDIERS' BONUS

Washington, March 5.—Four varieties of soldier bonus bills were before the house ways and means committee at the conclusion of public hearings today and are expected to form the basis of committee action in framing a measure. Executive sessions of the committee at which the bill will be drafted will begin tomorrow.

The propositions which received most attention in the hearings were: Straight out cash payments in full of adjusted compensation.

Restriction of a bonus entirely to paid-up insurance policies.

A two option measure providing for full cash payments on insurance policies.

The four option McKenzie bill, similar to that vetoed by President Harding, providing for cash payments to those not entitled to more than $50; adjusted service certificates, to form of deferred payment, vocational training and farm or home aid.

Other propositions also were advanced, including one of Representative Hayden, democrat, Arizona, to include in the McKenzie measure a fifth option providing for land settlements. The first four, however, gained most support.

The twofold proposition to allow either full cash payments or the insurance policies was advanced today by the special committee of veterans named by the house democratic conference to represent that body at the committee hearings. The plan is not binding on the democrats as a whole, it was explained, and Representative Jeffers, Alabama, chairman of the committee asked that it not be considered as a partisan view.

The proposition received the support of several other spokesmen, including Representative Murphy, republican, Ohio.

John R. Quinn, national commander of the American Legion, presented the request of that organization for adoption of a bonus plan immediately, adding that the legion had unanimously endorsed the bill passed last session; similar to that now introduced by Representative McKenzie, republican, Illinois.

COMMON STOCK DIVIDEND BY THE WESTINGHOUSE CO.

New York, March 5.—A ten per cent common stock dividend in addition to regular quarterly dividends on common and preferred stock were declared today by directors of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, who also approved an additional issue of $17,955,000 in common stock to finance the company's industrial expansion. The new stock will be offered to stockholders of record on March 17 at $52.50 a share. The stock dividend will be payable to shareholders of record on May 2.

A sharp break in the company's shares occurred last Friday on reports of new financing, a new loan for the year of 5 5-8 being established. They had recovered nearly two points yesterday, but slumped again early today to a low of 60 1-4, jumping to 62 3-8 on the dividend news, but closed at 61 3-4c, with a net gain for the day of 1-2 point.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The oil committee suspended its public hearings to examine more telegrams.

The tariff commission made its report to President Coolidge on wheat duties.

President Coolidge informed the Philippine independence mission that the time was not ripe for Philippine independence.

The democratic veterans' committee laid before the house ways and means committee a new bonus plan.

The Norbeck-Burtness crop diversification bill was laid aside in the senate until next week, because of growing opposition.

Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, announced he believed the "principal" referred to in McLean telegrams was President Coolidge.

Indications of another important turn in the fortunes of Attorney General Daugherty were seen in developments at the White House and before the special senate investigation committee.

Opposition developed in the senate to Samuel Knight as counsel to conduct the Standard Oil cases on the ground that he had been counsel for a bank in which the Rockefellers are interested.

Amnesty was granted by President Coolidge to all deserters from the army and navy during the period between the armistice and the official conclusion of the world war.

White House officials said every phase of the evidence developed before the Chicago veterans' grand jury and not passed upon because of lack of jurisdiction would be gone into by a grand jury here.

FARM RELIEF BILL MEETS WITH OPPOSITION IN SENATE

Washington, March 5.—Growing opposition in the senate to the proposal that the government finance crop diversification, led to the temporarily laying aside late today of the Norbeck Burtness bill, which would make such provision in favor of appropriation measures. An agreement was reached, however, to take up the farm relief Monday under an arrangement for limiting debate so that final action can be taken within a few hours.

Although centered upon the bill under consideration, the opposition extended also to the McNary-Haugen bill which would establish a $100,000,000 corporation to export surplus farm products. Senator McLean, republican, Connecticut, recalling that some members to the farm bloc had expressed their preference for this bill, declared it could only result in "increasing the surplus, if it was successful, and would be of no value otherwise." The bill was defended by its co-author Senator McNary, republican, Oregon, who denied it was intended to insure a profit on farm commodities.

"The bill is designed," he explained, "to place the farmer upon a fair competitive basis with other producers by giving him the ratio-price equal to the pre-war prices of manufactured goods."

G. HOWARD ROBERTS HELD ON CHARGE OF BIGAMY

Greenwich, Conn., Mar. 5.—G. Howards Robers, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., was brought here today on extradition papers from White Plains, N. Y., on a charge of bigamy. Mead, of this place, and that he swore in the marriage license that he was single. His first wife is living in Yonkers and he is said to have one or more children. His case will come up in court tomorrow.

MOST PERFECT TURQUOISE WEIGHS ABOUT 400 CARATS

Chicago, March 5.—A gem regarded by collectors as the largest and most perfect turquoise in the world was presented to the Field museum today by Hohannes Topakyan, grand vizier of Persia, and former consul general to the United States.

The stone, which weighs about 400 carats, long was an heirloom in the family of the donor. Its history crosses the lives of shahs and lasts for generations. The gem is about the size of a small hen's egg and approximately the same shape.

WILLIMANTIC

County Detective William E. Jackson was fined $5 and costs in the police court, Wednesday morning, when he was found guilty on a charge of assaulting Philip Pagano whose place of business Jackson and federal officers raided the early part of February. Attorney Gaucher entered a demurrer to the complaint for his client, which demurrer was overruled by Judge Foss.

Pagano alleged that he had been struck by Jackson in his store during the raid, again on the way to the police station and at the entrance to police headquarters and a fourth time in the station house. Pagano said that he offered no resistance. Prosecuting Attorney Harvey expressed himself as strongly in favor of maximum penalty, as in his opinion the assault was aggravated. "An officer in his right senses would not do such a thing," said the prosecutor. "It was the most despicable thing that could happen and there evidently was some malice back of it." As Pagano had been cut quite severely on the side of the head Attorney Harvey asked that a heavy fine be imposed.

The stand which the prosecutor took in this case has special significance in the eyes of those who are familiar with the fact that Jackson and Harvey have been at odds for some time.

Attorney Gaucher interrupted the remarks of the case, protesting that it was not necessary for the prosecutor to express his opinion as Jackson had entered a demurrer to the complaint and was ready to stand judgment. The only matter that should be discussed was the imposition of a fine.

Judge Foss stated that although the entering of a demurrer was practically an admission of guilt in the mind of the local court, he did not believe that a heavy fine was necessary. He imposed the fine of $5 and costs, totalling $30.15. Attorney Gaucher immediately gave notice of an appeal to the next term of the Windham county superior court. Bonds were fixed at $100 and were furnished by David M. Strong.

Emile Houle answered to a charge of intoxication at the session of police court Wednesday morning. Houle was arrested by Officer Caisse after he had refused to heed a warning that he had better go home. The accused said that he had a job to go to and that this was his first offense. A fine of $2 and costs amounting to $9.15 was imposed and paid.

Elphege ("Blacky") Potvin whose home on Temple street the local officers raided early Tuesday evening was unperturbed when presented in court Wednesday morning. Quantities of alcohol and moonshine were exhibited as evidence against the accused.

Potvin was charged with keeping intoxicating liquor with intent to sell and pleaded guilty. When Judge Foss asked the accused how he had been making his living since he went out of the barber business some six months ago, "Blacky" calmly pointed to the evidence and said, "Selling that stuff."

Judge Foss and Prosecuting Attorney Harvey and all those present agreed that Potvin was honest about his guilt. It was his first appearance in court on that charge.

A fine of $200 and costs, amounting to $201.00 was imposed along with a ten day jail sentence. Potvin was taken to jail later in the day and it is understood that he will also work out the fine and costs, in which case he will spend some two hundred days at Brooklyn.

When Potvin's place was raided Tuesday night, he was not about the premises and for a time it was thought that he had left town, but he was located Wednesday morning in the Windham house by Chief McArthur.

Judge Foss has put aside all leniency of late in handing out fines and jail sentences on violators of the liquor law. Tuesday morning he fined Philip Pagano $100 and costs, besides a ten day jail sentence. Pagano entered a demurrer when presented on a charge of keeping liquor with intent to sell and when found guilty took an appeal to superior court.

The plumbers' local, with about thirty members present, gathered at an enjoyable banquet Tuesday evening at the Hotel Johnson. John R. McCarthy was the toastmaster. A general discussion took place concerning an improvement in the local plumbing code, which was fixed by a past board of aldermen. Conditions along the plumbing line in this city are deplorable, it was stated and several well known authorities have protested that they should be remedied. It was also brought out that the code as in force at present, has not been enforced for the past six years. The banqueters agreed that the plumbing inspector of the city should be a man employed in a shop and that the appointee should be an employe of the street, sewers or some municipal department, such condition to be for the best interest of the city.

E. P. Armstrong, state commander of the American Legion, will visit this city at a meeting Sunday, March 16, with a view to instilling new interest in the legion locally. Commander Armstrong will deliver an address before the ex-service men and the general public. Following the meeting the committees and the representatives of all the posts in the county will convene, for the purpose of perfecting a county organization and reviving interest in the legion. Similar campaigns have been carried out in other parts of the state and their results have resulted in greatly arousing new interest in the organization for world war veterans. Prior to his visit here Commander Armstrong will speak in Putnam, North Grosvenordale, Danielson and Hampton.

One gross of bottles of Canadian wine and several quarts of moonshine liquor were smashed on the cement floor of the cell room at the police station Wednesday afternoon and the destruction of the first named concoction fairly brought tears to the eyes of several persons who were witnesses.

The Canadian wine had been seized by local officers on the night of January 7 from a Ford coupe driven by James Gilbert, of Saratoga Springs, N. Y. Gilbert was convicted in the local police court and fined $200 and costs. The other liquors which were sent down the sewer included that seized from Elphege Potvin, who was convicted Wednesday morning. The wholesale destruction was carried out by Chief of Police MacArthur on orders from the police court officials.

At the session of superior court in Hartford Tuesday, Walter Arson of Manchester, charged with the theft of an automobile belonging to the Hartford Electric Light company, pleaded guilty when tried before Judge William M. Maltbie. Arson placed the car in a Willimantic garage for repairs and was arrested by Chief of Police MacArthur when he called for the machine. He was sentenced to the reformatory. "Taking automobiles is becoming a pastime rather than a crime," said Judge Maltbie after listening to an eloquent plea of "extenuating circumstances" and "first offense." The court thought that the way to curb the growing practice was by imposing heavy penalties, and the time was now. Arson is a former Willimantic man, having resided here with his father.

The run of mumps has abated considerably of late, after being manifest here during the latter part of January and during February. According to the number of contagious diseases reported to City Health Officer Dr. W. P. S. Keating during the last month by local physicians, there was a total of twenty-nine cases, as follows: scarlet fever 3, lobar pneumonia 1, mumps 25.

Large numbers in the morning attended the masses and distribution of ashes. Wednesday evening at 7.30 o'clock services were held at both churches, with sermons and benediction of the Blessed Sacrament and distribution of the ashes.

The annual Shrove Tuesday dance of the auxiliary of the Spanish War Veterans was held at the Al-Pierre Tabarin in the evening, the affair being a social success. Sixty couples attended. Music was by the Peerless orchestra.

An interesting stereopticon lecture was delivered at the Salvation Army hall, Tuesday evening, by Major Thomas Seaver of Hartford. Over thirty people attended. Major Seaver described the various phases of Salvation Army work.

The Ladies' society of the Congregational church held an all-day meeting Wednesday. Rev. P. Hawthorne Jones gave a most interesting talk on "India, Its People and Their Religion," at the afternoon session.

The class in millinery, under the auspices of the Catholic Welfare council, held its last lesson this week. Under the guidance of Mrs. Archille Veglard millinery and fancy work have been greatly enjoyed. Another class is to be formed to take up spring millinery.

February will go down in the history of the local police department as one of the quietest months. According to Chief Allen MacArthur's report only twenty-three arrests were made. Only four of this number were for intoxication. Thirty is the average minimum of arrests for a month.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

Property owners in Stafford feel pleased at the outcome of the town meeting, held in Warren Memorial Hall Tuesday evening. It was voted to lay a tax of 17 mills on the dollar, which is one mill less than last year's rate. This rate will be ample to pay the running expenses of the town and there will be some left for incidental expenses. Although the reduction is small, taxpayers feel that it is a step in the right direction. It was voted to allow the local post of the American legion the use of the hall at actual cost of opening, heating lighting and janitor service, at no time to exceed $15.00. A motion to have all local organizations use the hall on the same terms as the legion was lost. William H. Heald acted as chairman of the meeting and J. Car Converse was clerk. Only two women attended the meeting.

Ash Wednesday services were held at St. Edward's and Grace churches Wednesday morning and evening.

The plan of the post office department to give Stafford Springs village mail delivery is not meeting with much favor in the borough. Inasmuch as the receipts at the local post office are large enough to warrant city delivery, there are those in the borough who feel that if there is to be any delivery, it should be on the city plan with at least two deliveries each day and delivery of parcel post. The plan now contemplated will give only one delivery a day and will not include delivery of parcel post mail.

A petition requesting that the plan be changed to city delivery has been circulated and is now at Pariseau's store on Main street.

An examination for letter carriers will be held at the post office on March 15th.

Reno Corsini was fined $5.00 and costs amounting in all to $14.93 by Judge Heald, in the borough court Tuesday morning on the charges of assault and breach of the peace.

Corsini became involved in an argument with John Harold over a truck, at the Rhode Island mill and after both parties had used considerable strong language Harold claimed that Corsini struck him on the side of the head. He had a warrant sworn out for Corsini's arrest.

There was a large attendance at the Shrove Tuesday social in St. Edward's hall Tuesday evening. There was whist playing from eight until 10 o'clock and dancing from 10 until midnight.

Two large electric light globes with bronze fixtures have been placed near the door on the west side of the First National Bank building. The interior repairs on the bank are rapidly nearing completion.

JEWETT CITY

Miss Margaret Grant, first trick operator for two years at the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad station, went to Putnam Monday, as ticket agent at the Putnam station. Her position here has not been filled but is up for bids.

There was a good sized attendance at the weekly handicap shoot held at the local rifle range Monday and Tuesday evenings considering that many of the shooters took the opportunity of having a vacation out of town for the few days the local mills were idle.

A continued improvement was noticed in the shooting done by many of the new members who are fast climbing into the professional class. Capt. Ed Nicols, the shooting master, has full confidence that his will soon be equal or superior to any riflemen in this locality using the standard equipment as issued by the government.

Next week the Ashland sporting committee has decided to hold the popular Crow Shooting Contest which has been requested by all the shooters. Many new faces will be seen on the firing line at this time.

Following were the prize winners which were allotted to the 1st, 2nd, 10th, and 18th positions: H. Fountain, eveready flash light, F. Stanley, stag horn hunting knife, A. Harris, box of target ammunition, H. Pippin, Gillette safety razor set. The scores follow:

Ash Wednesday was observed at St. Mary's church by largely attended services.

The officers were reelected: President Dr. Jennings; vice president, Mr. Faust, secretary and treasurer, Mr. Tripp and they constitute the executive committee. Miss Mabel Wilcox, was reappointed librarian.

George A. Haskell, who is very ill, was more comfortable on Wednesday.

PERIOD OF CHRIST'S FASTING RECALLED BY CATHOLICS

Yesterady, Ash Wednesday, the beginning of the forty days of Lent, commemorating the forty days during which the Saviour fasted in the desert, Matt, IV. 1-11, the 8 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church was read by the rector, Rev. M. H. May. There was a large congregation, the children of the parish occupying the pews on either side of the center aisle.

Father May blessed the ashes, obtained by burning the palms remaining from Palm Sunday, reading Psalm 68, beginning, "Hear me, O, Lord for thy loving-kindness is good," the different prayers, also Joel2, "Let us change our garments for sack-cloth and ashes," etc. Esther 13, "Let us amend for the better in those things in which we have sinned through ignorance," etc. and Psalm 78, "Help us, O, God, our Saviour; and for the honor of Thy name, O, Lord, deliver us. "The introit of the mass was Wisdom 11, "Thou hast mercy upon all, O, Lord, and hatest none of the things which Thou has made. "The epistle was Joel 2, 12-19, while the gospel was Matthew 6, 16-21, beginning, "When you fast, be not as the hypocrites, sad. For they disfigure their faces, that they may appear unto men to fast."

The people moved up the middle aisle to the sanctuary railing, kneeling, while the priests, Father May and his assistants, Fathers Myles P. Galvin and Rocco J. Guerriero, signed the forehead of each person with the sacred ashes, in the form of the Cross, repeating each time in Latin, "Remember, O, man, that dust thou art and unto dust thou shalt return." The people then left the church by the side aisle.

In the evening, at 7:30, there was the same imposition of the ashes by the three priests following the Rosary and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament given by Father Galvin.

DRUNKEN AUTO DRIVERS SHOW BIG INCREASE

Arrests of motor vehicle operators in the past year for driving while intoxicated increased more than 74 per cent. over the record of 1923, it is disclosed by a recapitulation of court abstracts received at the state motor vehicle department. Arrests for reckless driving increased over 70 per cent., and 311 drivers landed in jail for conviction of these offenses as against only thirty-eight sentenced for such causes in the previous year.

Nearly half the arrests made under the motor vehicle law were for drunkenness while driving, and other forms of reckless driving. For intoxication, 803 were arrested as against 460 in 1923 and 419 in 1921, and 3,285 were arrested for reckless driving, compared to 1,925 in 1923 and 1,663 in 1921. Operation of automobiles by persons rendered unsafe by drinking caused the department more concern during the year than in any corresponding period since the department was organized nearly seven years ago. Of these arrested last year for driving while drunk, 557 were convicted, all of whose licenses to operate were suspended forthwith. The department also freely suspended the licenses of operators convicted of reckless driving.

Fines imposed in courts throughout the state for violations of the motor vehicle laws aggregated $144,665 for 1923, in addition to which $51,525 was paid by automobilists in court costs, $7,607 in forfeited bonds and $18,494 in cases that were nolled for a sum. The big increase in jail sentences for drunken and otherwise reckless drivers followed bulletins issued by the department last summer encouraging imprisonment in such cases as a deterrent to a practice that was greatly increasing the danger of driving in Connecticut. In addition to the 311 sent to jail for these two causes, forty-six were sentenced for other violations of motor vehicle laws, making the total of jail sentences for all such violations nearly six times greater than the number imposed in any other year.

PROTESTANT CHURCHES IN UNION BIBLE LECTURES

At the Central Baptist church this (Thursday) evening the first of the five Thursday evening lecture hours will be held. The protestant churches are urging all Sunday school teachers, all their young people, all new members and all persons interested in the Bible to attend.

Professor M. A. Honline of California is the lecturer. He speaks on the Bible for one session and then after a brief intermission on Religious Pedagogy. It is expected that the first hour will attract especially the general public. Recent controversies among religious thinkers have made the questions of Bible origins, purposes, messages, authority, inspiration all of wide interest.

The meetings begin promptly at 7.30 and persons who have been habitual prayer meeting attendants are expected to come on time, the hour being fifteen minutes earlier than some Thursday night meetings.

All people who heard the lectures at the convention of Sunday school and church leaders last fall are prophesying the repetition of his triumphs in Norwich. Pastors urged through their calendars on last Sunday that all who could attend should do so.

SEEKS DIVORCE FROM HUSBAND IN LYNNBROOK

On the ground of habitual intemperance for two years and intolerable cruelty since Jan. 1, 1923, Josephine Chabotte Crouch of Norwich has brought suit for divorce from Clive D. Crouch of Lynnbrook, L. I., whom she married Sept. 22, 1919. They have no minor children. She asks to have her name changed to Josephine Chabotte. The suit is returnable before the superior court in April.

WOMEN WILL OBSERVE MISSIONS DAY OF PRAYER

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

by DAVID CORY

Mr. Owl Apologizes

The Peppermint Barn was all aglow
In the light of the silver moon.
As the Tree Toad band made the rafters ring
With a jolly dancing tune.
Up and down across the floor,
The chocolate mousies danced,
As through a knot-hole in the door
The little rabbit glanced.

"What are you doing here?" suddenly asked the old owl I mentioned in the last story.

He crashed off the tree.

"I'll ask you the same question," replied Little Jack Rabbit, taking his popgun out of his knapsack.

"Then don't ask questions," replied the bunny boy. "I've a mind to pluck a feather from your tail."

"Softly, softly," answered the owl, and he flew away.

Just then, two chocolate mice came dancing down the floor and stopped close to the half open door. Quick as a wink the bunny boy picked them up.

Oh dear me! how frightened they were. With a poor little squeak, they sobbed, "Oh, please let us go!"

"I'm sorry," answered the bunny boy, and he placed them gently on the floor. Away they scampered while the old owl flapped his wings from a tree nearby and tooted:

"Did you ever know such a bunny boy?
He's afraid of a mouse, I think.
He'd better go home to Lady Love
And play with a diddle-dy wirk."

Goodness me. No sooner were the words out of his mouth, beg pardon, I mean his beak—than the little rabbit fired his popgun and before that old bird knew what had struck him, he toppled off the tree.

"Now, will you be good?" asked the bunny boy. "Beg my pardon or I'll shoot you again."

Then and there Mr. Owl humbly apologized.

As the little rabbit hopped away from the big Red Barn, he heard the chocolate mice singing:

"There goes a generous bunny boy,
He will not harm the weak,
We hope his fur will always be
Silky, fine and sleek."

Is Iron Hunger Starving Your Blood

Keeping You Weak, Nervous, Irritable and Run-down?

WHAT TO DO

ANY doctor will tell you that if you expect to be strong and well, your blood must have iron just as your stomach must have food or a furnace must have coal. Iron is the food which keeps the blood working for you day and night. Only by satisfying this iron hunger of the pale, thin, watery blood can you build up rich red corpuscles that repair wasted tissue, renew the vigor of your body, and ward off germs of disease. Once you supply this red blood food in the form of organic iron—NUXATED IRON—a most amazing change often quickly takes place.

You feel iron enters the veins like the iron in spinach, beefsteak and apples, and runs the iron in your blood through every part of your body, and soon the cheeks and gums in your face look pink and healthy and you have that clear eye and elastic step which denotes perfect health. TRAINED— in the methods and ideals of the Six Bakers

THE high ideals which brought the Six Bakers together to make their Master Loaf—their honest enthusiasm and the personal attention they give to all the details of baking this delicious bread—"get over" to the men in the bakeries.

These men are experienced, expert bakers—but, more than that, they are trained in the careful methods and exacting ideals of the Six Bakers.

They are all working together to make the Master Loaf—day in and day out—the most perfect bread that it is possible to bake.

This spirit of good workmanship shows in the Master Loaf. It shows in the creamy texture and rich flavor of the bread—in the satisfactory way it cuts, without crumbling, and keeps sweet and fresh in the bread box.

Only the richest ingredients go into the Master Loaf—Fleischmann's Yeast, the finest blends of Gold Medal and Pillsbury flours, Domino Sugar, Diamond Crystal Salt, plenty of rich Dairylea Milk, filtered water, Swift's best shortening. Nothing else—and in mixing, in raising and in baking, the Master Loaf is made with the kind of care that a good housewife gives to her cooking.

DANIELSON

Until electric drives will be the equipment for the machinery that is to be installed by the Paco Manufacturing company, in the plant it is taking over from the Connecticut Mills company on Main street. There will be a separate motor for each loom and motors for other types of machines used in the concern's manufacturing processes. Much wiring is entailed in preparation for the installation of the machinery, which will begin to go into the plant about April 1, and on that date looms recently purchased by the Paco company will begin arriving here. It is anticipated that equipment of the new plant and transfer of machinery from the present plant will go forward without seriously interfering with the operation of the concern and so not greatly hampering its production.

A lease under which the plant is to be taken over, with an option for purchase, was being drawn up Wednesday.

The matter of clerks in Danielson stores getting a half-holiday appears to be back about where it started from just that the next move in the process is up to the clerks. At the conference this week of the heads of the Chamber of Commerce committee the proposal down by an almost unanimous vote, but not until there had been quite a full and free discussion of the proposal and numbers of suggestions submitted.

It is not likely, insofar as can be judged from the sentiment developed at the meeting, that Danielson will come in the very near future into a general arrangement for closing the stores half a day a week throughout the year and unless such an arrangement is general, it is considered that it would be ineffective and would work a hardship on merchants who sell their places of business while their competitors were open and selling goods.

Various arguments against closing were made and a new one was that members of business men allow their clerks a two weeks vacation with pay each year and that the clerks also get six holidays including the year without loss of pay. A minority of members those opposing half holidays the plan through is that such an arrangement would be hard for business in Danielson as a whole.

The clerks were open to discussion Wednesday over the prospects of getting a weekly half-holiday. Among the discussions heard from their ranks was that not all of the borough's business who favor a half-holidays had been visited relative to closing by the merchants committee of the Chamber of Commerce that made a canvass to ascertain sentiment on the matter. It is not in evidence they are insisting on the stores closing, but would be glad of a weekly half-holiday at the convenience of the business men, who might arrange, they hold, to concede this by allowing some of their force out one day and others on other days of the week. One store in Danielson has done that for years—the store of G. O. Thomas—and its business is adequately handled at all times, spokesmen for the clerks say.

As to vacations with pay, the clerks say that is a long established custom and often a part of the agreement under which clerks have secured appointment. And they hold that what they get for their vacation is scarcely offset by extra work they are called upon to do when other clerks are out on their vacations and by the long overtime periods they work during the Christmas holiday seasons, which, for the clerks, are something like a six day bicycle race. Few people in any line of endeavor work on the six general holidays allowed, they hold, and in any case they would rather have these holidays without pay than not have them at all.

It is not likely, from what could be learned Wednesday, that the clerks will abandon their campaign for the half-holiday, but without asking that the stores be closed. Possibly the next move, it was suggested, will be to have the clerks in each store where clerks are interested in the move to take the matter up with their employer.

PUTNAM

Mayor Victor Chapdelaine and Aldermen Ames, Rogers, Richards and Dubois will make up a party of city officials appearing before the public utilities commission at Hartford, next Tuesday, to protest a project originating in the larger cities of the state that is intended to give patrons of the trolley lines in and near those cities lower fares, to the disadvantage of what may be termed patrons of the trolley roads of the state in such suburban territory as is traversed by the Putnam lines, for instance, from North Grosvenordale to Central Village. This proposal, soon after its inception, was set forth at length in this column several weeks ago.

It has been pointed out that trolley service in this state is centralized in the Connecticut company—which may be regarded as a public service corporation having a monopoly approximated by the Southern New England Telephone company and the N. Y., N. H., and H. R. R. company. But it will be noted that the public utilities commission is not being asked by those who would have the trolley fares reduced in favor of the patrons of the Connecticut company in the larger centers of population of the state that they be given lower fares on the New Haven road than the suburban centers enjoy or that the telephone charges be cut at the expense of less thickly populated parts of the state. Yet such demands would be fully as reasonable as the one that will carry a mission from this city to Hartford, it is held by those who speak for the smaller communities. It will be noted, too, that the big city interests did not come forward when the Connecticut company was losing money and struggling for its very existance to say—"We are rich and there are many of us and we shall be pleased to pay you more for our rides that the service may be maintained." They did not consider themselves preferred customers over those out in the country towns in those days, not that anyone in this section of the state can recall. And they are not so regarded now in this corner of eastern Connecticut.

If Putnam and other communities up and down the Quinebaug valley that are served by the Connecticut company's lines do not want to be put in the position where they may be discriminated against as to trolley fares and if they do not wish to further jeopardize the existence of the service in this territory they will do well to interest themselves in next Tuesday's meetings. It is a matter of prime interest to business men's organizations, manufacturers and all of the other factors who pleaded so urgently and successfully before the public utilities commission in session in this city several years ago for the elimination of jitney competition that the trolley service might be saved. The average person riding from Putnam to Mechanicsville or to Danielson to his daily round of duties cannot see why he should pay more than a man who rides into Hartford from the suburbs should pay for a similar service from the trolley company. But the average patron will not be at Hartford to protest his interests and those of his home community will have to be represented through some recognized public or semi-public agency. The city officials are showing the way and they are entitled to co-operation.

Nothing of very great importance developed for the mayor and members of the common council to ponder over, at Tuesday evening's March meeting. City Engineer George W. Perry appeared relative to the layout of nine streets—as told in this column previously—and explained what difficulties would be encountered, under the city charter provisions, in accepting some of the layouts. On motion of Alderman E. C. Rogers it was voted that the highway committee meet on the afternoon of March 20, to look over the new streets.

A committee of the council was appointed to wait upon the various attorneys of the city to determine what best be done relative to a general revision of the city charter, which has become antiquated in some respects and contains flaws that should be corrected, it is held by those who have made a study of it.

The police report for the month showed that there were 48 arrests during February. Of those arrested 18 were brought in for having been intoxicated, 8 for frequenting disorderly houses, one for keeping a disorderly house, 4 for frequenting a place where gambling was allowed and 7 for violations of the motor vehicle laws. Ten went to jail, 10 were turned over to other officers and 12 paid fines and costs amounting to $1,098.78.

Minor matters before the council pertained to the licensing of St. Onge's Music hall, a new building. This matter was laid on the table until an investigation can be made as to license rates for such places in other cities. Several building petitions were referred to the building committee. A request of Lewis F. Bailey that the sewer in Church street be extended to his property was referred to the highway committee with power to act.

Rev. P. Hatch, Jr., student at Hartford Theological seminary, has accepted a call to become pastor of the Congregational churches at Woodstock Hill and North Woodstock. Rev. Mr. Hatch is to be graduated in May and is expected to take up his duties in Woodstock about July 1. It is stated that the new pastor is to be married before taking up his pastoral duties in Woodstock.

Hundreds of parishioners were at the Ash Wednesday services at St. Mary's church, morning and evening. The exceptional attendance was regarded as indicating that the Lenten period will be marked by special devotion to things spiritual and restraint from worldly amusements. There are to be evening services twice each week at St. Mary's church with instructions and sermons.

WESTERLY

A big covered moving van, Bd.460, Mass., of the Red Ball Transit company of Boston, crashed into the granite drinking fountains, presented the town of Westerly in 1887 by Miss Martha Jane Crandall, about twenty minutes of five o'clock Wednesday morning, and breaking it away from its foundation pushed it onto the cement sidewalk near the Granite street entrance to Wilcox park, whence it rolled into the gutter a distance of fifteen to twenty feet. The four men who occupied the driver's seat miraculously escaped serious injury; in fact the only injuries sustained were by a colored boy, Thomas J. Carpenter of Elm street, Mamaroneck, N. Y., who went to the office of Dr. Michael H. Scanlon on High street, where he was treated for bruises about the body, sprained back and shock.

The accident, in all probability was caused by the loosening and dropping of a pin in the brake connections, as the large truck was coming down nthe Granite street hill and considerable headway was gained before the turn in the highway at Grove avenue was reached. The truck was operated by Eugene L. Smith of Los Angeles, Cal., who had no operator's license, but on the seat with him were Joseph Wise of 552 Little building, Boston, with a New York state license and Arthur D. Davis of Denver, Col., who had a license from Washington, D. C. Another automobile driver who had been with the truck on its eastward bound trip had been arrested, when he allowed the truck to coast down a hill in Mamaroneck, N. Y., so was not with the crew at the time.

The truck was filled with the house hold goods of Charles F. Weston, an instructor in science and mathematics in Westerly High school. They were loaded in Portsmouth, N. H., and started about 9 o'clock Tuesday night. On the trip to Westerly, their destination being 17 Granite street, they encountered wet and slippery roads. Driver Smith thought the entrance to Wilcox park was the continuation of Granite street.

The driver's seat was twisted and the driving shaft, rear springs and side broken, the truck coming to a stop against a pole. The goods were transferred to the Wilcox truck and carried to 17 Spring street.

Deputy Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell served a writ on Joseph Wine for trespass in the case for negligence in the amount of $200, for the town of Westerly through town solicitor John Ferguson, Jr.

Grand Commander Charles R. Hunt of New Bedford, Mass., of the Grand Commandery Knights Templar of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, was present at the annual inspection of Narragansett Commandery No. 27, K. T. Wednesday evening. He was accompanied by Arthur G. Seabury acting Grand Warden, also of Sutton Commandery, New Bedford. The inspection was made by the Division Commander assisted by Horace Manchester Deputy Grand Warden. One hundred and thirty-one members were present giving a 100-per cent rating on attendance. Inspector-Instructor Frederick I. Sena gave the commandery a high rating. Preceding the inspection a roast beef dinner was served by members of Deborah Chapter, No. 9, O. E. S. Following the inspection, a musical entertainment was furnished by two professionals from Boston. There was present from Norwich, Commander Harry B. Ford of Columbian Commandery, No. 4 and among Norwich Knights Templar present were Alexander Finlayson, Walter E. Turner and Paul A. Zahn.

"Pussyfoot" Johnson spoke before an audience that filled the auditorium of Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church Wednesday evening. He was introduced by Rev. Lewis Walker of Calvary Baptist church. Prayer was offered by Rev. Clayton A. Burdick and benediction was pronounced by Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, the Episcopal rector.

Pussyfoot spoke most forcibly on the advance of the cause of temperance being interrupted as he was speaking about stealing, by a man rather badly off because of an unlimited use of the forbidden product, who shouted into the auditorium: "But they didn't take you." The drunk was expelled from the vestibule and the address went on. Pussyfoot arrived in town on the New York express, at noon and left in the evening to take the boat from New London to New York.

A regular session of the probate court at Westerly was held Tuesday afternoon, Judge Edward M. Burke presiding. The following business was acted upon:

DIRECT DEFENDANT VERDICT IN REAL ESTATE SUIT

Judge Christopher L. Avery on the bench in the civil side of the superior court in New London Wednesday morning directed the jury to bring in a verdict in favor of Mrs. Mary W. Farley of New London and New York, against whom Mrs. John M. Callahan of New London had instituted suit, asking specific performance of a contract of sale of a piece of property on Pequot avenue. The action of the judge was taken after arguments had been advanced by the opposing attorneys on a motion of Attorney Gilman, counsel for Mrs. Farley, for a directed verdict.

Earlier in the morning Judge Avery had refused to allow a motion filed by Attorney Gilman for non-suit and it was expected that counsel for the defendant would conclude his case before filing motion for directed verdict.

The jury was instructed to find in favor of the defendant on the grounds that there was no evidence that Thomas T. Wetmore, Jr., real estate dealer, had authority to consummate the sale of Mrs. Farley's property, and that if he had had such authority the description of the property to be sold was insufficient to permit of specific performance of contract.

The case was the outgrowth of negotiations entered into between the plaintiff and the defendant through Mr. Wetmore last October. Mrs. Callahan had entered into a contract with Mr. Wetmore as alleged agent of Mrs. Farley for the purchase of a fifty foot strip of property on Pequot avenue, just north of the entrance to Neptune park. Mrs. Farley owned a 78 foot strip there, and the contract of sale failed to state whether it was the first fifty feet north or the first fifty feet, south of this strip that Mrs. Callahan was purchasing. The latter had paid as an evidence of good faith the sum of $100, but Mrs. Farley had not turned over the deed, and Mr. Wetmore was told to pay back to Mrs. Callahan the $100. Mrs. Callahan, however, insisted on the sale going through.

Attorney Arthur T. Keefe, counsel for the plaintiff, signified his intention of immediately filing motion to set aside the verdict. It is expected that the case will be taken to the supreme court of errors.

CONGRESS AND THE BUDGET

With the lower house of congress having sent to the senate a bill that calls for a tax reduction that will place the treasury in a hole to the tune of $116,000,000, there is being revived the clamor for the payment of a bonus that will impose a burden upon the country of from one to five billion dollars. And at this time increased emphasis is being placed upon the desirability of having the bonus paid in cash, even though much stress has been laid in the past upon the fact that the demand was not for cash.

It is noticed of course that the house has departed from the tax cutting plan that was put forth by Secretary Mellon, a plan which has received a two to one vote among a million and a third people throughout the country who have been specially polled on this question. In putting forth that plan, Secretary Mellon stated that there was a certain amount that could be applied to lowering the taxes but that a cutting of the taxes and a soldiers' bonus were impossible. If a bonus was to be voted it would mean that thoughts of tax reduction could be shelved for a generation.

Regardless of this the house tax bill not only calls for a greater cut in taxation than the treasury can stand, but it means the piling up of a deficit of $116,000,000. On top of that several bonus plans are now being urged, anyone of which would serve to increase that deficit and mean the imposition of additional taxes. It is a move that is directly against the warning of the administration. It is a move that is unwarranted by existing conditions and one that is being promoted and sponsored for political effect, and this in spite of the known attitude of the people whom they are supposed to represent.

It was a fine thing that was done for the country when congress adopted the budget system, but strange as it may seem congress dislikes to pay any attention to it.

BIG EXPENSE OR GREATER CARE

In connection with the desire of the governor of New York for the expenditure of $400,000,000 for the elimination of grade crossings in that state, the New York Tribune raises the question whether it could not be devoted in part to "disease prevention with even more efficacious results in life saving." It believes such work must be done gradually with regard for other and more pressing needs of public health and welfare.

The expenditure of such a large sum of money even by such a large and wealthy state as New York is no small matter. It means much to the taxpayers even though it may be devoted to such a purposes as removing those danger points where such a large toll of life is taken. But there is reason for feeling that there are other ways in which there is need of doing something for the better protection of human life. And this is particularly true when it is possible through the efforts of the very individuals who are concerned to overcome to a great degree the accidents and fatalities that occur at railroad crossings.

There always has been recklessness and it can be expected that there will be a certain amount of it but there is no reason for encouraging and catering to it by turning the pocketbooks of the taxpayers wrong side out. There would be no very great amount of money required for keeping before the users of the railroad crossings the need of exercising due care at such points. The complete elimination of the railroad crossings is a desirable goal but it is also recognized that there are others which also possess merit and toward which the movement should be continuous.

There isn't a state where the grade crossings do not impose a problem in the way of expense and where there isn't a desire that they be eliminated, and it is made apparent that there are very few crossing accidents and fatalities which could have been averted had there been the exercise of a little care on the part of those who gave slight recognition to the long standing danger points, which are invariably marked or carry some type of warning. Perhaps it will be better to get the huge appropriation than to obtain the requisite care.

INVESTIGATING THE COURTS.

When it became realized in Connecticut that there was a disposition to wink at the law, that leniency was being shown when it was not warranted and when respect for the law was being seriously damaged, steps were taken by Chief Justice Wheeler to bring the authorities of the state including the justices and the lower courts to a recognition of their responsibility.

Massachusetts is undertaking it in a different way. The registrar of motor vehicles has directed attention to what he considers a deplorable situation in that state, with particular reference to the manner in which the inexperienced drivers of automobiles are treated, and as the result the constantly increasing menace which they are to the safety of the public. Reference is made to the fact that the highways are becoming slaughter houses for the citizens. The statement by the motor vehicles registrar has made an impression. If the lower courts are lax in their duty there is a desire to put an end to it, and with the legislature of that state in session the remedy is to be sought through a legislative investigation.

In the bill which has been submitted to the rules committee the investigation is sought with particular reference to motor vehicle offenders. If the courts of that state are lax in the upholding of the law in one respect it is not improbable that they fail to take the proper grasp of the situation in others, and are not giving to the public the protection that they are supposed to.

The investigation has not as yet been authorized but if and when it is there seems to be good reason for making the investigation complete. If there is to be a probe of the lower courts it ought to be thorough. If the time has come when the public cannot put its reliance in its courts it is time that it was known, that the methods under which they are operating were disclosed and the necessary steps taken to change the situation. Massachusetts plans to move in a different way than Connecticut and the progress of the effort will be watched with interest.

TIME NOT RIPE.

When President Coolidge told the Philippine independence commission that he believed the time had not come for the separation of the islands from the United States, there is no question but what he expressed the sentiment of the country. Likewise it was to be expected that he would make the most of the opportunity to set forth that the government has "full confidence in the ability, good intentions, fairness and sincerity of Governor General Wood," to whom so much opposition has been displayed by the Filipinos who are striving for independence as well as those who have not taken kindly to the disclosures which General Wood has made since going to the islands.

Just as long as the United States remains in control it must insist upon retaining authority in the islands. They go together. When the time comes for the casting loose of the islands it will be done without expectation of being obliged to resume control. Clearly that time has not arrived.

The action of the congressional committee in submitting a bill for the independence of the islands for action by the house without recommendation doesn't express the committee sentiment, and it is unfortunate that it is thus permitted to create the impression that independence is favored.

The investigators showed that the islands were not ready for independence. Conditions which have been disclosed there since have supported their report, and certain tactics that have been resorted to by the Philippine legislature in defying Governor General Wood hasn't served to help their ambitions in the eyes of this country.

TRAIN CONTROL ORDERS.

When the interstate commerce commission issued orders requiring 47 railroads to install train control devices on at least one passenger division before January 1925 and subsequently requiring all class one roads to make such an installation on one or more divisions in addition, it was a move for the purpose of giving greater protection to the traveling public. It was understood that there would be considerable expense and it was believed that there had been devices brought to such a state of perfection as to warrant that expenditure in the interest of greater safety. Too many wrecks had occurred where the human agent had failed to act.

Now the railroads, 89 in number, are asking the commission to modify and extend its orders under the claim that the automatic train stops are as yet imperfectly developed and that experimental operation of them does not justify extensive use. Likewise the roads point out that it would mean the spending of many millions, without insuring the increased safety desired.

That the commission took into consideration the expense is of course understood. It is believed it was warranted by the need for greater safety. If it can be shown that such an outlay would not do what is required and that there would not be greater safety it may be disposed to make the modifications asked or others that are deemed advisable. However, it is to be expected that proof, rather than mere assertion, will be submitted to the commission before it alters its orders. It would of course be unfortunate to insist upon the using of imperfect devices only to find out upon employment following installation that they were a failure and others would be required.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A year from now and President Coolidge's inauguration will be all over.

The man on the corner says: Some ambitious people would be satisfied if they could faint gracefully.

Predictions ought to be heard soon as to whether the house cleaning season is to have an early opening.

It is a commendable attitude to want to be numbered among those who are supporting the Boy Scout movement.

Pretty soon some one will start an investigation to find out what this session of congress has done in the way of new legislation.

The short time now to the opening of the fishing season means that much of the spare time will be needed to get the tackle into condition.

Those seeking to establish a new station along rum row may be attracted by those vessels which the shipping board has to sell for a fair price.

The city manager of Cleveland says neither Brookhart nor Wheeler could act impartially on the Daugherty investigation committee. That's probably why they were selected.

The strangest part of a report is not that a woman juror changed her mind after submitting a sealed verdict, but that the exercise of such a prerogative should startle the judge.

TRIALS OF THE MCS.

"Won't you ride home with us?" smiled the slender little matron to the substantial dowager as they happened to emerge together from the big street store at the end of a perfect day. "Our car has just driven up and we are ready to go."

"Well, I was going home 'on the bus,'" replied the substantial dowager, "but I don't mind saying I should much prefer to go with you."

"I'm sure we're glad to have you," purred the slender matron enthusiastically, as the store footman opened the door of the car to let them enter. "I think it was fine that we happened to meet just as we did. Besides, I want you to know my daughter," she continued, smiling proudly at a pretty young woman cuddled gracefully in a corner of the back seat.

"And glad I am to know her," boomed the dowager, settling back in her seat. "This must be the little lady who's going to marry young McWealthy."

"Indeed, she is," beamed the slender matron proudly. "Isn't she lucky?"

"Well, I suppose so," assented the dowager rather doubtfully, "but——"

"But what, Mrs. McDee?" anxiously asked the slender matron at the end of a rather awkward pause. "Why this lack of enthusiasm? I'm sure the McWealthys are fine people and their son is a most exemplary——"

"The McWealthys are good people, as you say," interrupted the dowager. "They're all that their name suggests and their son would be as fine a son-in-law as anybody could ask, I have no doubt. But before a daughter of mine married him I'd warn her."

"I don't understand you," protested the slender matron.

"No, I don't suppose you do," went on the dowager. "You haven't had my experience."

"Experience of what?"

"Experience of names, to be sure, and before I'd let a daughter of mine marry McWealthy or any other man whose name begins with Mc I'd be sure to let her know the consequences."

"But, Mrs. McDee, your own name begins with Mc," protested the slender matron.

"Surely it does, and well I know it! Not only does it begin with Mc, but in nine cases out of ten it ends there."

"Ends there?"

"Well, of course, you have had no occasion as yet to notice the peculiarity of all names beginning with Mc. But I have, and this is it: They seem to invite from chance acquaintances and from people one does not care to know a familiarity that is never warranted and never welcomed. By people I barely know I'm called not Mrs. McDee but Mrs. Mc. Workmen who come to my home, tradesmen I meet in shops and people I encounter in the most casual way seem to think they are showing their friendliness by addressing me as Mrs. Mc. They think they are being agreeable, but they are not!

"I go to the market to order dinner and the butcher behind his block holds up a piece of steak or a chicken and assures me. That will eat fine, Mrs. Mc.' Clerks behind counters taking my order for groceries or dry goods or what not inquire solicitously 'And will that be all, Mrs. Mc?' The janitor who meets me in the entrance to our apartment building never neglects to inform me that 'It's a fine day, Mrs. Mc.'

"It's the same with my husband, poor dear. He's not McDee, but only Mc, to every one he knows. Long ago he got over his surprise at being called Mc by young whippersnappers at the club and everywhere else and he always expects that any man he is introduced to one minute will be calling him Mc the next. But, being a man, he doesn't mind so much, and he tells me not to worry."

"But I never address you as Mrs. Mc," protested the slender matron.

"Sure you don't," agreed the substantial dowager. "People with good manners never do."

"Well, I should think you would tell them your name was not Mrs. Mc but Mrs. McDee, and put a stop to their familiarity," put in the daughter.

"Yes, that would be fine, wouldn't it—telling them something they know already. And as for stopping them, if haughty looks and an icy manner could kill I should have stopped them long ago.

"Well here we are," sighed the dowager, glancing out as the car came to a halt before a rich apartment building. "You've brought me home before I knew it and I'm sure I'm obliged to you. And I apologise for talking so much, though, I suppose, in spite of all I have said, young lady, you'll go right ahead and marry your young McWealthy."

"Yes, in spite of what you have said. I think I shall," nodded the demure daughter.

"Very well, do, then, if you must," said the dowager, gathering up the last of her bundles, "but when the grocer's boy first addresses you as Mrs. Mc don't forget that I warned you."—Chicago News.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

NEJD

Report of the death of the Sultan of Nejd, Emir of all central Arabia, turns the news spot-light to a place where it seldom rests, and where it is all but lost in vast desert wastes.

"Arabia has been figuring in world affairs since the curtain rose on the first act in history," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society dealing with the Nejd, "and yet it has large areas about which we know practically nothing.

"Because of the huge bulk of Asia, its numerous peninsulas are somewhat dwarfed, and one may fall into the error of classing Arabia with peninsulas nearer home, such as Florida. But sixty Floridas would be lost in this great Asian projection; it is, in fact, a third as large as the entire United States.

"Tremendous desert wastes are not alone responsible for the fact that the outside world is ignorant of the Nejd in the heart of Arabia. That country—if the area over which the Nejdian nomads roam may be called a country—has one of the most effective exclusion laws known: the exclusion law of the sword. These people do not care to go into the outside world, and they want no visits from Western traders, diplomats, military experts, or missionaries—especially missionaries. They are blood-thirsty fanatics on the subject of religious simplicity. As Wahabis they are perhaps better known to the world than as Nejdians, for the former name they owe to their religious associations.

"Blue laws have never taken on so deep a tinge of blue as in the land of the Wahabis. To drink or even smoke tobacco is not merely a dereliction in their strict code; it is a capital offense. It is equally an offense according to their own views, to use rich rugs and fine vessels in Mosques, and they have made more than one effort to invade Mecca itself to reduce the holy places there to Wahabi simplicity. They even look upon other Mohammedans not of their sect as unbelievers unworthy of life.

"The capital of the Nejd, Riad, is more truly a forbidden city than is Lhasa. The only Westerner known to have visited it in recent years was an American physician, smuggled in that he might save the life of a chieftain, and it is believed that even this errand of mercy would not have saved him from summary execution save for a little group of defenders who for a brief time stretched their standards.

"There has been a Sultan and an Acting Sultan of Nejd in recent years, the first and aged patriarch and the second his energetic heir not yet 40 years of age. Reports of the death of the Sultan do not make it clear which of these leaders has passed away. The 'permanent' wife, and of changing the other three every 90 days. After serving as temporary Sultanas, the 90-day wives were bestowed on some favored underling. Two Armenian girls were recent members of his family circle.

"Great Britain has been paying the ruler of the Nejd a huge subsidy —$400,000 a year, an 'honorarium' four times as great as the salary and allowance of the president of the United States. The young Sultan has taken the cash and has let his followers go about their forrays pretty much as they wished.

A Little Talk on Thrift

The Head of Mere Homes

The first few weeks of the present year have given indication that, barring unforseen eventualities, 1924 will witness the greatest volume of building in the history of the country. While contruction expenditures last year ran well above five billion dollars, in point of actual new conyeare, in point of actual new construction, was not as great as the comparative figures might suggest, owing to the increase in building costs during the last half decade.

It is probably safe to say, however, that in home building the prospects now are that this will be the greatest year in the country's history.

From careful and authoritative surveys the indications are that the amount of dwellings to be erected in this country this year, not including apartments and apartment hotels, will be approximately $500,000,000 on the supposition that general building accords with present activities.

From an economic standpoint the country needs more homes, but the civities will continue through the deeper advantages of widespread home building lie in the encouragement thus given to thrift.

Money prudently saved is always a benefit to the person who makes the saving, but money saved through the processes of home ownership is doubly valuable.

A home of this type shelters a thrifty family, the youthful members of which will go forth into the world with the value of thrift deeply and indelibly implanted within them.

Home ownership gives an anchorage for the family—a feeling of security and stability that can be gained in no other way.

The man who owns his roof—the place that shelters his family and himself—his refuge in times of affliction and the haven of his happiest associations—will never be carried away by impractical theories of government.

This is the period of year when the encouragement of home ownership proves productive of the greatest good.

It is hoped that the present prospects for the country's greatest home building year will be borne out.

No other single development would be more salutary significance to the country.—American Thrift Society

Glasgow, Kentucky.—"I was rundown, nervous, with no appetite. My side had given me trouble for five or six years. At times it was all I could do to live, and the doctor said I couldn't live but a short time longer without an operation. That was two years ago. My sister-in-law recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She had never used it herself, but she said one of her neighbors suffered just like I did, and it cured her. After I had taken four bottles the pain left my side. I had a fine appetite to eat anything that was put before me, and I began to do all my work and my washing, something I hadn't done for years. I am a dressmaker, and this last fall I began suffering with my side again, so I began taking the Vegetable Compound again. I am on my fourth bottle, which makes eight in all I have taken. I feel so much better when I take it and everybody tells me I look better. My appetite improves and I feel stronger in every way. I am a very nervous woman and it seems to help my nerves so much."—Mrs. MAGGIE WALLER, Glasgow, Kentucky.

Why March Is Most Dangerous

March is the most dangerous month of the year because the change of season is more than a good many systems can stand. Too often it is true that the sick "last only till spring." But if the system is fortified, if the impurities are driven from the blood, and the nerve tissues fed with wholesome and strength-giving pure food medicine, there is no danger in the change of seasons. Father John's Medicine is invaluable as a tonic in the spring. It strengthens the system and drives out the poisonous waste matter—builds up the body. It is this power that has made it so successful in treating colds and throat troubles. No weakening stimulants, morphine or other dangerous drugs.

Over Sixty-Eight Years of Success.

HELEN OF TROY, N. Y. AT BROADWAY THEATRE

Helen of Troy, N. Y., a musical comedy which had a considerable run in New York was presented at the Broadway theatre by the New York company Wednesday night with Pauline Chamber in the title role and Marcella Shields as the bright stars in the plot of moderate attractiveness and of no great musical appeal. Their Cry Baby duet was the musical feature. The Russian ballet scene in the second act was a feature from the scenic standpoint and the Moonlight Lane duet by Pauline Chambers and Allen Allenworth was beautiful with its electrical effects. The New York atelier of an artist illustrator provided opportunity also for a display of fashionable gowns in the second act and the dancing numbers, including a too dance, were all well done.

SAYS INDUSTRIAL NEW ENGLAND IS IN NEED OF LEADERSHIP

Industrial conditions in New England especially as they apply to the textile industry were ably discussed at the meeting of the Norwich Rotary Club on Wednesday by Harold Green of the Lockwood, Greene Co. of Boston and treasurer of The Lawton Mills Corp. of Plainfield. Mr. Greene, who was the guest of Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, covered very fully the problems that now face the textile industry and in the course of his talk revived the history of the textile industry in New England. Mr. Greene spoke as follows:

Industrial New England

I want to talk with you a little while about industrial New England, not because the subject is new for New England is the birthplace of the term "industrial," not on the technical side because that might be uninteresting, but there are certain phases of the problem which should appear to every thinking man in New England who is interested in her welfare and her future. That there are problems to be faced is in evidence all around us. What is the matter with her railroads? Why have 43 shoe concerns gone out of business or moved out of New England in the last few years? Is our immigration problem solved in New England? Why is one per cent. of the cotton spindles moving to the south this year? A few weeks ago the Boston Chamber of commerce sent out a booklet and letter addressed to the business men of New England and signed by its president, Howard Coonley. From this letter I quote as follows: It seems to be the law of humanity that a community having once gained the height of industrial leadership, shall after a generation or two consider that leadership as its inalienable right, a beneficent dispensation of Providence which perpetuates itself in some mysterious way. To this human law New Englanders in the aggregate are no exception. The days of struggle when their forefathers labored in their tiny shoe shops and miniature cotton mills, when they risked their lives upon the seas, or ventured their fortunes to throw lines of shining rails across the continent, are soon forgotten. It does not occur to them that the momentum which the ancestral vigor set in motion will gradually die out unless new force is applied to propel it.

South Welcomes Pioneers

The mills, the factories, the complicated organisms of modern industry do not run themselves. Intelligent watchfulness, high enterprise and courage are requisite if we are to keep our place at the head of the race which the fast-growing communities in other parts of our country are constantly making keener. The south and west are today being built up by pioneers of the type of our New England grandfathers. They are welcomed into these new centers by a public that is keen to develop its potentialities. Their path is made easy by the enthusiastic co-operation that is always at its height in the development stage. Every element throws itself into the task of industrial building, realizing that in proportion to its industrial and commercial success will be measured its community progress. The facts set forth so skillfully in a trade pamphlet show that New England still holds her leadership; that she still turns out more than her proportionate share of the manufactured products of the nation. What can be done to stop the growing decrease in our leadership margin? Are New Englanders complacently to sit by while our competitors gain on us year by year? Great industries have developed in regions favored by nature, close to sources of raw material, certainly located in a country which has enormously expanded long after the days when the tall chimneys first began to tower in Lynn and Manchester, Bridgeport and Springfield, Lowell, Fall River and Providence. How is New England to meet this growing competition?

Study of Cotton Industry

Another pamphlet has also been on my desk which is entitled, "A Study of the Cotton Industry North and South." This study was authorized and financed by the Providence Journal and was carried on by its Washington correspondent, Mrs. Ashmun Brown, who was asked to find the solution to three questions. 1. Is New England's position in the cotton manufacturing industry seriously threatened by South competition? 2. Are New England cotton mills moving or preparing to move to the southern states? 3. To what, if any, extent do the various phases of what may be termed the "labor problem" contribute to the expansion of the industry in the south and to the stagnation, if not the recession, manifest in New England? His answer, generally speaking, to these questions was that in the first place New England's position is seriously threatened by southern competition. Second, New England's mills in toto are not moving or preparing to move to the southern states. This of course, while physically possible with their tremendous investment in properties makes it undesirable as long as they can exist in present locations. So far as the labor problem is concerned, it contributes very largely in its many phases to the expansion of the industry in the south and to the difficulties experienced by New England mills. The booklet from the chamber of commerce speaks with greatest enthusiasm of New England's ability to maintain its leadership in the cotton industry, but their figures are only compiled up to the year 1919 and it is since that time—practically in the last four years—when the difficulties of competition between the north and south in the textile industry are becoming more apparent.

New England's Downward Trend

That this may be better appreciated, I have here three charts. The first chart tells the story in cotton spindles. You will note the downward trend of the New England mills since 1921 and the relatively greater steadiness of the southern increase in recent years. Chart number two shows in percentages in active spindles the rise of the south and the relative decline of New England, while chart number three is of greater importance as an indicator of progress showing the number of bales of cotton consumed. The south passed New England in 1905 and the disparity is increasing. Last month 577,000 bales of cotton were consumed in the United States and less than one-third of them in New England—the home of the cotton industry. Do these problems seem serious and if so what is the answer? I would like to confine most of my illustrations to the cotton industry, for the textile industry—comprising cotton and wool—represents more than half of the industrial activities of New England. Some things which I have to say also may be applied to all industries.

Cotton Production

Cotton was mentioned very early in history. As early as 800 B. C. there is a record of cotton fibre used by the Hindoos. About 500 B. C. cotton was brought to Europe from India by Alexander the Great and from then on the Greeks wore clothing made of it. Cotton was introduced into Europe (first into Italy and Spain) from Egypt, by European traders possibly early in the Christian era. The first accurate statement in regard to cotton manufacture in England is made by the author of "Treasure in Traffic" published in 1641, although it may have been established before that date. There is little to indicate, however, that the industry experienced any appreciable growth for many years. The history of cotton in America begins with the history of America itself, for on the day of the discovery of the new continent on October 12, 1492, Columbus makes mention in his diary of the fact that upon first landing the Indians brought to him among other things skeins of cotton thread. Curiously enough, the United States—the last to enter the list of cotton growing countries—became in an incredibly short time the first in the amount produced. In bales of 500 pounds each, the first record shows that in 1740, 4,000 bales were produced and production since that time is as follows:

1800—35,000 bales.
1820—360,000 bales.
1830—770,000 bales.
1840—1,348,000 bales.
1850—2,000,000 bales.
1890—8,242,000 bales.
1900—10,124,000 bales.
1924—16,134,000 bales.

The history of cotton manufacture in New England is readily divided into three periods. The first period was prior to 1776. During this time cotton was carded by hand and the old fashioned spinning wheel and hand loom found a place in the more numerous homes.

The second period, from 1776 to 1814, brought about a change from the house plan of spinning and weaving to a segregation into separate industrial buildings. This was brought about very largely because of the improvements in Arkwright's spinning machinery and the invention of Whitneys cotton gin. In 1790 was established the old Slater mill in Pawtucket, called now the pioneer mill of this country, but as early as 1810 there were established in the New England states 100 mills, 54 in Massachusetts, 25 in Rhode Island, 14 in Connecticut, 12 in New Hampshire and one in Vermont.

The third period, from 1814—in which year was established the Waltham company on the Charles river—is marked by the growth of power driven machinery and the principal advance in the industry up to the present time. This mill was established by Francis Cabot Lowell, who was born in Newburyport in 1775 and who became interested in cotton manufacturing while visiting England and later on, after making a success of the Waltham company at Waltham, became interested in cotton mills at the site afterwards called Lowell, there the Merrimac Manufacturing company was incorporated in 1821.

Early Mill Conditions

In these days which are called "modern" it may be well to spend a few minutes in recollecting some of the characteristics of those early developments. Mills at that time not only established their own industrial buildings and arranged for boarding-houses in which their operatives lived, but also churches and schools. The operatives were recruited from the farming communities about Lowell and were of a very high character. The early founders of these mills decided in the early establishing of the important elements of society the home, the church and the school in order to perpetuate the system which had worked so successfully at Waltham and which drew to the mills a large number of an unusual class of operatives, many of whom were young women. At times the girls returned to their homes for a holiday or for other reasons and their account of the congenial life of the mill town induced others to come, particularly those who desired the literary or social advantages as well as the work. They were told of the lyceum lectures such as were provided by the Lowell institute, the Mechanics association and other organizations of equally high repute. They learned that there circulating libraries which offered unlimited opportunities for the way of reading and study. They learned of clubs and societies whose activities opened up many avenues for advancement and companionship. These were irresistible attractions to the ambitious and lowly country girls. There is little wonder that under these circumstances they soon developed a community life, unique in the history of America. Lectures were given by such men as Ralph Waldo Emerson, Wendell Phillips, George M. Curtis, John B. Gough, Artemus Ward, J. G. Holland, William Lloyd Garrison and others equally noted at that time. Dickens, in his "American Notes" published after a tour of the United States in the early 40 writes at some length of a visit made to Lowell and its cotton mills. He was particularly struck by the well-dressed, clean and healthy appearance of the girls and went on to state other facts, three of which quotations will startle a large class of readers on this side of the Atlantic. First, "There were pianos in many boarding houses;" Second, "Nearly all the operatives were subscribers to circulating libraries;" Third, "A periodical was being edited and the original articles for it were written exclusively by girls actively employed in the mills. Senator Thomas H. Benton in 1857 visited the mills at Lowell and in an address in the town made the statement that he had found the operatives as comfortably and handsomely situated as members of congress in Washington. Is it any wonder, then, that a splendid class of women were developed, several of whom in later years became well-known in literary and other walks of life. Lucy Larcom, the poet and her sister, Emmeline, who also became a writer, began to work in the mills at a very early age, their mother—who had been left a widow—becoming mistress of one of the boarding houses in order that she might be able to keep her family together. Harriet H. Robinson, a pioneer of woman suffrage, and one of the founders of the General Federation of Women's clubs, wrote of her experience as a mill girl; Margaret Foley, sculptor and cameo cutter, famed for the portraits of Sumner, Longfellow and Bryant which she later made. Harriet Curtis, a writer and Elizabeth Jane Cate also never failed to refer with a measure of pride to their early years in the mill. These ideal conditions existed for sometime, but it was natural that the character of the operatives should change and very soon afterwards we see the Irish and French Canadians taking the places of these American young women and young men. These, of course, were rapidly followed by French, German, Greeks, Polish, Portugese, Russians and various others from Eastern Europe until at the present time we find a polyglot population. It is said that in Lawrence some 43 dialects are now spoken.

Conditions in the South

Conditions such as we pictured in New England in the early part of the last century were not so different from those that exist in the south at the present time and every effort is being made by the southern manufacturer to maintain these conditions. They welcome with open arms the capitalist from New England, but they will have no part of the New England operative and the labor union which he would inevitably introduce into their peaceful situation. Among the factors which should be mentioned as working favorably to the south and against New England are the hours of work. In the early days of the 19th century, the mills were operated 13 hours a day and six days a week—half an hour being permitted for breakfast and half an hour for dinner—making a week of 78 hours and all figures and records seem to show that the people of that day were an exceedingly happy and healthy lot. Hours were afterwards reduced to 66 in New England and in 1890 there was again a reduction until at the present time we have the well-known law of 48 a hour week. If I may refer again to chart number one, you will notice that in 1890 coincident with the change in hours in New England, cotton manufacturing in the south commenced immediately to increase until at the present time there are something like 17,000,000 spindles in the south as against 18,000,000 spindles in the north. Hours have generally speaking been reduced in the south until at the present time many of the mills are operating on a basis of 55 hours. The mills, then, in the south would seem to have a distinct advantage over the mills in the north, or at least those of Massachusetts so far as the hours of work are concerned. Those who are discussing this subject point to the question of wages as a governing factor in the increasing activity of the south in cotton manufacturing. The average

PAGEANT MADE FEATURE FOR D. A. R. MEETING

With the regent, Mrs. G. A. Ashley presiding, the March meeting of Faith Trumbull chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was held Wednesday afternoon in the Community House. The meeting was opened with the singing of America, Miss Annie Vaughn presiding at the piano. The Lord's prayer was repeated and the salute to the flag followed.

Fifty subscriptions to the D. A. R. magazine were reported by Mrs. Herbert W. Gallup of the magazine committee. A new committee on conservation and thrift has been appointed with Mrs. Frank Hempstead as chairman. A gift of $5 was voted to the Boy Scout fund and $50 was voted for the expenses of the regent and delegate to the continental congress at Washington.

MARITAL BOUTS FURNISH VARIETY FOR DOCTOR

That married bliss is not all that it is cracked up to be is the conclusion of a certain local physician after he had made two calls on Wednesday. Of course, as the physician found, the fault is not always with the man or yet with the woman. About 9 o'clock Wednesday morning he was called to the telephone and requested to hurry to a certain address in the city. On arriving the doctor found that his patient was a woman who was suffering from a badly bruised nose that bled freely, bad bruises about the body and a severe shock. Upon inquiry he found that the woman's condition was the outcome of an argument between husband and wife in which said husband had lost his temper and resorted to a primitive method of punishment.

Twelve hours later almost to the minute the same physician was summoned to attend another patient. This also was a hurry call. Upon arriving at the house he found that his evening patient was a man. This man was suffering from a dislocated shoulder and bruises about the body. It developed that the man and his wife like the other couple had had a domestic disagreement but in this case friend wife had won her argument in a decisive manner by performing the simple feat of throwing her spouse bodily down a flight of stairs.

The physician who attended the man said it was too bad it was not the husband of the first woman who had been thrown down the stairs, but he was glad that the women were becoming proficient in the art of self-defense.

MARCH MEETING OF NORWICH W. C. T. U.

The W. C. T. U. held its March meeting Wednesday afternoon at the Salvation Army hall. The president, Miss Harriet G. Cross, presided, and the service opened with Scripture reading and prayer, which was followed with the usual business and discussion of the meeting which is to be held in April under the auspices of the state and county officers, when Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, of Iowa, national director of Christian citizenship, will be the principal speaker.

Interesting items were read by several of the members. Some paragraphs from The Fortiveness of Liquor, one of Raymond S. Sears' articles. He claims "liquor has been removed from the streets and highways of the country to such an extent that in more than twenty-five thousand miles touring from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Canadian border to Mexico, hundreds of miles south the south line, a roaming stranger has seen none of the drinking. Since prohibition went into effect I have taken through places and across regions that I knew twenty years ago. Let me say, offhanded, that a traveler could not then cross the United States or go anywhere in the country and not find himself constantly hearing liquor and constantly witness its effect on men and women.

"Tell me the country is wide open. I've seen twenty thousand miles of highways and in all that distance have been invited into just two blind tigers. The stranger takes his life in his hands if he tries to find it, so afraid is liquor of being found out. Compare that with legalized sale."

Another interesting article was on Prohibition Bound. "The vultures of politics and criminal greed are feeding daily upon and significantly undisturbed upon the vitals of the eighteenth amendment and Volstead act, which is its liver! Banish politics from authority to name the enforcement officers, put them under rigid civil service and then we can learn whether America has honest men enough to obey their oaths and enforce the law. Get rid of a lot of rummy judges in many states and districts and get honest ones who have no sympathy for liquor and its outlaws. Impeach the recreant judges and not the outraged laws. Jail every bribetaker and conspirator with the bootleggers and rum runners. Then, if prohibition doesn't prohibit—order out the troops."

Diving on a wet concrete pavement more than 100 wild ducks broke their necks near Champaign, Ill. The pavement, wet from a drizzling rain and lighted by the moon, looked like a shimmering body of water.

GETTING TOO FAT? TRY THIS—REDUCE

FAST GAMES FEATURE NEW LONDON Y. M. C. A. BASKET BALL LEAGUE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Mar. 5.—Before one of the largest crowds yet to witness the House league games at the Y. M. C. A. basketball court Wednesday evening, the Army defeated the Clerks five in the first scheduled game by a 29 to 25 score in a good game and in the second contest the Mebs defeated the Leather Pushers by a 36 to 15 count.

A hot game was the result when the Army-Clerks teams met in the first game of the evening. Although the Clerks displayed the best all around game yet to be exhibited by this team since entering the league, it was not enough to win. The last minute finishes that characterize the games that the Army plays in was again very much in evidence. For at the termination of the third quarter both teams were dead-locked at 21-all. With the beginning of the last period the Army forwards put on a burst of speed that netted this team eight points. The Clerks were also in the running until the final five minutes of play, but while they were held scoreless, Rappaport for the Army found the basket for two goals and the game.

From the very first whistle the game was close. Good passing and fast floor work was a dominant factor throughout for the winners. However, during the first half their passing was not so accurate. This team's passing improved with the passing minutes, until the ball was kept well away from their own basket. The losers in the first half surprised the large crowd present by time and again intercepting or knocking down the Army passes. The vigilance on their parts coupled with a good passing gave them an early lead that gave some of their rooters present a chance to rejoice. But towards the end of the half the fast game that the Clerks put up in the early minutes of play, began to slow up. The early pace set could not be kept up, consequently the Army team began to draw up closer and before the whistle blew at half time the Army boys were ahead by a 15 to 12 score.

During the third quarter play was about even, although the Clerks were able to make up the two points that separated the two teams at half time. Kelley's guard work in the last quarter helped materially in keeping down the score of the Clerks.

Rappaport for the Army five, had a banner night in making field baskets. He dropped in eight field goals from almost every imaginable angle. Weaver's play for the same team was also good.

Koelher and Kirchoff played the best for the Clerks.

Mebs Defeat Leather Pushers.

The Mebs' defeat over the Leather Pushers came as a surprise. The Leather Pushers were favored to win, but the fast play that this team is capable of was missing. From the very start the Mebs got the jump on their opponents and held the lead throughout never threatened to be dethroned.

The game was roughly played. Both teams were guilty of roughing it up. During the latter part of the last half rough playing was especially noticed by the crowd present, and jeers could be heard at times when a member of either team was hacked. Fouls were called by the referee, but this did not curb the rough play.

By winning this game the Mebs now go into a tie for first place with the Leather Pushers. Each team has five victories and two losses to their credit.

The large score made by the Mebs was somewhat due to the fact that the Leather Pushers had to play with but four men during a good part of the last half. This team had no substitutes and Curtin, the right guard was taken out of the game because he had four personal fouls called on him.

Brats for the Mebs, was the leading figure in his team's play. The passing system was centered around him. He accounted for 14 points of his teams total of 36. Prince also played a good game at guard.

McMahon for the Leather Pushers and Risch of the same team worked like beavers for a victory. They playing was always good.

FLOTILLA QUINTET HAS TWO TOUGH GAMES AHEAD

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 5.—The Submarine Base basketball five has two hard games scheduled over the week-end. The first game is on Thursday evening with the Stonington quintet, this game will be played on the Base court. On Saturday it is expected that Plainfield will journey to New London to play the Base on the Armory court.

With the Stonington and Plainfield teams scheduled to play the Base five in almost successive dates, the sailors will face the severest test of the season. Both teams are capable to give the gobs a good run for ther money. This was demonstrated by both teams only recently, the Base winning from both teams by a single point.

The Plainfield team is the most feared, of the two. The good game this team put up against the Boston Whirlwinds on Monday night will mark this team as one of the most dangerous outfits the Base will stack up against this season.

Lieutenant Arnold, director of athletics at the Base, could not be reached late Wednesday evening to confirm the report that the Plainfield teamwill come to New London on Saturday evening. Should the Base oppose Plainfield, this game will be but one of the big attractions at the local State Armory. On the same night, the Headquarters quintet at present leading the Military league, will play Company A of Meriden Conn.

BENEFIT BOXING SHOW IS POSTPONED

New York, Mar. 5.—Postponement of the professional boxing show arranged for March 19 at Madison Square Garden for the benefit of the American Olympic fund was announced today after a conference of officials in charge of the affair with Promoter Tex Rickard. Because the original date conflicted with boxing cards previously arranged for March 20 and 21 at the garden, it was agreed to hold the benefit performance either on April 29, at Madison Square Garden, or a week later at the New York Velodrome, uptown open-air arena.

Another factor influencing the change was that Pal Moran, New Orleans lightweight, who has agreed to meet Jack Zivic of Pittsburgh, for the Olympic fund, is scheduled to box a return match with Johnny Dundee at the garden March 14. He thus would have only a week between engagements.

Other attractions on the benefit program include matches between Paul Berlenbach, new knockout sensation and Olympic wrestling champion of 1920, and Phil Krug, Newark, N. J., middleweight, and Frank Genaro, American flyweight titleholder and former Olympic boxing champion, and Bud Taylor, Terre Haute, Ind., bantamweight.

PLANNING EASTERN CONN. BOWLING CHAMPIONSHIP

Plans are being formulated for deciding the individual bowling championship of the Eastern Connecticut alleys whereby one bowler in the eastern part of the state will hold the undisputed title to the honors. Ray Fillmore of the Aetna alleys of this city is the instigator of the plan and has been in conference with five other alleys in the eastern part of the state and all seem to favor the plan. A meeting of the representatives of the various alleys will be called early next week when definite plans and regulations governing the championship tournament will be made.

The entry list will include besides Fillmore, Dugas of Taftville, Barber of Danielson, present claimant of the title; Conrad of Willimantic, and Halliley of New London. McKenzie of Moosup, will probably be another contestant as will Vandale of Putham. This sextette is recognized as the cream of the bowling men in Eastern Connecticut but never has the title been really decided. It is the intent of the bowlers, to have a substantial entrance fee and a cup emblematic of the title will probably be awarded the winner with the qualification that the cup must be won a certain number of consecutive times to gain permanent possession.

ONLY FOUR YANKEE PLAYERS ARE HOLDOUTS

New York, Mar. 5.—Sam Jones, veteran Yankee pitcher, turned in his signed contract to the New York club today, thereby reducing the number of holdouts to four. Jones is still at his home in Woodsfield, O., but was instructed to report at the New Orleans camp on March 9.

Jones won 21 and lost 8 games last year and stepped into the hall of fame with a no-hit, no-run contest against the Athletics.

Aaron Ward, Herb Pennock, Bob Shawkey and Bob Meusel are still said to be holding out for salary increases. Pennock, it is understood, demanded a $4,000 increase over what was offered him. While with the Boston Red Sox Pennock drew an annual salary check of $5,000 and the Yankees assumed this contract when they bought his release from Boston last winter. His new contract, according to a reliable source, calls for $8,000 but due to his record of last year Pennock believes he is entitled to $12,000. Pennock won 19 and lost 6 games last year, allowing, but 3.34 earned runs a game, the best record of any member of the Yankee staff.

Harvard Beats Dartsmouth

Cambridge, Mass., March 5.—Harvard basketball team outplayed Dartmouth tonight, defeating the Green team, 38 to 16. Showing unexpected power in attack, Harvard outplayed its opponent throughout. Dartmouth apparently underestimated the strength of the crimson, holding Captain Friedman, Edwards and Sailler out of the game until half time. In each period Harvard scored 19 points. 18 of the total being from the foul line.

U. of V. Challenges Cornell Five

Burlington, Vt., Mar. 4.—A challenge was issued tonight by the University of Vermont to the Cornell basketball team, eastern intercollegiate league champions, to a post season game with the Vermont team, claimant of the New England collegiate championship.

TWO MORE MILE RELAYS FOR SCHOLASTIC MEET

New York, Mar. 5.—Two championship mile relays, one for high school and one for prep school teams have been added to the program of events for the seventh annual national interscholastic indoor track and field games to be held in the 115th Regiment armory, New York, on March 15. The program contains the 70, 220, 440 and 880-yard and one mile runs, 70-yard high hurdles, running high jump and 12-pound shotput in addition to the relays.

A number of A. A. U. and college events will be added to the program to give the school boys a chance to witness some of the leading athletes perform, including Loren Murchison, Carl Christiernson, Lloyd Hahn and possibly Jole Ray and Joseph Tierney. Entries for the interscholastic events close March 8 with Carl G. Anderson, physical director of Newark Central High.

MAY CURTAIL ATHLETICS ACTIVITIES AT HARVARD

Cambridge, Mass., March 5.—Curtailment of athletic activities at Harvard was indicated as a possibility in a brief statement issued today by J. W. D. Seymour, secretary for information at the university. The statement given out as a reply to rumor that the faculty of arts and sciences at a meeting yesterday discussed college athletics, was as follows:

"There is a feeling at Harvard that too much attention is being paid to intercollegiate athletic contests and that the schedule of athletic teams are excessive.

"Some modifications are contemplated, but as yet no final action has been taken by the committee on the regulation of athletic sports at Harvard."

DANIELSON BATTERY FIVE DID NOT PLAY AT PLAINFIELD

Sporting Editor: I would be grateful if you would correct a statement in Tuesday morning's issue to the effect that the Service Battery lost to the Plainfield Buddies at Plainfield Monday night.

Several Service Battery players participated in this game and wore battery uniforms, without permission, but these men did not represent the Service Battery and made no claim of so doing.

I feel that in view of the record which the Service Battery has made this season it would be an injustice to the team to have this defeat charged up against them.

GORDON J. GALÆ,
Director of Athletics.

TWENTY FOOT PUTT BEATS HAGEN AND KIRKWOOD

Miami, Fla., March 5.—Mike Brady of Detroit, and Jack Hutchison of Chicago defeated the British team of Jimmy Ocgenden and Arthur Havens, and Bill Mehlhorn of Oklahoma city and MacDonald Smith of California beat Walter Hagen and Joe Kirkwood in the semi-finals of the international professional team championship golf tournament here today.

A twenty foot putt by Mehlhorn on the 36th hole for a birdie four climaxed a thrilling rally to beat Hagen and Kirkwood, one up. Another almost as long by Hutchinson battered the British team to a two down defeat.

YALE HOCKEY TEAM RECEIVES B. C. CHALLENGE

New Haven, Mar. 5. — The Yale hockey team today received a challenge from Boston college for a game, the proceeds to go to the fund being raised to send America's athletes to the Olympic games. John T. Reynolds, graduate director of athletics at Yale, said that the challenge cannot be accepted. It is pointed out that Yale has gone through a particularly long and hard season and that to keep it in training after Saturday night, when it plays Princeton, would be out of keeping with the policy of the athletic association.

COMBS SIGNS CONTRACT WITH KENTUCKY SCHOOL

Richmond, Ky., March 5.—Earle Combs, holdout recruit outfielder of the New York Yankees has signed as assistant coach at the Eastern Kentucky Normal school here, C. N. Hembree, coach, announced today.

Combs is asking for a portion of his purchase price, claiming he had a promise from the Colonels that he was to be "taken care of" in that respect.

MORAN'S CONDITION IS BECOMING MORE ACUTE

Cincinnati, Ohio, March 5.—Manager Pat Moran of the Cincinnati Reds who has been ill since arriving at Orlando, Fla., Sunday, was taken to the hospital today by the order of his physicians in the hope that expert care would hasten his recovery, according to news despatches from Orlando. # "Y" SWIMMERS TAKE THRILLING MEET FROM PLAINFIELD AQUATIC TEAM

The Norwich Y. M. C. A. swimming team defeated the Plainfield swimming team Wednesday evening at the local pool by a score of 34 to 34, in one of the most thrilling aquatic meets ever held here. The meet was replete with thrills many of the races being so close that it was a matter of only a few inches that separated the winners. The Norwich team was handicapped by the loss of Johnny Fellows, who was unable to swim because of illness. Fellows is one of the mainstays in the diving and dash events.

Teddy Kundig continued to pile up his high point man of the team when he scored twelve of the points made by the Norwich mermen. For Plainfield Green was the star performer, his work being very near to perfection.

In the plunge for distance Ely of Norwich proved his superiority by plunging 84 feet. In the relay race, which was won by Plainfield, only six inches separated the last two men at the finish. McNamara nosed out Green for diving honors by a single point.

The events were run off in the following order.

Plunge for distance—Ely, Norwich, first; Wynnann, Norwich, second; Devoe, Plainfield, third.

Four man relay — Plainfield first (Lee, Peterson, Green, Ely); Norwich, (Kundig, McNamara, Sayles, Hindrichs).

Forty yard breast stroke—Kundig, Norwich, first; H. Vincent, Plainfield, second.

Forty yard dash—Sayles, Norwich, first; McNamara, Norwich, second; Ely, Plainfield, third.

Forty yard back stroke — Green, Plainfield, first; Kundig, Norwich, second; McNamara, Norwich, third.

Hundred yard free style — Green, Plainfield, first, Kundig, Norwich, second; R. Vincent, Plainfield, third.

Fancy diving—McNamara, Norwich, first; Green, Plainfield, second; Kundig, Norwich, third.

The juniors furnished entertainment for the crowd by staging a relay race and diving exhibition between the different events.

Much credit is due to Fred Williams, who is coaching the local team, for his good work in rounding the team into shape.

CUBS INCREASE LEAD IN VOLLEYBALL LEAGUE

Volleyball and swimming filled out a busy night in the Y. M. C. A. physical department last night, when in addition to the Plainfield vs. Y. M. C. A. swimming meet, the men's championship volleyball league games took place in the gym. In a set of fast games the Cubs took two games out of three from the Yankees, while the Giants romped away with three from the Braves. The Senators were awarded three games by forfeit from the Pirates.

Standing of teams:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Cubs | 8 | 1 | 889 |
| Giants | 7 | 2 | 778 |
| Braves | 8 | 4 | 667 |
| Yankees | 7 | 5 | 584 |
| Senators | 3 | 8 | 250 |
| Pirates | 0 | 8 | 000 |

The games played between the Giants and the Cubs a few weeks ago have been protested for several reasons and will probably be played over in the near future.

ILLINOIS A. C. WINS SENIOR TRACK TITLE

New York, March 5.—(By the A. P.)—Despite the disqualification of its two teams in the medley relay, one of which was led to the finish first by Joie Ray, the Illinois Athletic club tonight captured the National Senior A. A. U. indoor track and field championships for the second successive year.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Pitcher Bob Tecarr will try his wing in the Southern League the coming season, the Springfield Club of the Eastern League having traded him to Atlanta for Pitcher Cliff Beer. The latter formerly was with the Boston Red Sox, while Springfield got Tecarr from Jersey City of the International League.

The Galveston Club has traded Clarence Bittle, outfielder, to the Hamilton Club for Bob Wickham, outfielder, who last year was with Petersburg of the Virginia League, for several years and decided he would ask for a transfer to different territory.

The Augusta Club announces as its first deal after signing John Nee as manager the purchase of Guy Tutweiler, who was with Gastonia (Columbia) in the South Atlantic League last season. It is the plan of Manager Nee to use Tutweiler on first base, though he formerly was an outfielder.

Mike Bliss, who was a catcher with Guthrie of the Oklahoma State League last year, has been purchased from that club by Topeka of the Western Association. Another catcher who makes a change in the Western Association is Art Forrest, who has been purchased by Bartlesville from Muskogee.

Johnny Nee, engaged as manager for the Augusta team by the new management, will be new to the Sally League, but he has connections that know the territory, for instance, Jimmy Hamilton, now with Nashville, with whom he will work. Nee also will have players from Detroit and the Boston Red Sox.

The despatch sent out that Pitcher Jimmy Walkup of the Okmulgee team of the Western Association would get a trial this spring with Detroit Tigers is denied by Business Manager Earl Snapp of the Okmulgee Club, who says a prospective deal for Walkup to go to Detroit was cancelled during the winter.

Jack Coffey's resignation of the management of the Macon team of the South Atlantic League is because he wants to finish a law course at Fordham University and which he can not complete until late in June. Meanwhile he will assist as coach of Fordham baseball candidates while pursuing his studies.

William H. Holland, for several years secretary of the Jersey City Club of the International League, died recently at his home in Jersey City.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

H. H. Frazee will present William Courtenay in his great success, Dangerous People, at the Broadway theatre, for one night only, Friday, March 7.

This attraction comes to this city after a long run in Chicago and will be seen prior to the Boston engagement. The play is the work of Oliver White. It is of the type known as a crook play. The leading role is that of a refined, suave, artistic young man, whose grace and ease make lovable the character that is beyond the law. Mr. Courtenay has achieved unusual success in just such parts. He created the leading role in Arsene Lupin which was the first of the crook plays. Following this he created Stephen Denby in Roi Cooper Megrue's mystery play, Under Cover. He also starred in The Law Breaker. This style of play offers unlimited opportunity to Mr. Courtenay for the display of his unusual talents which range from comedy to romantic acting. Dangerous People is written along new lines and there is no similarity between it and other crook plays. The author gets his dramatic action by reverse methods. His crook gets into many difficulties through efforts to return $63,000 to the bank from which it was stolen. While Dangerous People is a comedy, there are many serious moments during the action of the play, and a pretty love story runs through it all. It is said the play is the best vehicle Mr. Courtenay has had since he appeared in Under Cover. His supporting cast is exceptional as it includes such splendid artists as Charles Millward, who played the title role in The Fool. Before playing in The Fool Mr. Millward had the leading part in The Bat. Virginia Hammond has been Mr. Courtenay's leading lady for two seasons and prior to that supported Henry Miller in The Famous Mrs. Fair. George Parsons starred for several seasons in George M. Cohan productions. Gertrude Hitz played the leading role in the New York production of The Deep Tangled Wildwood and before that was for three seasons leading lady with William Hodge. Such artists are rarely assembled in one company and their presence is a sort of guarantee of excellent entertainment.

Seats now on sale at box office.

Studebaker Figured in South Africa

Johannesburg, March (Special)—Old timers of the Boer trek wagon trails thronged around a mud-daubed automobile, when it drew up at the curb on a main thoroughfare in Johannesburg today.

The machine, a Studebaker Light-Six touring car, had just written a new page in the colorful history of the Union of South Africa. Without a pause in the motor's steady throb, it had set four records in retraveling the old settler routes; completely circling the Union, in less than 100 hours—a perilous trip that once took weeks for the bullock carts.

Not only did the Studebaker establish a new round-trip record around the Union, but it also shattered three other records between points along the course. Notable among these was the new running time of 38 hours and 27 minutes between this city and Cape Town. This was a distance of 990 miles.

A standard stock model was driven out of Johannesburg by H. F. Payne, Fred Scantlebury, L. O. Bright and W. E. du Preez. They drove over mountainous roads thick with mud to Cape Town, then through Port Elizabeth, East London, Kokstad, Durban and return. The car made a 2,687-mile circle.

The maze of roads running around hundreds of diamond diggings, near Kimberly, brought confusion to the record-breakers. The running time suffered a serious disadvantage through time lost in opening and closing cattle gates. Metropolitan motorists may be surprised to know that actually 300 gates barred the Studebaker's path.

Returning to Johannesburg, the Light-Six was examined by several hundred car owners. The engine was still running smoothly. The body was uninjured—although it was thickly coated with mud, from axles to top. Then a careful examination of the chassis showed that the car had gone through the gruelling strain without the slightest breakdown.

"We knew the Studebakes would go through with it," declared B. Penney, Johannesburg motor dealer. 'We hoped for a record. But, honestly, we did not expect the four records that the car made.

"We felt that it could cover the distance according to the express schedule we had mapped out, and it accomplished what no other car has done. We proved that it is master of muddy mountain roads as well as crowded city traffic."

Broadway Theatre, Starting Saturday

We do not pretend to be able to describe Judgment of the Storm, and there is no other photoplay to which it can be compared. We can only tell you that it is one of the most gripping, and thrilling films ever presented in Norwich, starting Saturday, and you should see it while it is at the Broadway theatre Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

The story has to do with John Trevor, a college boy, and his love for Mary Heath, the daughter of a farmer's widow. Of course, there is the second suitor and villain, Martin Freeland, a "city chap" and rounder.

The complications come fast for John Trevor's mother, known in the underworld as "Hazena," runs a gambling house—unknown to John who thinks his mother is wealthy. Dave Heath, the brother of the girl he loves, is killed in this gambling house when Freeland brings him to the city to "see the sights." John Trevor, to atone, volunteers to work without pay on the Heath farm in place of the murdered Dave, for whose death he holds his own mother responsible.

From the fury of a big blizzard John rescues Bob Heath, Dave's young brother, the Heath twins and his own mother who has come from the city to see him at Christmas and the judgment of the storm replaces misery in many hearts with great happiness.

The scenes for the big blizzard were filmed in the high Sierras and are undoubtedly the greatest snowstorm scenes ever screened, not even excepting the great snow scenes shown in Way Down East.

The story was written by Ethel Styles Middleton, a Pittsburgh housewife. It is a story that is written in the fertile soil of every-day-life and should bring this heretofore unknown writer great fame.

The adaptation and direction were both done by Del Andrews, who made The Hottentot, among other great pictures. In Judgment of the Storm, he has far excelled any of his previous efforts.

The cast is really all star. Each individual in it is a star in his or her own right. Lloyd Hughes as John Trevor, does excellent work. Lucille Rickson as Mary Heath plays her role in a delightful manner. Myrtle Stedman gives a fine performance in the role of Helene Trever, the mother of John and the owner of a gambling den. George Hackathorn, Claire McDowell and Phil McCullough, all shew great histrionic ability.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BREED THEATRE

Heralded as "the greatest historical classic on the screen," with romance and adventure garbed in the colorful atmosphere of the Twelfth century, Richard, the Lion-Hearted, an Allied Producers and Distributors Corporation release, will be the feature attraction at the Breed theatre for the remainder of the week.

Based on The Talisman Sir Walter Scott's story so familiar to book lovers the world over, Richard, the Lion-hearted has a two-point appeal. For those who seek entertainment alone, it unfolds a story of compelling interest in lavish settings that are a source of constant delight. For students of history or literature, it is a faithful representation of the life of the period in which it was laid. In its many beautiful scenes there is a wealth of antiques for which the museums of two continents were drawn upon.

The great King Richard's Third Crusade, by which he sought to recover the Holy Land and the Holy Sepulchre from the Saracens, was one of constant adventure and its absorbing story has been transferred to the silver sheet with remarkable success. With its spirited clashes between the Crusaders and the Saracen hordes, thrilling hand to hand combat, brilliant swordsmanship, romance intrigue—all in settings of the almost pagan splendor—Richard, the Lion-Hearted is truly a most impressive picture.

Berry has been surrounded by a brilliant supporting cast, including Kathleen Clifford, who is a charming Queen Berengaria; Marguerite de la Motte, as the beautiful Lady Edith Plantagenet, and John Bowers, as Sir Kenneth, Knight of the Leopard.

From beginning to end, Richard, the Lion-Hearted is marked by the perfection of technique that should be expected from the collaboration of Frank E. Woods, Elmer Harris and Thompson Buchanan, the trio incorporated as Associated Authors who decided on a screen adaption of The Talisman as their initial production.

Credit for the picture's powerful appeal also is due to Chet Whitney, the director, and due Mrs. Una Nixon Hopkins, art director, who designed the stupendous sets which give the story its background, including a replica of the ancient town of Joplin, Palestine.

The White Sister Coming to the Breed

Arrangements have been completed for the showing of Henry King's production of F. Marion Crawford's The White Sister at the Breed theatre. This production has been acclaimed everywhere the dramatic triumph of the year—the greatest love story of modern times.

In New York audiences have been crowding to see this picture for months and month at $2.20 admission prices.

The White Sister is pictorially the most beautiful film ever made. The company spent seven months in Italy and northern Africa filming sections of Rome, Naples, Sorrento and Tivoli as backgrounds.

Lillian Gish is starred and has the finest role of her career and her acting has been acclaimed as the greatest in the history of the screen—worthy of Bernhardt or Duse.

For the climax of the picture the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius in early 1923 was filmed. This outburst caused the loss of hundreds of lives and millions of dollars. The scenes were taken at enormous personal risk on the part of the staff.

Strand Theatre.

A little of everything and a very good variety is assured with the exceptional collection of real vaudeville scheduled for the Strand the first half of this week.

The word "petticoat" describes something far more than a garment. It is slang for the fair creature who in days gone by wore such articles, and if petticoats as clothing are obsolete today the only meaning of the word is girl. "Petticoats" as a vaudeville act is just girls—eight comely charmers who form one of the best syncopated musical units to be found anywhere. This syncopation in girls is headed by Billie Ekman who of course is the director of this feminine jass orchestra. The Petticoat Band is the feature attraction de luxe.

Arthur Huston & company, present the new pantomimic farce, The Nightmare. It is a comedy scream.

Joe & Ernie Van in Bright Ideas, present a conversational oddity which is just one laugh after another.

Grace Ayer & Billy in "7" is a surprise offering that will score a big hit.

Will Lecture For Vegetable Growers.

COMPROMISE IN TAYLOR-MARKOW BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT, NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, March 6.—The $15,000 breach of promise suit brought by Miss Fannie Taylor of Quaker Hill against Louis Markow, of New London and Norwich, scheduled to be tried in the superior court here today, will probably not come to trial, for when the case was called, late this forenoon, it developed that the plaintiff and defendant had practically reached an agreement and that a compromise would undoubtedly be effected. Counsel for plaintiff and defendant conferred throughout the remainder of the day, court adjourning at 3.30 o'clock until tomorrow forenoon and it was then revealed that a compromise had been reached and that when court convenes tomorrow the compromise will be ready for approval. What the terms of the compromise are would not be revealed by counsel, but it is understood the agreement is for a sum considerably less than was sued for.

Louis Webb, formerly of New London, now serving a sentence in the New Haven jail for transporting liquor, will be released Saturday, Judge Edwin S. Thomas, of the United States district court having decided to extend leniency to Webb, who is a lifelong friend of Judge Thomas. An attempt was made at the time of Webb's conviction to obtain leniency for him, but Judge Thomas refused to grant it. Webb, at the time of being sentenced, was residing at Easterly place, Ocean beach. He is an ex-State police officer and for a year or two was proprietor of inns between New London and Stonington. He was latterly connected with the Bayside Inn, Noank. Webb was arrested by prohibition officers on the Thames river highway bridge, when he was about to go to Noank with an automobile loaded with liquor.

An automobile owned and operated by Harry Wachinsky, 38 Summer street, and a Connecticut company trolley car were in collision at the corner of Broad and Hempstead streets last evening. Both automobile and trolley car were damaged.

Frank Langhere, of 82 Gorton street complained to the police this morning that a quantity of lumber stored at a house on Vauxhall street, near the corner of Raymond street extension and in course of construction had been stolen and that he had located some of the stolen material in a yard of a nearby resident. Patrolman Edward Daniels, who was assigned to the complaint, ascertained that children removed the lumber from the house because of its size, believing it to be kindlings. In reality the material was expensive, for it was intended for decorative purposes.

Theodore Lugia, an alleged crook, arrested at New Haven when he obtained his freedom on a bond there where he was accused of a crime, was presented in the police court this morning, but was not tried, as his counsel asked for a continuance of the case until Saturday. The request was granted and Lusta was ordered to furnish a bond of $1000. This he could not do, so was taken to jail. Mrs. Mary McGarry, at whose home Lusta had a room when he is alleged to have stolen a gold watch and chain that was the property of James Kirby, also a roomer there, was in court to identify the accused man. She declared that she had no doubt as to his identity. James Kirby was there also, but he had not seen Lusta to know who he was until he saw him in court today. Lusta represents that the identification by Mrs. McGarry is a mistake and says he was not in New London when the robbery is alleged to have taken place.

William Dooley, who once in the police court claimed his occupation was that of "a chambermaid in a saloon" was presented for intoxication and was sent to jail to stay thirty days. William has been in better shape physically of late than he has been in for several years, but he seems to be incapable of resisting the temptation to indulge freely in intoxicating liquor when he can get it.

Mrs. W. M. Prall, 47 Ocean avenue, in walking along that thoroughfare this morn was attracted to three children, one a girl and none of them over 12, who appeared to be greatly excited. Mrs. Prall alleges they informed her that a man had attempted to induce them to secret themselves in a clump of bushes in the vicinity of Lawrence hospital. Mrs. Prall informed the police, Sergeant Frank Howard visited the vicinity where the children were alleged to have been accosted. Inquiry among hospital employes did not reveal that any man had been loitering in that vicinity and neither were there any bushes or hedges there. Later the officer visited the Harbor school, where it was claimed the children were pupils, and it was learned from the teachers that none of the youngsters had been stopped going home from studies. It was determined, however, that three children in passing through Ocean avenue had requested a ride in an automobile and that the third child declined and then ran through the avenue. It is believed by the police that no endeavor was made to molest the children and that imagination entered into the report that was lodged with the police.

He was released from custody upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $300 in Sheriff Manuel J. Martin. Brenner will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning. The arrest of Brenner, it is understood, is the result of a series of disturbances at his home of late that resulted in a war of words between Brenner and his wife when the latter is alleged to have criticised his conduct in staying out late at night. It is also understood that Brenner was abusing his wife with harsh language when Sergeant Howard appeared at the Brenner home with the warrant, which was issued a short time before by Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin. Mrs. Brenner was originally a Norwich young lady and her parents reside in that city.

City Manager William A. Holt this morning received bids for the purchase of two of the city's buildings, which were originally used for the care of contagious cases on Garfield avenue. ## MADEIRA KING PIN OF BEAUTIFUL ISLANDS

Madeira is the king pin of all the beautiful islands of the sea, writes Rutherford C. Plaut of this city to local friends after a stop at the islands in his six months voyage around the world.

His letter follows:

Before I forget it, Ed, I want to tell you a secret. I was vaccinated and the doctor who performed the major operation told me that when the vaccination arm itched me to be sure and scratch the other arm. Cadden and his sisters are still debating whether "to be or not be" vaccinated. In the meantime, I have no trouble with mine and by Sunday I'll be all O. K. They perhaps will decide when the weather gets real hot and they will have more inconvience then I have had.

When the boat came around from Vancouver it was bound to be the largest craft ever to have entered the harbors of San Francisco, San Pedro and Havana. Her net tonnage or number of 100 cubic feet passenger carrying space, is 12311. At $1.20 a net ton, therefore the toll for bringing the ship thru the Panama Canal was $15,332. Quite a bit, I'd say. I didn't write you in my last letter that our ship put into Halifax to put on liquid refreshments and it took from 7 A. M. until 3.30 P. M. to do it, so you see they must be well stocked. Halifax was awful cold. Cadden and I went ashore there and were glad to get back on the warm boat.

We sent you a telegram from Halifax. We will look forward to receiving a cable from you each week end and will be very much disappointed if we do not get it. Now, if I was indifferent to Madeira, I take it all back. Whatever enthusiasm we lacked beforehand we have acquired now. Of all the beautiful islands of the sea, Madeira is the king pin. There is not one on this big ship who has not made up his mind to come back here and visit again at some future time. We all recommend it to our friends. I knew absolutely nothing about Madeira, except what the booklets told us, but then we drew near enough to see the terraced hills—and some of them are said to be six thousand feet above the sea—and to make out the tiny houses nestling against the green, we immediately changed our minds about being willing to sail by without stopping, and when at last we swung into the harbor of Funchal we felt somehow we had come upon an enchanted isle in the middle of the ocean. There were the green hills terraced almost to the top and the small city at the wash of the ocean. Even with the naked eye, we could discover an immense patch of blue and purple part way up the hillside. The glass showed it to be a house almost covered with bougainvillea. As we came to anchor, we saw bearing down upon us a fleet of half naked boys. They came prepared to dive for coins which the passengers might throw over into the deep water for them. We did not believe the younger ones could do it, but that was an error in judgment on our part. Some of the divers were mere children—poor—this and hungry looking— who stood up in their boats, soliciting us to throw over dimes or quarters, pennies or any other money that would sink to a watery grave. But let a dime or quarter go over the side and they were after it like a hungry dog for a bone and they always got it, climbed into their craft, shewed the coin and awaited the throwing of another. We enjoyed it for a time but it became monotonous. We then went ashore in boats of the tender type that could easily accomodate forty or fifty people, and the water was far from smooth. It was not easy for them to make a landing at the stairs which ascended to the stone pier, altho when once on shore, everything was attractive again. It was sunny and bright and the streets were attractive—all paved with small black cobble stones set in a very neat fashion. Our conveyance was waiting for us at the end of the pier, and they were, I believe, the most curious conveyances in the world. They were not carriages or carts or sealed vehicles of any sort, but sleds with enclosed tops and drawn by oxen. Their drivers motioned you to get in and in we got. A youth, perhaps eight years of age, was driving the oxen and his Pater would follow with a greased rar which he would occasionally put under a runner to smooth the ride for us and make it draw easier for the oxen. Well, we all four climbed in and then it began to rain, but fortunately, as per habit in these countries, we always carry a light rain coat. This rain did not last long, however, but it spoiled our first ride. In the evening a dance was given at the Casino for the members of the cruise. Caroline and Cadden retired early, so Minnye and I did the honors at the Grand Ball. This ball was a fine affair and dancing was enjoyed immensely, but the chief attraction developed itself in a gambling hall, where the favorite game of Roulette held sway, where you chose a number from one to 35 and cover the number with any amount which you choose. Supposing I chose 10, which I did not, and I put down one hundred dollars. They would pay me 35 hundred. You see it is very simple if you only knew which number would be called. Well I selected a chair at the head of the table. My aunt Minnye sat next to me—yes she is a real sport when you get her away from home—and then we began. I bought a hundred dollar stack and prepared to clean up the bank, but somehow or other, I didn't seem to be able to select the right number and I did not break the bank.

We took another ride in one of those Ballock Carts which I have described to you and our course was uphill. We ascended a panorama of sunny tile and tinted flowering walls to the outskirts of that neatest and most charming of cities, continually expressing our delight in the general attractiveness of things, the wonderfully laid streets, the really beautiful sidewalks of very tiny, varied colors of cobblestones, all set in a perfect Mosaic pattern. The glow and bloom of summer was everywhere. In my wildest imaginations I have never seen such a mass of beautiful garden flowers. We admired even the persistent little beggars who ran along both sides of the sleds, throwing camellias into our laps, crying out, "Penny! penny!" their one English word, and they keep right after you. We gave to the first of these tormentors but it was not a good way to get rid of them. It was like putting out sugar to satisfy a few flies. A dozen more were around us, going on in a most disturbing manner. Finally, I shook my fist at them, and threw their flowers back at them, so they left us to go with the next cart. We took a funicular railway up to Terreiro do Lucta, mountain to an altitude of 1386 feet above the sea level. It takes thirty to make an ascent of two and one half miles and it seems as if you were ascending through Paradise. The railway went through a perfect wilderness of beauty flowers, foliage and waving green sugar cane, by tiny stucco white houses, with red roofs, set in tangled gardens and slopes of cane, while below and beyond lay the city and the harbor. We could see our ship at anchor in the harbor with her three yellow smoke stacks in sight as we made the ascent. Would we be so enchanted with the magic of the Island of Madeira, if it were not our first landing after a long winter voyage, which, if not stormy, was not entirely smooth? Another thing they claim for this island is that no one ever gets sick here and every one gets well of everything they happen to have when they get here. I noticed that people who were wretchedly sick on the steamer were O.K on shore so I guess it might be so. At the end of this cog railroad which we ascended, we walked to the top, or almost the top where Minnye and I seated ourselves in a comfortable basket, equipped with runners to descend that long paved, greased hill. These baskets hold either two or three. Carrie and J. W. followed in another tobogran. When you get seated, two men take your in hand and away you go. You go, too. A distance of two miles it has been made in three minutes in those things. I don't think we went as fast at that, but Minnye never held on to me so tight in her life before. It was plenty fast enough though. It was a swift panorama of flowers and sualit wall and distant sea. Now and then, we would whisk past a carrion, a brown, bent men with one of those great sleds on his shoulders, toiling with it up the long steep hill. It takes some of the joy out of the sleds to feel that some poor guy is going to carry that toboggan back up the hill on his back.

Here is the place to buy the real Madeira art work and I have invested in quite a little of small material. They have one price here—all they can get. The only real criticism I can make about Madeira is the beggars. They begin to beg before they can walk, and, as I said before, they begin to call "penny! penny!" before they can say, "mama" or "papa".

Our boat is scheduled to leave at 4 P. M. I am on board and dined, so are all the folks of our party. We had lunch at Reid's Hotel—a real English outfit.

It was here at Madeira that King Charles the First of Austria was exiled and he died here in 1921. He is buried in the Church of The Lady of the Mountain, in the hill where we went sliding. They say his body rests here but his heart has been removed and returned to Austria. His wife left here soon afterward to take up her abode in Spain. I might also say that in 1470 Christopher Columbus married Menina Perestrello here.

I am sending you herewith one thousand five hundred and fifty dollars of their money. Take it to Casper Bailey and see if he would sell you a postage stamp for it. I am also enclosing some stamps. Please give them to Mr. Lester. You will hear from me the next time from Gibraltar and Algeciras in Spain. I hope you are all writing me the news of the good home town, but if you fail me and I don't get a good supply by the time I reach Cairo, you won't hear from me. We are not going to stop at Alexandria. For some reason, they have cut it out, but I will see that Mrs. Antoofian's brother gets the package she sent by me.

Regards to all.

WRITING THESIS ON CORRECTING GRADE CROSSING

John J. Sullivan of this city, senior in the engineering course at Norwich University, Northfield, Vt., has offered a proposal for eliminating a dangerous crossing at Riverton, Vt., in connection with an engineering project selected by the seniors of the university as a subject for thesis work.

This project calls for the elimination of the dangerous railroad crossing at Riverton, five miles north of Northfield, where several fatal accidents have occurred during the past years. Mr. Sullivan has proposed eliminating the danger by carrying the highway further north through an underpass.

Two improvements in the athletic facilities at Norwich University are also contained in the list of plans and George K. Brush of Fitchville, Conn., is making plans for a combination outdoor swimming pool and skating rink.

In a single day a spider can consume nearly 30 times its own weight in food.

REV. E. C. DUNBAR SPEAKS AT SELT SHOP MEETING

Under Y. M. C. A. auspices Rev. E. C. Dunbar gave an intensely interesting message to the men of Norwich Belt Company Tuesday noon. His topic was "What is Faith." Mr. Dunbar said in part:

What is faith? It is very easy to define something of material form, but when we come to the realm of the non-material we often can give only illustration. This is true in answering the question "What is faith?" Some might reply to the question in the words of a little girl, "Faith is believing the things you know are not true." Another may say, "Faith is believing the creeds of your church." A Bible student might illustrate by quoting the words of the writer of the book of Hebrews, "Faith is the assurance of the things hoped for, a conviction of things not seen." The first I believe to be false. The second and third illustration do not go far enough to satisfy me. We have to read the rest of the chapter and a part of the next to see what true faith is. These show that faith is an assurance of things hoped for plus a desire to work in order to bring about the hoped for things. Faith without a desire to prove our faith does us or the world little good. We have faith in electricity, but it does us no good unless we prove our faith by turning the button.

Today we need the human Jesus for the author of our faith. Invention is causing us to hold our breath in wonder. Old conventionalities are passing away. Science is making inroads into our old beliefs. The Bible teaches that Jesus was both human and divine. It was the human Jesus who was tempted, who suffered, prayed, toiled against opposition. It was the human Jesus who overcame them all or would not be over come by them. It is the human Jesus who shows us how to come into right relationship with the Father. Therefore because he overcame these things as a human, so can we taking his example overcome as also did, with the help of God.

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Avoid Indigestion, Sour Acid Stomach, Heartburn, Gas on Stomach, Etc.

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion or they can eat as they please in reason and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antiacid than Bisurated Magnesia and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and it is not a digestent. But a teaspoonful of the powder in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully without need of pepsin pills or artificial digestants.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. If never obtained as a liquid, milk or citrate and in the bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat."

The Centenary Autocar

Of course we have many cars over Country was your trail
And people on week-days were piled
Of 'centenary roads' where the carriages
On very side by side, over muddy mahogany.
When ever these roads rode the stage coaches bumped,
And sometimes their passengers suddenly dumped.

Today, in their place, we have cordoned bridges,
Across which we drive o'er a series of ridges,
The hot of the Cottage Farm Bridge I am singing,
Although in my ears is its remedy ringing;
But rather of Harvard Bridge, spanning Charles River,
A corduroy structure of plank, space and silver.

Your car climbs a plank, with an ominous shudder
Another plank loosens your spine on the ridges,
A third plank assists you to regions much higher,
Descending, the breath is knocked out of your tire,
And then you said swiftly, quite close to the railing,
Regretting your car is not suited for sailing!

You cannot turn back, for behind you are coming
A score of big cars with their engines a-humming,
You suddenly stall, then with a bump and a clatter
A car bends your mudguard a little bit flatter;
You "step on the gas," yet you cannot go faster,
A hole yawns before you like depthless disaster.

And when you have crossed o'er that bridge and its planking,
You feel as if you had received a good spanking;
You pause for a while by the avenue's gutter,
Recover your wits, then maliciously mutter—
"I'll wager, when Gabriel's trumpet is sounding,
Some cars on that corduroy bridge will be pounding!"

—Carlos Nevers Holmes in Boston Globe.

Rainbow Greens

There is a rainbow over Pescadero
Where its bold bastion juts into the sea,
A marvelous arc upon the western azure
Colors that fuse in perfect harmony.

Somehow I feel that these hues are prophetic,
That they are omens of the coming hours
When over Californian heights and lowlands
Will sweep in rainbow march the banded flowers.

Footsteps of spring will fade it with the light,
Wild lilies with nodding will streams,
And oh, how the bright handsome of the poppy
Will radiantly lead on the rainbow dance!

—Clinton Scollard in New York Herald.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. —(Adv.)

Mighty Healing Power of Peterson's Ointment

Heals 30-Year Old Ulcer

"I wish I could publish all the grateful letters I get every week," says Peterson. "I don't believe anyone on this earth has such a happy time at work as I have. All I do is make Peterson's Ointment and read letters like these that come right from the heart.

"I had an ulcer on my ankle—had it 30 years and could not get it healed. For the last six years I had several doctors. I got one box of your ointment and it almost healed it and it was entirely healed before I had used the second one. I don't think there is a better remedy on earth." Mrs. J. C. Henderson, 520 Sprague Street, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Peterson's Ointment is just as good for piles as it is for old sores. It stops itching of eczema almost instantly. There isn't anything in the way of pimples or face blemishes that it won't chase away, and for sore feet, chafing, sunburn, scalds, cuts and bruises there is nothing so sure or speedy. 35 cents, 60c, $1.00.

Don't Pay $1,000 or More

for a car, without knowing what the leader offers in the fine-car field

WE made a canvass of many who bought rivals of Studebakers. We said, "Tell us why you liked your car the better."

The majority said, "We did not even look at the Studebaker." Most of them bought new models of the car they owned before.

* * *

Studebaker is the sensation of modern Motordom. Its amazing growth signifies a new situation in this field.

Last year, 145,167 fine-car buyers paid $201,000,000 for Studebaker cars. Nearly three times as many as in 1920.

Is it fair to yourself—or fair to us—not to learn the reasons for this trend?

Facts to consider

Studebaker assets are $90,000,000 — all staked on satisfying, better than others, buyers of high-grade cars.

Over 23,000 men have their future at stake on giving you maximum values.

$50,000,000 in modern plants and equipment, of which $32,000,000 has been added during the past five years.

$10,000,000 in body plants to give you superlative beauty. To give that final touch for which Studebakers have been famous for decades.

125 experts who devote their whole time to studying betterments. Who make 500,000 tests per year to maintain our supremacy.

* * *

Consider Studebaker history. For 72 years this concern has stood for high principles and policies.

For two generations, against all the world, it held first place in horse-drawn vehicles.

Now for years its name and fame have been committed to like attainments in fine motor cars.

If you only knew

There is no room here for details and comparisons. You will find them all in Studebaker showrooms. But let us cite some significant facts.

That lack of vibration, so conspicuous in Studebakers, costs us $600,000 yearly in extra machining of crank shafts.

That matchless strength in vital parts comes from the costliest steels. For some we add 15% to the quoted price to get exactness in them.

That Chase Mohair, used in our closed cars, is made from the soft fleece of Angora goats. Cotton or ordinary wool, or a combination of both, could reduce our price $100 to $150 per car, but it would sacrifice Studebaker quality.

Note the bumpers, the steel trunk, the extra cord tires, the motometer, the courtesy light on some models. Figure what they would cost as extras.

The infinite care

We use 35 formulas for steel, each worked out to exactness for supreme service in its place.

We employ 1,200 inspectors to make 30,000 inspections of the material and workmanship in each Studebaker car — before it leaves the factory.

Consider how Studebaker has always led in the building of high-grade cars. We were first to use cord tires as standard equipment. We were the first quantity manufacturers to build bodies of the highest grade.

If you want beauty, fine upholstery, rich finish and equipment, consider that Studebaker has had more experience in fine coach building than any other motor car maker.

Our place no accident

The pedestal place which Studebaker holds in the fine-car field is not the result of accident. It comes from principles as old as this business—the ceaseless and determined ambition to excel.

Learn the result of these efforts. Compare detail by detail, part by part, with any car you wish. When you foot the advantages, you will find that they number scores.

* * *

These are facts you should know. They are inducing 150,000 per year to choose Studebaker cars.

Some sell at $1,045. Some meet with every requirement in size and power and luxury. But the chassis are all alike, save in size. The same steels, the same standards throughout. Every important Studebaker part represents the best we know.

* * *

People have learned these facts—hundreds of thousands of them. The demand for Studebakers has almost trebled in three years. It has become overwhelming, even for our facilities.

Investigate the reasons. You will find them by the scores. Then, if you choose a rival car, we shall have nothing more to say.

See the Studebakers

Last year 145,167 wise motor car buyers paid $201,000,000 for Studebakers.

The demand has almost trebled in the past three years. Studebaker now holds a leading place in the high-grade field.

Our modern plants and their equipment cost $50,000,000. All to give you the maximum value at the minimum of cost.

MARKET CLOSED STRONG

New York, March 5—Extensive short covering by professional speculators brought about a moderate rally in the latter part of the today's stock market after an early period of irregularity. Late buying apparently was inspired by the declaration of the regular dividend on Northern Pacific and the optimistic tone of the weekly steel trade reviews.

The recovery was most marked in the oil shares, which are beginning to respond to the gradual improvement in the statistical position of the industry. Pacific Oil and Pan-American "A" led the rally, each closing 3 7-8 higher at 52 7-8 and 50 1-8, respectively. Net gains of 1 to 2 1-2 points were registered by Pan-American "B", Maracaibo, Cosden, Sinclair Associated and Phillips Petroleum. Atlantic Refining, which had been heavy in the early trading, moved up from 123 3-4 to 129, where it was up 3 1-2 points on the day. Tidewater closed 3-8 higher at 141 7-8.

Steel shares were bought on reports that present conditions points to sustained steel activity for the next few months and preliminary unofficial estimates of another increase of between 125,000 and 175,000 tons in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation. Net gains in this group, however, were limited to fractions. Activity of Otis Steel was based on speculative expectation of an early resumption of dividends on the preferred stock. U. S. Steel common closed 1-2 higher at 103 7-8.

Bear traders continued to single out weak spots and succeeded in uncovering a number of them in the leather, chemical, silk and rubber shares. New low records for the year were established by nearly a dozen issues including Kelly-Springfield, Central Leather common and preferred, United Drug, American Agricultural common and preferred and Julius Kayser common and preferred. The extreme breaks in these issues ranged from 2 to 6 points, but most of them closed above their low figures of the day.

Wall street's reception to the new Westinghouse stock offering and ten per cent stock dividend was somewhat of a surprise, the stock climbing from 60 1-4 to 63 3-8 and then falling back to 61 3-4 on a large volume of profit taking. General Electric improved in sympathy.

Fluctuations of other industrials failed to attract much attention although Kresge jumped 8 points on a small turnover and tobaccos, products preferred moved up to within 1 3-4 of the redemption price of 120.

Trading in the railroad shares was featured by the strength and activity of the St. Paul issues, which apparently was based on reports that the bankers had arranged to take care of the heavy maturities next year, and the marked improvement in Northern Pacific, which climbed more than 1 point to 51. Weakness of Delaware and Hudson, which established a new 1924 low at 104 1-8, was attributed to unconfirmed rumors that the annual statement, soon to be published, would show that the cost of fighting the shopmen's strike had made several inroads into the road's earnings last year.

Call money held at 4 1-4 per cent. all day. The amount of new time money coming into the market was rather limited with brokers showing little disposition to pay more than 4 3-4 per cent. for the shorter maturities. New Commercial Paper is readily absorbed at the present rates of 4 3-4 to 5 per cent.

Trading in the foreign exchanges was rather quiet. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.39 3-4 and French francs were slightly easier around 4.03 cents, 30 and 60 day deliveries, however, being quoted at four cents. and less.

CURB MARKET

New York, March 5—Led by the oil shares, stock prices made substantial recovery from recent heaviness in today's curb market. Short covering operations provided the impetus for the advance, which was most marked in the so-called Standard Oil issues. Buying was influenced by the steady decrease in crude oil production and imports and speculative expectation of another series of higher price announcements for crude oil and gasoline.

Prairie Oil and Gas jumped 6 1-2 points to 238 1-2, Borne & Schrymser advanced four, Ohio 3, and Standard Oils of Indiana and Kansas, Humble, Gulf and several others a point or more.

Chief interest in the industrial group centered in the trading in the new Westinghouse Electric stock, "rights," which opened at 1 1-2 and then slipped to 1 3-8. Dubilier Radio established another record high at 24 3-4, up 1 1-4, while Kresge closed a point higher at 53. Ward Baking issues were heavy.

BOND MARKET

New York, March 5—A sharp rally in St. Paul railroad on reports that next year's refunding operations had been arranged satisfactorily led the entire railroad list to higher ground in today's bond market. Further recovery of the Virginia Carolina liens and strength of some of the independent steel issues gave an improved tone to the industrial section of the market.

Coming in addition to purchases by the railroad itself, the heavy demand for the St. Paul 4s maturing in 1925 ran the price of this issue up almost five points during the day. Rumors that the bonds would be redeemed for cash or exchanged for new securities on a favorable basis attracted considerable speculative buying, with the result that this issue led the entire list in activity. A brisk demand also developed for the other St. Paul issues which made gains of from 1 to 3 points.

Bankers of the "Nickel Plate" Railroad confirmed reports that they were working on plans which would form the basis for new bond issues, but predicted that no early financing was in preparation. The first large funding operation which will likely come under the new blanket mortgage will be the $10,000,000 Toledo, St. Louis and Western prior lien 5 1-2's next year.

Weakness of United States government bonds persisted today, a further tendency at the start being met by a flood of offerings which carried the treasury notes below par. The general tone of the industrial list was better except for weakness of Central Leather 5's and American Agricultural 7 1-2's, due to uneasiness over trade conditions.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, March 5—Grain declined in price today bowing more or less to bearish views which many traders expressed about reports pointing to the likelihood of enactment of the McNary-Haugen Bill. Word, however that the tariff commission report on wheat production cost had been turned over to President Coolidge was something of an offset later. Wheat closed steady, 1-4c to 1-2 a 5-8c net lower, May 111 3-8 to 111 3-8 a 1-2 and July 111 1-2, with corn 1-8 to 3-8c down, oats 1-2 to 1-4 a 3-8c off and provisions ranging from a setback of 5 a 7c to a rise of 2c.

Apparently, a check to buying of future deliveries of wheat was the immediate effect of gossip circulated here that the McNary-Haugen bill had received qualified approval at the White House. Uncertainty as to what might follow the proposed far-reaching changes in business methods had an evident disturbing influence on the market. The pit was also bearish affected because of a somewhat general impression that a price setback would be natural after recent upturns. Subsequently, Canada which were forthcoming that President Coolidge had taken any decided position regarding the Haugen-McNary bill tended to uphold wheat values and there was considerable buying as a result of advices that the wheat tariff would soon be raised. The enlarged demand, though, was of insufficient force to lift prices again to the level of yesterday's close.

Corn and oats swayed with wheat. Slowness of sale for the poorer grades of corn was a depressing factor. Shipping demand here was also reported slack. Nevertheless, the market showed stubborn resistance to bear tactics.

Provisions were easy in line with the hog market.

RHEUMATIC PAINS RUBBED OUT BY NEW GERMAN FORMULA

Local Druggists Given Written Guarantee to Refund Money if First Applications Fail to Bring Immediate Relief.

A scientific discovery, guaranteed to end rheumatic pain, has been made by German chemistry that gave us aspirin for headache pain and novocaine for painless dentistry.

Rheumatism, in every case, is due to internal abscesses (such as a blind pus pocket in a tooth), which give off poisons and are carried in the blood to the joints and muscles. Buhler Oil is a combination of rare oils, which when rubbed on the affected parts disappears within a few seconds, because it is so penetrating that it is quickly absorbed, going right through the skin into the painful joint or muscles. This is due to a penetrating ingredient too expensive for old-style rheumatic preparations.

This ingredient is intended to neutralize these poisons, thus giving quick relief from pain. If you suffer from rheumatic pains, if your joints or muscles rasp and torture you, try a bottle of Buhler Oil today at our risk. Your own druggist will sign our absolute written guarantee that if the first bottle fails to give you relief he will refund your money without question. On sale at Lee & Osgood Co., Andrew McLaughlin, J. A. Morgan, G. G. Engler, George M. Rathbone.

IN NORWICH JAIL FOR DISTURBANCE AT LEBANON

Lucius Noyes charged with breach of the peace and vagrancy was brought before Justice of the Peace William T. Curry at Lebanon Monday morning, Grand Juror Elmer M. Lord being prosecutor. Noyes was found guilty, fined $25 and given 30 days in jail. Being without funds he was taken to the New London county jail at Norwich to serve his 30 days plus extra to work out his fine.

Noyes was arrested Sunday afternoon by Sheriff George Hoxie of Lebanon upon complaints from several residents that he was making a nuisance of himself by disturbing residents. He spent Sunday night in jail at Willimantic.

MAKES PRIZE OFFER TO LEBANON DAIRY JUNIORS

The Junior Dairy Club of Lebanon held its second meeting last week at the High school. There was a moderate attendance including Mr. Simms of the Agricultural college and Myron Hoxie, the Lebanon leader. Among the several things discussed were increasing the membership, tuberculin test, and the work of the Junior Dairy Club in this state. To stimulate interest and enthusiasm the Lebanon club leader offered a purebred heifer calf sired by a bull whose dam had a record of 30,000 pounds, to the boy doing the most satisfactory work during the ensuing year. The next meeting will be held on March 14 at the High school. All are welcome to attend.

BOHARA CASE CONTINUED UNDER $500 BONDS

Interest in the cases before the city court Wednesday morning centered around the case of Seymour Bohara of the Falls charged with reckless driving, driving without a license and evading responsibility after an accident. The case was continued to Monday, March 17 under bonds of $500 which were furnished.

Bohara was arrested Tuesday night after the car he was driving knocked down Miss Jane Reagan, who resides in the Marguerite building. Eye witnesses of the accident state that the lights on the Bohara car were turned off after the accident and the driver continued on his way, later being overtaken by men who saw the accident.

The other cases before the court were for breach of the peace. One case was nolled on the payment of $10, the other being put on probation for six months.

SUPPER PROCEEDS GO TO WOMAN'S GUILD

On Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock a supper to a limited number of guests was given in Grace Church parish house, the proceeds going to the treasury of the Woman's Guild to aid in its work.

Mrs. Edward Smith and Mrs. Ellis Bentley gave the repast and made all the arrangements, assisted by Miss Marion Gibbs in the serving. The tables were very prettily decorated in pink and with the assistance of crepe paper and colored candles, a very pretty effect was produced.

NUMBER FIVE

weekly wage of a cotton mill in New England in 1914 was $8.90; in the south $7.27. In 1920, $24.70 in New England and $20.10 in the south. In 1933, $18.59 in New England and $15.52 in the south. In a question of wages you will appreciate the fact that in the south common labor is furnished almost entirely by the Negro race and the Negroes find no place in the actual operations of a cotton mill. This leaves the cotton mills in the south almost without competition in securing the services of the white race. This, of course, is not so in New England where other industries such as transportation, building, shoe and leather, wool and worsted and many others compete for the services of the skilled and semi-skilled worker. There are many other factors which might be presented in this sectional competition with no definite advantage lying with either north or south. Among these might be mentioned power, water, freight rates, purchase of cotton, market for goods, supplies, cost of plant, climate and living conditions.

New England "Attitude of Mind"

It is interesting to note that in Massachusetts there are sixteen laws

ABSENTEE LIST LARGE AT POMONA

CONFERENCE ON TIME SITUATION

The conference committee of New London County Pomona, No. 6, Patrons of Husbandry, which is in favor of standard time, learned the attitude of the common council and of the school board upon the question of standard time and daylight saving time at a meeting in the city court room Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock, to which invitations had been issued by the Pomona committee.

Speaking for the school board, President Walter F. Lester said the board felt that it was not dictating to the public but was the servant of the public and that it would act to conserve the interest of the majority of the public in the greatest possible way.

Mayor Milo R. Waters told the committee that the city would conform with law without any evasion, but if the majority of any department wants to go to work an hour earlier they will be allowed to do so.

The meeting was marked by a large proportion of absenteeism among those who had been invited. This absent list included President H. M. Leron of the chamber of commerce; President Will L. Stearns of the Retail Merchants' association; Rev. J. Harlow Graham representing the Ministerial association; Rev. W. A. Keefe of St. Marys Memorial church, and Rev. Sam Small who had spoken at a prohibition institute Tuesday, but was in Rockville on Wednesday.

Those present were A. W. Lillibridge, chairman of the Pomona committee, who presided, Everett P. Barnes, Nathan H. Hall and G. Warren Davis, members of the committee; Mayor Milo R. Waters, Walter F. Lester, W. P. McGarry, Robert McNeely and James C. Macpherson, members of the school board, George L. Crosgrove and two newspaper men.

Chairman Lillibridge opened the meeting which he said, was a conference to keep business on standard time. There is nothing against anybody changing the schedule of working hours, but as for mixing the time and calling 11 o'clock 12, this makes it unpleasant for the housewives. Willimantic and Putnam had tried to use new time but the help in the mills objected and they voted to go back to standard time. From time immemorial the opening hour for the schools had been 9 o'clock and as they were public institutions they should be kept to standard time, he said. The business of the merchants is not a public institution so that it is up to them to arrange their own time.

The chairman asked President Lester of the school board to speak and Mr. Lester responded by saying that what he would say was not meant to reflect the opinion of the personnel of the board as to the time for the schools in the coming season. The schools must accommodate the public and the board members don't want to interject their personal feelings into this. If you, said Mr. Lester addressed the committee members, represented the majority we would be with you. The school board is the servant of the public, it is not dictating to the public, but it must act to conserve the accommodation of the public in the greatest possible way and whatever action it would take upon the time question would be with this end of serving the public in view.

As for his own personal attitude, Mr. Lester said he would state that he was out of patience with this continued renewal of the agitation over time. He did not call himself a standard timer but an accomodation timer.

James C. Macpherson of the school board said he thought there was a failure on the part of the standard timers to realize that while the hours of employment were established by manufacturers, the school hours for the children of such families should be in line with the family arrangements.

Mayor Waters spoke for the common council and said that the city departments will conform with law without an evasion, but that if a majority in any city department wanted to go to work an hour earlier they would be allowed to do so.

Standard Timer Answers

G. Warren Davis spoke for the Pomona committee, and said that he thought the school board misunderstood the situation and that the school board seemed to be responsive to the wishes of the manufacturers and merchants rather than to the wishes of the parents and children and the good of the children. The 1921 law for standard time, he said, and he quoted Washington, Harding and Coolidge upon respect for law, which he said, is the attitude of the Standard Time league. The 1923 public clock law has been sustained by the supreme court and we deny that manufacturers, chambers of commerce, or retail merchants' association or any religious group have a right to try to induce our public departments to disobey one of the laws of the state and introduce confusion.

Mr. Davis said that the standard timers did not dispute the right of manufacturers and merchants to set their own hours for doing business. He spoke of many communications they have had from mothers of children complaining about the confusion in their families, and he said in closing that, while he did not make it as a threat, it was the policy of the standard timers to carry on until they obtain standard time for all public operations.

Everett P. Barnes of the Pomona committee spoke of the opposition to the state-wide daylight saving time regulation in Massachusetts and mentioned that daylight time here hard on the farmers in haying time as the help was just about ready to quit work by the middle of the afternoon when the hay had been sufficiently cured to be taken in. Some milk peddlers who now have to get up at 3 a. m., would have to get up at 2 a. m. under daylight saving time. Mr. Hall of the Pomona committee also spoke

Mayor Waters took the floor again and said that it seemed to him that too much criticism had been directed at the common council. He had had the records looked up, he said, and the common council had never taken any action on the time question. He pointed out that the standard timers admitted the right of merchants and manufacturers to set the time for their hours of employment and he said there could be no challenge of the right of any city department to go to work at any time it should choose. The public works department had been the only city department which changed its time last season. The police tried a change of time for about a week but didn't like it and went back to their old time.

Mr. Davis referred to the vote taken in two town meetings, in the first of which he said there was a majority of two for daylight time, which Mr. Davis said was because people in favor of standard time got tired of waiting for a chance to vote, and in the second of which he called a fluke meeting as it was packed and he would have been glad to tell the men who packed it if he had attended this conference and was present to defend the charge.

Robert McNeeley of the school board said that the board had acted as public servants after securing information that they considered of value on the subject. Mr. McNeely said he didn't consider it breaking the law when any department starts work an hour earlier to accommodate a majority of group of workers. In answer to a question as to whether the school board had conducted any canvass of parents or a district to ascertain sentiment, Mr. McNeely said he could not make a definite answer but could not remember that they had.

Mr. McNeely took umbrage at the intimation from Mr. Davis that the school board was taking its cue from the railroad and the manufacturers and told Mr. Davis that he wanted him to understand that the school board was taking dictation from nobody but was acting as it believed to be best for the interests of those for whom it was a public servant.

After some further remarks from Mr. Davis about his lack of confidence in straw votes, the meeting adjourned after being in session about an hour.

HUMANE AGENT PROBES SLASHING OF TWO HORSES

They have not yet given up hopes of fixing responsibility eventually. Mr. Wyant has stated that the Connecticut Humane society will pay a liberal reward for any information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons, responsible for the injury to these horses.

SENATOR LODGE DEFENDS PRESIDENT COOLIDGE FROM DEMOCRATIC ATTACKS

Bitter Debate on Senate Floor Followed Disclosure That President Coolidge Had Communicated with Publisher McLean at Palm Beach Over Private Wires That Led from the White House—White House Assurance Was Given the Senate That the Message Was Trivial, With Presidential Assurance That "Whatever Record Leaps to Life, He Never Will Be Ashamed."

Washington, March 6—The senate chamber over which Calvin Coolidge so recently presided today became the forum of debate on his official acts and political fortunes, remarkable alike for its solemnity and for its bitterness.

Impelled by the disclosure that he had sent two telegrams to Edward B. McLean while the oil inquiry was at its height, a half dozen democratic senators turned upon the president the same implements of attack they have employed so often recently against members of his cabinet.

He was defended with an equal fervor by Henry Cabot Lodge, the venerable republican senate leader from his own state, who not only praised the president's attitude toward the oil scandal but deplored the tendency to and disparagement of public men which he said had dragged senate traditions to an unbecoming level.

In turn Senator Lodge was himself attacked by democratic senators as one of those who helped to lead the assault on President Wilson which Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, declared had sent the war president to an untimely grave.

Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, brought Mr. Coolidge's name into the debate with a demand that he personally explain to the country his communications with McLean and not leave that explanation to White House statements issued by his secretary C. Bascom Slemp.

The speech went unanswered for more than two hours, and then Senator Lodge after communicating with the white house arose to explain why the president had communicated with McLean and to assure that "whatsoever record leaps to life, he never will be ashamed."

The pronouncement of the republican leader was followed by a disclaimer by Senator Harrison that he had attacked Mr. Coolidge. He declared he merely had called upon the president for an explanation because statements from his secretary could not be acceptable.

Declaring that if the situation were

AGAINST REDUCTION OF INCOME TAX THIS YEAR

Washington, March 6—Machinery was set in motion in congress today to remove from the revenue bill the provision for a 25 per cent. reduction on personal income taxes payable this year and incorporate it in a joint resolution which could be adopted before March 15, when first installments are due.

Acting on a request from the treasury department, the senate finance committee, unanimously indicated its desire to agree to such a procedure, and Chairman Green of the house ways and means committee announced he would place the proposal before that committee tomorrow.

A drawback, which leaders late today admitted was growing to considerable proportions, developed, and fear was expressed by some members of both parties that removal of the proposal from the revenue bill might leave that measure open to delay indefinitely.

In this connection some members also recalled the recent statement of Representative Tilson, of Connecticut republican members of the ways and means committee and a staunch advocate of the Mellon rates which were eliminated from the bill, suggesting such action by joint resolution with the hint of a presidential veto of the measure itself.

After talking the proposition over with some leaders in the senate, Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, a member of the finance committee said it was the opinion of democrats that the reduction should be allowed, perhaps as soon as possible, but that it was probable they would contend for a reduction on the basis of the democratic income tax rates rather than on a flat 25 per cent. reduction in taxes under the present law.

Should senate democrats carry out this plan the entire income tax fight would be brought to a head and leaders predicted such a contest would prevent action before March 15.

The 25 per cent. reduction proposal was among the first propositions taken up by the senate finance committee today in starting work on the revenue bill.

Joseph McCoy, government actuary, later presented estimates on the effect of the measure passed by the house on government revenue, showing the bill would result in a loss of $446,270,000 in revenue in the calendar year 1925, compared with the amount which would be collected under the present law. Chairman Smoot has estimated this would fall by $100,000,000 of raising sufficient revenue to operate the government regardless of a bonus measure or other special appropriation bills.

The estimates prepared by the treasury on the house bill showed that the increase in the estate tax would net $12,000,000 and the new gift tax $2,000,000 annually. The increase voted in the tax on playing cards, it was estimated, would bring $700,000 additional revenue, while the repeal of the stamp tax on drafts and promissory notes would cut off $2,150,000.

Losses under the Longworth compromise income tax schedule adopted would amount to $130,000,000 in the normal taxes and $150,000,000 in the surtax rates.

AMERICAN PRELATES TO BE ELEVATED TO CARDINALATE

Rome, March 6 (By the A. P.)—Two American prelates are to be elevated to the cardinalate at a secret consistory to be held March 24. They are Archbishop Hayes of New York and Archbishop Mundelein of Chicago.

This announcement was made at the vatican today. Pope Pius in giving two additional red hats to the United States, was moved by the generous response of the American people to the appeals for the suffering states of Europe. The pontiff in elevating the prelates, is said also to have desired to honor the people of the United States for their spirit of self-denial and loyalty.

COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE THE SHIPPING BOARD

Washington, Mar. 6.—Appointment of Representative White, republican, Maine, as chairman of the special house committee which will investigate the shipping board was announced today by Speaker Gillett.

Others who will serve on the committee are Representatives Cooper, Wisconsin; Lehlbach, New Jersey, and Lineberger, California, republicans, and Davis, Tennessee; Bankhead, Alabama, and Connally, Texas, democrats.

Mr. Cooper is a leader in the insurgent bloc while Mr. Davis introduced the resolution proposing the inquiry.

INCREASES IN TARIFF ON GRAIN PRODUCTS

Washington, March 6—Increases in the tariff on wheat, flour and wheat products will be ordered tomorrow by President Coolidge, acting under authority conferred upon him by the flexible provision of the Fordney-McCumber tariff act.

Proclamations setting forth the new rate on the basis of comparative cost of production of wheat and the other products in Canada and the United States were drawn up today for the president's signature. Necessity of referring the document to the tariff commission for checking of some of the production figures, however, delayed issuance of the proclamation.

The new rates will become effective thirty days from the date of issuance of the proclamations. The present duties are 30 cents a bushel on wheat; 78 cents a hundred pounds on flour and 15 per cent. ad valorem on wheat products or mill feeds.

The president under the flexible provisions of the tariff act may proclaim increases amounting to fifty per cent. of the existing rates. Such an increase applied to wheat, and it is generally believed the mill increase will be ordered, would make the tariff on that grain 45 cents a bushel. A similar increase applied to mill feeds would raise the rate to 22 1-2 per cent. ad valorem. The increase on flour is expected to be proportional bringing the rate to $1.12 a hundred pounds.

The action of the president will be the first taken under the flexible provision since the present law was passed in September 1922.

SHUBERTS TO GRANT DEMANDS OF THE ACTORS' EQUITY ASS'N

New York, March 6.—The Shuberts who control 70 per cent of New York theatres, will meet the demands of the Actors Equity association regardless of what the other members of The Producing Managers Association do, Lee Shubert, today informed the steering committee of the latter organization.

Mr. Shubert endeavored to win his colleagues to his point of view but was outvoted and the managers' committee will recommend that the association refuse equity's demands for "the equity shop" under which a company has to be either all equity or have no members of equity in its cast.

Should Mr. Shubert keep to his course it appeared doubtful to equity officials tonight that a general strike would be called June 1 as proposed.

CANADIAN EMBARGO ON UNITED STATES LIVESTOCK

Ottowa, Mar. 6.—Importation into Canada of livestock from any state of the United States was prohibited by the Canadian government today as a further protection against the foot and mouth disease.

The government also forbade the importation from California, Oregon and Nevada of hay, straw or any merchandise packed in hay or straw.

EMBARGO CONFORMS WITH THAT OF GREAT BRITAIN

Washington, Mar. 6.—The placing by Canada of an embargo on livestock from the United States as a protection against the foot and mouth disease, officials of the animal industry said here today, was principally to make its regulations conform to those of Great Britain which has barred cattle from all of the United States. Canada ships a large number of animals to the United Kingdom and must protect that trade.

WAYSIDE INN RESTORED TO ITS ANCIENT STYLE

Sudbury, Mass., March 6.—Wayside Inn in South Sudbury, made famous by the poems of Longfellow has been reopened to the public as a hostelry. The ancient inn, closed for many years, was purchased last year by Henry Ford, who has restored it in the style of a century ago and collected for its decoration a wealth of New England antiques.

N. Y. LONGSHOREMEN TIE UP SOUTHERN PACIFIC SHIPS

Puzzled Over Form Of Soldiers' Bonus

House Ways and Means Committee Has Voted 16 to 4 to Frame a Bill.

Washington, March 6.—Soldier bonus legislation got away to a flying start at the first executive meeting today of the house ways and means committee when it voted, 16 to 4, to frame a bill, but a snag was struck when the form of payment was discussed.

Attention was centered on two plans—paid-up insurance policies, and a two-fold scheme with options of full cash payments or insurance.

After a heated discussion of the proposals, marked by a spirited verbal battle between Representatives Treadway, of Massachusetts, and Crowther, of New York, republicans, further consideration was postponed until tomorrow.

Representative Treadway was one of those voting against any form of a bonus, and when Mr. Crowther later charged the committee with dilatory tactics which, he said, were aimed to delay progress of the legislation, Mr. Treadway took issue. One word led to another, and Representative Bacharach, republican, New Jersey, stepped between the two members when they started toward each other. A reconciliation was quickly affected.

The other three who opposed the bonus were Representatives Tilson, Connecticut, and Mills, New York, republicans, and Collier, democrat, Mississippi.

Representative Bacharach advanced the paid-up insurance scheme and was instructed to prepare data on it. Several proponents of the full cash payment option spoke for it, including members of both parties. Chairman Green, who is opposed to such a scheme, admitted tonight it had gained considerable strength.

The two-fold proposition was endorsed yesterday by the committee of five democrats named by the house democratic conference to confer with the committee on bonus legislation. Representative Jeffers, of Alabama, chairman, declared its cost would not exceed $1,400,000,000 and suggested it be financed by a bond issue.

The insurance proposal of Mr. Bacharach would provide policies with values based on the number of days of service of veterans, allowing $2.65 for each day of service. Such a bonus would cost in all about $2,000,000,000, he estimated, and not more than $78,000,000 in any one year.

The bonus bill passed at the last session and vetoed by President Harding has not been discarded by the committee, Chairman Green said, but if either of the two plans now under discussion fail of adoption he predicted this measure would again be taken up.

FRENCH SENATE PASSES ELECTORAL REFORM BILL

Paris, March 6—The senate today voted the electoral reform bill, 141 votes to 1. The entire radical socialist party senators, numbering more than 140, abstained from voting.

Premier Poincare again today made the question one of confidence, but the abstentions, which are always regarded as against the government, were more numerous than the favorable votes.

In a test vote on the same measure on February 21, the premier was sustained by the senate, 150 to 134.

MISS SHIRLEY PUTNAM WEDDED TO ELIOT O'HARA

Greenwich, March 6.—Miss Shirley Putnam, recently managing editor of the Greenwich Press, having held that position for four years, and known as the only woman to hold this office in Connecticut, was married today to Eliot O'Hara of Waltham, Mass., in the studio of her sister, Miss Orenda Putnam, sculptress, at New York. Miss Putnam's father, Herbert Putnam, is librarian in congress.

POISON SOLUTION FOR SPRAYING CAUSED DEATH

Boston, March 6.—Mixing too strong a poison solution for spraying Egyptian cotton had a fatal result for Daniel Smith, a shipping warehouse worker today. As the fumes from the mixture arose Smith slowly collapsed. His son Kenneth was overcome in pulling the father to a window and was treated at a hospital, where the older man died.

OBITUARY

Edward William Thomson

Boston, March 6—Edward William Thomson, Canadian author, poet and political writer, died at his home in the West Roxbury district today of arterio sclerosis. He was born in Toronto in 1849.

Mr. Thomson was widely known in Canada and New England for his published comments on Canadian political affairs. He was chief editorial writer of the Toronto Globe in the late eighties and early nineties and since 1902 had been writing under his own signature for Canadian and American newspapers. For many years his articles on Canadian politics were a feature of the Boston Transcript. For ten years he was one of the editors of the Youth's Companion. He was a close friend and adviser of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, former prime minister of Canada and other statesmen of the liberal party. After the Boer war his advice was sought by South African statesmen as to methods for creating a political structure which would function efficiently in the reconstruction period and thereafter.

In recognition of his work as a short story writer and poet Mr. Thomson was made a fellow of the Royal Society of Literature in the United Kingdom and of the Royal Society of Canada. His books include "Old Man Savarin," "Walter Gibbs" and "Between Earth and Sky," all collections of short stories "When Lincoln Died" "The Many Mansioned House," and other poems, and the versification of M. S. Henry's translation of Aucassin and Nicolette.

Mr. Thomson enlisted in the Union army before he was sixteen, and served the last year of the civil war with the third and fifth Pennsylvania Cavalry regiments. He served during the Fenian raid of 1866 with the Queenstown Rifles of Toronto. He was a grandson of the late Colonel E. W. Thomson, of Toronto and a descendant of one of the old united empire loyalist families of Canada.

House Drops the Names of Members

Who are Charged in Chicago Grand Jury's Report With Accepting Bribes.

Washington, March 6—Immediate disclosure of the names of the two representatives charged in a Chicago grand jury's report with accepting bribes was demanded today by the house.

A resolution directing the attorney-general to transmit the names to the house was adopted unanimously after Representative Longworth, the republican leader, had announced the accused men would have an opportunity to defend themselves on the floor.

Mr. Longworth said he had been informed the evidence against the two house members had been presented to the Chicago grand jury by "crooks and criminals" and came up incidentally during the investigation of alleged veterans' bureau frauds.

The republican leader disclosed that he had discussed the situation with Acting Attorney-General Seymour and John W. H. Crim special government counsel in charge of the Chicago grand jury's inquiry, and had gained the impression that no action could be expected by a grand jury here with regard to the charges within a month.

Publication of the grand jury's report, referring to two house members without naming them, in the opinion of Mr. Longworth, put the entire membership of the house under suspicion and made prompt action to establish the identity of the accused imperative.

This view was shared by others, among them Representative Garrett, the democratic leader, who initiated the move to have the names disclosed. The resolution adopted today was a modification of the Garrett proposal offered Tuesday for an investigation to determine not only the identity of the house members involved but the basis of the charges against them.

Reported by the rules committee without a dissenting vote, after a two hour session, the resolution was brought up within half hour by Chairman Snell. After forty minutes' discusion, it was adopted after a phrase which called for transmission of the names "if not incompatible with public interest" had been eliminated at the suggestion of Representative Steagall, Alabama.

At the department of justice it was said later that no action probably would be taken in compliance with the house resolution before the return to Washington tomorrow of Attorney-General Daugherty.

POINCARE ISSUES ULTIMATUM TO THE FINANCE COMMITTEE

Paris, March 6 (By the A. P.)—Premier Poincare's ultimatum to the finance committee of the senate tonight that his cabinet would resign unless the committee approved his fiscal measures, caused the committee to announce that it will again have a conference with the premier and minister of Finance De Lasteyrie tomorrow or Saturday in an attempt to reach an agreement. If this comes about the financial bills will come up for discussion in the senate next Tuesday.

The measures in question providing for fiscal economy and additional twenty per cent taxation, have been voted by the chamber. They are designed to balance the French budget and improve the franc on the international exchange market.

M. Poincare insists that the measures must be voted without changes as received from the chamber. Reporting on the measure, the finance committee decided against the three main provisions, namely, reduction of expenditures by governmental decree without authority from parliament, a twenty per cent increase in taxation, and introduction of a system of so-called coupons to prevent frauds by security holders in connection with their income taxes.

FLOOD OF AMENDMENTS ON MUSCLE SHOALS IN HOUSE

Washington, March 6—Close of general debate in the house on Henry Ford's offer for Muscle Shoals late today opened the way for a flood of amendments offered as consideration of the McKenzie bill, which would authorize its acceptance was begun, section by section.

A variety of proposals to make drastic changes in the terms of the proposed contract were submitted, with representatives indicating that many more would be offered tomorrow when consideration of the measure is resumed.

Those seeking to amend the McKenzie bill would place the Detroit manufacturer under jurisdiction of the federal water power act and limit his lease to fifty instead of one hundred years, and make the lease binding not only on the corporation to be formed by Mr. Ford but also the manufacturer himself.

Opponents also would have specified in the measure that Mr. Ford be compelled to generate surplus power for sale and that this to be made available at least two hundred miles from the shoals properties that the nitrate plants be leased instead of sold, and that a more binding guarantee as to the manufacture of fertilizer be required.

INDIAN TRIBES ARE BESIEGING OAXACA, MEXICO

Mexico City, March 6 (By the A. P.)—Oaxaca, capital of the state of Oaxaca, is under siege by Indian tribesmen loyal to the government and who since the beginning of the revolution have been carrying on hostilities against the rebel governor, Manual Garcia Vigil, according to private information received here today. It is said the revolutionary government in Oaxaca is evacuating the city with the intention of establishing headquarters at Miahuatlan, 60 kilometers to the south.

Tomellin Canyon, northwest of Oaxaca, has fallen into the hands of the federal officers who completely routed the rebels under Fortunato Maycotte.

FINAL DECISION REGARDING DAUGHERTY EXPECTED TODAY

The Attorney Genefal Probably Will Reach the Capital in Time to Attend Regular Friday Cabinet Meeting—Officials Concede That Daugherty's First Duty Would be to Report to the President and Obtain a Final Decision Regarding His Retention in Office.

Washington, March 6.—Attorney-General Daugherty will return to Washington tomorrow from Florida to find that his tenure of office hangs by a slender thread.

Unless he can present new and overpowering arguments why he should remain in the cabinet, there is every expectation in administration circles that he will be asked without delay to retire to private life.

He probably will reach the capital in time to attend the regular Friday cabinet meeting, and a final decision regarding him may be announced by President Coolidge after the whole situation has been talked over again by the executive and his chief advisers.

Today there was no explanation from any official source regarding the circumstances of the attorney-general's unexpected return to Washington. Neither would the White House or the justice department make any predictions regarding his course after he arrives. But it was tacitly conceded that his first duty would be to report to the president, and probably learn without delay of a final decision regarding his retention in office.

The administration's sifting of eligibles to succeed to the post of attorney-general, a process of which there was further confirmation today in administration quarters, progressed during the day to a point where a selection of a successor could be made quickly.

The attitude toward the appointment of the three jurists under consideration—Former Senator Kenyon of Iowa, now a federal circuit judge; Chief Justice Wilbur of California; and Federal District Judge Dietrich of Idaho—now is known to President Coolidge.

Friends of Judge Kenyon here reported that they believed he would accept, if chosen.

The personal views of Judge Dietrich on the question also have been sent to Washington, and they are believed to have decreased the likelihood of his selection.

Governor Groesbeck of Michigan, another mentioned as possible successor to Mr. Daugherty, was a White House caller today in company with Michigan friends and has another appointment for tomorrow. He insisted he knew of no discussion of his name in connection with a cabinet appointment.

The special senate committee which next week is to begin investigation of Attorney-General Daugherty and the department of justice, held no meeting today.

There probably will be a chance in the committee's tentative program to open the hearings with evidence relating to enforcement of the anti-trust laws. Committee members said that instead of a new line of inquiry, not now possible of disclosure, would be taken up first.

In the senate today there was brief reference made to the affairs of Mr. Daugherty, Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, again attacking the republican national committee for its statements on the case. The senator charged that the national committee was seeking to undermine public confidence in the senate inquiry by attacking the senators appointed to conduct the inquiry.

MRS. BYFIELD'S $100,000 SUIT AGAINST CANDLER

Decatur, Georgia, March 6.—Admission of Clyde K. Byfield that he had received a check for $25,000 signed by Walter T. Candler of Atlanta, "about ten minutes" after she had charged Candler with having attacked Mrs. Byfield was the outstanding development in the trial here today of the $100,000 damage suit brought against Candler by Mrs. Byfield.

Byfield also admitted he signed a paper exonerating Candler from all blame, but that his signature was secured because he "was afraid that Candler's friends were about to attack him."

The plaintiff rested her case after Mr. and Mrs. Byfield had testified. The defense announced that it would probably close its case tomorrow.

The suits grew out of an alleged attack upon Mrs. Byfield by Candler, son of Asa G. Candler, Sr., Atlanta soft drink king, in Mrs. Byfield's stateroom on the steamship Bolengaria July 17, 1922, resulting in the defendant giving Byfield a check for $25,000 to "hush his mouth for the time being," according to evidence introduced.

Mrs. Byfield testified that she and her husband were close friends of Mr. and Mrs. Candler and that during the spring of 1922, Mr. Candler suggested a trip to Europe.

Just prior to sailing for France, Mrs. Byfield testified that Mr. Candler suggested to her husband that he should stay at home, which both she and her husband refused to listen to.

"On the last night" she said, "a champagne dinner was given by members of their party." She testified that the alleged attack took place after that party and was frustrated by her husband returning to the stateroom. He then accepted the check from Candler, the testimony developed.

BOSTON MAN SHOOTS HIS WIFE AN DA LODGER

Boston, March 6.—Michael Diryez shot and probably fatally injured his wife and James Stanley, a lodger at their home in the North End district today, and later plunged a long dirk into his own body, dying almost instantly. The other man and the woman were still alive tonight, but physicians said they could not recover.

According to neighbors who witnessed the shooting Didyez and his wife had been separated for some months. The husband returned several times and attempted to enter the home, but was ejected. Today when Didyez arrived his wife opened the door, and Didyez fired five shots from a German pistol of small calibre, all of which took effect. Didyez stepped over his wife's body and fired the last shot at Stanley, wounding him in the head.

Out of ammunition, Didyez entered a bedroom that was formerly his and ended his life with the dirk.

TEMPLETON DOES NOT ASPIRE TO BE DELEGATE

Waterbury, March 6.—Governor C. A. Templeton stated tonight that he had no desire to go as a delegate to the republican national convention. The suggestion had been made to him some time ago that he be a candidate for a delegate to the convention but he had stated at that time that he had no desire to go as he went four years ago, he said. He expressed the belief that President Coolidge would receive the support of the entire Connecticut delegation and would be renominated.

STORM RAGING ALONG THE MOROCCAN COAST

Madrid, March 6 (By the A. P.)—A storm is raging along the Moroccan coast, making the landing of Spanish reinforcements most difficult, according to official advices received here late evening.

The belief prevails that the military operations against the rebel tribesmen probably will have to be delayed for some days.

FRENCH FRANCS SELLING AT A NEW LOW RECORD

New York, Mar. 6.—Selling for the first time in history below four cents, the French franc today plunged to a new low level at 3.95 cents. At the same time the discount on French futures was increased to ten points a month below the spot price for the next three months.

The unprecedented increase of almost a billion francs in French note circulation to a new high total of 40,625,900,000 francs brought a flood of selling orders from foreign capitals, which precipitated the decline.

Added to the uneasiness over the country's problem of balancing its budget and handling its floating debt, the uncertainty regarding the Bank of France statement, which showed no increase in advances, was held responsible for most of the speculative selling from Paris.

The ultimatum of Premier Poincare that he would place the resignation of his cabinet before President Millerand unless his fiscal reforms were approved also tended to shatter confidence.

While Belgian francs were sympathetically weak in today's market, demand sterling held firm and Spanish pesetas steadied after touching the lowest figure in several years yesterday. Japanese yen continued to fall, reaching a new low for the year at 44.80 cents.

PREDICTS PRICE FIXING WILL HURT BUSINESS

Washington, Mar. 6.—Price fixing is going on as never before, Chairman Thompson of the federal trade commission declared at a public meeting here today, predicting that if it continues "we will have a collapse that will wipe out the business structure."

"This is what happened after the Civil war," said he, "we will repeat the economic war which followed that conflict and ended in the panic of 1873 unless we change our ways."

On the day he became a member of the federal trade commission, Chairman Thompson told his hearers, he went on invitation to a meeting of representatives of "the great oil interests" in which a proposal was made to call off a price war that had driven gasoline down to three cents a gallon in Tennessee.

"I remarked that it appeared to me they were trying to fix prices under my nose," he said. "I arose and notified the group that the Sherman law and the federal trade commission act were still in existence and withdrew. Later two of the group called on me and said at a previous meeting it had been decided to present the price war question to me, but that they saw their mistake and begged me to blot the whole thing out of my mind.

"That was my first day's experience in the federal trade commission."

RUM FLEET HAS BEEN INCREASED TO 28 VESSELS

New York, March 6.—Scout cruisers of the "dry navy" today reported that the rum fleet had increased to 28 vessels.

Seven deep-sea craft from foreign lands anchored off rum row overnight, joining the 21 discovered there yesterday by coast guard cutters and forming the biggest liquor fleet off the port of New York since the first group of tramp schooners established a market there 18 months ago.

The dry navy made a complete tour of the rum fleet today. It listed the name, estimated capacity and registry of each ship and announced that the cargoes aggregated 284,000 cases, worth approximately $11,000,000 at rum row prices.

DENIES A. T. & T. DESIRES MONOPOLY OF THE AIR

New York, March 6.—The American Telephone and Telegraph company does not desire "a monopoly of the air," H. B. Thayer, president of the company, declared today in commenting on the suit brought by the corporation to restrain station WHN from broadcasting A. T. & T. radio programmes. The action was only an attempt to protect patent rights controlled by the complainant for radio broadcasting devices, Mr. Thayer said.

WILLIMANTIC

Two cases were tried in the police court Thursday morning by Judge Frank H. Foss. Captain Grady picked up William Phillips, a laborer, on West Main street early in the morning after a complaint had been received that an intoxicated man was wandering about in that section. Phillips pleaded guilty and as this was his second offense since last fall, a sentence of 30 days in jail was imposed.

Patrick Doyle pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication. Doyle pleaded that he had a home to take care of and that he would do better in the future. The court displayed leniency, as Doyle has been behaving himself pretty well for some time past. He was given a suspended 15 day jail sentence and placed on probation for a six months' period.

At a recent meeting of the Business Men's Association a resolution was adopted on the death of Morris Rothblat. The resolution was signed by J. E. Sullivan, L. E. Little and Ellis Cohen.

Constable Harry W. Avery and Judge Frank H. Foss, of South Windham, were aroused about midnight recently by what they believed to be shots. Expecting to find a bandit or a murderer running wild about the town, these two prominent residents rested rather uneasily for the remainder of the night. When they told of their suspicions at the police station the following day it was decided that the shots were nothing more than the backfiring of the powerful motor on one of the Bond bread trucks. The trucks backfired all the way from Springfield to New London, according to the driver, the supposed shots causing some questioning in this city and other places along the line. Magneto trouble was given as the reason for the explosions.

When one of the police officers was returning from the raid at Ephege "Blacky" Botvin's home, Tuesday evening he was attracted by a commotion on the sidewalk in front of the J. C. Lincoln Co. store which at first appeared to be two women and a man conducting some kind of a vaudeville act. The sidewalks in this section were fairly well lined with onlookers. The officer approached the group and found that one of the women carried a razor strap which she was using freely on the man. As the patrolman intervened this "man-beater" pointed to the other female member of the trio and exclaimed, "I told her that I'd get her yet." It was disclosed that the man in the case was her husband who apparently had been caught by his wife while in company with the apex of the eternal triangle. The officer ordered the wranglers to disperse and they walked quietly away, the wife still carrying the razor strap.

During the early morning hours Thursday, Officers Arthur Hurley and Orlando were notified that a young couple were standing near a building on East Main street near the Jordan Auto Co. garage and that the young lady was crying loudly. An investigation was conducted but the pair had gone. Dick Hempstead, gate tender at the Bridge street crossing was questioned and said that he thought that he had heard a woman scream a short time before but as other calls had not been repeated he did not pay any more attention to it.

DANIELSON

Perusal of The Bulletin's account on Thursday of what Harold Greene, treasurer of Lockwood, Green and Co., of Boston, had to say before the Norwich Rotary club Wednesday evening, awakened some grim memories in older residents of the town of Killingly, who were mill workers when condition in textile plants here approximated what Mr. Greene describes as ideal conditions, and about equivalent to those existing in southern textile plants at the present time.

Let Jonathan H. Smith, still resident in East Killingly, be quoted a bit to tell the present textile workers in Eastern Connecticut something of these ideal conditions, under which he labored in the Young mill in that village of this town. And Mr. Smith is of pioneer stock and not of the influx of other peoples the nation has been receiving in the past half century, alluded to by Mr. Greene.

"I went to work in the Young mill in 1874," Mr. Smith said Thursday afternoon, "at the age of 9. I had to be on the job at 6 o'clock in the morning and worked straight through until noon. There was a time previous to my going to work when a breakfast period was allowed, but the help went in a 5.30 a. m. in that time, and this had been abolished by the time I came to be in the mill. At noon we were given half an hour for lunch and then went back to our machines and worked until 6.30 p. m. Saturday afternoons the speed stopped at 3 o'clock to allow us to clean the machines, a job often requiring an hour or two.

"My job was attending spinning frames. I had to care for three sides and on this job, getting in approximately 60 to 70 hours each week, I was paid the princely compensation of 75 cents per week.

"In these boyhood days of mine I never had a chance to play, excepting during the brief period after supper, and during the months of the year when the nights were long, there was no playing excepting in the darkness, and one had to be in bed early in any event, because the rising hour was 5.30, that one might get dressed, washed, eat breakfast and be at the mill ready to go to work on the stroke of 6 o'clock.

"In those days a good weaver was earning $5.00 a week, running six looms."

Here is one individual's picture of the ideal conditions Mr. Greene talks about—the experience of an American of the old stock. Individual though it is, it may be taken as illustrative of the experiences of his fellow-workers—not only in the mill where he was employed, but in the other mills in this vicinity, as well as throughout New England. And this was not a century ago—but just half a hundred year ago.

Grimmer still is the fact that in spite of this industrial slavery East Killingly, as a bustling center of cotton manufacturing industries where half a dozen plants were doing business 50 to 75 years ago, now looks down from its heights along a tumbling stream whose banks are lined with the ruins of the mills where these wrokers toiled. There is no record that the mill owners ever made any great amount of money, excepting during the hectic period of the Civil war, and the only outstanding success over there was achieved by Westcott and Pray, and the record seems to be that their fortunes were chiefly built through building mills and selling them — not in operating them, though their Whitestone mill was a money-maker during the years of the Civil war, when everyone made money, as people did in the world war. Long hours and starvation wages achieved nothing of any lasting permanence even for the men who owned the mills.

If these conditions were ideal, New England wants no more of them. Better that it lose its textile industry entirely than revert to such a standard. That, it may be said, is the opinion of the average textile worker in the plants now operating in communities along the Quinebaug valley.

Instancing Mr. Smith, it may be pointed out that his experience could not be duplicated today. In the first place, the state would insist that he be in attendance at school at the early age at which he entered the mills. In the second place his parents, favored by modern conditions, would not be obligated to allow him to do so. In the third place, he could make more money running three errands a day and have ample time to gambol, as children should, in God's fresh, clean air, and under His radiant sunshine.

Verily, Mr. Greene was unfortunate in his reference to the ideal conditions in the cotton mills, in the old days in New England. Too many people living today and recalling them with something akin to dread will not accept that statement at anywhere near face value. For every poetess and writer the mills produced, a score of children went to untimely graves through confinement and long working hours.

Even the workers themselves know of the handicap of New England manufacturers today, and many workers will admit of unreasonable demands made upon mill owners by textile workers' organizations, but there is nothing to be gained by over-painting the picture of earlier days of the textile industry in New England. The present crisis appears to be sufficiently aggravated to command the most calm and careful consideration of every mill operator and operative. There is nothing to be gained by irritating comparison of the present times with days gone forever.

A delay of a little more than two hours in the arrival here of the boat train, Thursday morning, was due to the fact that the locomotive hauling the train was derailed at a point a little more than two miles south of Danielson. None of the cars of the train left the rails and no one was injured in the slightest. Some missed connections at Putnam; delay in the arrival of mail and newspaper were the chief inconvenience sustained as the result of the derailment. With the assistance of crews from freight trains that were in Danielson at the time, the locomotive was put back on the rails and continued its journey.

Announcement was made Thursday that a rally of ex-service men is to be held at the rooms of Leo J. L'Homme post, American legion, Wednesday evening of next week. E. F. Armstrong, Waterbury, state commander of the legion, will address the meeting. The buddies will have an old-fashioned get-together meeting. They will have an opportunity to hear an interesting address, to exchange reminiscences, partake of refreshments and smoke some good cigars while an orchestra plays for them. This meeting is one of a series being held in this county to revive interest in the legion as a service men's organization.

Several matters that will be of interest to the members are to come up at a meeting of the Danielson Rod and Gun club scheduled to be held at the Bohemian club Wednesday evening of next week. It is expected that the committee recently appointed to be taken on the proposal that the initiation fee be reduced to $2.00.

A telegram announcing the serious illness of a relative, summoned Rev. Walter B. Williams to Washington, D. C., Thursday.

Through a change in arrangements it was made known Thursday that the funeral of Herbert E. Barber is to be held at the Baptist church at 2:00 p. m. today.—adv.

Streets in Danielson's business center need scrubbing. They are cluttered with the winter's accumulation of refuse, dirt, paper and a score of other things—but nothing, the complaints notwithstanding, can be done about it until the streets are free of ice. Flushing them from fire hydrants was one of the suggestions heard Thursday.

Anyone who doubts that East Killingly is entitled to a good road leading to Danielson should travel up there from Elmville, in these days of mud and ruts. Cars are sinking hubdeep in trying to negotiate this route.

Operations have been undertaken to convert the big barn at the Keegan place in Elmville, near the Whitestone mill, into a garage.

John Owens of Florence, Mass., is in Danielson, called here by the death of his brother-in-law, Herbert E. Barber.

It is not likely, it is stated, that Danielson will have a general dollar day this spring.

This (Friday) evening at 7.30. Captain J. L. Gammell, U. S. A., a field artillery officer stationed at Alston, Mass., and an instructor for the Massachusetts National guard, is to be at the state armory to inspect the service battery. Captain F. O. Armington, battery commander, said Thursday afternoon that the public is privileged to be present and witness the inspection.

Delay in the delivery of The Bulletin to subscribers in Danielson and surrounding territory Thursday morning was due to the derailing of the morning train carrying the papers.

Miss Emma Salmon of Silver Bay, N. Y., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Salmon, in Brooklyn.

Sold Prize Winning Guernseys.

The buyers were A. M. Cottrell of Rhode Island and N. G. Williams of Brooklyn.

PUTNAM

There is a possibility that in the sale of the property of the Manhasset company in this city dwellings in what is known as Manhasset village may pass into some ownership other than the one that will come into title of the mills. That this is a possibility is indicated by the fact that many copies of maps showing the location have been made available for many people here and elsewhere. This happened when the Nightingale-Morse mills property came up at public and private sale a few months ago Messrs Wolfe and Kaminsky of this city taking over 43 dwellings and many lots, the majority of the units being disposed of by the purchasers within a few weeks, to individuals. Through these sales what had long been known as "the Morse village" was definitely broken up into parcels held now in many instances by families who have occupied the homes or desired them as an investment. The significance of this is that the Powhattan mill, now owned by the H. K. H. Silk interests and the old Morse mill, both standing idle at the present time, are now plants without housing facilities in connection with them, and housing long has been regarded as an essential by concerns engaged in textile manufacturing in New England.

There are various opinions as to the effect of breaking up the Manhasset village in the same manner. The majority of the houses in this village are modern—built during or immediately after the world war period—and are certain to appeal to numbers who would like to own a home at a very desirable. Yet if they are sold in this way, any company that takes over the big mill will be left without housing property that it can control. There might be a disadvantage in this.

However, in the present contingency the receivers have little option as to the purchaser who buys the property. Their interest is to get the utmost in dollars for the stockholders of the concern. It is possible, nevertheless, for interests that may buy the plant, to get the houses also—if they are willing to pay more for them than other bidders.

Announcement has been made of the sale by C. E. Rogers, owner of the Mantup farm of the herd sire—Emma Alma Mercedes—a pure bred registered Holstein. The animal has been shipped to J. E Magee of Beverly Farm, Richland, Ind. The price paid for the animal is said to have been in excess of $1,000. This bull was one of the finest ever owned in Windham County and was the senior sire of the herd of 30 cattle that Mr. Rogers disposed of the past fall.

NUMBER FIVE

reversed, Senator Lodge would be among the first to lead the fight against a democratic administration. Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, not only assailed President Coolidge but also charged that Secretary Slemp had not told the whole truth to the oil committee about his trip to Florida.

Senators Caraway, McKellar of Tennessee, and Dial of South Carolina, vigorously assailed Mr. Lodge with the attacks on President Wilson, and Senator Caraway charged that the then Senator Fall of New Mexico had been sent to the white house by the senate to "turn back the covers" on President Wilson's bed to determine what his real condition was.

Senator Walsh of Montana, prosecutor in the oil inquiry declared as the debate was drawing to a close that Senator Lodge was undertaking to use the prestige of the presidency to minimize the oil disclosures.

Senate discussion of the president's telegrams was opened by Senator Harrison, with the declaration that when the American people found out that messages signed by the president of the United States had been sent to McLean, it will cause them further to shudder, to tremble, and lose confidence—my God—in this government of ours."

"It is bad enough," he said, "when men employed at the white house send messages to Ed McLean; when he admits openly, by his confession, that he has deceived the American people, misrepresented facts, aye, even that he has lied about a matter. It is bad enough when messages go to McLean from employes at the white house, when all this is breaking, when the teapot is boiling over.

"It is bad, too, when secret service codes, known only to the officials of the department of justice, are employed by Ned McLean and the employees of the department of justice in communicating with each other. But when the facts are revealed that Ned McLean, while all this guilt is being heaped upon him, seeks the president of the United States for information and consultation—here is the message:

"January 12, 1924—

Here the senator interrupted himself. 'Mind you, it was January 11, one day before this message was transmitted, that Ed McLean confessed that he told a falsehood when he said he loaned to Fall the $100,000. The papers were full of it. He was a self-confessed liar. Yet the very next day, over the private wires that led from the white house in which the American people place all their confidence, a message goes to McLean down at Palm Beach. This is the message:

"'Washington, D. C., Jan. 12, 1924, 9 p. m.

"'Edward B. McLean, Palm Beach, Florida.

"'Prescott is away. Advise Slemp, with whom I shall confer. Acknowledge.

"'(Signed), CALVIN COOLIDGE.'

"I hope that some real explanation can be made by the president. With the country in fever heat as it is today, it is incumbent on the president to give a statement to remove the suspicion that attached to that telegram, not that Bascom Slemp, the secretary of the president, shall give out a statement, but that the president of the United States shall himself give all he facts touching it.

"I am aware that already there has been sent, out, or given out, from the white house two or three lines, making some kind of an explanation of, it, they think, but that is given out by Bascom Slemp. Bascom Slemp is the man who was appointed by the president after it was shown in the house that he accepted money from applicants for appointments as postmasters, and he said he turned it over to the republican national committee to help pay the deficit. Bascom is the man who went to Florida, and who a dozen times in Florida, as shown by the testimony, ate with New McLean, and Fall, was present practically every time.

"I want to suggest to the senator, interrupted Senator Dill, democrat, Washington, 'if it would not be interesting for the president to inform the country why he asked Mr. McLean to ask Mr. Slemp the president's private secretary, instead of asking Mr. Slemp directly. What is the relationship, that Mr. Mclean should be the go-between the president and his own private secretary.

"I cannot understand it at all," returned Senator Harrison and I sincerely hope, for the good of the country, and in the interest of restoring public confidence, that the president will feel that he should give out a statement, under his own signature and I pray that it will be plausible, and that it will be thorough in explanation of this whole transaction.'

Adverting later to Senator Harrison's address, Senator Lodge declared the telegram was "really a perfectly trivial one and a perfectly explicable one." He said the president had wanted to consult Mr. Prescott, who was chairman of the republican committee of the District of Columbia, in regard to district matters, and was informed that Mr. Prescott was away.

"The matter required prompt attention," Senator Lodge said, "and the president wished to find out who was here who could take Mr. Prescott's place and give him the information he desired. He knew that Mr. Slemp would know. Mr. Slemp was away in Florida. The president did not know where he was. He had been moving about and the president did not have his exact address.

"It was in the evening, at half past nine, to be exact, and the president's other secretary had gone. He did not know whether Mr. Slemp had left for Florida or not. He knew that Mr. McLean would know where Mr. Slemp was, because he had been with him in Florida. The president therefore telegraphed to Mr. McLean in order to reach Mr. Slemp for the purpose of getting from him the name of the man he desired to see in Washington. That's the whole story, of the telegram.

"The senator from Mississippi refers to that as something smirching his reputation because, I suppose the telegram was addressed to Mr. McLean. Into that I see no need of going. I am not discussing Mr. McLean's character, but he was known to the president, and it was a very natural way of reaching Mr. Slemp if he were still in Florida, which was not so. That is the whole thing."

Deploring attacks upon the president, Senator Lodge recalled that the late Senator Tillman, democrat, South Carolina, had once assailed President Cleveland and stated that he then had protested privately to senators on the democratic side.

"I think the president of the United States ought not to be attacked in this body," Senator Lodge continued. "I think he is entitled to the full respect of the senate in debate and of all senators. He is the head of the government.

"I have no sympathy, I will frankly confess, with the kind of debate to which the country has been treated in the last six weeks. I am thoroughly in favor of investigating wherever there is good reason to believe the wrong has been done or that corruption has existed. But we have followed the plan here of discussing all the testimony and every newspaper rumor in addition, day after day, and with the character of that debate I am utterly out of sympathy.

"I think it is lowering the entire character of this body in the opinion of the people of the United States. Therefore I have no sympathy. In fact I have great dislike for any such attack as has been made here today or any such imputations as have been cast upon the president of the United States at the present time. I wish for my own part to make this protest against it. Not one thing has been discovered of any kind that reflects upon the president of the United States.

"I have known the present president of the United States for many years. I knew him well both in private and in public life. His private life as his public life, has been without spot or blemish. The present scandal of corruption or conduct in office has never come near him.

"He came into his present great office under the most trying circumstances which can beset a president when he goes into the White House, and that is the death of his predecessor. He found himself of course with a cabinet that was not of his selection. He found himself with a number of questions, political questions and all sorts of questions relating to this great government which were not his policies—that is, they were not his personal policies, and with which he had nothing officially to do. The recent charges that have been made and investigations that have been held have surrounded him with all sorts of difficulties and trying conditions.

"I think he has borne himself well, very well. I do not see how any man could bear himself better. You may be assured that he will be as prompt to punish misdoing in the public service as any man who now listens to me in this senate. He always has done it. He did it as governor of Massachusetts. He will do it as president of the United States. He has done nothing to justify personal attack of any kind. He is entitled to all the respect that congress can give him. He should be lifted above that sort of discussion that has been running through the senate here day after day, based on gatherings of the gutters, on the whispers of the corridors, on what is picked up from the newspaper, on every sort of rumor of calumny or false story.

"I think it is little short of an outrage to bring the president's name in here and treat him as he has been treated today in a place where he cannot speak for himself, where he has to trust to the words of others, and where he is unable to make his own voice heard among those who assail him. He alone knows all the facts in relation to everything that concerns him.

"He has led, as I have said, an unblemished life. There is not a thing that can be brought against him privately or publicly. His whole life has been uniform and conforms to the principles which I know he holds. I think I can assure the senate that whatever record leaps to life, he never will be ashamed."

Pharmacists Call It "Joint-Ease" Because It's for Swollen, Sore, Painful, Creaky Joints Only.

It took a good many years to get together a combination of pain subduing and swelling reducing agents declared to be one remedy that almost instantly penetrates through skin and flesh and starts right in to make swollen, inflamed, creaky, pain racked joints as good as new.

They call this new and wonderful preparation "Joint Ease" because the medical man who turned the trick, worked for years to perfect some low-priced remedy that would really benefit the millions of people who have one or more joints that need helpful attention.

So "Joint Ease" is prepared only for people who have a swollen, painful, creaky, distorted or stiff joint, whether it be in knee, elbow, shoulder, ankle, neck or finger and whether it is caused by rheumatism or something else.

Of course, it can't help but quickly put an end to such superficial ailments as lumbago, neuralgia, neuritis, aching muscles, stitch in the side, crick in the neck or sore feet because of its penetrating action, but what it is really recommened for is joint ailments of any nature whatever.

Ask for a tube of "Joint Ease." You can use it several times in one evening for quick results, because it goes right through the skin with only a few seconds rubbing. It surely is a swift penetrator and when it gets under the skin, it starts right in to clean up all joint trouble.

REMINDING THE SENATE.

If those in congress who have been pursuing the policy of obstruction were actually concerned with accomplishing the work that lies before that body the situation today would be far different than it is. Instead of giving Senator Warren a chance to tell them that they ought to speed the members of congress should have had sufficient legislative business accomplished that it could be pointed to and recognized as the product of those actually concerned with the work at hand.

It was appropriate that the chairman of the appropriations committee, Senator Warren, should be concerned over the dilatory tactics. Good reason exists for calling the attention of the senate to the fact that two weeks before this time last year there had been passed all the supply bills, while this year not a one of them has been acted upon. The fact that there was a limit in which the action could be taken last year furnishes a certain explanation, but there is a desire on the part of both parties for an early adjournment of congress in order that it will not conflict with the national conventions to be held in June in Cleveland and New York.

Congressional delays are too frequently unnecessary. It is not to be expected that important legislation and big appropriation measures will be railroaded without giving them the attention which they are entitled to, but there is no excuse for the dawdling that too frequently characterizes congressional tactics, especially when the policy of obstruction is being employed, or when efforts are being made to furnish political capital for the coming presidential campaign.

Senator Warren may not accomplish all that he desired by his statement, but he brought to attention a matter which was apparently being overlooked, and indicating to the senate that unless it looked well to its business it might be subject to an investigation itself.

BENEFITS AND CONCESSIONS.

By the making public of the agreement which has been entered into between this country and Great Britain it is clear that a give and take policy has been followed. Something has been gained by both and something has been gained by each. In neither instance does it mean that either has been injured because of what has been yielded. It was in fact the one way to get what both desired.

There may be British thought to the effect that the vessels flying the British flag are to be subjected to search for liquor beyond the long-established three-mile limit of this country, which of course is the fact. But it must also be evident that this will impose no hardship upon those vessels which are engaged in a legitimate business and which are not bent upon violating the laws of this country, or at least engaged in aiding others to violate the law. No British vessel is going to be harmed one iota if it is not involved in rum running.

The British permit the extension of the three-mile limit to gain for themselves the opportunity to send their vessels into our ports carrying liquor under seal. Such is a violation of our laws as interpreted by the supreme court. Under seal, however, such liquor is transported solely for the purpose of having a supply available for the return voyage, or it may be destined to another country not yet reached because an American port may be only a port of call. This country will have the right to see that the liquor that is supposed to be under seal is actually there and not landed.

The agreement must get the approval of the senate, but there is so much of advantage in it for this country that there ought to be no hesitancy on the part of that branch of congress to take whatever action is needed to ratify the understanding. British vessels are permitted to do no more than vessels of other countries will be upon completing similar negotiations. There are mutual concessions involved, but there are mutual benefits obtained. Where all are benefited there can be little objection.

LESSON FROM BANDIT GANG.

Much more than New York has been interested in the prosecution of a quartette of young men in that city for the part they played in the murder of two bank messengers, which had been deliberately planned and carried out in a cold blooded manner. All details were arranged in defiance of law. Methods of transferring money from one institution to another were revealed by a former employe of the bank and there was a determination to get any such sum carried, whatever the cost.

The holdup and the double murder were quickly accomplished. Everything went according to plans, but there were clues which made possible the capture of all but one. They have had a fair and full trial. They have been convicted in separate trials, found guilty and sentenced to death in the electric chair.

Such disclosures as were made seem bound to be decreasing. Like-wise the speedy manner in which the authorities and court worked cannot fail to make its impression. But in the opinion of the trial judge something more is needed than the lesson which such a case can be expected to have upon others with a similar criminal inclination. It is that those who are responsible for the neglect which contributed to the criminal careers of these young men, or others who are in danger of following similar paths, should give better attention to their duty.

Taking advantage of the opportunity to concentrate attention upon the situation the trial judge, when imposing the death sentences, pointed out that "tens of thousands of boys are nightly on our streets. Many of them have no fathers and the parents of many others give little or no heed to the places their boys visit or the companions they choose. We can lessen the crime in our midst by giving our attention to our youths. They need a real man's guiding hand and personality."

Perhaps it is a view that has been expressed before but it is certain that it will stand reiteration. What would be better would be action in keeping with the expression. It is much preferable that something should be done for the prevention of the wasting of such lives than that they should be permitted to follow their own guidance and come to such an end, to say nothing of the menace which they constitute to the public.

SETTLING WAR DEBTS.

While this country isn't maintaining that all of the nations in Europe, which owe it money as the result of the war, are able to make early settlements there is a feeling that there should be an understanding reached concerning the payment of these debts.

There are reasons to believe that that view is shared by many of the debtor nations, three of which have already arranged settlements, but when the representative of Jugoslavia comes to this country for such a purpose and declares that it is the wish of France and Italy that the small countries should not set a precedent in the payment of war debts it doesn't reflect a good example.

There has been no appeal made to the European nations to hurry up and make a settlement. They know that this country has appointed a commission for the purpose of negotiating settlements, and they know that the United States is not disposed to cancel those debts. The war has been over long enough so that there should be a willingness to begin the necessary negotiations concerning payment. Not all the countries stand in the same position as to ability to pay, and not all owe the same amount. Some can make an adjustment in a shorter period than others, but there has not been and isn't now a belief that any of them will undertake to dodge their debts.

It is unfortunate that the larger nations should stand in position of endeavoring to influence any of the smaller nations against the meeting of their obligations. Far better would it be for all concerned if they should take exactly the opposite course.

HARD TO SHAKE.

The situation that exists in Honduras today is most unfortunate, but it cannot fail to stand out as an illustration of what is certain to happen where there is an unwillingness to adhere to constitutional methods and to jump to the gun every time there is a difference of opinion regarding the next president.

If conditions are going from bad to worse down there, as one report has had it, there can be little wonder. It is the inevitable outcome of conditions which are the outgrowth of revolutionary tendencies. The idea that a new government must be inducted by bullets and a display of military strength ought to have been abandoned long ago. There had been hopes that it had been, but Honduras gives evidence that it has not.

The fact that the election failed to show any of the three candidates to have the necessary number of votes to elect him president called for no outburst of revolutionary order. It displays the wrong attitude toward a constitutional government, a fact which Honduras should have appreciated long ago, but inasmuch as it exists it demonstrates what little progress has actually been made toward the proper support of constitutional government.

Honduras is not alone in the display of this preference for bullets over ballots. There is a reluctance to part from past practices which time is having a hard time in removing. It is a situation, however, which ought not to be overlooked by those who are so anxious to start out on the sea of self government. Honduras doesn't stand alone. Its experience follows closely that of others. The revolutionary tendency is hard to shake.

HONEST TOWN

"I'll have to hand it to this town," declared the out-of-town customer. "Time was when folks coming up to Chicago expected to be held up as a matter of course, but nowadays the city's so darned honest you've got to watch your step. Certainly we were just surprised at something that happened yesterday, my wife and I."

"The lady with you?" asked Wilkinson. "Why didn't you come up to the house? Mrs. Wilkinson will want you both for dinner, anyway."

"Thanks, but it happens that my wife's sister has a place up north of here for the winter, and she met us with her car. I had to go see a fellow about that Travers deal, so I left before the sister came, and taxied out later."

"Well, did your wife have to wait long?"

"About a half hour," said the out-of-town customer. "But then her sister appeared in her car with her two children and the porter carried out the bags to the sidewalk. The kids got to acting up and the porter had to wait until things quieted down, before he started to put the bags in the car. Then the kids objected to having the bags in with them and, after the porter had gone, the women folks had to take the bags out again and sooth the children. Those kids need discipline."

"The easiest way in the beginning," remarked Wilkinson, "but the hardest in the end."

"We're staying there only three days," said the out-of-town customer. And I'm thankful to say I'm housed with them only when they're asleep."

"Did they finally get settled in the car?" asked Wilkinson. "Or did you have to go down and rescue them?"

"They got off all right," said the out-of-town customer. "But when I got up to the house the whole tribe came hustling out with a dreadful tale of woe. They had driven off and left those four bags standing on the edge of the sidewalk and they knew that somebody must have walked off with all of them before they had been gone five minutes. My wife was terribly upset and the more she talked about the loss the more valuable the things became.

"I wasn't very happy myself," added the out-of-town customer. "For I had put a lot of my best duds in my suitcase, knowing I was going to visit my wife's folks. They got a good laugh out of me when I suggested driving down to see whether the porters at the station could describe the person who had walked off with the bags. I had to argue quite a while before I got my brother-in-law to take me down in the car, but I finally succeeded. We exceeded the speed limit getting down and drew up at the station curb with a flourish, when, to our amusement, we found the bags were still at the edge of the sidewalk, where they had been left. Sam jumped out and grabbed one bag and jumped nearly a foot afterward because a loud voice told him to leave those bags alone."

"Aha!" cried Wilkinson. "Somebody else had cabbaged them!"

"Not a bit of it!" explained the out-of-town customer. "The policeman on the corner came hurrying up and told us that two ladies and a couple of kids had left those bags and there wasn't anybody else going to take 'em off. He said the station porter wouldn't take 'em back to the lost and found because they were left outside the station, and he was giving the ladies time to come back for them before he turned them in at the police station. He said he had hollered at the ladies but the kids had made such a noise yelling they didn't hear. He certainly wasn't going to let us take them, no sir, and if we tried he'd run us in as sure as shooting. It didn't make any difference what we said and Sam's offering him a cigar only made things worse. We were not to be allowed to lay a finger on a single bag, no matter if I could tell every single thing there was in them."

"You're rankly ungrateful," exclaimed Wilkinson. "Am I am surprised at you."

"Maybe you'd be grateful" growled the out-of-town customer, "if you'd had to stay behind while Sam went back to get the rest of the family, and had had a crowd gather and wait to see what the copper was going to do to you, anyhow. It seemed like a year before Sam came back with the folks, and then we weren't through with our troubles, for our wives made us get that police officer a box of the best cigars before we left. They thought he was perfectly wonderful, they said. I wish I'd borrowed a smoke of him before I came up here and got on of these."—Exchange.

CHILD TRAINING

MINE AND THINE

By Jessie Ellis Burdick.

Just the other day I received a letter from a mother which was a cry for help.

"My boy, John, has been taking money from my pocket-book. What shall I do? I do not want him to grow up a thief."

Alas! this mother is not the only one with such a problem; unfortunately there are many parents who at some time or another are confronted with the same experience. The mother facing the problem must take drastic measures to break off a habit which should not have been allowed to form and to teach the principle of "Mine and Thine." Whipping will not do it; more patient and painstaking methods are required.

Laughingly we often say: "What's mine is my own, what's your's is mine, too." This expression is all right as a joke but it is all wrong when we put it into practice. Just so many young married people practice it. The wife assumes that home is absolutely hers, and her husband's things are gradually pushed aside. If she wants to use any of his belongings — tools, handkerchiefs, slippers, or even his razor—she takes them, regardless of the value he places on them. Occasionally he protests, sometimes emphatically, but more often too gently for her to realize his justification in doing so, and she continues less and less strenuous until he ceases; he consoles himself by saying, "She does not interfere at my place of business and I ought not to object to what she does at home, for that is her place of business." But he keeps his treasures at the office and club.

By and by the children come. Mother punishes John when he objects to Mary's taking his toys. "It is not kind and generous," she tells him. When Mary cries because John has taken her prized plaything, the little girl is punished for being sulky and selfish. Grandmother gives John a toy, but mother acts as if the gift had been made equally to the two children. In every way she kills in them that natural instinct for pride in ownership.

Then come a day when she fusses because the children do not take care of their toys, do not pick them up, do not realize that they have a money value. But why should they? Those things are common property—there is no sense of personal responsibility. If John can take Mary's things without leave or license, and she can take his, and mother can do the same with father's, what's the difference if they take mother's? The children are old enough now to know that money will get admission to the movies, money is needed for "weeny-weeny" doll or those marbles down at the corner store. They have seen mother pay for the things she bought at the store. So now, not having the money of their own, they take it out of the pocket-book which belongs to mother, but which to their way of thinking is a family affair.

Each member of the family should understand and should practice the principles of ownership. There should be no appropriating of one another's belongings without a request and a "thank you." The forming of this habit will require persistent patience on the part of the adult members of the family. A penalty might be imposed for every infringement of the rule.

Of course, each child should have allowance out of which he must purchase some necessary article. At first the amount should be small and the requirement a simple one. For example, when he first enters school, it might be well to insist that he pay for his own pencils. As he grows older, add an item at a time, and at the same time increase his allowance.

This allowance should not be "something for nothing." Each child should have certain duties about the home, the performance of which will entitle him to his allowance, and the neglect of which will cause the withholding of it.

Thus the child learns that money is obtained by rendering service, that each member of a family has work to do, if the house is to be a home, and that respect for the rights of others is one of the first rules of life.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Universal Peace.

Mr. Editor: To those working for a perfect peace plan, I would refer them to a little book known as the New Testament, or Gospel of Christ. To the pagans, chattering descendants of monkeys, or braying jackasses among us, would say that the book has been translated into most all known languages, and contains all the elements necessary for perfecting such a plan, and they need look no further for material.

Yours in the interest of world-wide peace,

E. D. BALKCOM.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Charles L. Hutchinson, who celebrates his seventieth birthday today, is an eminent Chicagoan in whose career art and business have singularly harmonized. He is numbered among the leading financiers of the West and is equally prominent in art circles, having served as president of the Art Institute of Chicago ever since its organization. Mr. Hutchinson went to Chicago as a youngster from Lynn, Mass. His school days ended, he went to work for his father, a prominent banker and Board of Trade man. As a reward for his efforts the son was given $30,000 on his twenty-first birthday and, although very wealthy, is still profiting from the stock investment he made at that time. As president of the Art Institute he has been an incessant worker and his business ability has been of great help in financing the institution. In 1895 Mr. Hutchinson served as chairman of the fine arts commission of the World's Columbian Exposition.

JALAPA

Jalapa, capital of the Mexican state of Vera Cruz, which was one of the first towns to fall to the insurrectionists in Mexico's newest revolution, is a cul-de-sac in which old Spanish and Italian customs and the flavors of past centuries linger to a greater extent than in most of the other cities of Mexico," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"There the 'milk wagon' is a jaraden mule, lovers nightly 'play the bear' before their sweethearts' barred windows, and with each beginning of the hour by the Cathedral bells watchmen sound their whistles and call out the tidings of the night.

"Only in the past few years," continues the bulletin, "has there been added a dash of twentieth century apparatus and twentieth century ways, and as yet those traces of modernism serve only to accentuate Jalapa's quaintness as the few grains of salt that an expert chef scatters bring out the flavor of a custard.

"The railroad bound for Mexico City passes Jalapa by on a lower level. Spread out and upward on its hillsides, the old city has gone on its ancient way little distributed by the trains that roll by several times each day. Some of the freight that rises up to the city from the station is carried on mule-drawn tram-cars, but most of it is borne on parallel poles, each end of the device serving as shafts between which plod solemn mules. And competing with the mules in an even more ancient method of freight transfer, that of the cargador. Your trunk, if you step off at Jalapa, will probably be taken to your hotel balanced on the sturdy back of one of these human burden-bearers, the weight held forward by his broad head-strap.

"As in modern cities of the United States there are few horse-drawn trucks in Jalapa. But while horse-drawn vehicles are becoming passe in Yankeeland, their age has never even been reached in Jalapa. All day one hears the musical tinkle of mule-bells as trains of the animals pass along the streets laden with sacks of coffee and sugar from near-by plantations, cans of milk from small farms, bags of charcoal from pits in the hills, or fearsome collections of native pottery for the market. The city is in the edge of a rich plantation country and its big warehouses fairly bulge with coffee and sugar assembled there before it is sent to Vera Cruz, 75 miles away across the "hot country," for shipment abroad.

"The prominence of the mule in Jalapa gives rise to one of its most characteristic features. Scattered over the town are big open courts formed of narrow roofed stalls where are quartered alike mules and muleteers, while against the walls are piled great tiers of pack-saddles. These places, reminiscent of the wagon-yards of our old west, are Jalapa's forums and coffee-shops—the Fulton Fishers boarding houses for her dry-land mariners. Fires glow in the courts in the evenings and about them the mule drivers loaf and joke and curse, swap yarns, drink mescal, and settle to their liking the affairs of their turbulent republic.

"To many Mexicans Jalapa is 'the city of caves.' Its one climatic curse is the 'chipi-chipi,' a soggy, dripping fog like those of Scotland at their worst, that settles down on the town during the rainy season and blots out the sky for days at a time. Pious and impious alike mumble prayers on such occasions: 'Holy Virgin, let the sun shine again.' Because of these drizzling fogs the eaves of the houses are extended over the narrow sidewalks. Pedestrians, like the citizens of medieval London, hug the walls, and the water drips harmlessly into the streets and trickles off in a single gutter down the middle of the roadway. The queer name given to these dense fogs is believed to be an effort of the Indians — and a good one—at onomatopoeia, the words simulating the continual half gurgling, half chirping sound of water running from the eaves.

"In Jalapa live old Spanish families whose history there runs back almost to the days of Cortez. Some have palatial city homes and also widespreading haciendas and commodious country houses not far away. In the early days much dependence was placed on 'miradores,' tower-like look-outs on both town and country houses, between which signals could be exchanged. Only a few 'miradores' linger on old Jalapa houses, but the conditions that made them necessary have not altogether passed.

They were most useful in the days when Jalapa was a post station on the old highway — named like most other Mexican roads, 'el camino real'—that led from Vera Cruz to Mexico City. Highwaymen infested the country around Jalapa, to attack the coaches and mule trains; and often, growing more bold, raided neighboring haciendas and even the town itself. A law that recalls strikingly those stirring times still exists on the statute books—a rule that an American might well call 'the law of the pot shot.' By it a citizen is privileged—it almost becomes his duty—to shoot on general principles at any horseman leaving the city at a gallop.

"One American who has cast his lot in Jalapa has brought to the city most of its modern trimmings. But he has worked slowly lest in mingling the twentieth century with the 16th he bring about a sort of social and economic indigestion. Twenty years ago he built an electric light and power plant. Two years ago he introduced 'jitney' buses and gave most of the Jalapenos their first sight of an automobile. Then after observing the wave of Main Street's booster clubs, he constructed an amphitheater for civic celebrations, built for Jalapa a full-fledged scenic driveway, and organized a merchants' association.

"But fete days pass, automobiles pall, especially on Jalapa's bumpy streets, and the 'chipi-chipi' blots out even the 'Road of the Clouds.' At best the things of the twentieth century merely graze the edge of Jalapa's consciousness. Beneath, the Jalapenos live happily in the atmosphere of the centuries that are gone."

A 7,500-ton office building in Chicago, said to be the heaviest building ever moved, was recently transferred without any damage to a new site 55 feet away.

Just Over.

They were sure they would know her if met by her walk and general air, at least, by her luggage and talk.

While they were waiting they saw a smartly dressed comely young woman trip lightly past them, approach an official on the platform of the station and be directed to a public conveyance. She was whisked away.

Then a young woman and her husband who had gone to the station to meet a cousin from Germany, they had never seen, returned to their home to report that she failed to arrive. The cousin was seated in the parlor receiving the congratulations of other relatives on her safe voyage and arrival. The young woman of the taxi was properly introduced.

His mother had called John several times and had received no answer, although he was near the house and should have heard her.

She was taking him to task for disregarding her call. John said he hadn't.

"But, John, you were so close you must have," insisted his mother.

"Well, I guess I just wasn't tuned in to your wave length; I listened to what the boys were saying," was his adroit remark.

CONDITIONS ARE BOOMING ON FLORIDA'S WEST COAST

Ma. Norwich people are spending the winter in Florida. One writing home from St. Petersburg, the Sunshine city, refers to the claim of the newspaper published there where the issue is given away every day the sun does not shine on that city. This has occurred but 74 times in the past 18 years. It happened once since the middle of January, this year when there was no rain but a gray day with thin clouds.

In a section of that city 40 miles of streets and 30 miles of new sidewalks are being built. This is called Pasadena, the new city within the city of St. Petersburg and "sounds like going some to us in the north who only build and do work in the few months of summer."

Four new hotels were opened this season each costing a million and they are all full. Two more, much larger, will be ready for next season.

CITY IN BLACK DARKNESS WHEN E. C. POWER SCOTLAND LINE BREAKS

Norwich was in black darkness for about 30 minutes Thursday night when electric street lights, house lights, store lights and theatre lights all were out. The trouble, according to General Manager C. W. Taggart of the city gas and electric department, was a break in the transmission line of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. between Scotland dam and the city station on North Main street. The electric service was restored as soon as one of the steam units at the North Main street plant could be put into operation.

When the streets and houses were suddenly plunged into darkness about 10.30 there were three spots in the city for which a hectic half hour began. These were the telephone office, police headquarters and the city electric station. It seemed as if everybody at once wanted to know what was the matter with the lights and how soon the electricity would be coursing over the wires again. Telephone calls began to flood into police headquarters where Capt. D. J. Twomey sat at his switchboard in the dim light furnished by a couple of gas jets. He put in repeated calls to try to get the electric light plant and the night operator worked frantically to try to get a response from there but without results. Meanwhile the force at the electric light plant was working at top speed to get the steam unit started and there was no time to answer the telephone.

Alarmed at his continued failure to get any response to his calls for 139, the power station telephone, and thinking there must have been an accident in which help might be needed, Capt. Twomey dispatched the patrol wagon there and later learned also from General Manager Taggart what the trouble was.

At the Bulletin office, where the linotype machines are run by the city electric current and the building is lighted from the same source, the machine operators took the dark period for their lunch hour and went to work again when the lights came on.

STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE ON ROAD TO OCCUM

Joseph Tetreault, the 72 year old New London man who was hit Wednesday night on the Occum road by an automobile driven by W. R. Macpherson, a paper mill superintendent, was reported as resting comfortably late Thursday night at the Backus hospital. About 9.15 o'clock Mr. Tetreault was about to board a New London bound car when he was hit by the Occum machine. The car had come to an almost complete stop when the automobile came along. It is said the machine was traveling at a fast rate of speed and that only one headlight was burning. Mr. Tetreault was knocked unconscious and was rushed to the hospital.

COMMERCE CHAMBER LETTER TOUCHES IMPORTANT MATTERS

Matters of importance and interest are brought to the attention of members of the chamber of commerce in its March membership letter as follows:

Boy Scouts—The annual canvass of our people to secure sufficient funds to carry on the work of the Norwich Council, Boy Scouts of America, is now on. The Boy Scout movement is meeting the universal need of the endeavor to create strong, self-reliant, sympathetic, intelligent and moral uprightness in the boy of today—the citizen of the future.

The church is doing its share to instill the virtues in the minds of our boys. The church realizes the necessity of such an organization because in nearly every church a troop of boy scouts is formed.

The funds are needed to sustain the general expenses throughout the land. Norwich will and should support, financially and morally, the efforts of the self-sacrificing men and women who are interested in this great activity for the common good of our boys.

Need For school houses—With the passing of the years and the increasing number of school children, come the need of providing adequate school houses for them. Norwich Town and the East Side should have larger school houses to meet the needs of these sections. Other school buildings are being taxed to capacity and in at least one school house, the Broadway school, conditions are far from right for the comfort and safety of the children. Provisions must be made for the growing needs of the community and a situation is fast approaching here when heroic measures must be used to meet the demands. The first new school building in a period of over thirty years was recently built in Thamesville. The question of providing suitable school houses must sooner or later be squarely met by our citizens.

American Peace Award—The referendum returns on the selected Peace Plan for the prize of $100,000 offered by Mr. E. W. Bok show a total number of votes received from all parts of the country up to February 15th as 514,814 of which 64,780 was opposed and 449,568 in favor. Less than thirty members of our organization sent in their votes. A great number of civic organizations including such bodies as the Boston Chamber of Commerce and New York State Chamber of Commerce, made a much better showing. The total vote in Connecticut was 10,24. The Yale College vote totalled 1,615. It is not too late yet for our members to vote upon the referendum.

Drooan hm rf hm rf hm rf hm rf hm rfhm

The service rendered by this Line has become dependable and the officials are making every effort to render satisfactory service.

In connection with this matter we understand that Major Peterson is securing figures concerning freight tonnage carried on the Thames River to Norwich for the past year. So far as we can ascertain the Major has not yet submitted his report of the detailed survey to the Board of Army Engineers. This survey was ordered to determine the cost of deepening the river channel from Norwich to Allyn's Point.

Automobile Camps—In view of the fact that our city officials have decided to maintain an auto camp in Mohegan Park near Rockwell street entrance, the recent investigations made by the Boson Chamber of Commerce would seem pertinent to the local question. The investigation was made by the Convention and Tourist Committee of the Boston Chamber. We quote "Current Affairs" of the Boston organization.

"The experience of certain sections of Eastern New York States have been such as to discourage popular centers in the East from doing anything to such places. The chief complaint against them has been on the basis that they were not diligent in cleaning up the premises after their use of a free camp. They did not attempt even to remove the litter which they created; they left greases and fats, tin cans and torn papers where they cooked; were not always careful in extinguishing cooking fires, and other grievances were charged against them."

"St. Petersburg and Miami, Florida, several years ago laid out a free automobile camp and sent word to all the world that they were welcome to come and camp there without payment of any fees. Within the past year both of these Florida cities seem to have reconsidered their former hospitable impulses and while they still maintain free tourist camps, they have located them so far from the business district of the cities as to make them rather inconvenient."

"The Highway Commissioners of the New England States, when the problem was presented to them two or three years ago decided adversely against encouraging free automobile tourist camps."

"So much for the opposition. A sentiment just exactly the opposite from the usual Eastern experience has developed throughout the west. Denver has maintained such a free camp for years. It provides free fuel, free water and free music, with dancing on Saturday nights, polices the premises and in every way extends a most cordial welcome to the automibile tourist."

"Most of the western cities similarly report most favorable experiences with free campers."

"The point is further made that if these free automobile camp tourists are of a desirable class, provision should be made for their accommodation. If they are not of a desirable class, it is even more imperative to make such provision for them so as to encourage them to be flocked together where they can be policed and generally supervised and where no damage can result from their carelessness in making fires or in cooking or where any improper conduct can be repressed. If any of them are of a criminal class, it is even more important that provision be made to maintain over them the strictest regulation."

It is the general concensus that tourist camps are advantageous to a community. Besides the added business brought to a community, these camp sites afford a splendid opportunity for community advertising. The question is one of regulation rather than prohibition.

Bus Station—The city council received with favor the communication from the chamber regarding the establishment of a parking reservation for the bus lines operating from Norwich. The matter has been referred to a special committee of the council. The problem as to where a parking reservation can be made, adjacent to a location for a waiting room, and as near as possible to the business center is a hard one.

The praking question, in Norwich as elsewhere, is serious. We cannot however, make our business streets wider to take care of the ever increasing traffic. Herein lies the great value of a city planning board and the creation of some such commission to plan for the future growth of our city.

Law-abiding residents of Thamesville complain that in spite of recent raids by the state and local police, the amount of open intoxication in that section continues disgraceful.

MAY MAKE RADICAL CHANGE IN RULES GOVERNING A. A. U. INDOOR MEETS

New York, Mar. 6.—Steps to prevent any organization from entering more than one team in a championship relay were predicted today as a likely aftermath to the incidents surrounding the disqualification of two Illinois Athletic club quartets in the National Senior A. A. U. indoor track and field championships last night.

The teams of the I. A. C., which retained its national title by a margin of a single point, were disqualified after Buker, running anchor for the second quartet, fouled Higgins, New York A. C. runner, who was thrown out of his stride and lost a spectacular duel with Jole Ray, of the other I. A. C. squad, for first place. The New Yorkers were awarded the race but the storm of criticism which the event aroused had not subsided today in athletic circles.

Buker's action in blocking Higgins' path were not intentional, according to his teammates, who pointed to the former Bates college runner's excellent competitive reputation, but A. A. U. officials pointed out that the fouling appeared to them so deliberate that they had no alternative but to penalize all I. A. C. entries in the event, although the first team contributed in no way to the incident.

Frederick W. Rubien, secretary-treasurer of the National A. A. U., expressed the opinion that chance of such a situation recurring probably would be eliminated by restricting organizations to a single team in any relay. This, it was pointed out, would eliminate ground for criticism that a second team was entered for any purpose other than to try to win. Buker had been lapped and was hopelessly out of the running when he and Higgins collided. Under present rules, however, there is nothing to prevent a club entering two relay teams and it was said no change could be made before the next annual meeting of the A. A. U., which is scheduled for next November.

The standing high and broad jumps may be eliminated from the indoor championship program in the future, it also was suggested today, inasmuch as these events no longer form a part of the Olympic program and therefore serve no purpose of preparation for international competition. It is probable they will be replaced by other features designed to bring out Olympic timber.

NEW LONDON BASKETBALL TEAMS HAVE BUSY WEEK

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 6—A busy week-end faces New London teams in basketball. Three games are scheduled to be played in the military league, on Friday night. In these games the following teams will get into action. The Tabs and the Knights of Columbus will oppose each other. After the first game, the J. N. Lapointe Co. five will oppose the 85th Brigade Headquarters in the second game. The last game will bring together the New London Independents and the New London Ship and Engine fives. The games scheduled for Friday night in the military league are the only games that will be played in this league this week.

It looks like every team in the city will be busy on Saturday evening. Among the big attractions in the city is the Base-Plainfield game, Company A of Meriden, Conn., and Headquarters Battery at the State Armory. At the Y. M. C. A. Groton and the local Baptist quintets will play a scheduled game in the intermediate basketball league. Two games in the industrial league are also scheduled to be played. Lapointe fives battling each other. After the last game in the "Dusty" is over two more local teams will take the floor.

CHAPMAN TECH PLAYS R. I. SLATERS TONIGHT

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 6—Chapman Technical high basketball five will play its second game of the week on Friday night with the Rhode Island State college second team. This game is undoubtedly the hardest on the Chapman Tech schedule. The wearers of the Red and Black are hard at work preparing for this contest and extra practice is being held daily at the Y. M. C. A. floor. Using that court in preference to theirs because the court at Rhode Island State College is a large one while the Tech court which is located at the school is smaller.

The Tech team leaves for South Kingston, R. I., Friday afternoon to remain at the college over the week end. The next game scheduled for Tech is next week when Windham High will be found opposing the locals. Following this game, which is to be played at Storrs, the team will be entered for the Eastern Connecticut Interscholastics.

SUB BASE QUINTET SLAUGHTERS STONINGTON BASKETBALL TEAM

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 6—Displaying an unusual fast offensive game, the Submarine Base basketball quintet handed Stonington a terrific lacing on the Base court Thursday night. The final score which read 53 to 19 in the sailor boys favor decided a contest that showed the Base team at its best this season.

From the very first whistle the Sub Base went after the contest in earnest with Compton leading in the scoring. Not one time did the Base let up in the terrific pace they set from the outset. Short snappy passes, with a pass system concentrated to the two sides of the court in preference to the center of the floor, played a prominent part in the large score rolled up by the navy men. The passing of the subs at times was so fast and accurate that the human eye could hardly follow the course of the ball. The Stonington players at times seemed to drop into a state of lethargy, allowing the Base team to run wild, scoring baskets almost at will.

The Base team in this contest demonstrated that it could work the ball within shooting distance of the basket and did not have to depend on long shots for the hoop. Every field basket, scored by the Base, was made from in under or from within the foul goal area. Very seldom was a chance for a goal missed. Besides playing a whirlwind of an offensive game the defense of the Base team was almost perfect. But eight field baskets were registered in the first half.

Although the rivalry was intense the game was cleanly played throughout. But a small number of fouls were called on both teams.

Compton for the Submarine Base was the outstanding star of the evening. He accounted for 11 baskets from the field for 22 points. Besides being the heaviest scorer his floor work was also good. Murphy at center played a hard and conscientious game the time he remained in.

Gilmore for Stonington was the visitors best player. He accounted for more than half of his teams total points, tallying 5 field goals for 10 points. The summary and lineup:

Submarine Base

Referee—Fnare. Time of halves 20 minutes each.

Lieutenant Arnold, director of athletics at the Submarine Base, Thursday confirmed the report that the Sub Base basketball team will meet Plainfield, Saturday evening on the State Armory court in New London. The final arrangements were made by both team managers late Wednesday night.

With the definite assurance that the Base-Plainfield game will be played, New London fans are eagerly awaiting the referees whistle to begin the game. For on the same card two more fast teams will be found opposing each other. The Headquarters battery of New London will act as hosts to the Company A quintet from Meriden, Conn. These two games are undoubtedly the two best games that local fans will be able to witness all season.

RUTH WILL BE ABLE TO START TRAINING NEXT WEEK

Hot Springs, Ark., Mar. 6. — Babe Ruth, winner in a fight against influenza, will leave Hot Springs Sunday to report to the Yankees training camp in New Orleans, it was announced today.

"I have advised Ruth to begin with only light workouts," Dr. Wooten said today, "and to increase his daily training routine gradually."

FIRPO FEARS SPALLA MORE THAN LODGE

Buenos Aires, March 6 (By the A. P.)—The atmosphere of international rivalry surrounding the bout between Luis Firpo and Erminio Spalla, the Italian heavyweight, which is to take place next Friday night, became intensied yesterday. This was due to the receipt by Spalla of a cablegram from Benito Mussolini, the Italian premier, telling Spalla to "keep the Italian colors aloft" and another encouraging him victory, from the Italian boxing federation.

Both Firpo and Spalla ended their hard training today. They had been working for nearly a month. During his training, Spalla had been enthusiastically watched by a great portion of the large Italian population of Buenos Aires.

Sporting writers, although impressed by the boxing ability of Spalla his speed and his ring generalship, are of the opinion that he lacks the sufficient punch to hurt Firpo seriously.

Firpo, moreover, outweights the Italian by about thirty-three pounds and has a longer reach.

Some are of the opinion that Spalla may be able to check the Argentine for a longer time than did "Farmer" Lodge through his boxing skill, but eventually be worn down by Firpo's staggering body blows which finished the American. Firpo nevertheless, is taking his fight with Spalla much more seriously than that with Lodge and has been training intensively for the past ten days, improving his footwork and endeavoring to develop the habit of hitting with his left, which he employs successfully against his sparring partners, but which he seems to forget when engaged in a real fight.

Spalla, professing confidence in victory, announced that unless he was unexpectedly disappointed he would proceed to the United States and seek matches with Renault, Wills and Dempsey.

Lynch to Meet Goldstein

New York, March 6—Joe Lynch will defend his world's bantamweight boxing championship against Abe Goldstein, of New York, at Madison Square Garden, March 20, it was announced tonight, in accordance with the conditions recently imposed by the state athletic commision in restoring Joe Lynch's license.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Paducah and Cairo having withdrawn from Kitty League because of a dispute over guarantees, they will attempt to build a new league around themselves, made up with the exception of Paducah of Southern Illinois cities. The candidate for franchises are besides Cairo and Paducah, the towns of Herrin, Harrisburg, Centralit, Mount Vernon, Marion, Carbondale and Murphysboro. Out of this list a pretty good Class D league can be picked.

The Minneapolis Club last week made a trade with the Tulsa Club by which Johnny Mitchell, shortstop, who went to Tulsa from the Boston Red Sox in the Dudley Lee deal, become a Miller. The Minneapolis Club gives in exchange for Mitchell, Pitcher Frank Brinsda, who had been slated for Des Moines, and Lester Fisher, a young shortstop.

Albert (Rob) Russell, former southpaw pitcher and then an outfielder, has "been with" three clubs in the American Association already before the training season is opened. It is now announced that the Pittsburg Club has sold him to Columbus. It previously was announced he had been transferred to Kansas City in the Glenn Wright deal, and then that was cancelled and he was to go back to Minneapolis.

The coroner's inquest into the death of Tony Boeckel held no one was to blame for the automobile accident that caused the Braves' infielder death near San Diego. A large truck crowded Boeckel's car into the ditch, where it collided with another car and was over turned. Bod Mussel was with Boeckel in his car, but he escaped without injury.

Kid Elberfeld of Little Rock and Johnny Dobbs of Memphis are out with announcements that they will not don uniforms this year, but will stick to the bench. The idea is to give their teams an extra player in the Southern, manager in uniform and on the coaching lines is counted in the player limit, whether or not he actually plays.

A son of Bernie Wefers, one famous as a foot racer, is going to get a trial this spring with the New York Giants. The young Wefers has been a star all-around athlete at Columbia University and thinks he can make good in professional baseball. He is an outfielder, has done his hundred yards in ten or less and can hit and field they say, as well as run.

Ray Morgan, who will be remembered as an infielder with the Washington Americans for several years, finally dropping out because of bad habits, is to suffer the penalty of his wayward course. In a criminal court in Baltimore last week Morgan was found guilty of assaulting a policeman, with intent to kill, and given a sentence of one year in prison.

Garland Braxton, young southpaw pitcher, formerly with the Boston Braves, but last year sent to Worcester, has been disposed of by that club to Springfield, in the same league. Worcester also has sold to Dick Wacha, young infielder, to the Pittsfield Club. Wacha hit over .300 last year in the Eastern League and the year before in the Piedmont League he hit for .321.

Hal Rhyne, San Francisco's shortstop, having decided that he is a star and asking from the club a salary it declines to pay, there is talk of making Ray Flaskamper the Seals' regular shortstop. Last year he played second, third and short on occasion and made such advancement that Manager Ellison feels perfectly safe in being independent of any whim of Rhyne's.

The Atlanta Club's trade of Joe Guyon to Richmond for Dave Robertson being off because Robertson decided he quit baseball rather than submit to it, the Atlanta club now sends Guyon to Little Rock in exchange for Frank Zoellers. Another deal by Atlanta is the sale of Pitcher Oscar Tuero to Reading, where he again will play under the management of Spencer Abbott.

Chester (Tut) Horan, a young catcher with Bristol in the Appalachian League, thinks so well of his ability that he bought his release from Bristol and signed with Worcester in the Eastern League. Horan hails from Cambridge, Mass., and broke into baseball in 1923 with Frederick in the Blue Ridge League. Though only 20 years of age he is a six-footer and weighs 160 pounds.

President Harry Williams of the Pacific Coast League has a new idea. He has insured, for the league, each of his eight umpires for $10,000. Thus if any umpire is hurt on the field of play the league will be protected. It is stated that the rates for umpires charged by insurance company were higher than those for players, though records do not indicate many cases of umpires being seriously hurt.

Earl Hamilton, left-hander of the Pittsburgh Pirates, claimed his privilege as a ten-year man when the Pittsburg club attempted to release him to the minors and has been made a free agent, all major clubs waiving on him. Now he's on his own and it remains to be seen if he can negotiate satisfactorily for his services.

Mike Konnicka, catcher, who was suspended in 1921 for quitting Reading and taking the management of an independent team, has obtained reinstatement and will join the Reading team again.

He has done quite a bit of amateur work on the stage as a black faced comedian. He is studying General Engineering at M. I. T.

R. H. Whiting, '26—home in Cambridge, Mass.—During his freshman year he became quite prominent first in his work with the musical clubs and later by outclassing all competitors for the female lead in last year's Tech Show. He made such a hit with his audiences, some of whom had doubtless seen him in some of the various amateur productions that he has had parts in before coming to the Institute, that this year's show wouldn't have been at all complete without him. This year he takes the part of the comedy camera man and his wit goes a long way to making this year's show the best in a long while.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Judgement of the Storm at the Broadway Tomorrow

Are American film audiences hungry for powerful stories in their screen entertainment? The Paiman Photoplay Corporation thinks that they are, hence Judgment of the Storm, the offering at the Broadway theatre starting Saturday. Splendid technical presentation and a cast of stars of a caliber seldom assembled in a single picture are—wonder of wonders!—completely overshadowed by the sheer power of one of the most remarkable stories ever filmed.

One in seeing Judgment of the Storm wonders just where such a plot has been hiding, that it escaped the frenzied search of film producers for good stories. As a matter of fact, it was only recently created by its author, Mrs. Ethel Styles Middleton of Pittsburgh, who wrote the story expressly for the screen. It marks her debut as a recognized photoplaywright, and the power, virility and novelty of the story shows what "new blood" in screen authorship can do.

Who says that there is nothing new under the sun in picture stories? A glance at a few plot highlights of Judgment of the Storm indicates that at least some of the "unknown" authors "at large" in America have new ideas for story twists.

For instance: Lloyd Hughes, as John Trevor, a wealthy young college man, sentences himself to a lifetime of hard labor on a New England farm, to atone for the accidental killing of his sweetheart's brother! Another: In an heroic battle with the elements, Trevor, finds himself suddenly confronted with the problem of which to save from death—his mother, or two little children, the brother and sister of the girl he loves! To tell of other big "punches" in the story would spoil the spectator's biggest thrill—that of watching the unexpected unfold into new complications, suffice to say that these two plot "twists" are but a taste of what Judgment of the Storm has to offer.

Short subjects will include a comedy and news weekly.

PALACE THEATRE

So many inquiries have reached Manager William Harding's office regarding the San Carlo Grand Opera performance of Madame Butterfly at the Palace Monday evening, Mar. 10, that there is every indication that the evening is to be the stellar artistic and social event of the season. Several interesting opera parties have been arranged, it is said. And this is as it should be. In the big metropolitan centers, the opera is the rendezvous of intellect and fashion. While Norwich has not as yet a permanent opera, the visit of such a splendid company as the San Carlo will enable our four hundred, as well as those artistically and musically inclined, to put on the best bib and tucker and indulge in a real feast of the muses, as well as social intercourse under unusually favorable conditions.

The Madame Butterfly performance is to have a first-class presentation at the Palace, with Mme. Tamaki Miuura, famous Japanese prima donna, singing the title role. In her support will be a stellar cast of principals, a complete grand opera chorus, and a specially augmented orchestra, under the direction of Maestro Aldo Franchetti, of Rome (permission of Premier Mussilini). Elvira Leveroni, of the Boston Opera, will be the Suzuki; and Colin O'More, handsome young American tenor, the Pinkerton. Graham Marr (Chicago Opera) Charles E. Galagher, Max Kaplick, Fausto Bozza, and cunning little Baby Frances Hess, will be the other principals. Magnificent scenery and costumes will accompany the production here.

BREED THEATRE

Acclaimed by the nation for a former remarkable characterization of the same role, Wallace Berry was chosen to renew his portrayal of King Richard in Richard, the Lion-Hearted, a romance of the Third Crusade based on Sir Walter Scott's immortal novel, The Talisman, and produced for the silver sheet by the new Associated Authors, under the direction of Frank E. Woods. The new Berry portrayal of King Richard will be seen at the Breed theatre for the remainder of the week under an Allied Producers and Distributors Corporation release.

The Associated Authors, combining that remarkable literary trio, Frank E. Woods, Elmer Harris and Thompson Buchanan, decided that Wallace Beery was the one man to play the stellar role in Richard, the Lion-Hearted. His appearance as King Richard was considered essential to the production of this "sequel" to Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood, on a stupendous scale that accurately reflects the famous historical period of the Third Crusade. And so the precedent was established of having the same man cast in the same role in two pictures.

With the widespread interest in Robin Hood and countrywide recognition of Beery's triumph as King Richard to count upon, the Associated Authors felt assured that Richard, the Lion-Hearted, would fill a worthy place in screen history.

Other pictures on the bill include the fourth chapter of The Way of a Man, the serial sensation of the century; the Pathe news and an Educational comedy.

AT THE PALACE

The programme of The Imperial Revue now playing at the Palace theatre for the last half of the week even surpasses the excellent bill for the first half of the week. In the bill Thursday the members of the company demonstrated that they are very versatile and no two numbers of the last half of the week bore the slightest resemblance to the bill for the first half. Several new specialty numbers were introduced and the two comedians had an entirely new line of humorous hits that went across in fine style. The stage settings were very attractive as was the costuming of the chorus and principals.

The feature picture is The Miracle Makers, starring Leah Baird in the leading feminine role. The picture is replete with action as is an exceptionally fine production. An educational film and a comedy complete the bill.
